CASH DIVIDENDS DURING NOVEMBER PASS 600 MILLION

Total Payments for Year Are Expected To Reach $4,000,000,000, a New Record, A Billion More Than Paid Out in 1935.

1,250,000 WORKERS GET HIKE IN PAY

Economists Predict That Christmas Trade Will Show Increase of 15 Per Cent Over Year Ago.

By MAX L. BROWN.

(Copyright, 1936, by United Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(UP)—Cash dividends declared by corporations with stocks listed on various security exchanges exceeded $600,000,000 for the first 20 days this month, one of the largest totals in history, a United Press compilation revealed today.

Current indications are that total dividend payments for 1936 by companies whose stocks are listed may reach $4,000,000,000, a record for this classification, and more than $1,000,000,000 in excess of the 1935 disbursements.

The deluge of special, extra, increased, year-end and unclassified declarations, practically all of which succeeded the national election, composed the major portion of this month's distributions and lifted disbursements by such corporations for the year to date above $3,400,000,000.

During this 20-day period more than 1,250,000 employes have been benefited through increased pay or bonus announcements, involving an estimated $200,000,000 annually.

Gain in Trade Seen.

This outpouring of funds led many economists to predict that consumer income for the final month this year will average some 20 per cent over a year ago and that Christmas holiday trade will show a better than 15 per cent gain over 1935 and will be the best since the 1929 boom days.

Three weeks ago anticipations were that dividends for listed companies this year would top the $3,000,000,000 level by only a moderate margin since "normal" dividend expectations for both November and December hardly exceeded $600,000,000—the total reached in the first three weeks this month. The monthly average up to November was approximately $231,000,000, August making the best showing with about $350,000,000.

King Edward, 'Wally' Week-End Together

VIRGINIA WATER, England, Nov. 21.—(UP)—King Edward and Mrs. Wallis Simpson were week-ending together today at Fort Belvedere, protected from the curious by special guards posted on the grounds.

The flag of the Duchy of Cornwall rippled in the clear sunlight of a perfect autumn day.

The fine weather assured the king and his American friend opportunity to engage in gardening pursuits, in which they are mutually interested.

Major Problems Will Face Incoming General Assembly

Old-Age Pensions Tops List of Issues To Feature 1937 Session.

Both Houses Expected To Experience Little Trouble in Organizing.

By The Associated Press.

At least seven major problems in addition to old-age pensions were widely discussed in Georgia political circles last week as likely to face the 1937 general assembly. They include:

Appropriations for three—instead of the usual two—years.

Investigation of the Talmadge administration as forecast by Governor-elect E. D. Rivers in his campaign speeches.

Additional support of the schools.

Reconsideration of the state's liquor laws.

The price of automobile and truck license tags.

Control of the state highway board.

Disposition of the nearly completed federal aid prison in Tattnall county.

Pensions Top List.

Rivers was elected on an old-age pension platform and this, of course, will top the list. Governor Talmadge vetoed a proposed old-age pension amendment to the state constitution. Rivers has declined to reveal his plan for securing them.

With the boards clear of elections, legislators now have seven weeks to ponder these and other questions before their 10-day organization meeting which opens January 11.

Rivers himself is holding almost daily private conferences, with small groups of legislators which are to continue through December 18. He has indicated his full legislative program will not be made known until then.

Although the legislature is not per-

Organization of both houses of the general assembly without controversy when they meet early in January was in prospect last week, with house leaders unopposed and the race for the senate presidency narrowed down to Senator John B. Spivey, of Swainsboro, and Senator Paul L. Lindsay, of Decatur.

Representative Roy V. Harris, of Richmond county, Governor-elect Rivers' floor leader in the last session, is unopposed for speaker of the house.

The Spivey campaign was given impetus yesterday when Senator Alpha Fowler, of Douglasville, announced his withdrawal in Mr. Spivey's favor and Senator David S. Atkinson, of Savannah, who has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for the presidency, although he did not announce for the post, revealed he is urging those who would support him to back Senator Spivey.

Claims 36 Pledges.

From Swainsboro yesterday Senator Spivey issued a statement asserting he has 36 written pledges of support, 10 more than the 26 needed to guarantee his election. Friends of Senator Lindsay say the Decatur leader has 17 pledges.

There are two candidates for president pro tem of the senate, Senator Joel Terrell, of Warrenton, a son of Judge J. Render Terrell, of Greenville, and Senator Guy V. Jackson, of Cochran.

There is a spirited race on for the post of speaker pro tem of the house vacated by Representative Ellis G.

SOCIAL AID FUNDS SOUGHT BY GEORGE

Senator To Insist U. S. Pay Pension Benefits to Georgians Immediately.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

VIENNA, Ga., Nov. 21.—Walter F. George, senior United States senator from Georgia, will insist that the federal government begin immediate payment of old age pensions and other federal aid funds to citizens of this state, if the incoming Georgia state administration acts immediately after it assumes control to set machinery in motion to participate in social security benefits.

Labeling immediate action as the first step in the program, the senator asserted that even if constitutional prohibitions bar taxation of Georgians to match federal funds, he sees no reason for the federal government to withhold payment pending enactment of enabling amendments to the state document.

Senator George, therefore, will insist that the bill providing for distribution of benefits only in those states which are actually paying pensions to the needy aged be amended to enable the federal government to pay its share of the benefits to states where local machinery is in motion to provide old age pension systems.

Informed in Atlanta of Senator George's plan, Governor-elect Rivers said:

"I am happy to know of the interest being taken by Senator George in old-age pensions. I am committed to old-age pensions. Most of the members of the general assembly likewise are committed. With the support of Senator George and others in Washington I have every hope our pension program in Georgia will be carried

A. F. OF L. CHARGES SPY QUIZ BLOCKING

Federation Group Urges Funds To Continue La Follette Investigation.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor convention's legislative committee asserted tonight that "millions of dollars" would be available this winter to a lobby seeking to kill the senate investigation of strike-breaking and labor espionage.

The committee urged the convention in its report to demand an ample appropriation to continue the inquiry directed by Senator La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin.

"All the lobbies of the great anti-union financial forces and all their secret pressures are being mobilized to prevent the senate granting an appropriation to carry on the investigation," the report said.

"If our reports are as accurate as we believe them to be, the greatest and most adroit lobby that has ever operated in Washington is being organized to kill this astounding expose.

Good Beginning.

"The La Follette committee has made only a beginning, but what a beginning. It has dragged into the light the underworld that serves the biggest businesses—the spies and thugs whose profession is wrecking unions, or even murdering workers.

"Espionage and thuggery are shown to be businesses organized on a nation-wide scale, to which great corporations pay tens of millions annually. Strike-breaking munitions, gas grenades and machine guns are proved to be stocked by plants in every line of industry.

"Criminals, paid by business, march out of plants badged as deputy sheriffs, free to frame union men to prison. Big employers are shown personally instructing gangsters in the arts and tricks of destroying unions.

Fay Webb's Aunt Dies While Viewing Body

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 21.—(UP)—Death struck again in the Webb family today while sorrowing relatives and friends were attending funeral services for Fay Webb Vallee.

The new victim was Miss Winifred Webb, aunt of the dead girl, who collapsed as she stood weeping beside the casket of her niece.

Miss Webb died in the arms of her brother, Clarence E. Webb, father of Fay, who already was doubly bereaved, his wife having died several months ago.

The tragedy occurred while hundreds of men and women were filing past the open coffin in which Mrs. Vallee's head rested on a floral pillow sent from New York by her former husband, Rudy Vallee.

Webb, who had been his daughter's constant companion during the court-room ordeals which culminated in her divorce and while she was ill with peritonitis, carried his sister's body through the throng in the funeral chapel to an ante room.

There physicians determined that she had died of a heart attack.

Later Webb ordered the body of his daughter taken to Woodlawn cemetery. An honorary escort of police opened a passage through the crowd and the cortege moved away.

COMMITTEE POST VACANCY ELECTION TO BE HELD FRIDAY

Clark Howell Successor as National Committeeman Will Be Named by State Democratic Body.

The state Democratic executive committee will meet at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon in Atlanta to elect a successor to Clark Howell as Georgia's Democratic national committeeman and to plan for the state's participation in the reinauguration of President Roosevelt.

The meeting will be on the roof of the Ansley hotel.

Chairman Charles S. Reid yesterday issued the call for the session one week after the death of Mr. Howell, president and editor of The Atlanta Constitution, who served nearly 30 years as committeeman.

Rivers Expected.

The call was issued in letters to the 120 men and women composing the committee which recently was organized to serve throughout the administration of Governor-elect E. D. Rivers. Mr. Rivers is expected to meet with the group as is Mrs. Virginia Polhill Price, of Louisville, the state's national committeewoman.

It is not known who will be selected to serve out the unexpired term of Mr. Howell, who was elected this year for a term to expire in 1940.

In making his announcement, Chairman Reid said he would ask the entire committee to attend the inaugural ceremonies of President Roosevelt in Washington January 20. A special train from Atlanta to Washington will be arranged. This train also will carry Mr. Rivers and members of the general assembly who have unofficially agreed to adjourn their session to permit them to attend.

Details of the trip will be discussed at Friday's meeting.

Use Train as Hotel.

Chairman Reid yesterday announced that the special train carrying Georgia's delegation to the Roosevelt inaugural would be over the Seaboard Air Line and arrangements were being made with the railroad for Georgians to use the train as their hotel while in Washington. State headquarters in Washington will be at the Raleigh hotel, but as the capital will be crowded it is expected most

ATLANTANS NAMED FOR RIVERS' STAFF

Selection of 13 Disclosed; Others Are Expected to Receive Appointments.

At least 13 Atlantans have received notice of their appointment to the military staff of Governor E. D. Rivers, it was learned yesterday. Several other residents of Atlanta and Fulton county have been or are to be appointed but their names have not been revealed.

No announcement of the full list of staff members has been made either by Governor-elect Rivers or his chief of staff, Colonel W. Fred Scott, of Thomasville, but the Atlantans listed have received notice of their appointments, which have been revealed by friends.

Included in the Fulton county group are Jack J. Spalding, leading Catholic layman of Georgia, knight of St. Gregory and winner of the Laetare medal of Notre Dame; Dr. Hiram Wesley Evans, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan; Simon Selig, businessman; Walter Rich, merchant; State Treasurer George B. Hamilton; Carling Dinkler and Cecil Cannon, hotel operators; N. S. Noble, managing editor of The Constitution; Cecil J. Holleran, of The Constitution; John L. Conner, insurance executive; Ivan Allen Jr., businessman, and D. B. Blalock, manufacturer's agent, and Alderman Robert Carpenter.

Two prominent Rivers leaders in DeKalb county, Sheriff Jake Hall and Mayor Scott Candler, of Decatur, also have received notices of their appointment.

It was announced last night that

Georgia Bulldogs Crash Rams' 'Wall of Granite'

Wild Bill Hartman, Georgia fullback, is shown above hitting the Fordham line for three yards early in the first quarter Saturday at New York, as the Georgia Bulldogs startled the football world by holding the presumably Rose Bowl-bound Fordham Rams to a 7-7 tie. It was a great moral victory over an intersectional foe, as the Bulldogs were conceded only a ghost of a chance to withstand Fordham's "seven blocks of granite." FEDERAL RESERVE HINTS NEW CURB Requirements May Be Increased to 'Freeze' Billion of Excess Funds.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Apprehensively watching a steady inflow of gold, the Federal Reserve Board gave a strong indication today it may increase reserve requirements again, to curb credit expansion by "freezing" more than $1,000,000,000 of excess bank reserves.

After a week of conferences about the effect of heavy gold imports on the national credit situation, the board, through Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, announced that "careful consideration" was being given to the question "with a view to taking such action at such time as appears to be necessary in the public interest."

Reserve officials said this indicated a probability that, unless the present situation changes, reserve requirements may be further increased in January or February, after funds withdrawn for the holiday season flow back into the banks.

On August 15, the board increased requirements by 50 per cent to eliminate about $1,500,000,000 of excess reserves as a basis of "possible injurious credit expansion."

Can Rise 50 Per cent.

Under the law, it could increase requirements by another 50 per cent of the level existing prior to August 15.

(Excess reserves are banks' idle funds over and above those held as a required reserve behind deposits. Economists estimate that every dollar of excess reserves can support from $8 to $10 of credit. Thus, to guard against "runaway" credit inflation, the Federal Reserve Board seeks to keep excess reserves at a "controllable" level.

(On November 18, excess reserves of member banks were estimated at $2,270,000,000. If the board exercised its maximum authority to again increase requirements, these would be reduced to about $1,000,000,000.)

Conference Held.

Eccles' statement today said the Federal Reserve Board, its advisory council of businessmen, presidents of the federal reserve banks and the open market committee had conferred this week. The open market committee has charge of federal reserve banks' policies in the purchase and sale of government securities.

"In the course of these meetings,

Rams' Rose Bowl Hopes Blasted by Athenians' Surprising Resistance.

By The Associated Press.

Fordham's renowned Seven Blocks of Granite crumbled before the savage clawing of an underdog Georgia Bulldog yesterday when the southerners battled the Rams to a 7-to-7 deadlock and eliminated them unceremoniously from the Rose Bowl picture.

The Southeastern conference eleven from Crackerland turned in the circuit's standout performance of the day, while Louisiana State, a stronger bidder for Rose Bowl consideration, continued toward a second straight loop crown by slaughtering Southwestern Louisiana, 93 to 0, in a non-conference go.

Georgia held the highly touted New Yorkers to a single touchdown after themselves smashing over a score on the Rams' second team before 35,000 spectators in the Polo Grounds. Fordham heretofore was undefeated and tied only by Pittsburgh.

Louisiana State students, forgetting for the moment the carnage of their team's lopsided victory, cheered themselves hoarse over Georgia's tie. With Fordham out of the running, they figured the Bayou Tigers had a brighter chance to go to Pasadena on New Year's Day.

From another quarter, Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, put in a word for his state university's Crimson Tide, a familiar Rose Bowl figure again ambitious for a call from the coast.

"Hooray for Georgia and Dixie," the stocky governor, himself a former star on the Crimson Tide, wired the Georgia team. Then he commented:

"That ought to end any doubt about Alabama going to the Rose Bowl."

Alabama, tied by Tennessee, a conference member, was idle yesterday. Louisiana, undefeated in the conference, was tied early in the season by Texas. The Tide's final clash is against Vanderbilt Thanksgiving Day and L. S. U. ends its regular season against Tulane next Saturday.

The razzle-dazzle Georgia Tech Engineers worked an assortment of pigskin magic to whip Florida, 38 to 14. Tulane swamped Sewanee, 53 to 6, and Mississippi State trounced Mississippi, 26 to 6.

Loyola of New Orleans provided Auburn with a breathing spell, the Plainsmen winning, 44 to 0, in their only home stand of the season.

Farley Doesn't Deny Movie 'Czar' Report

DUBLIN, Nov. 21.—(UP)—James A. Farley, United States postmaster general, said tonight that he had no comment to make on reports from Los Angeles that he is to succeed Will Hays as arbiter of the movie industry.

FARLEY REPORTED SLATED FOR POST

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—(UP) The motion picture industry tonight was skeptical of reports that James A. Farley, Democratic party leader, would succeed Will H. Hays to the $150,000-a-year post as "czar" of the films.

The Los Angeles Daily Illustrated News said its informant reported that the offer would be made when Farley returns from a vacation in Ireland a fortnight hence.

It was pointed out that Hays' contract will not expire for at least four more years.

The News also said that Patrick Flaherty, former vice president of the Red Star Music Company of New York, would succeed Joseph I. Breen as assistant.

CHEST CAMPAIGN IN CLOSING PHASE

Workers Hope To Reach Necessary Quota Before WednesdayNight Comes

After a week-end check showing gains so impressive success is sure if the pace is maintained, volunteer Community Chest workeres plunge tomorrow into the final phases of the fourteenth annual campaign.

Only three working days remain before the campaign is scheduled to close. A total of $187,922 has been subscribed toward the goal of $423,846.

"Simple arithmetic points to success," Alvin B. Cates, general campaign chairman, said, "when we find that although we are almost halfway to our goal, nearly two-thirds of the individuals and firms are yet to be contacted.

Campaign of Gratitude.

"First response has been overwhelming and we know the same spirit will be shown in the next three days, because this has become a campaign of gratitude for better times.

"In order to give every worker a chance to make every possible contact, there will be no report meeting tomorrow. The next workers' meeting will be at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday.

"We have high hopes this day and a half of intensive work will permit us to wind up the campaign Wednesday, finishing successfully and within the allotted period for the first time in many years."

Directors of the 14 group divisions, representing sections of Atlanta business and industry, will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mr. Cates for a final clearing of decks.

Gains General.

Three report meetings were held the first week of the campaign, and each showed improvement over the preceding one. In almost every in-

Constant Firing, Off Palmos, Prevents Crew From Reaching Lifeboats; Rain Saves Madrid From Aerial Attack.

MADRID, Nov. 21. — (AP) — Sinking of a Spanish merchant ship by Fascists was confirmed tonight as government troops launched a counter-offensive to surround Insurgents holding Casa De Campo, westward across the Manzanares river from Madrid.

The Fascist cruiser Canarias sank the merchant marine vessel "Sat-4" with 40 shells off the eastern Spanish coast near Palamos early Tuesday morning, official advices from Barcelona announced. Two of the shells exploded in Palamos.

The constant firing prevented the crew from reaching lifeboats and seamen leaped into the sea to swim to safety. Three sailors and two Palamos residents were injured.

Before attacking the "Sat-4," the Insurgent vessel compelled the crew of a small fishing smack to give the Fascist salute.

Recapture Section.

The Casa De Campo offensive followed close upon recapture of University City positions by the government militia and General Jose Miaja said rout of the civil war enemy was "inevitable."

While icy rains prevented Fascist aerial attack of Madrid, wintry blasts added to the hardships of Madrid residents. It was estimated more than 250,000 women, children and old persons remained to be evacuated from the capital.

The commissary of evacuation announced 1,000 utomobiles had been requisitioned to carry the refugees to safe haven, east and south of Madrid. The auto caravan was instructed to bring back food to the male defenders remaining.

Huge French Blaze Routs 600 Families

ANGERS, France, Nov. 21.—(UP) A great fire broke out in the business section here today. Thirty houses were razed and 600 families were made homeless when they had to flee from the burned buildings and others nearby which were threatened with similar destruction.

The fire began in a department store and spread with lightning rapidity. In mid-afternoon it was still out of control.

The fire threatened the famous cathedral and museum. All firemen from Nantes, Tours and Lemans were sent to Angers, as well as a company of the sixth engineers, a company of Hussars, one of Tirrailleurs and all gendarmes of the region.

Caroline Miller Is Given Custody Of 3 Children at Douglas Hearing

DOUGLAS, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Caroline Miller, noted Georgia novelist, won temporary custody of her three children today pending final settlement of her divorce proceedings against Will D. Miller, Georgia educator.

Mrs. Miller filed petition for divorce in Ware superior court October 21, saying she and her husband were incompatible.

The husband filed a cross bill asking custody of one of the children, Will Jr., 9. He asked also that his wife be enjoined from removing the child from the jurisdiction of the court.

Injunction Hearing.

The hearing today was on the injunction. It was held in this city, the home of Judge M. D. Dickerson, who presides over Waycross superior court circuit.

Today's hearing, a battle of affidavits, did not involve the divorce proper. Mrs. Miller sued in September charging mental cruelty and incompatibility. The divorce hearing is scheduled for Waycross the first Monday in December. The final decree could not be awarded until May.

Judge Dickerson ruled Mrs. Miller should have temporary custody of the children until the decree is final. He ruled the father should be permitted to see the children at any time he wishes and should have custody during the three months between school terms.

YOUNG FIRE VICTIMS ARE UNITED IN BURIAL

Joint Funeral Services Are Held for Couple at Baptist Tabernacle.

Occupying every available seat and overflowing into corridors of the Baptist Tabernacle, several hundred persons, including childhood friends and former school chums, attended joint funeral services at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Miss Betty Martin and her fiance, W. Terry Evans, victims of Thursday's tragic Cable Piano building blaze.

Scores of floral tributes banked the caskets. The rites were spoken by Dr. W. H. Knight. The couple, who were to have been married in December, were joined in death in their grave at the Grantville (Ga.) cemetery, following the church rites. The caskets rest side by side in a single large grave.

Miss Martin, who was 20 and lived at 1440 Sylvan road, and Evans, 23, of 352 Kelly street, a former star football player at Commercial High school, lost their lives when they were trapped by flames in the Atlanta Conservatory of Music, on the top floor of the building.

Awtry & Lowndes were in charge of arrangements for Miss Martin, and Sam R. Greenberg was in charge of arrangements for Evans.

Final rites for the third fire victim, Mrs. J. Porter Smith, well-known music teacher, were held Friday afternoon.

FUNDS FOR SOCIAL AID ARE SOUGHT BY GEORGE

out to the entire satisfaction of the people of the state."

Failure of the legislature to approve a program in conformity with demands of the social security act, however, will bar to Georgians federal benefits to the state's needy aged, the needy blind, dependent children, public health work and soil conservation, Senator George asserted, in stressing the imperative need for early action.

The federal portion of the security program will become available to Georgians along with other citizens of the nation whether the Georgia assembly provides necessary legislation for full benefits or not.

About 26,000,000 persons on January 1 will begin to receive federal old age benefits, but these differ from the old age pension for the needy. The benefits are administered solely by the federal government, and provide for retirement of every employe, except in certain restricted lines of endeavor, at the age of 65 on monthly payments which he and his employer have provided through federal taxation.

Must Match Funds.

Pension of the aged needy is a federal and state co-operative arrangement, with the federal government agreeing to match state funds up to $15 a month for each person. It is this co-operative pension program which hinges on action of the Georgia government, Senator George points out.

The legislature must set up its own machinery, conforming only to a few stipulations provided in the federal act.

Provision must be made for establishment of a board to administer the funds and those entitled to receive benefits must be registered. The Georgia law must designate those entitled to receive benefits or must provide machinery through which this important matter may be ascertained.

There is no demand that the full $15 a month to each pensioner be provided by the state, but the amount to be paid should be set out either in the legislation or by leaving it at the discretion of the administrative board.

State Must Act.

"Georgia cannot receive full benefits under the social security act for her aged needy, the needy blind, dependent children, or public health work unless and until the state meets the reasonable requirements of the act," Senator George said.

"First, Georgia must set up its own program for our needy aged. The plan will be administered entirely by the state. Until this plan is set up and until those who are entitled to receive benefits thereunder have been ascertained, the federal government cannot, under the act, make any allotment whatever to the state for old-age benefits.

"The act carries a provision which will give full credit to the state for every dollar appropriated to the use of our needy aged, whether by the state itself, counties or municipalities, who come within terms of the state plan or system. Even this federal aid cannot be received until the legislature of the state adopts the plan and provides for the registration of needy qualified old people under the plan.

Amendments Necessary.

"It is well understood that some amendments to the social security act will be necessary during the next session of the congress. These amendments will relate to the old-age insurance and unemployment plans which do not depend upon state action so much, but when these amendments are made, the opportunity will be at hand to procure for the state, if humanly possible, the full federal contribution to our needy aged, if the legislature in the meantime has set up the old-age benefit system and provided ascertainment of those who are entitled to receive benefits thereunder.

"As a member of the finance committee of the senate in which the social security act was largely framed and before which any amendments thereto will come, I will do my utmost to obtain the full proportion of Georgia from the federal treasury for the aid of our needy aged, if in the meantime this is made possible by the establishment of the old-age benefit system by the state.

System Must Be Set Up.

"It may not be possible to obtain the full quota coming to the old people of Georgia, even if the state adopts an old-age benefit system, but it will be altogether impossible and out of the question if a system is not set up and the bensficiaries under that system ascertained or the machinery set in motion by which they may be ascertained.

"It is assumed that the state cannot, without a change in its constitution, collect a tax for the support of a state-wide old-age pension or benefit system. If this assumption is correct, practically two full years must elapse before our needy aged can receive full benefits from the federal treasury provided by the social security act unless some amendment to the act is made and there would seem to be no just reason for withholding from the state its full proportion of federal funds provided the state evidences its intention to set up an old-age benefit plan by creating the plan and by registering the needy old people of the state.

"This is the first step and it is the necessary step for assistance from the federal government until the state can legally collect taxes to pay its part of the benefits to the old.

"The social security act and the ultimate value of the soil conservation act thus depends upon state action."

Senate Committeeman.

Senator George was a member of the finance committee of the senate and was one of the most active members of the congress in framing details of the social security legislation. He was a member of the conference committees which thrashed out differences between the senate and the congress.

"The social security act came into force 15 months ago," Senator George said in explaining many of its features.

"For three years prior to that time the federal government was compelled to carry the main burden of the public welfare load. After three years of experience with emergency measures, congress realized that the depression not only created new ills but aggravated chronic ills; old-age dependency, need for aid to the blind and to handicapped children, as well as aid to the unemployed, were with us before 1929 and in some form and measure will remain with us. The social security act is simply the first federal step to meet these aggravated ills or problems as far as possible.

State Obligations.

"The care of the needy aged, the blind, dependent children, are state obligations primarily. The social security act simply offers to the states aid and assistance in meeting these obligations long recognized by the states. The act develops a national pattern—sets up a minimum standard—and offers it as a condition on which the states may receive assistance from the federal treasury. This aid is to be administered entirely by the states; that is to say, by local officers responsive to local opinion and upon plans adopted by the states themselves, provided only that the plans meet the minimum standard fixed by congress.

"For the 10 months since February 1, when funds first became available, federal grants have totalled $2,301,653 for the state unemployment compensation laws; $79,937,800 for aid to the needy aged in 40 states, the District of Columbia and Hawaii; $3,092,700 for aid to nearly 29,000 needy blind and $8,204,668 for aid to 337,800 dependent children in 27 states. Ready for distribution also is an annual appropriation of $8,000,000 to all the states for public health service and $2,000,000 for additional funds to be administered by the National Public Health Service.

26,000,000 Eligible.

"January 1, next, some 26,000,000 persons will begin to receive payments under the old-age insurance plan and the unemployment insurance plan provided by the act. This feature of the act is federal in scope and Georgians will get equal benefits with citizens of other states. These payments or benefits will go to the estates of those under the act who died before reaching the age of 65; to those who become 65 in 1942, and thereafter.

"This title of the act, under which the federal government taxes the employer and employes, seeks to make it possible for the worker out of employment to draw benefits in proportion to his wages for a limited time and after retirement similar benefits for the remainder of his life. The act thus seeks to give assurance to the unemployed worker, that his meager savings will not be wiped out while he is seeking another job; that his family will not face want, at the same time continuing some measure of the purchasing power of the unemployed worker.

"Congress will accept the November election as a referendum on these principals embodied in the social security act."

MANY PROBLEMS FACE INCOMING ASSEMBLY

mitted to consider general questions at the 10-day organization meeting, sources close to the new administration have indicated the body will call its regular 60-day meeting as soon as the short session adjourns.

A constitutional amendment ratified November 8, 1932, sets the regular meeting for the second Monday after the Fourth of July, but permits the assembly to call it earlier by "a majority of a quorum" of the house and the senate.

The 1933 and 1935 regular sessions were held in January.

The appropriations question was brought on by the failure of the 1935 assembly to provide for the years 1936 and 1937. Talmadge elected to carry on without appropriations and has exercised a one-man control over state finances since January 1, 1936.

There still remains a lack of 1937 appropriations, and the legislature will normally be charged with passing appropriations for 1938 and 1939 at its coming meeting.

Investigation Looms.

The investigation of Talmadge and his administration was a major stump topic of Rivers during the recent primary campaign in which he defeated Charles D. Redwine, Talmadge-supported candidate, for the governorship.

More adequate support of schools by the state was also a major Rivers topic. The Governor-elect enjoyed strong campaign backing from many high officials among the school people.

The state's liquor laws, which permit the sale and possession of beer and native wines of natural fermentation only, have been a lively topic of discussion since hard liquor was voted down by a narrow margin in a statewide election last year.

Georgia's bone-dry law was passed by legislative enactment, and wets now argue it can be repealed the same way. Church conventions have urged their membership to begin using their influence on the legislators in the dry cause.

Not Campaign Issue.

The liquor question was not a campaign issue in the recent elections, although Rivers was opposed November 3 by L. P. Glass, prohibition party entry. Glass received a negligible vote.

The auto license question, while not now considered a lively one, is expected in most quarters to arise, perhaps through a move to raise the price of truck tags.

All tags were set at $3 by Talmadge shortly after he became governor and the legislature has since indorsed his "bargain" idea.

The State Highway Board is now composed of three Talmadge-appointed members, two of whom have been confirmed by the senate. As the terms of all three board members extend well into the Rivers administration, there has been talk of abolishing the present setup and creating a five-man board.

Chairman W. E. Wilburn and John Heck are the highway board members holding senate indorsement. Judge Max McRae holds a commission from Talmadge, but his name has not been placed before the senate.

New Prison Problem.

The seventh problem—that of disposing of the new prison—will involve acceptance or rejection by the legislature of a rental contract with the federal government made by the prison commission and Governor Talmadge.

The government bought the land on which the prison stands and up to October 30 had spent $1,255,867.34 on the buildings alone.

The contract provides for rental payments by the state of slightly more than 5 per cent of the total prison cost (less 30 per cent of the cost of labor and materials) each year for 30 years. At the end of that time the government has agreed to quit-claim the property and buildings to the state. The prison will accommodate 2,000 inmates.

NEW CURB IS HINTED BY FEDERAL RESERVE

the business and credit situation was fully reviewed," the statement said, adding:

"Particular attention was given to the fact that since the board's action last July in raising reserve requirements (effective August 15) there has been a continued and substantial increase of member bank reserves, resulting principally from a further large inflow of gold from abroad."

This, it was said, has brought excess reserves "far in excess of legal requirements and of present or prospective needs of commerce, industry and agriculture.

"Those charged with responsibility for credit and reserve policy are now giving careful consideration to the various problems raised by the effects of these reserves with a view to taking such action at such time as appears to be necessary in the public interest."

The statement left the way open for either another increase in reserve requirements or an "open market operation," but officials indicated that if action were taken the former course probably would be followed.

By an "open market operation" federal reserve banks would sell a part of the $2,430,000,000 of government securities they now hold. Most of the securities would be absorbed by banks, which would draw upon excess funds to make payment and thus decrease excess reserves.

Officials emphasized that even should requirements be further increased, there would be no change in the board's "easy money policy." They said that $800,000,000 of excess reserves was considered ample to provide low interest rates, and that even were requirements increased excess funds still would be slightly above this figure.

Follows F. D. R. Order.

The board's statement followed recent instructions to administration financial agencies by President Roosevelt to study the steady influx of foreign capital into investments in this country, with a view to determining whether control action should be taken.

Although an increase in reserve requirements would have the effect of "sterilizing" a portion of this foreign capital as a basis for credit, officials said that a separate study would be made on foreign funds to determine their effects on prices and other economic factors.

Under the increased reserve requirements of August 15, New York and Chicago member banks were required to keep reserves totaling 19.5 per cent of demand deposits; banks in reserve cities 15 per cent, and "country" banks 10.5 per cent. The percentage on time deposits was raised from 3 to 4.5 per cent.

If the maximum of its powers was used, the board could increase percentages to 26, 20 and 14 on demand deposits and 6 on time deposits.

Required reserves now total $4,580,000,000, and reserve officials estimated a maximum increase in requirements would push these to $5,780,000,000.

Boy Nips 'Dastardly Plot' By Sending in Fire Alarm

WATERTOWN, Mass., Nov. 20. (AP)—When several of his friends announced they were going to "burn him at the stake," John Gerry, 9, turned in a fire alarm from a box next to the town infirmary today.

The alarm brought out three engine companies, two ladder trucks, a police cruising car, two motorcycle officers, and Fire Chief John W. O'Hearn.

After the bonfire of leaves set by the youngsters was extinguished, Chief O'Hearn announced he would be on hand when school opens Monday morning to administer a stern lecture to Johnny's "cannibal" classmates.

13 ATLANTANS NAMED FOR STAFF OF RIVERS

Collins Bird, Swainsboro, former Atlanta hotel man, had been appointed a colonel on the new staff.

At Griffin, R. L. Addleton, attorney, said he had been appointed also as a lieutenant colonel.

Previously T. G. Reeves and E. J. Knight, both of Columbus, had announced they had accepted appointments to the Rivers' staff.

The governor-elect several days ago announced the appointment of Colonel Scott and that of Andrew A. Smith, Savannah hotel executive, to be his naval aide with rank of commander.

Others are to be named between now and the inauguration of Governor Rivers.

Members of the staff will participate in the inauguration of the new governor and will also attend the ceremonies attendant upon the reinauguration of President Roosevelt in Washington.

FAIR SKIES PREDICTED FOR ATLANTANS TODAY

Fair weather, with a slight cooling in temperatures, is predicted for Atlanta today.

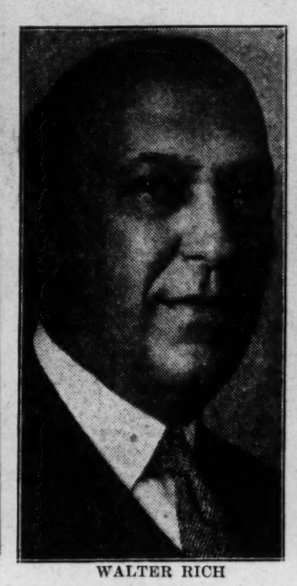

Temperatures yesterday started at 50 degrees in the morning and climbed to 63 degrees around noon and then a drop at an average of one degree an hour during the afternoon was recorded.

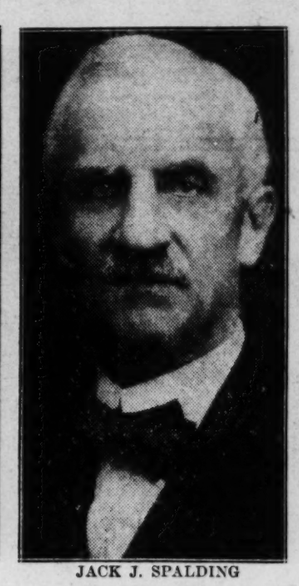

Today the mercury is expected to start at 42 degrees and climb to 62. The fair weather and cool temperatures are general east of the Mississippi river, according to the local forecasters.

LENDER WINS SUIT AGAINST ATLANTAN

Judgment for $62,000 Returned by Judge Against Mrs. Bird.

A judgment for $45,000 principal, $11,462 interest and $5,646 attorney's fees was rendered yesterday by a judge in Fulton superior court against Mrs. Cora M. Bird, widow of the late Charles P. Bird, state printer.

The verdict was in favor of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States and involved a loan made Mrs. Bird in 1925 on her property on the southwest corner of North avenue and Peachtree street. She borrowed $50,000 and reduced the principal to $45,000, it was said. The jury also found the value of her property was $75,000.

Action in court resulted from the attempt of the society to foreclose, which was prevented by Mrs. Bird's petition for injunction. The society then filed a cross bill on which the case was decided. Question of whether a receiver is to be appointed for the property is still to be decided by Judge E. E. Pomeroy, who heard the trial.

The first letter written on a typewriter in the United States is in the historical collection of the Smithsonian Institution at Washington.

'NEW' BRAIN SURGERY TWICE EMPLOYED HERE

Dr. Newdigate M. Owensby Tells of Experiments Bared to Doctors.

A new form of brain surgery described at the Baltimore convention of the Southern Medical Association last week has been tried twice in Atlanta and is still in its experimental stages, it was revealed yesterday.

Doctors in Baltimore were told by Dr. Walter Freeman and Dr. Watts, of the George Washington University Medical school, at Washington, that in a few selected cases noteworthy relief has been given people suffering from abnormal worry, apprehension, anxiety, sleeplessness and nervous tension by this method, which blocks off a portion of the impulses running to and from the prefrontal lobes of the brain which lie just behind the forehead. Both doctors, however, said they have no data yet on the permanent effects of the operation or the ability of the patients to return to work.

"We have tried this method in a couple of cases in Atlanta," said Dr. Newdigate M. Owensby, head of the Owensby clinic in Atlanta. "It has given relief in cases of paresis, but we have not been able to determine to what extent it can be used."

The method was described in The Commentator, a bi-monthly medical journal published for the affiliated examiners of the Owensby clinic and for the extention of neuro-psychiatric education and research in the United States. The journal has a circulation of 10,000 copies.

In The Commentator of October 1, credit for discovery of the new surgical method was given to Egas Muniz, Portuguese psychiatrist.

"I am not satisfied that this method will bring relief to persons suffering from apprehension or anxiety," Dr. Owensby said yesterday, "but we do believe the theory is excellent for the relief of certain nervous troubles. It will be some time before we are able to make a comprehensive report on this type of surgery."

FULTON COURTS CLOSE THREE DAYS THIS WEEK

Fulton courts will operate only three days this week, due to the Thanksgiving holiday, judges announced yesterday.

Lewis P. Jones, calendar clerk of the solicitor general's office, said efforts will be made the first three days of the week to clear jail cases and no long trials will be scheduled. Judge John D. Humphries and Judge G. H. Howard will preside over the two criminal court divisions.

METAL COMPANY WINS JUDGMENT ON APPEAL

The Georgia court of appeals upheld yesterday a $791.83 judgment of the Georgia Tin Plate Metal Company, Savannah, against the J. H. Darby Lumber Company, Lyons, saying evidence supported the verdict.

Darby, the record said, contended materials sent to his branch office in Swainsboro were ordered by a former employe who was using part of Darby's warehouse for his own business.

Etta Moten To Appear In Two Concerts Here

Etta Moten, negro radio singer and screen star, will present concerts here at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow and Tuesday nights at the Bethel church. The concerts are being presented under the auspices of Booker T. Washington High school.

Among selections to be sung are "Carioca," "My Forgotten Man," "Gonna March Down to Jordan," "The City Called Heaven" and "De Glory Road." She has sung all these numbers in various moving pictures.

CHURCH WILL OBSERVE ITS 40TH ANNIVERSARY

Church of Incarnation Invites Newspapers To Take Part in Service.

The Church of the Incarnation, in West End, will observe the 40th anniversary of the erection of the church building on Lee street near Gordon with a special service at 11 o'clock this morning. The vestry and the congregation will join in the celebration, and all members and friends of the church are invited to attend.

Walter H. Grant, secretary of the vestry, who will read a brief sketch on the building's history this morning, yesterday stated the death of Clark Howell Sr. marked the passing of the last member of the vestry and building committee of 40 years ago.

Mr. Grant also said:

"Included among other records and documents, copies of The Atlanta Constitution and the Atlanta Journal were deposited in the cornerstone, which indicates the friendly co-operation and service that the Atlanta press has always shown toward the churches of the city."

In appreciation, the rector and vestry have invited the three Atlanta newspapers to be present and take part in the service. Herman Hancock, of The Constitution, will read the first lesson; William Cole Jones, of the Journal, will read the second lesson, and Tarleton Collier, of Hearst's Atlanta Georgian and Sunday American, will read the psalter.

1,000 ARE MISSING IN JAPANESE FLOOD

250 Dead, 80 Injured in Raging Waters Poisoned by Mines.

OSARUSAWA, AKITA PREFECTURE, Japan, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Mud-caked rescuers dug through the ruins of this mining town today for hundreds of victims lost in a raging flood.

Searchers reported 250 bodies had been recovered. Eighty injured persons were taken to hospitals. At least 1,000 were still missing.

Some of the bodies were dug from 20 feet of muck—residue left by a wall of water which swept down yesterday from the bursted dam of a copper mine reservoir.

The torrent, carrying a poisonous solution from the mine operations, virtually wiped out this village and four others.

School officials said there were at least 250 deaths among children alone.

Nitrogen was first recognized as a distinct substance in 1772 by Daniel Rutherford, of the University of Edinburgh.

Royal Bonds for Wally Unlikely, Heavens Tell Atlanta Astrologer

Chart of Stars Presages Many Other Successes for King's Friend.

A prediction that there will be no marriage with royalty for Mrs. Wallis Simpson is given here by one of the leading astrologers of America. Among her predictions were the nomination and overwhelming vote President Roosevelt received for his first term and also his landslide vote in the recent election. She predicted that the Lindbergh baby had been killed by violence and held to this contention all through the exciting period before the body was found.

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON.

(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

BERNICE DENTON PIERSON.

A reading of the astrological chart for Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, whose friendship for King Edward has made her the most talked-of woman in the world, indicates plainly there will be no marriage with royalty for her.

In her chart, the sun is highest among the planets. This is the most favorable place the sun can hold, for there it promises success, distinction, high patronage of those in power and good position. But for the greatest good that is promised, we look to the planet Jupiter. The position of Jupiter indicates her ambitions will often be attained and her hopes brought to a successful issue through the aid of powerful or influential friends. But there is this to be taken into consideration: Jupiter is in adverse aspect to Saturn, the planet which rules old and conservative people, ideas and long-established customs.

Royal Marriage Unlikely.

Thus it seems indicated that while Mrs. Simpson will enjoy the friendship and aid of people who are at the head of things, it is not likely that the position of Jupiter in relation to Saturn will allow her to marry into the ruling classes. There is one other sign to make the statement doubly positive: King Edward's birthdate is June 23, 1894. This brings him under the influence of the Zodiacal sign Cancer, the sign of ultra-conservatism and adherence to established customs. There is nothing in the stars that rule our destiny to intimate that the king will fly in the face of the tradition of his position and much to intimate otherwise.

Wallis Warfield was born June 19, 1896. My informant was not entirely clear as to the exact hour of her birth, but a study of many pictures of her beautiful, refined feature reveals Virgo indisputably and unmistakably as her rising sign.

An English athority (Robson) describes such a one as "slender and neat, refined in appearance, serene, with pure expression, delicate and finely formed features. Hair dark to light brown, generally swept back and falling over the ears. Eyes dark, hazel or gray, large and bright. Nose head high and well-rounded. Nose straight with thin, sensitive nostrils. Complexion pale or dark, skin usually more olive than white."

A study of Mrs. Simpson's many published pictures confirm her as Virgo rising and an interpretation of the chart set with Virgo on the ascendant coincides with well-known facts concerning her life.

Such a chart places moon in Libra in the first house (a "house" is one of the 12 divisions of the Zodiac), indicating a restless nature, one who is constantly endeavoring to better her position, and has an insatiable wanderlust. This position also indicates one who can be successful in dealings that bring her before the public.

Moon in Libra is fortunate for the acquisition of friends, for it indicates a kind, agreeable and sympathetic disposition. This position also indicates one who displays good taste in clothes. Many references have been made to Mrs. Simpson's good taste in this respect, and her Virgo ascendant, combined with the Moon's position in Libra, indicates one endowed with unusual ability to select color and form a correct judgment, especially where beauty is concerned.

Inheritance, Losses.

Saturn, in the second house, indicates inheritance from older people, but she will have to guard against sudden financial losses, for the position of Uranu is apt to bring about some sudden losses.

Moon's north node in the fifth house is a protection from calamities and dangers, so we may expect that the undue publicity Mrs. Simpson has obtained will not be altogether detrimental. Generally, she will have a goodly portion of pleasure in life.

Mars in the seventh house and in opposition to the Moon in the first, is not favorable for marriage in her life, its position indicating an impetuous quality in love, strife with partners (whether marriage or business), criticism and opposition.

This is evidenced by the fact that her first marriage with Commander Earl Winfield Spencer ended in divorce, as has her second with Ernest Simpson.

Mars in Aries and in the seventh house, indicates she will make friends among the opposite sex with those who are positive and martial in nature. This is borne out by the fact that Mrs. Simpson appears to enjy especial popularity among the diplomatic and ruling classes.

The ninth house rules foreign affairs, and in Mrs. Simpson's chart, there are four planets in this house. This indicates that she would do well to remain abroad to attain success and popularity. Mercury in Gemini in this house indicates a clever and ingenious person. Neptune is also posited there and wherever we find Neptune, there is also found some confusion. Thus, it seems, though she will be fortunate in foreign lands, she will also encounter some confusion at times.

The position of Venus in the ninth house in relation to Mercury, indicates a most versatile person, charming and with a quick, keen interest in all sort of things. This description tallies well with the published accounts of Mrs. Simpson's activities. With all her interests, she is likely to lead a full and active life. Venus also shows she will make many women friends who will generally rush to her assistance when necessary. (We read that Lady Furness, Thelma Morgan, bitterly denounced the papers for undue publicity given Mrs. Simpson.)

Time of Confusion.

Mrs. Simpson's chart today shows Neptune approaching the cusp of the first house, which promises her confusion for several years in her personal affairs. Jupiter is now going through her fourth house, which usually brings an expansion in the home life. (We read that Mrs. Simpson has recently gone into more palatial quarters.)

Saturn will be passing through her seventh house for approximately two more years, indicating that she should use diplomacy rather than force in her dealings with others. Partnerships (marriage and business) and competitors are apt to make hindrances.

Uranus in the eighth house for the next six years will bring her sudden and unusual developments where the resources of others are concerned.

PREHISTORIC SKULLS UNCOVERED IN CHINA

PEIPING, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Discovery of two skulls, believed to be those of prehistoric men, was announced today by research workers attached to the Peiping Union Medical College.

The skulls were found west of Peiping at the scene of the discovery of the famed "Peking Man."

Anthropological experts declared the discoveries were of the "utmost importance." They declined to discuss the finds, saying they were too busy examining the skulls.

CHECK BRINGS SHIFT ON ROAD CONTRACTS

Seven Changes Are Made on Low Bidders by State Board.

A check of 300 bids on the Georgia Highway Department's new $2,681,122.16 letting resulted yesterday in seven changes on low bidders.

Highway officials said mathematical errors caused the changes in the bid figures. Bids are submitted on the basis of so much per square yard or per ton of material required.

Changes made follow:

Carroll and Haralson Countries Job—From W. L. Florence Constuction Company, Powder Springs, Ga., to R. T. Smith, Tallapoosa, for $51,732.23.

Cherokee County Job—From Inter-State Construction Company, of Nashville, Tenn., to Ledbetter-Johnson, contractors, Rome, Ga., for $60,182.69.

Forsyth County Job—From W. L. Florence Construction Company to E. A. Hudson's Sons, Bolton, Ga., for $69,515.41.

Harris County Job—From Manly Construction Company to John Monaghan, Inc., Pelham, Ga., for $49,695.10.

Laurens County Job—From Coffee Construction Company, Eastman, Ga., to W. F. Scott & Co., Thomasville, for $122,229.14.

Marion County Job—From M. J. Carroll, Ocala, Fla., to Campbell Construction Company, Columbus, Ga., for $80,636.77.

Towns County Job—From Ledbetter-Johnson, Rome, to M. R. Woodall Co., Inc., Atlanta, for $46,106.71.

TALL TALES TITTILATE AS LIARS' CLUB MEETS

Niagra Group Relates Whoppers That Would 'Rouse Diogenes' Glim.'

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 21. (AP)—The minutes of the newly organized Liars' Club of Niagara Falls (Motto: More and Bigger Whoppers) contained a wierd and thoroughly untruthful assortment of tales tonight. Product of the club's first laborious "business meeting" early today.

Most impressive was Peter Sawyer's account of the human brain that once took a photograph. Sawyer established his rights as president of the club by telling more and bigger whoppers than anyone else.

He said: "I used to know a newspaper cameraman on the Toronto Globe. While motoring in the country on his day off, he came across a peach of a smash-up picture. A car had just crashed against a concrete girder of a viaduct and the victims were lying all around.

"My friend grabbed for his camera, but suddenly it dawned on him that he had no film. He was 50 miles from the city. Before his paper could send another photographer, the wreckage would be cleared. What to do?

"Well, finally he decided there was nothing he could do and started home. But he had a cameraman's yen to make an exclusive picture when he got a break like that. The scene was so vivid in his mind that if he had been an artist he could have made a sketch. . . .

"Suddenly he had an idea. Pushing the accelerator down, he raced into Toronto, went at once to an X-ray man, had his mind photographed and dashed to his newspaper with just a good print as his camera would have made."

Runner-up in the club's contest was its founder, Samuel Endicott, a United States immigration inspector. Endicott recalled that he had once won $100 by swimming up Niagara Falls, only to be caught by a game protector who found a fish in his pocket and fined him the $100 for fishing out of season.

Five Turkeys Offered as Prizes In Thanksgiving Recipe Contest

The Pilgrim Fathers went out with gun and ax for their Thanksgiving turkeys. How will you secure yours?

One grand way in which five people each may obtain a 12-pound turkey with no expense and very little trouble is by taking part in the Loew's Grand-Atlanta Constitution Thanksgiving contest.

All you have to do is to send a recipe for an unusual dish which would add to the enjoyment of anybody's Thanksgiving dinner. It may be a different kind of salad or pie, or perhaps a main dish particularly fitting for this great holiday. That's up to you.

Send your recipe to the Thanksgiving Contest Editor of The Constitution immediately and win one of the five 12-pound turkeys to be given by Loew's Grand theater and The Constitution for the five recipes selected by Sally Saver, the judge, as the best and most appropriate. All recipes must be in the office of the contest editor on the fourth floor of The Constitution building not later than noon Tuesday.

Employes of Loew's Grand and The Constitution are not eligible for the contest.

2 NASHVILLE PAPERS TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 21.—(AP) Federal Judge John J. Gore ordered today that properties of the Tennessee Publishing Company, which publishes the Nashville Tennessean and the Evening Tennessean, be sold at public auction January 7.

He set $440,000 as the price at which bidding will start.

The company has been in receivership for three and a half years.

NEW TRAFFIC SYSTEM SOON TO BE INSTALLED

Kreml and Aide To Arrive Tomorrow To Institute Evansville Plan.

Lieutenant Frank M. Kreml, originator of the Evanston plan of traffic control, and his assistant, Van Arsdall, of Louisville, Ky., will arrive in Atlanta tomorrow to begin preliminary work on the installation of the plan here, Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant was informed yesterday.

Lieutenant Kreml and his assistant are expected to remain in the city through November and December, instructing members of the Atlanta police department in the operation of the plan, Chief Sturdivant said. The traffic experts will select more than 40 members of the Atlanta force to place the Evanston plan in operation.

First classes for Atlanta police, expected to begin about November 30, will consist of first aid instruction, taught by the Red Cross under Lieutenant Kreml's supervision.

All officers eventually selected to work as members of the Evanston unit will be required to take the first aid course, Chief Sturdivant said. Captain Jack Malcolm, in charge of traffic, declared he would endeavor to secure the participation of all officers in the first aid classes.

Lieutenant Kreml's expenses are paid by the Initernational Association of Chiefs of Police and the study course and installation of the Evanston plan here will cost the city nothing.

2 YOUNG STUNT FLIERS LAND IN HOSPITAL BEDS

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Nov. 21. (UP)—Two youths who tried to stunt an airplane in a backyard here crashed into a garage today, sending both of them to a hospital.

Malcolm Asby suffered a fractured ankle and cuts. Noel Campbell, the pilot, escaped with severe cuts and some missing teeth.

Campbell was dipping and zooming the plane around Asby's house and garage. A wingtip brushed a tree, and the plane slithered into the garage, then tore to pieces as it rolled end-over-end to a stop 150 feet away.

Asby's mother and friends were standing in the back yard, watching the performance.

Parker is the veteran of the group, serving his fourth term. Booth will be serving his third term and the other aspirants their second terms.

Fowler's Withdrawal.

Senator Fowler's announcement of his withdrawal in favor of Senator Spivey follows:

"I am deeply grateful and appreciative of the state-wide indorsements I have received from members of the senate and my friends throughout the state, urging me to permit the use of my name for the presidency of the state senate when that body convenes in January.

"After giving earnest consideration, I feel the best interest of the incoming administration will be served by the election of that stalwart, John B. Spivey, of Emanuel county, and I therefore am declining to make the race."

Atkinson Statement.

From Savannah, Senator Atkinson said:

"In the last several weeks I have received letters from a number of my fellow senators pledging me their support in the event I sought the presidency of the senate. I appreciate these pledges but I have decided not to become a candidate.

"Senator John B. Spivey, of Swainsboro, long has been a close personal and political associate of Governor-elect Rivers. He served as Mr. Rivers' chairman of the house ways and means committee last session and is thoroughly familiar with the Rivers program and wholeheartedly for it. I believe the best interests of the Rivers administration and the state of Georgia will be served by the election of Senator Spivey and I am urging my friends to support him instead of me for the presidency of the senate.

"I know of no man in the senate more favorable to the Rivers administration and I am certain Mr. Spivey will be elected."

Governor-elect Neutral.

Governor-elect Rivers is taking no part in the election of the senate president. He is known to feel both Mr. Lindsay and Mr. Spivey are acceptable.

There also is a lively contest on for the secretaryship of the state senate, with the incumbent, John W. Hammond, activel, campaigning for re-election. In the house Andrew J. Kingery thus far is unopposed for re-election as clerk.

Contests are impending for minor house and senate posts.

HALL COUNTY PLANS TO ERECT ALMSHOUSE

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—R. Glenn McConnell, Hall county commissioner, today announced plans for erection of a new county almshouse and stockade and conversion of the present almshouse into a county hospital.

McConnell said an application had been filed with the Public Works administration for the $25,000 needed to erect the new buildings.

The stockade as planned will have a capacity for 100 prisoners and the almshouse will accommodate 20 persons, he said.

SPANISH ROYALISTS REPEL INSURGENTS

surgents respect neither women nor children in their barbarous raids, we have decided to evacuate them as a precautionary measure," the commissary said.

The government confirmed the death of Buena Ventura Durruti, leader of Catalan volunteers to the Madrid defense. He was wounded fatally while leading an attack against Fascists within the University City suburbs.

Recapturing University City positions, the Madrid militia battered Fascists in the suburbs with short-range artillery fire and consolidated forces "to crush the foe in a single, decisive battle," said General Miaja.

Rescue Comrades.

Miaja's forces drove Fascists from lower floors of the national institute of biology in the area, northeast section of Madrid, and freed their comrades barricaded on the upper floors.

The rain brought respite from aerial bombardment, but cold and lack of food and fuel led the government to offer free transportation to the eastern Levante regions to women, children and aged refugees from the suburban battle sector.

Nine to 10 families were crowded into single apartments in the northeastern zone declared neutral as avacuation of the northwestern and western sections increased.

Government spokesmen, commenting for the first time on Italo-German recognition of the Fascist government, saw it as evidence the Insurgents were convinced they could not capture Madrid. They did not elaborate.

Diplomats Protest.

The diplomatic corps, it was announced here, had reiterated admonitions to its members to urge their respective governments to "take steps to prevent a recurrence of the cruel aerial bombings" of the past 16 days.

Scottish ambulance brigadiers found time from the duties of war to organize a pig hunt in the Casa de Campo Park. "Pork is not to be sniffed at these days," one ambulance driver explained.

(From Talavera came Fascist announcement the 22-year-old son of Premier Francisco Largo Caballero of the Socialist government was held as hostage.)

BRITAIN KEEPS WAR SHIPS READY FOR EVENTUALITIES

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Britain jockeyed for peace in the Mediterranean tonight in the face of Spanish Fascist General Francisco Franco's threat to blockade Barcelona, but kept her warships ready.

Refusing to concede the Franco ultimatum was a serious blow likely to snap taut the nerves of Europe, British diplomats pressed efforts to line up other nations behind the theory the Spanish conflict should be kept within Spain at all costs.

U. S. AVIATORS FIGHT WITH FACTIONS IN SPAIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—American aviators were pictured by the New York Sun today as fighting on opposite sides in the Spanish civil war, without realizing they are gunning for each other.

Those fighting with the Insurgents, the Sun says, are not aware that they are trading machine gun fire with brother Americans, in some cases their best friends, in the Loyalist planes. And those with the government forces are equally in the dark about the identity of the pilots in the black Fascist planes.

"Most of those recruited here during the last month or so are with the Loyalist forces at Madrid, and undoubtedly aided in putting up the recent stubborn resistance against the Rebel invaders," the article said.

Among those listed as fighting in Spain were Bert Acosta, who accompanied Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd on a trans-Atlantic flight to France in 1927; Eddie Schneider, of Jersey City; Gordon Berry, and Major Fred A. Lord, who served with the British flying service in the World War.

LOYALISTS OPEN DRIVE ON REBELS IN BILBAO FRONT

BORDEAUX, France, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Spanish government forces on the Bilbao front, where comparative quiet had existed for weeks, smashed forward in a general offensive today, border advices said tonight.

The attack along the northern front apparently was aimed at diverting the Fascists' attention from the capital and retaking territory from which many insurgent soldiers have been removed for the assault on Madrid.

The government troops were reported to have taken several towns, including Vergara, southeast of Eibar, and to have advanced from their former line which ran from Ondarroa to Vitoria.

T. L. BENNETT' 55' DIES IN HOSPITAL

Former State Manager of Woodmen To Be Buried in Greensboro.

T. L. Bennett, 55, of 293 Gordon avenue, N. E., former state manager of the Woodmen of the World, died yesterday at a private hospital. Funeral services will be held in Greensboro, Ga., where the body will be taken by Harry G. Poole, at 2 o'clock today.

Mr. Bennett was well-known in civic and fraternal circles. He had been retired for the past two and a half years.

He is survived by two daughters, Misses Kathleen and Leanoro Bennett, and a son, Lawrence Bennett, of Atlanta; three sisters, Mrs. Georgeanne Terry, Mrs. W. M. Southard and Mrs. Ed McCrady, of Atlanta; and four brothers, B. B. Bennett, of Gainesville, Fla.; I. C. Bennett, of Watkinsville, and H. F. and Will Bennett, of New Orleans.

VICTIM IS SHOT TWICE BY NEGRO BANDIT PAIR

D. L. Hudson, 35, of 503 Capitol avenue was shot twice and seriously wounded last night when he refused to heed the command of two negro bandits.

Hudson told police he was walking on Capitol avenue, near Fulton street, when he was accosted by the negroes. One, he said, drew a pistol and ordered him to throw up his hands.

"I haven't got anything," Hudson said, and kept on walking.

One of the negroes called, "Let him have it," Hudson said, and he was shot once in the left hip and once in the left leg, near the knee.

He was admitted to Grady hospital, where attaches said he would recover unless complications set in.

The United States Forest Service has made tests to find the best colored goggles for men who have to endure glare and sunlight watching for forest fires.

National Secretary Will Attend Women Voters' Convention Here

Constance Roach To Represent Parent League at Sessions.

Constance Roach, secretary of organization for the National League of Women Voters, will represent the national organization during the biennial convention of the Georgia League when it convenes in Atlanta, November 30-December 2.

Miss Roach has been identified with league activities for seven years. On graduation from the University of Wisconsin, she became executive secretary of the St. Louis league. In 1928 she was appointed executive secretary of the Missouri league and served until 1931, when she became field secretary in the New England states for the national league.

Since 1932 Miss Roach has been attached to the Washington headquarters of the national organization, with specific responsibility for promotion of league groups throughout the country. In the last two years she has visited the great majority of state leagues, and assisted in the formation of new locals.

The Georgia League convention next week will be the fourth biennial and the fifteenth convention of the organization. The program is centered around the theme of "Contemporary Georgia."

Among the speakers are Gay B. Shepperson, state administrator, WPA, speaking on "Contemporary Georgia—Federal Co-operation," followed by an address by C. F. Palmer on "The War on Slums," which will be accompanied by motion picture illustrations. Governor-elect E. D. Rivers will address the gathering at a luncheon on December 1, arranged by the Atlanta League.

CONSTANCE ROACH.

"Contemporary Georgia — Agricultural Aspects," will be the subject of an address by Dr. Arthur Raper, professor of sociology, Agnes Scott College, at a dinner that evening, and the convention will close with Dr. Malcolm Bryan, professor of economics, University of Georgia, speaking on "Contemporary Georgia—General Aspects."

Mrs. J. O'H. Sanders is general chairman of the convention.

GEORGE WILL ADDRESS POWER USERS' RALLY

Senator Walter F. George will deliver the principal address at a dinner at the Capital City Club December 4, when prominent citizens from all parts of Georgia will assemble in celebration of the state's high standing nationally in the use of electricity in the home.

Checks totalling $10,600 will be presented to 24 Georgia towns which led in the electrical progress contest recently concluded. The home town electrical contest in Georgia is said to be the first of its kind ever held in the United States. Woodbine and Louisville, which attained the highest averages in Georgia, will be represented by Mayor Pro Tem. B. A. Gowan, of Woodbine, and Mrs. Virginia Polhill Price, editor of the Louisville News and Farmer.

Summons Finally Given Fence-Jumping Actress

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Grace Bradley, film redhead and fence-jumping dodger, was resting between scenes yesterday when a young woman approached.

"Are you Miss Bradley?" she was asked.

When the actress nodded she was handed a summons in a suit for back commissions brought by Al Rosen, theatrical agent.

Process servers first tried to reach Miss Bradley last August, but she rushed to an airport, hurdled the fence, and jumped into a plane. A 12,000-mile trip to London and back intervened between that escape and her return to work this week.

Jane Withers Gives Favorite Doll For Atlanta Child at Christmas

From Jane Withers, Senator W. F. George and Congressman Robert Ramspeck to school children in the public schools pledges for dolls for the woman's division of the Chamber of Commerce doll campaign have poured in.

Jane Withers, Atlanta's own darling, who has made Atlanta famous in Hollywood and wherever pictures are shown, is sending one of her own best-loved dolls that she has delighted to play with, said her mother in a letter to the woman's division on Friday.

Senator George and Congressman Ramspeck both wrote they had already purchased their dolls and they were on the way, but "they were sorry that they would not be able to find time to dress them personally." In addition to dressing the Salvation Army dolls which were distributed last week, the pupils of the I. N. Ragsdale school have purchased a dozen dolls which they will also dress.

The Atlanta Council of Jewish Women guarantees 25 or more dolls, the Pilot Club 48. The Atlanta Woman's Club had a doll-dressing day at the club Thursday morning. Twenty-five dolls were dressed. In addition, there was a particularly attractive doll dressed by the committee which will be "Miss Atlanta Woman's Club" and will represent the club in the doll show the week of December 7. The Georgia Democratic Woman's Club is dressing a doll in the patriotic colors of red, white and blue to represent their club. The Uncle Remus Association is dressing a doll to contribute in honor of Mrs. A. McD. Wilson.

Mrs. Harvie Jordan, secretary of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, is dressing a doll in honor of her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Gerdine, 92, of Athens. Miss Mattie Ridgeway, chief dietitian at Grady hospital, and her four assistants are dressing dolls.

Individuals who have pledged dolls, some of which have already been sent in, include Colonel Fred J. Paxon, Mildred Seydell, Mrs. S. M. Inman, Mrs. M. S. Mentzer, Mrs. J. C. Wright, Mrs. Cyrus W. Stickler, Mrs. E. T. Wright, Mrs. J. J. Goodrum, Mrs. Edward J. Aubrey and Mrs. A. A. Yarbrough, of Vinings.

M. S. Mentzer, of 1355 Peachtree road, has sent in a cowboy doll. Bruce Bullock, at 173 Mitchell street, has pledged a dozen dolls to be dressed. Mrs. Adgate Ellis Gay has dressed 12 attractive dolls.

Phone your name into the woman's division at Walnut 1845, then send your doll to the Chamber of Commerce building. These dolls will be distributed through the Salvation Christmas Toy Shop to the families on the rolls of the social relief agencies of Atlanta.

DE VALERA TAKES HOP IN LINDBERGH PLANE

DUBLIN, IRISH FREE STATE, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh took President Eamon de Valera on his first flight today.

The American aviator and the Irish chief executive circled aloft for some time, giving De Valera his first aerial glimpse of his island domain.

Later, having completec inspection of possible field terminals for a trans-Atlantic plane service, Lindbergh flew back to his home in Kent, England, today.

J. Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways, and J. C. Cooper, vice president, who conferred with Lindbergh, went to Belfast.

CAMPAIGN FOR CHEST ENTERS FINAL PHASE

dividual report, gains over the previous year were recorded.

With the exception of the four women's divisions, which have accepted a greater responsibility in this campaign than any previous group composed entirely of women, all campaign organization is centered around the classified business setup.

Under this plan the part taken in civic life by each of the large groups of business and industry will be shown.

Division Standings.

A check yesterday showed the standing of each of these divisions in the amounts raised so far. The totals were:

Automotive, $8,350; publishers and business supplies, $5,354; finance, $32,284; construction, $8,337; general stores, $23,543; clothing, $2,477; food and livestock, $4,564; hotels, restaurants and drugs, $5,780; professional, $9,611; public employes, $1,697; schools and colleges, $1,044; public utilities, $40,317; industrial, $5,759, and specialties, $2,717.

The four women's divisions have raised $12,676 and there has been $23,511 raised in advance gifts from individuals not affiliated with any of the groups.

"Next to success in the campaign, the most important contribution we campaign workers can make it to complete the work by Thanksgiving Day," Mr. Cates said.

"We know from actual results the people of Atlanta have their heart set on success this year. We have seen from instance after instance of more generous giving it is a question of simply presenting our story.

"I have urged every worker to stay with us for the next three days, so we will be able to end the campaign within the time limit."

of those going from Georgia will make their home on the train.

The train will leave Atlanta at 8 o'clock on the night of January 18. It will arrive in Washington at 2 o'clock, Washington time, the following day. The return trip will be started at 3 a. m., Washington time, on the morning of January 21, permitting the party to participate in all of the festivities following the inaugural. The special will arrive in Atlanta at 6:30 p. m. on the night of the 21st.

revealed as selling tear gas by night and, by day, drilling vigilantes as 'law and order leaguers' to crush unions.

"The hub of the matter is that the senate must grant the La Follette committee adequate financing, for lack of which its work is being stalled."

While the convention was in recess today some of the delegates sympathetic with John L. Lewis' revolt organized for a "united front" when the rebellion issue comes to the floor Monday.

These rebel sympathizers admitted they had little chance of blocking any action the old guard wished to take, but they were determined to get their views before the convention.

SWEATSHOPS AIDED, AMALGAMATED CHARGES

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America today characterized the American Federation of Labor's proposal to boycott goods bearing the Amalgamated label as an act of "utter irresponsibility" that had "done a service to the few sweatshoppers still remaining in the industry."

The boycott was voted at the federation convention in Tampa, Fla., yesterday after the organization's executive council indorsed the United Garment Workers in preference to the Amalgamated.

The Amalgamated asserted today it had contracts with manufacturers of 85 per cent of the national men's clothing output while the United represented "almost exclusively" overall manufacturers.

"If the delegates to the convention had carried out their boycott threats on the spot," a statement issued by the Amalgamated group said, "most of them would have left the hall stark naked. . . . Surely they do not expect 60,000,000 American males to do likewise."

$451,480 FOR TEAR GAS SAID SPENT BY INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Senate investigators said today three chemical plants had sold $451,480 worth of tear and sickening gas since 1933, much of it to private industrialists.

The list of purchases was compiled by the LaFollette committee investigating civil liberties violations, as part of its study of strike breaking and industrial espionage.

Largest shipment to any state was $83,491 worth of gas sent to the steel and rubber districts of Ohio, where union activities have been especially vigorous, the committee said. Purchases in California, scene of a waterfront strike, totaled $62,872, it reported.

Pennsylvania Customers.

Pennsylvania customers paid $61,077, the committee's records showed. Testimony in the committee's hearings two months ago indicated that the large coal companies had planned to stop the digging of coal by unemployed miners by filling their makeshift pits with tear and sickening gas.

The committee's report listed purchases of $253,975 from the Lake Erie Chemical Company, of Cleveland, Ohio; $168,020 from Federal Laboratories, Inc., of Pittsburgh, and $29,484 from the Manville Manufacturing Corporation, of Pontiac, Mich. It included chemicals and equipment sold to local law enforcement officers, but not to the regular army.

Shipments Scattered.

Sales were heaviest in the northeastern industrial areas, with smaller shipments scattered through the Pacific coast and southern Atlantic states.

The list showed purchases totaling $9,844 in Alabama; $21,870 in Indiana; $31,084 in Illinois; $16,111 in Michigan; $14,711 in Massachusetts; $13,090 in Minnesota; $11,665 in New Jersey, and $10,139 in New York.

The committee said it expected to resume hearings early in January, but did not disclose what lines its investigation would follow.

Committee agents have been studying recent industrial disputes in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, and on both Pacific and Atlantic seaboards.

DIVIDENDS CONTINUE TO GAIN IN MONTH

dividend payments during the past half-month reflects the desire of corporations to limit their liability under the heavy federal surtax on undivided profits which is effective for 1936 earnings.

First Since 1918.

One company declared its first payment since 1918, many other organizations made initial distributions and still others resumed payments after a several-year lapse.

In no year since 1926 have favorable dividend actions exceeded those effected thus far this year.

Thirty-seven companies, selected on the basis of largest payments, yielded a total greater than $1,000,000,000 and nearly doubled last year's disbursements by the same firms.

TO INCREASE WAGES TO PRE-DEPRESSION LEVEL

NASHVILLE, Nov. 21.—(AP)—President Fitzgerald Hall, of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway, announced today that salaries and wages of all officers and employes will be back to pre-depression levels December 1.

On February 1, 1932, the company made a general 10 per cent cut of all employes' wages. Wage restorations began on a graduating scale July 1, 1934, and full restoration became effective April 1, 1935.

The salaries of officers and of subordinate and supervisory officials were reduced 10 per cent January 1, 1932, and another 10 per cent in June of that year. The second reduction was restored gradually between July, 1934, and April, 1935.

DIVIDEND IS VOTED BY CRANE COMPANY

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Crane Company directors voted $15.75 a share dividends on the preferred stock, including a $14 a share on account of accumulations, payable December 15 to stock of record December 1.

The distribution will involve $2,297,752. The dividend reduced arrearage to $8.25.

JUTE MILL RAISES WAGES 10 PER CENT

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 21.—(AP) Employes of the Dolphin Jute Mill and the Linen Thread Co., Inc., will receive 10 per cent wage increases effective Monday, it was announced today.

The jute mill increase will affect 575 workers and raise the annual pay roll $50,000. At the linen company 400 workers will be affected and the pay roll increase will be $50,000 annually.

$39.10 DIVIDEND VOTED BY CHRISTIANA COMPANY

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Christiana Securities Co., family holding company for the du Pont interests, today declared a fourth-quarter dividend of $39.10 a share, bringing total disbursements for the year to $118.10 a share, the largest in its history. The shares are listed at $100 par, but available records indicate an asset value at the end of last year of more than $2,700.

CONTINENTAL OIL WILL PAY BONUSES

PONCA CITY, Okla., Nov. 21.—(AP) President Dan Moran, of the Continental Oil Company, announced today about 5,000 employes will receive a special bonus out of 1936 earnings, in addition to a 25-cent dividend to stockholders announced this week.

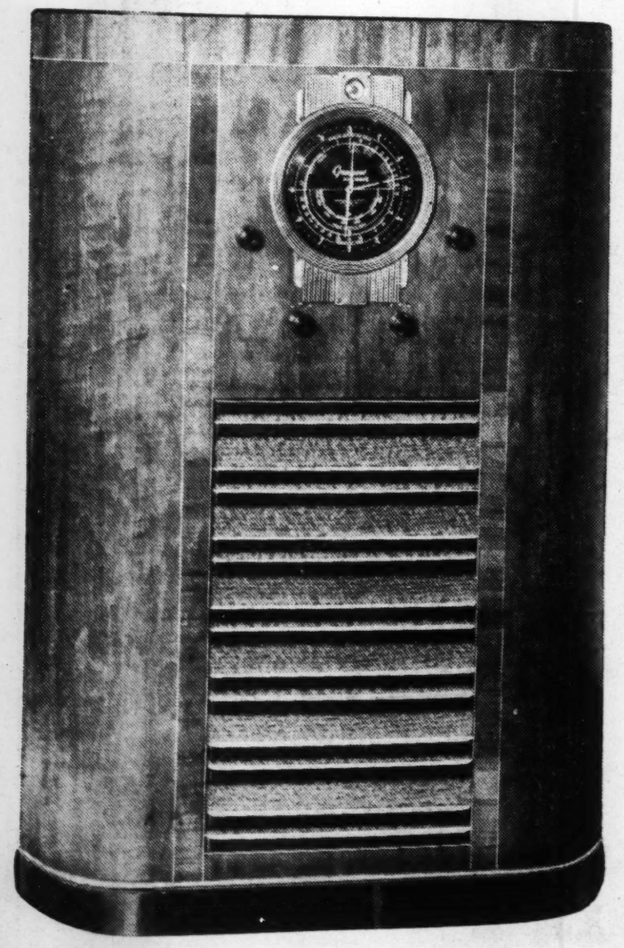

The amount to each employe will depend on his period of service prior to December 1, Moran said. "Permanent employes with one year's service or more" will receive two weeks' wages. Those with less than one year will be given one week's wages.

MAJOR W. S. BRAND IS INJURED BY AUTO

Major William Sanford Brand, 71, United States army, retired, suffered a fractured left hip at about 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning when he was struck by an automobile as it backed into a curb on East Ponce de Leon avenue, near Church street, Decatur.

The major, who lives at 105 Glendale avenue, Decatur, was taken to Emory University hospital. His condition last night was reported as "good." Major Brand retired shortly after the close of the World War, during which he served overseas with the 66th Engineers.

VOL. LXIX., No. 163 ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 22, 1936.

WIRING DEFECT HINTED AS CABLE FIRE CAUSE

Check on Other Buildings Ordered To Avert Other Possible Tragedies.

Acting Mayor Ellis B. Barrett yesterday ordered Dewey L. Johnson, superintendent of electrical affairs, to inspect wiring at the Cable Piano Company building to ascertain, if possible, whether defective wiring caused the flames which brought death to three and injury to 19 others

At the same time, Johnson was urged to inspect other buildings and shops of the city in a move to correct wiring defects and avert a recurrence of the piano company disaster.

A dual probe of methods employed in combating the Cable Piano Company flames will be launched tomorrow.

The Fulton grand jury yesterday was summoning survivors of the tragedy, Fire Chief O. J. Parker, Police Chief T. O. Sturdivant, firemen and policemen on duty and others, with a view of launching a sweeping investigation.

Mrs. Talmadge Called.

Mrs. Howard Talmadge, of 1132 Virginia avenue, N. E., who clung on a window ledge until rescued, will be among those summoned, it was announced yesterday.

At 8 o'clock tomorrow night, the board of firemasters will resume its own investigation of the disaster, with all persons having direct information summoned to appear.

There has been considerable criticism of the department for what is claimed to be slowness in dealing with the fire and for general lack of what critics assert "proper direction."

On the other hand, there have been strong defenses of the fire department. Chief Parker contends that if any blame should lie against the department in connection with the incident, it should be placed squarely on his shoulders.

Kimball Gets "Clean Bill."

The Kimball House, named Friday by City Building Inspector Charlie J. Bowen as a "fire trap," yesterday was given a clean bill by Parker and his inspection bureau.

Captain M. H. Carter, local fire marshal and chief of the inspection bureau, filed with Parker a report of an inspection of the Kimball House, showing that exits and fire escapes are well marked, that the building itself purchases steam for heating from commercial sellers of such heat, that rooms and basements are kept clean, that no rubbish is allowed to accumulate and that the basement is equipped with automatic extinguishers.

"What Mr. Bowen meant to say was that the Kimball House is an old building and is not fireproof," the chief said. "He did not mean to say it is not in as good condidtion as it is possible to make it under the circumstances."

Barrett called on Johnson to make the city-wide survey of electrical installations after he received an anonymous letter in which it was pointed out that many cases of defective wiring have been overlooked because property owners have appealed to their friends in council to avoid expenditure of necessary sums to correct the defects.

The text of Barrett's letter to Johnson follows:

"I have received an anonymous letter this morning, stating there was a possibility there were defects in the wiring of the Cable Piano Company building, and I respectfully request that you make a thorough investigation of this matter and report your findings to the board of firemasters so as to help them in their investigation.

"I would also request that you make an investigation of other buildings and shops where there is any suspicion the electric wiring does not comply with the city ordinances.

"I am sure you are doing all within your power to remedy the fire hazards, with reference to defective wiring, but we should all profit by the sad experience of the Cable Piano Company fire and unite in our efforts to prevent, if possible, a recurrence."

Listing "Fire Traps."

In the interim, Bowen continued a checkup of buildings to list "fire traps," and Barrett announced he will insist that the municipality take action to correct conditions.

"I do not believe the court will stand in the way of a determined drive to correct defective buildings even if we do something not strictly in accordance with law," Barrett said. "I think the courts will take a reasonable and liberal attitude in this matter. We can not afford to allow the lives of our citizens to be imperiled to save a few dollars."

Alderman Farris A. Mitchell, member of the board of firemasters, last night announced he will ask the board to recommend adoption by council of a provision forcing owners of buildings more than two stories in height to equip the structures with fire escapes.

Several other changes in building code regulations also were under consideration, and it was regarded as certain that some of them will reach the floor of council.

"I expect to insist that adequate fire escapes be provided for all structures and that they be tested every 30 days," Mitchell said.

Among other contemplated actions to prevent a possible recurrence of the tragedy were the following:

1. Purchase of new and modern fire equipment for the fire department, which may include asbestos suits which would enable firemen to pass through flames with immunity, provided insulated masks were a part of the equipment.

Seek Better Police Aid.

2. Reorganization of police service to bring about closer co-operation between the police and fire departments in the handling of crowds, which hampered firemen and ambulances at Thursday's blaze.

3. Revision of parking regulations in the downtown area.

Chief Parker said yesterday he may renew his request for additional equipment at tomorrow night's session of the board, but added "I do not expect to try to establish an alibi."

A lighted match or a live cigaret carelessly tossed into greasy waste yesterday was advanced as a possible cause of the flame, which swept the Cable Piano Company building. It was believed, however, to be impossible to definitely set out the cause.

George Lindner, dean, and Hugh Hodgson, director of the Atlanta Conservatory of Music, yesterday issued the following statement concerning the future conduct of the school:

"Due to the distress and sorrow caused by the burning of the Atlanta Conservatory of Music Thursday and the confusion it has caused, each teacher on the faculty will make individual arrangements concerning his own pupils until January 1, at which time the conservatory will be reopoened in new quarters."

NORTH GEORGIA METHODIST CONFERENCE OPENS THURSDAY

ATLANTA CHURCH MEETING PLACE OF 70TH SESSION

Bishop Ainsworth To Preside Over Assembly To Be Held at Wesley Memorial Church.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Leading matters of importance to be considered by the North Georgia Methodist conference, which assembles for its 70th annual session next Thursday night at the Wesley Memorial church, include equalization of pastors' salaries, arranging for the continued publishing of the Wesleyan Advocate, reappointing pastors to new charges for the coming year, promoting further advances in Christian education, and enlarging the sphere of work for laymen.

Bishop William N. Ainsworth, of Macon, is to preside over the conference deliberations for the third time since his appointment to this episcopal area. Notable speakers who are to appear on the conference program include Harry Denman, of Birmingham, conference lay leader of the North Alabama conference and chief lay worker of the Birmingham First Methodist church, who will deliver several addresses; Dr. M. Ashby Jones, of Atlanta, who will address the conference on world peace; Dr. H. P. Myers, of Nashville, who will be guest speaker on laymen's anniversary night; Dr. W. P. King, of Nashville, representing the Methodist Publishing House; Dr. T. D. Ellis, of Louisville, representing the church extension board, and Dr. Luther E. Todd, of St. Louis, representing the board of finance.

Conference Membership.

The actual conference membership consists of some 351 affiliated ministers, nearly 200 active laymen, two-score local ministers serving as supplies, and a number of laymen who are members of four-year boards and commissions. In addition to the members attending the conference, there will be treble that number of conference visitors coming from all sections of the state. Arrangements for the personnel's entertainment have been made with several downtown hotels. The annual session beginning next Thursday night will continue with sittings mornings, afternoons and nights through the following Sunday, with pastoral assignments for the new year read as the last item of business, probably late Sunday afternoon.

This annual session of the North Georgia Methodist conference is the 70th of its history since the division of the former Georgia conference, in 1866. For the twenty-third time the conference comes to Atlanta, this session making the eleventh to come here without interruption. From 1884 to 1900 is the longest zap in the times it has met in Atlanta.

Financial prospects for this conference year are declared to be the best for many years. Reports from authoritative sources indicate that payments for ministerial support will show a decided advance over recent years, while support for benevolent works and the church-wide program of education and evangelization will surpass anything heretofore known in this conference. Both the North Georgia and the South Georgia conferences last year overpaid their benevolent askings and made large advances in ministerial support. This year the benevolent payments will surpass those of a year ago and pastoral support will show a great gain, it is expected. Reports from the conference treasurer, month by month, during the year, show increased payments for any given date, as compared with the similar date of the year before.

Minimum Salaries.

Special efforts have been made this year toward helping pastors of charges unable to pay salaries that measure up to the minimum standard set. Following an extended study of the matter, the conference last year voted to set as minimum salaries for ministers the following: For unmarried pastors, $750; for married pastors, $900; for married pastors with children, $1,100.

To encourage charges paying less than the standard sum, the conference determined to raise a fund to be used to help such charges, paying dollar for dollar to match whatever increase over the previous year any charge should make toward the standard set. The sum of $10,000 was thought to be needed for this work and a levy of 2 per cent on pastors' salaries was made upon each charge for this purpose. The money paid in for this fund will be distributed this week. The committee in charge of this special work consists of W. A. Tyson, Miller S. Bell, G. L. King, W. A. Shelton and J. F. Yarbrough.

The equalization fund will not operate to bring every under-standard salary up to the full limit but it will operate to make a tremendous increase over the previous year, since all charges under the standard will strive to make improvement, and whatever improvement they do make will be matched dollar for dollar from the fund.

Return of Hope.

Pastors reporting better financial conditions say there is an apparent return of hopefulness among the people, business conditions are better and a larger appreciation of the church and the causes it represents.

Contrary to the situation during recent years, there seems to be but little restlessness among conference members this year regarding preachers' appointments. The management of Bishop Ainsworth these three years, together with the tide of returning prosperity and confidence among the people appears to have wrought this changed spirit. There is but little speculation concerning appointments and no great upsets are expected. That there will be many changes is quite likely, as two new presiding elders are to be named, since two men in that office have served four years as such and will be placed in other fields of labor. Who their successors will be will not be announced until the last hour. However, as this change is sure, it will involve possibly a dozen or more of others.

In addition to the new presiding elders, it is expected that many changes will be made among men who have served their charges three or more years. Several deaths have occurred during the year, leaving vacant places to be filled, and a number of men now active will retire at this conference session. A class of eight young men is applying for admission on trial. Should these young men be admitted on trail and assigned to pastorates, their reception necessarily involves the change of others.

The eight young men applying for admission on trial are: Thomas H. Wheelis, of Cusseta; James Dickerson, of Dewey Rose; J. L. Peck, of Trion; John Douglas Gibson, of Griffin; Joe Crawley, Cullen Bryant Jones, Harry Lee Mitcham and J. R. Mackay, all from the Atlanta district.

Bishop Ainsworth, who makes the appointments, has the help of 10 presiding elders who are in charge of the various districts composing the conference territory and are familiar with the ministers and churches and well acquainted with their needs and fitness. The bishop and his cabinet of advising elders will be in session here in Atlanta two days before the conference opening and will arrange the schedule of appointments at that time.

Presiding Elders.

Presiding elders associated with Bishop Ainsworth in this work will be Dr. Lester Rumble, of the Atlanta district; Dr. C. C. Jarrell, of the Athens-Elberton district; Rev. H. H. Jones, of the Augusta district; Dr. A. M. Pierce, of the Dalton district; Dr. Wallace Rogers, of the Decatur-Oxford district; Rev. J. F. Yarbrough, of the Gainesville district; Rev. W. M. Twiggs, of the Griffin district; Rev Irby Henderson, of the LaGrange district; Dr. W. M. Jones, of the Marietta district; Rev J. W. O McKibben, of the Rome district. Henderson and McKibben, of the LaGrange and Rome districts, are the two presiding elders who are to retire from the eldership at this time.

Unusual attention at this conference will be given laymen's activities. A steady growth of interest among laymen has been observed during recent years and seems to have reached its high point in this year's labors. A special conference hour will be assigned for the laymen's anniversary, at which time Dr. H. P. Myers, of Nashville, of the general board of laymen's activities, will deliver an address.

Dr. I. S. Ingram, of Carrollton, is conference lay leader at this time, and has been active this year in promoting all features of the work calculated to enlist and train laymen for church activity. Associated with him are a score or more of eminent laymen throughout the conference serving as district lay leaders. District laymen serving as leaders are as follows:

Laymen Leaders.

Atlanta district—Jere A. Wells, Walter R. Richard and R. B. Patty. Athens district—Dr. N. G. Slaughter and Judge E. C. Sutton. Augusta district—Dr. W. T. Wynne, Dr. C. V. Price and C. W. Curtiss. Dalton district—F. R. Jolly, E. C. Foster and C. W. Peacock. Decatur-Oxford district—L. D. Haskew, George Roach and J. A. Dempsey. Gainesville district—Hammond Johnson, T. J. Lance, George Westmoreland and F. E. Gabriels. Griffin district—W. A. Johnson, W. B. Hammond and J. A. Gaston. LaGrange district—L. M. Bradford, B. D. Banks and L. E. Floyd. Marietta district—Smith L. Johnson, J. J. Daniell and Alfred McClure. Rome district—H. S. McCalman, M. C. Wiley and Hubert Quillian.

Dr. Ingram, the conference lay leader, announces a pre-conference meeting of the conference board of laymen's activities is called for Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at the Henry Grady hotel.

Profound concern is entertained by conference members as to the fate of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate. This periodical, which has served as conference organ for generations, has sustained hardships during recent years, as have all church publications. Efforts have been made to awaken and sustain interest in the paper, that it might be self-sustaining. The conference will be advised this week of the deficit in this year's income, despite efforts to increase subscription lists and the subsidy granted.

Some Proposals.

Proposals have been made heretofore that the paper merge with the Christian Advocate, of Nashville, using eight pages of that weekly. Other proposals were that the subscription price be lowered, or that the paper be decreased in size, or that it be issued semi-monthly.

It is understood the proposal will be made at this conference that the periodical be placed under new management, the office of publication be transferred to Macon, and that a quartet of men be named as editors, each man to have charge three months. It is possible insistence may be placed on a new reviving of interest and effort for the paper be made, and that an increased grant from the conference treasury be made, pledging pastors and laymen for individual work.

The mortality rate among the preachers of this conference has reached high proportions this year, as seven men have died since the session of a year ago. The seven men who passed away this year had a combined total of 332 years, or an average of 46 years each, in the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. A special session of the conference will be held next Sunday afternoon as a memorial to the fallen members. Men who have died during the year were as follows:

Those Who Died.

Rev. J. S. Askew, of Hapeville, who died February 24, after serving 56 years in the conference; Rev. S. A. Harris, of College Park, whose death was August 20, after being a conference member 44 years; Dr. T. R. Kendall Sr., of Atlanta, who died October 5, having been a Methodist minister 62 years; Rev. C. B. McDaniel, of Atlanta, whose death occurred October 21, after 50 years in the southern Methodist ministry; Rev. C. A. Norton, of Atlanta, who died May 16, following a ministry of 37 years; Rev. J. O. Pettis, who died at Grantville the 10th of this month, after serving 25 years in the church's ministry; Dr. Fletcher Walton, of Atlanta, who served 48 years in the conference, and died last February 1.

Conference deliberations are scheduled to begin Thursday evening at Wesley Memorial church. During the preceding day nearly all the conference boards and commissions will hold pre-conference meetings, to arrange reports to be submitted, and formulate programs for the coming year.

Among the official groups to meet Thursday will be the presiding bishop and the cabinet of presiding elders, the board of education, the board of church extension, the board of missions, the board of finance, and all the examining committees before who all applicants and undergraduates will appear. At 6 o'clock Thursday evening a special meeting has been called by the directors of the Widows and Orphans' Aid Association, just prior to the conference opening. Urgent request has been made that all members of the association, together with all young ministers, attend the Thursday evening special meeting.

Some Officials.

Rev. Lee Allgood, of Marietta, is president of the mission board, and C. A. Rauschenberg, of Atlanta, is treasurer. Dr. G. C. White, of Emory University, is chairman of the board of Christian education, and Dr. Lester Rumble, of the Atlanta district, is secretary. Dr. J. B. Davenport, of Augusta, is chairman of the board of finance, with Judge John B. Hutcheson, of Jonesboro, as vice chairman, and J. J. Daniell, of Marietta, secretary. Rev. A. J. Sears, of Jonesboro, is president of the Widows and Orphans' Aid Association, while Dr. W. T. Hunnicutt, of Atlanta, is secretary. Rev. G. F. Venable, of Calhoun, is chairman of the committee on admissions into the conference.

During the opening session of conference Thursday evening the name of each of ten presiding elders will be called, and the inquiry made as to his personal character. Following the passage of character, the inquiry will be made as to who is admitted into the conference on trial. Reports as to personal fitness and qualifications of each applicant will be made by two committees, before whom the applicants have appeared during the day. Eight men are applying for admission at this time. Prior to making application for admission each man must have had four years of college work, and also have passed satisfactory tests before four church examining bodies. The matter of character passage and admission is always one of keenest interest.

The conference meetings at Wesley Memorial this week will be open to the general public. Announcement was made that hundreds of visitors are expected and arrangements have been made for their comfort and entertainment.

LaFayette Pair Observe Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Center, of LaFayette, who have just observed their 50th wedding anniversary. They have lived at LaFayette 50 years, going there as bride and groom. Mr. Center is 87 years old and Mrs. Center is 70. They are members of pioneer north Georgia families.

Serves Gilmer 22 Years

J. S. Hudson, of Ellijay, who has just been re-elected commissioner of roads and revenues in Gilmer county. He was first named commissioner in 1924 and has served continuously since. Previously he served 10 years as county school superintendent, making 22 years he has served the county in the two offices. Schools and roads in the county have shown improvement under him.

'TURKEY TROT' EVENT PLANNED AT VILLA RICA

VILLA RICA, Ga., Nov. 21.—Reports from all sections of northwest Georgia indicate that Villa Rica's annual "turkey trot" day, November 25, will draw hundreds of people to hear the speeches and to take part in the other festivities.

Senator R. B. Russell, Governor-elect E. D. Rivers and Congressman Emmett Owen are expected to speak.

The merchants are co-operating to make it the biggest event ever held here.

Fifty turkeys will be turned loose during the day, "catchers being keepers."

A memorial service honoring the soldiers who died in the World War will be held at 10:30 o'clock. The newly organized local post of the American Legion has invited the members of the various posts over the state to be represented.

VARIED FARM PLAN FOLLOWED BY LANE IN SOUTH GEORGIA

Savannah Banker Grows Satsuma Oranges, Flax and Olives on 660-Acre Plantation Near Coast.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—One of the south's leading bankers—Mills B. Lane—is showing the way to farm diversification in this section.

One of his most enthusiastic neighbors, Henry Ford, is watching the experiments with interest.

Lane's 660-acre plantation—Lebanon—is 10 miles south of here. The Detroit manufacturer's tract is 25 miles south of Lebanon.

Most spectacular of Lane's recent experiments is the commercial production of the Satsuma orange. Last year he sold his crop in Florida. This year, the local market is taking the crop.

Flax, Beans Grown.

Commercial production of flax and the soy bean are other recent developments. Ford is notably interested in the bean.

"I think Mr. Ford has planted sizable acreage in soy beans since watching our experiments," Lane said today. "We have proved commercial production of the crop is possible in this section."

Ford, indeed, is interested. The soy bean is one of his recent economic ventures. He has taken production from thousands of acres planted near his River Rouge plant near Detroit. The bean makes various gadgets for his cars such as horn buttons. The soy bean oil is used in paint.

Georgia's severest winter in years cut heavily into his orange experiment in 1935.

"But if I had been wise, I would have brought out the smudge pots and stopped the loss," Lane said. "Yes, oranges can be commercially grown in Georgia and we have proved it."

He shipped the first carload of Georgia oranges to market. That was in 1934.

Colonel T. L. Huston, of Darien, has planted 50 acres on near-by Butler Island. His crop also is doing nicely. The colonel is experimenting in lemons, limes and grapefruit.

Orange production isn't new in Georgia. When Oglethorpe landed, he found trees in cultivation. That was in 1733. But the industry floundered. Now the far-sighted financier is bringing it back.

Olive Experiment.

"We also are experimenting in olives," Lane said. "We've grown them but haven't reached commercial production yet."

He conducted the flax experiments five years ago. Cigaret paper is made of linen rags, gathered mostly in Europe. Cigaret makers got the idea the paper could be made direct from flax.

Someone broached the idea to Lane. He planted flax, it grew and was harvested successfully, and given to the paper makers free. And the cigaret makers are working on the paper end of the plan now.

EGGS BY AIRPLANE

Shipments Made from Savannah to South America

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Chicks take wing before they are hatched here.

Following successful shipments of baby chicks by airplane to Buenos Aires, shipments of eggs for breeding purposes are now being flown to South America. Delivery time limit is eight days.

SOUTHERN SOCIETY WILL HONOR GLASS

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, will be honored by the Southern Society of New York at its 51st annual dinner here December 4, it was announced today.

Officials of the society, composed of more than 1,000 natives or sons or daughters of the south, announced the Virginian would be the honored guest and principal speaker.

As evidence of its esteem and recognition of his statesmanship and contribution to public affairs, the society will present him with a loving cup. The presentation will be made by Phelan Beale, the president.

Paul Kieffer is vice president of the society; Leroy Campbell, secretary, and John B. Glenn, treasurer.

STATE BRIEFS

COLUMBUS MAN NAMED.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Officers elected by the Southern Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers in 22nd annual convention here included: J. R. Kinnett, Columbus, re-elected a director. E. L. Widemire, of Sylacauga, re-elected secretary-treasurer.

CONDITIONS SCORED.

MACON, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Representative-elect Joe A. Moore, of Baldwin county, scored what he called the "niggardly attitude" of the state administration toward inmates of Georgia eleemosynary institutions when he addressed the Tatnall Square Baptist Brotherhood here.

Moore described conditions at the state sanitarium and state prison farm at Milledgeville as being "beyond belief to the average individual."

197 DIVORCES GRANTED.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Superior court of Richmond county today granted 197 divorce cases in what is believed to be an all-time record for the number of cases heard in one day. Judge A. L. Franklin attributed the volume to the fact that many of them were for couples from South Carolina and other states.

Three Men in a Taxi Are Halted by Police

Three Jackson, Tenn., men wanted to go to Florida and a taxi seemed to offer the best solution to the problem—a taxi without its chauffeur.

Yesterday they ran out of gas on Bankhead highway and telegraphed friends in Jackson for funds. Sheriff Tom Patton, of Jackson, was informed of the message and did a bit of wiring himself—to police headquarters here.

Detective Harry Williams arrested the trio waiting at the telegraph office. They gave the names of Roy Finch, 26; Manley Brown, 24, and J. C. Fox, 30. Police booked them on "suspicion, hold for investigation."

ATLANTA-FLORIDA 'CADE WILL MOVE FROM HAPEVILLE

Completion of Central Route of Dixie Highway To Be Celebrated Next Tuesday.

Cars in the Atlanta-Jacksonville motorcade will depart from the Baptist Orphans' Home in Hapeville at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, A. N. Steward, chairman of the Dixie Highway celebration committee, announced yesterday.

The Constitution's "Roving" Chevrolet has been entered for the motorcade and Cecil Holleran and Kenneth Rogers will represent The Constitution.

The motorcade will follow the newly paved central Dixie Highway route that has been completed to Jacksonville, arriving in the Florida city at 6:15 o'clock, eastern time, that night.

According to J. E. Steward, chairman of the invitation committee of the celebration, registration is being handled from Fitzgerald and definite figures were not available yesterday. However, information from civic organizations and clubs along the route signify that a large number of cars will be included in the motorcade, he stated.

"We propose to make this a pleasant and happy occasion," Mr. Steward said, "and profitable to all in showing the directness and shortness of the newly paved central Dixie Highway road."

Leaving Hapeville at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, the motorcade will continue through Jonesboro, 7:25; Griffin, 8:00; Brnesville, 8:30; Forsyth, 9:00, with a short stop in Macon around 10.

Departing from the Bibb county city at 11 o'clock, eastern time, and continuing on eastern time for the rest of the trip, the cars will drive through Perry, 11:45; Hawkinsville, 12:15; Abbeville, 12:45, arriving at Fitzgerald at 1:30 for the noon mela.

After lunch the line of cars will move from Fitzgerald at 2:30 o'clock, through Ocilla at 2:45; Douglas, 3:15; Nichols, 3:30; Alma, 4:00; Waycross, 4:45; Folkston, 5:15, reaching Jacksonville at 6:15 o'clock.

Dinner and entertainment has been planned in Jacksonville by the sponsors.

GEORGIA AUTHOR GETS CUSTODY OF CHILDREN

More than two hours were required in reading of lengthy depositions from witnesses by Attorney W. C. Parker for Mrs. Miller and E. O. Blalock, attorney for Miller.

Miller, a slight bronzed man, and his pretty wife, sat beside their lawyers throughout the hearing, but never looked at one another.

Mrs. Miller, modishly dressed in a black coat with mink collar, smiled half heartedly occasionally during the proceedings. She frequently conferred with her lawyers.

Her large eyes beamed when the judge announced his decision. The three children, William Dews Miller, 9, and twins, Harvey and George Augustus, 7, were in town, but not in the courtroom.

Novel Mentioned.

Mrs. Miller's best-selling novel, "Lamb in His Bosom," was mentioned frequently in depositions.

Miller's depositions referred to the book as a "stroke of fortune three years ago" which caused their estrangement. The couple married August 10, 1921, and separated August 29, 1936.

The author's deposition charged Miller became "insanely jealous of her, her book and her success as a writer, short story writer and lecturer" after the book won the Pulitzer award.

She charged her husband "complained incessantly and became nagging and unbearable." She said he had been unable to work for three years due to illness and that during that time she supported herself, him and the children.

Miller's deposition said he had been a "faithful and affectionate husband and the couple got along well for 13 years until his wife got pleasure mad after writing the book."

She denied these charges and others filed by Miller, including one that she "used bad judgment." Miller's deposition charged that after his wife's book became a success, she told him he "belonged in south Georgia and she belonged to New York, Paris and London."

H. M. Pafford, Waycross city manager and uncle of Mrs. Miller, attended the hearing. A deposition from him was read. It contended Miller was unfit physically to care for the children.

"Unfortunate," Says Judge.

"This is a most unfortunate separation case," Judge Dickerson commented. "So far as the records show, both people are of good character. There has been some unhappiness all along."

He said decisions in cases of this kind were "the most difficult and unpleasant ones for a judge to make."

Mrs. Miller, formerly Caroline Pafford, was a pupil in Miller's classes at Waycross High school, where he once was a teacher. Their courtship culminated in marriage soon after she graduated. Shortly after their marriage, they moved to Baxley, where Miller was school superintendent. Their children were born there. Miller at one time owned a newspaper in Baxley but gave it up due to illness.

STENOGRAPHER NAMED FOR CHEROKEE CIRCUIT

ROME, Ga., Nov. 21.—Fay Smiley, stenographer in the office of J. Sante Crawford, official court reporter for the Rome circuit of the superior court and the Bartow county city court, has been named official court reporter for the Cherokee circuit of the superior court.

Mr. Crawford, who for several years held this position, resigned some six months ago and was not an applicant for appointment.

The appointment of Mr. Smily was made yesterday by Judge-elect James A. McFarland, of Dalton, who takes office on January 1, having defeated Judge Claude Pittman for re-election in the recent state Democratic primary.

Father and Son to Serve in Next Legislature

A father and his son will be members of the next session of the Georgia legislature which meets in January, one in the senate and the other in the house. At left is shown R. T. Hampton, of Blue Ridge, representative-elect from Fannin county, and at right is his son, Hayden W. Hampton, 33, of Ellijay, senator-elect from the 41st district, composed of Gilmer, Fannin and Jasper counties. Both have served previously in the house, the father being the present legislator from Fannin, while his son served during 1933-34 from Gilmer.

ROBERT HITCH IS SEEN AS SAVANNAH MAYOR

No Opposition in Sight Against Prominent Attorney; Gamble Not to Run.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 21.—Robert Mark Hitch will, according to all reliable indications, be unopposed for the Democratic nomination for mayor of Savannah in the primary December 8. Entries close at noon Tuesday and no signs of opposition to Mr. Hitch are seen.

Mayor Thomas Gamble, who concludes his second term in January, is not a candidate for renomination and has publicly indorsed Mr. Hitch, who is supported by local political and business leaders.

Mr. Hitch is one of Savannah' most prominent citizens. He is an outstanding lawyer and has had wide business experience. Born at Morven, in Brooks county, February 14, 1872, Mr. Hitch has lived in Savannah 43 years, coming here soon after admission to the bar. He is actively engaged in the practice of law.

Mr. Hitch, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, served in the Georgia legislature soon after that war. He is a former trustee of Mercer University, and holds the honorary degree of doctor of laws from that institution.

He is a widower, and has two children, a son, Robert Mark Hitch Jr., who is a member of his father's law firm, and a daughter, Mrs. Benjamin A. Oxnard Jr., of Savannah.

An officer of the Independent Presbyterian church, Mr. Hitch is active in Presbyterian affairs. Tomorrow he is to conduct the service at the Eastern Heights Presbyterian church in the absence of the pastor.

LOUISVILLE DRUGGIST, JAMES C. RAMSEY, DIES

LOUISVILLE, Ga., Nov. 21.—The death of James C. Ramsey, 52, local druggist and well-known Jefferson county citizen, occurred here at his home this morning after an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Ramsey was a native of Jefferson county and except for 10 years spent in Jacksonville, Fla., where he was in the drug business and a short time in Eastman, in the same business, Mr. Ramsey had spent his life in his home town and county. He is survived by his widow, who was formerly Miss Louise Golden, whom he married in 1910, the daughter of Dr. E. Z. Golden, a Baptist preacher, of West Point; two sons, James Ramsey, Grier, S. C., and Ross Ramsey, Atlanta.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon from the Louisville Baptist church, where he had been a member a number of years and of which he was clerk for the past 10 years. He was secretary of the Sunday school for some years. He was active in many endeavors, being keeper of the United States weather bureau here and a newspaper correspondent.

SAVANNAH STUDENTS VISIT MILLEDGEVILLE

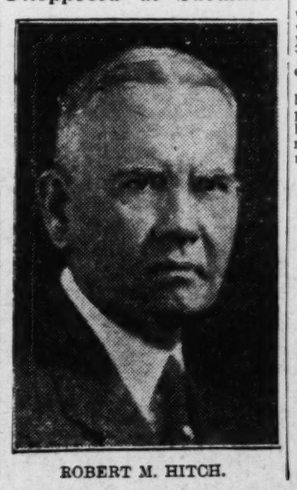

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 21. (AP)—Twenty students from Armstrong Junior College, Savannah, accompanied by Miss Frances Ennis, of Milledgeville, member of the faculty, made a tour of ante-bellum homes and historic buildings here today.

The trip was planned after the class had made a study of the book recently published by Mrs. Nelle Womack Hines, "A Treasure Album of Milledgeville."

At noon the students were guests of Georgia State College for Women at a luncheon and in the evening were entertained at the home of Miss Ennis, which was the old home of Governor Herschel V. Johnson.

It was the first pilgrimage of Georgia students to this city.

Unopposed at Savannah

INVESTMENT BANKERS TO MEET IN AUGUSTA

Five Forums Will Be Held at Convention Set for December 2-6.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The financial pulse of the nation will be felt and factors behind its flow will be studied by American investment bankers in their annual convention here December 2-6.

Five forums—on tax limitation and its relationship to municipal securities; regulation of the investment banking business by public authorities; public utilities; the railroads; and investment problems—will be held in addition to three formal convention sessions.

Orrin G. Wood, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, will present his annual address at the first formal session on Friday, December 4.

Edward B. Hall, of Chicago, presidential nominee of the association, will take office along with other new officers and governors already nominated, at the closing session Sunday morning, December 6.

Among the social and recreational events on the convention program will be the outgoing president's reception; a women's luncheon, a golf luncheon for women, golf tournaments and dancing.

Special trains to the convention will be run from New York and Chicago, with special cars to bring dleegates from Boston, Minnesota, St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Texas.

STATE DEATHS

MRS. MARY PATTERSON.

ROME, Ga., Nov. 21.—Mrs. Mary Jane Patterson, 66, passed away Thursday at her residence, 101 Bretts avenue, after a short illness. She had been living in Rome for the past 34 years and was a member of the Baptist church.

The funeral services were held today from the Mark McDonald Memorial Baptist church with the pastor, Rev. H. E. Nations, officiating. Interment was in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Patterson is survived by her husband, J. F. Patterso. ; two sons, J. F. Patterson Jr., of Rome, and Ed Patterson, of Birmingham.

REAGAN INFANT.

ROME, Ga., Nov. 21.—The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Reagan who reside at 307 Walnut street, in Lindale, passed away Thursday morning following a short illness.

Besides the parents, the child is survived by two brothers, Donald and Franklin Reagan, and the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Garrett, all of Lindale.

The funeral services were conducted yesterday morning from the graveside in Lindale cemetery. The Rev. H. E. Wright, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, officiated.

H. T. SANDERS.

DANIELSVILLE, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—H. T. Sanders, 62, prominent Madison county farmer and former rural letter carrier, died at his home here late today after a brief illness.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the Danielsville Methodist church.

Survivors include the widow, one son, Ralph Sanders; four brothers, H. B. and T. M. Sanders, of Danielsville, and U. T. and C. C. Sanders, of Athens; and two sisters, Mrs. Lena Hitchcock, of Danielsville, and Mrs. W. L. Brooks, of Athens.

OFFICERS ARE NAMED BY TEXTILE COMPANY

SEA ISLAND, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP) Officials of Southeastern Cottons, Inc., textile marketing concern, announced today Mrs. Richard E. Reeves, of New York, was elected honorary vice chairman at the semi-annual directors' meeting here this week.

Added to the list of officers also were John Leathen, Summit, N. J., vice president; Frank Mountcastle, New York, and N. C. Albaugh, New York, assistant vice presidents. Other officers were re-elected.

Howard E. Coffin, chairman of the board, and Elroy Curtis, New York, president, reported an excellent year's business. Southeastern Cottons is a merchandising agency for 40 southern mills.

Gainesville Triples Quota for Red Cross

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Gainesville doesn't forget.

Devastated by a tornado last spring, the city got relief from the American Red Cross and other agencies.

Today Miss Virginia Brown, executive secretary of the Red Cross chapter, telegraphed Atlanta headquarters:

"Our roll call quota was 800 members. By tonight we will reach 2,500 at least. I have never seen such enthusiasm among workers and contributors.

"Leslie Quinlan is chairman of the roll call."

MACHINE GUN USED BY TWO ROBBERS IN GRIFFIN HOLDUP

Paymasters of Pomona Products Company Are Forced To Give Up Pay Roll of $1,500.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Two white men, one reported armed with a sub-machine gun, held up R. O. Campbell and T. J. Harper, paymaster of the Pomona Products Company here today and escaped with a $1,500 pay roll.

The holdup occurred as the paymasters were taking the pay roll into the mill after a trip from a bank in Griffin. The Pomona company, located on the outskirts of Griffin, is one of the largest canners of pimento peppers in the world.

The bandits escaped in a light sedan, the license tag of which was turned upside down.

Campbell told police he and Harper had just stepped from their automobile in front of the company's office when the bandit car drove up.

One of the bandits, the one armed with a machine gun, got out and ordered him and Harper to "turn over the money," Campbell said. The bandit in the car, Campbell said, was armed with a rifle.

Campbell said the pay roll contained $1,500.

The bandits were not masked. They headed toward Newnan after the holdup, Campbell said.

EUROPEAN JOURNALIST WILL SPEAK AT ATHENS

Andre Geraud To Discuss War Situation at Affairs Institute Wednesday.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 21.—Andre Geraud, a leading European journalist and student of world affairs, will speak next Wednesday evening at the institute of public affairs at the University of Georgia chapel.

Speaking on the subject, "Can European Peace Be Saved?" M. Geraud, whose pen name is "Pertinax," will draw upon wide personal experience and an intimate acquaintance with the developments in post-war Europe.

Pertinax covered the making of the peace treaties, the founding of the League of Nations, all of its vital sessions and debates, the Washington naval conference, the two reparations conferences in Paris, the final reparations conference at Lausanne in 1932, and the Geneva disarmament conference.

He traveled with Laval to Moscow, Warsaw, Prague and Rome, with Barthou to central Europe. He has visited America several times with Laval when he came to visit Hoover in 1929 and with Herriot when he came to confer with Washington officials later.

His lecture will be one of several delivered at the institute during the scholastic year at the university.

GAINESVILLE FIRM SUED BY ATLANTAN

Insurance Fund Said To Have Been Paid After Tornado Involved.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP) Philip Collins, of Atlanta, filed suit for $150,000 in Hall superior court today against the Pacoler Manufacturing Company, based on the $1,500,000 insurance said by the petitioner to have been collected for losses in the April 6 tornado.

It was the second suit of its kind, a previous one having been brought by Sidney Weiss, formerly of Gainesville.

Under the law, Collins' suit declares, it is provided that all insurance companies doing business in Georgia shall obtain a license from the state insurance commissioner and in the event the policy is bought from an unlicensed company, any person informing the court of same through legal procedure is entitled to recover 10 per cent of the amount of loss collected, one-half going to the informer and the balance to the state treasury.

The suit charged Pacolet collected the $1,500,000 through Blackstone Factory Mutuals, with headquarters in Providence, R. I.

R. W. Smith Jr., of Gainesville, who with W. L. Bryan, Atlanta, represents Collins, said the constitutionality of the act is being attacked, most of the material facts being agreed upon.

The insurance company and the Pacolet mills are represented by E. B. Dunlap, Gainesville; Barry Wright, Rome, and former Senator Hiebert, of Rhode Island.

SEVERAL INJURED IN AUTO MISHAPS

Three Sent to Hospital With Possible Fractures of the Skull.

Patrolman N. E. Pittman, 30, of 821 Grant street, S. E., and T. L. Ham, 22, of the Old Soldiers' Home, suffered head injuries, possibly skull fractures, when their automobiles collided shortly before midnight at Grant street and Milledge avenue.

Both were admitted to Grady hospital. The officer was going off duty when the crash, which forced his machine into a brick wall, occurred.

John Holt, 55, suffered a broken right arm and a possible fractured skull early last night when, according to police reports, he darted in front of an auto proceeding west on Decatur street, at Piedmont avenue, driven by L. S. Chester, of 814 Bankhead avenue, against whom was placed a technical charge of reckless driving. Holt was admitted to Grady hospital.

Mrs. Lillie Driver, 22, of 571 Capitol avenue, suffered internal injuries and was admitted to Grady hospital when the motorcycle on which she was riding, driven by Rubin D. Driver, 25, of the same address, struck a rock, tossing the riders to the ground on Northside drive.

Several others were injured last night in minor accidents.

RITES PLANNED TODAY FOR CROSSING VICTIMS

Separate Funeral Services Set for John H. Brown and A. D. Elzey.

Victims of a truck-train crash at the North avenue railroad crossing at Marietta street early Friday night, which occurred when the dairy truck in which they were riding was struck by an A., B. & C. passenger train, will be buried today.

The victims were John H. Brown, 58, of 464 Calhoun street, N. W., a carpenter, who was instantly killed, and A. D. Elzey, 40, of DeFoor avenue, prominent dairyman, who died later of injuries.

Rites for Mr. Brown, who was on the way with Mr. Elzey to see a friend about buying a dog for a hunting trip during the Thanksgiving holiday, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Underwood Methodist church. The Revs. J. Douglas Swagerty and James K. Kelly will officiate, and burial will be in Crest Lawn cemetery, under direction of Brandon-Bond-Condon.

Funeral services for Mr. Elzey, who was a deacon of the Northside Park Baptist church, will be held at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon at the church. Officiating will be the Revs. W. S. Pruitt, G. W. Forrest and P. L. Maner, and burial will be in Crest Lawn cemetery, under direction of West Side Funeral Home.

Mr. Elzey, who was well known here, is survived by his wife; three sons, Homer, Dilmus and Vernon Elzey; two daughters, the Misses Frances and Mary Elzey; three brothers, J. A., E. and Boyd Elzey; three sisters, Mrs. L. E. Campbell, Mrs. Joe Edwards and Mrs. S. B. Holcombe, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Savannah Elzey.

The truck was dragged more than 300 yards by the train, according to police reports. The deaths of the victims marked the 75th and 76th traffic fatalities within the city limits since the first of the year, and the tenth and eleventh this month.

Final rites for Merritt will be held at 12 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the chapel of J. Austin Dillon Co., with the Rev. B. Frank Pim officiating. Burial will be in Marietta National cemetery.

2 POWERFUL UNIONS JOIN IN MARINE STRIKE

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(UP)—Officials of two powerful maritime unions—the Masters, Mates and Pilots Association and the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association—announced tonight that their members would strike on all coasts Monday noon.

James J. Delaney, national president of the Masters, Mates and Pilots, and William S. Brown, national president of the Marine Engineers, issued the strike announcements.

Delaney said the call would affect nearly 5,000 members of his organization in Atlantic and Gulf ports in addition to members already on strike on the west coast, the Marine Engineers walkout will affect as many or more workers, it was said.

Next week's strikes will be "separate and distinct" from the west coast seamen's walkout and the unofficial seamen's strike here, Delaney said. The demands of the two organizations, he added, are the same.

Nino Martini Sings In New Grand Film

Nino Martini, as a singing bandit-rookie, stars in "The Gay Desperado," new film attraction at Loew's Grand theater.

Martini, singing star of opera and radio, is cast as a young man with a great voice who "wishes to sing that all the world may hear." His voice adds color to the musical numbers of "The World Is Mine Tonight" and "Adios Mi Tierra" as he sings to Ida Lupino beneath the Mexican moon.

Leo Carrillo plays the role of a Mexican bandit chief who loves music. While attending an American gangland movie, Carrillo causes a riot in the movie-house and the manager runs Martini out to sing the crowd into serenity again.

The gay bandit chief, fascinated by the golden voice, decides Martini must be made a member of his gang so that while on the desert, he shall have someone with a golden voice who can sing to him.

Then the gang decides to adopt American gangland methods and enter the "snatch" racket. They capture a beautiful young girl and her millionaire boy friend and hold them for ransom. Martini falls for the girl and the girl for him. He is ordered to guard the girl and boy and, for the girl's sake, he lets the boy escape.

The feature of the entertaining show is the singing of Martini, who is at his best, and the gay acting of Carrillo.

Another installment in the series of "Crime Does Not Pay," newsreels and a short of carnival life complete a very entertaining program. —L. R.

Beautiful Cathedrals of Spain Shown in Exhibit of Lithographs

Beautiful and ancient cathedrals demolished by Spanish bombers and snipers during the current civil war may be seen with their intricate stonework still intact at the High Museum of Art this week where they form a timely exhibit of rare lithographs. Lent by Cyril B. Smith, former president of the Studio Club of Atlanta, whose father collected the prints in England and France, the pictures are wonderful examples of lithography in its early stages.

Lithographing was invented about 1790, and Mr. Smith's collection is placed close to this period. Evidence of the date is seen in the highlights of the prints which have been touched with Chinese white. This method was used by early lithographers before they had learned to handle the stones deftly enough to give the subtle gradations of light and shadow apparent in more modern lithographs. Especially beautiful are the pictures of the parish of St. Roman at Toledo and the entrance to the Chapel of the Tower, the lighting effects of both being remarkable for the time.

Of particular interest now are the prints of the ducal palace at Guadaljara and the Capilla del Condestable at Burgos, these buildings having been used by rebel forces as headquarters during the war now raging in Spain.

Aside from being artistically and historically valuable, the lithographs offer a pictorial course in Spanish architecture. One may detect the Moorish, Roman and Gothic influences which visibly affected the country of the dons. The combination of the three gave to the Spanish buildings a type of design found only in that locality. The famous Giralda at Seville is a striking example of a Moorish tower.

The exhibit of the Association of Georgia Artists, which opened last Sunday, will be on view until December 1, after which it will begin its tour of the state.

Lewis P. Skidmore, director of the museum, announces that the weekly lecture on home decoration will be presented as usual Wednesday morning, the topic for this week being "Successful Color Schemes."

Freshmen To Clash on Gridiron To Help Most Appealing Charity

The football game at Grant field Thursday at 2:30 o'clock between Tech freshmen and Georgia freshmen will not only be a real contest when the Baby Jackets meet the Baby Bulldogs in the renewal of this annual classic, but a charitable event, the entire net proceeds of which go toward assisting in the maintenance of one of the greatest humanitarian movements of the present age, the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children, located on East Lake road, in south Decatur.

This institution had its inception in 1915, when the Scottish Rite Masonic bodies of Atlanta rented two small cottages occupying space adjoining the site of the present magnificent hospital and started the experiment of taking little, indigent children having twisted bodies and limbs, and by use of modern orthopedic surgical methods, correcting the deformities that otherwise would doom them to be helpless cripples for life.

The experiment in humanitarism was so successful, and the demand for it so great, that in 1919 the Scottish Rite bodies financed the erection and equipment of a hospital, modern in every respect, at an approximate cost of $350,000, a mercy plant which today represents an outlay totaling approximately half a million dollars.

World-Wide Fame.

News of the marvelous work being performed was heralded throughout the nation and to foreign countries, with the result that it became a Mecca for famous surgeons, outstanding Masons of the nation and philanthropic individuals, who came here to observe the miracles that were being performed.

The outstanding result of these visits came in 1920 when the Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, at its meeting in Portland, Ore., put that order behind a crippled children's hospital movement for the whole of North America, using the "mother hospital" in Atlanta as the model for 12 such institutions, located at strategic points in the United States and Canada, with "mobile units" located in Mexico and the Hawaiian islands.

During its 21 years of existence the Scottish Rite hospital in Atlanta has corrected the deformities of 6,240 little cripples, who were operated on and cared for in the hospital. This number does not include a host of others who received minor surgical attention, that did not require a long period of hospitalization, being handled in the "out patient" department. The total cost of this great humanitary work has been approximately $1,200,000.

250 Patients a Year.

An average of 250 patients pass through the hospital each year. During better times an average of $65,000 was required each year for operation of the institution and replacement of equipment, but during the depression years the hospital has been operated at a cost of approximately $50,000 yearly. The reduced expense has resulted in inability to keep pace with many needed requirements in replacements, general upkeep of the plant, and reduced personnel, which has added to the burdens of those engaged in the work.

The Shrine has established hospitals at Shreveport, La., and Greenville, S. C. Prior to their establishment the Scottish Rite hospital received patients from every state in the southeast. For some years past it has been strictly a Georgia hospital, as it was found that support came only from Masons and citizens of this state and the state demand for care of its own cripples far exceeded the facilities of the institution. It has handled patients from every county in Georgia, with the exception of two. At the present time there are 60 patients in the hospital, every bed being occupied and there is a waiting list of 75. A survey of the state discloses there are approximately 5,000 little cripples in the state who should have the benefits offered by this institution.

Works Without Pay.

It would be impossible to operate the hospital on the small sum mentioned above but for the fact that, outside of the resident surgeon and nurses, none of the long staff of specialists receive pay for their services. Every division of the medical profession is represented on this staff by a personnel that includes the most famous practitioners of this section, including dentists and X-ray experts, while chiropodists, manicurists and barbers donate their services for the comfort and appearance of the little patients. In this connection it is interesting to note that one person alone has cut the hair of 5,000 children.

Emory University provides teachers for the children, whose ages run from kindergarten period of grammar school grades, with some that need advance instruction. On account of their afflictions some of the patients have never been able to attend school and they are given special instruction so they leave the hospital equipped to take up life with a new vision. Others who are unusually bright and studious show an aptitude for learning that inspires the teachers, who are happy in donating their services for this cause.

Sunday school is regularly conducted by the ladies of the Decatur Presbyterian church and thus in the minds of many little ones comes a religious influence unknown to them before coming to the hospital.

The Scottish Rite hospital is not a part of the Shrine hospital system and receives nothing from the Community Chest. It is dependent entirely for its support on the contributions of charitable citizens. For this reason its appeal through the football game Thursday is one that should receive generous support.

NEWMAN CHAPTERS TO BE ORGANIZED

Catholic Club Federation Plans Wide Expansion in Southeast.

Plans for extention of the Newman clubs within the Southeastern conference during the next 12 months were discussed yesterday by delegates at the annual province convention of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs. The convention will close with the election of officers this morning.

Chapters will be installed at the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville; at the College of the City of Charleston, and at Duke, Tampa, Miami, and other points in the southeast under the expansion program, it was announced yesterday.

Approximately 55 delegates from the four active chapters of the province are attending the convention. Chapters represented are University of Georgia, University of Florida, Florida State College for Women, and Georgia Tech.

F. D. R. SPEEDS SOUTH FROM PORT OF SPAIN

ABOARD U. S. S. CHESTER, At Sea, Nov. 21.—(UP)—The U. S. S. Indianapolis, with President Roosevelt aboard, and its escort cruiser, the U. S. S. Chester, were speeding southward tonight after a brief refueling stop at Port of Spain, Trinidad.

The departure was made shortly after the President returned from an unsuccessful three-hour fishing trip in the tropical waters off Trinidad. The chief executive said he would try his luck again on his return to the island about the middle of December, after his visit to the inter-American peace conference in Buenos Aires.

The two cruisers arrived at 8 a. m. after a fast run from Charleston, S. C., which they left on the morning of November 18. Shortly after the vessels anchored, the President received an official visit from Deputy Governor Alfred Wallace Seymour, Colonel A. S. Mavrogordato, inspector general of constabulary, and Subinspector Bowring. American Consul and Mrs. Wallace E. Moessner also called on the President.

GERMANS ARE READY TO ACT WITH JAPAN

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Germany acknowledged today her readiness to act with Japan, partner in a common antagonism to Bolshevism, "in given situations," but continued to disclaim knowledge of any pact between the two nations aimed against Russia.

Japan and Germany, a high government spokesman said, "have much in common in their authoritarian conception of government" but there is no "hard and fast alliance between the two."

"It is quite conceivable Germany and Japan—opposed as both are to Bolshevism—may in given situations decide to proceed jointly," he added.

"It is also possible, if either should become involved in a war with Soviet Russia, the other would exercise at least a benevolent neutrality."

The Japanese-German alliance has been reported repeatedly by Moscow, which asserted today the pact was "a progressive but not final action directed in preparation for a world war."

190 GRAVE DIGGERS THREATEN WALKOUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—(UP)—One hundred and ninety organized grave diggers in San Francisco threatened tonight to call a strike next week unless cemetery owners and associations grant them a wage increase.

It was reported they planned, if necessary, to picket cemeteries to prevent burials.

FOREIGNERS EVACUATE NORTH CHINA REGION

Sudden Outbreak of Hostilities in Suiyuan Is Expected.

KWEISUI, Suiyuan, China, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Foreigners, including Japanese, fled this province today because of the threatening eastern Suiyuan-Chahar border crisis—the result of alleged Japanese-sponsored invasions of the North China area.

American missionaries, scattered in isolated hamlets throughout the huge province, were among those evacuating. Dispatches from Paoten, western terminus of the Peiping-Suiyuan railway, said Japanese and other foreigners were fleeing in fear of a sudden outbreak of hostilities.

Stuart Gunzetl, of Wausau, Wis., reached here from Pailingmiao to report the war zone appeared destined to engulf the northern Suiyuan frontier.

Reports of developments in the North China sector conflicted.

Chinese sources said Suiyuan troops dominated the eastern frontier and held invading Mongol irregulars within the Chahar boundaries.

Tokyo advices said Japan would allow China free hand in cleaning out the border invaders. This was interpreted by observers here to mean Japan was unwilling to become further embroiled in North China disputes.

Despite Chinese claims to military successes, Tientsin reports said irregulars had again entered Suiyuan and forced the province defenders to retreat toward Shangtu. Severe fighting was under way, these advices stated, as far westward as Taolin.

Airplanes, which Chinese sources alleged were Japanese, supported the Chahar attackers with repeated bombing raids, the Tientsin dispatches said

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Grant Withers was recovering today from an operation which his physician, Dr. Carl E. Conn, said was for removal of gallstones. The actor is out of danger, Dr. Conn said.

Psychologist Will Speak

DR. SAMUEL KAHN.

KAHN TO ADDRESS ATLANTA AD CLUB

Psychological Aspects of Advertising Will Be Expert's Subject.

"The Unconscious in Advertising" will be the subject of an address by Dr. Samuel Kahn, psychoanalyst, to be delivered to the members of the Atlanta Advertising Club at their weekly luncheon meeting at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday in Davison-Paxon's restaurant.

Dr. Kahn will discuss the mental mechanisms of unconscious psychology in relation to advertising versus the conscious psychological principles, also making a comparison between positive and negative advertising.

Dr. Kahn received his M. D. degree from Emory University with the class of 1921, and earned his Ph.D. in 1930 at New York University. He is author of "Sing Sing Criminals," published in 1936, and associate editor of the "Modern Psychologist's Journal," and of the "Psychology Journal."

As head of the department of psychology at the Commerce University of the South, Dr. Kahn teaches conscious and unconscious psychology as applied to business.

James W. Petty Jr., president of the Atlanta Advertising Club, invites all persons interested in advertising or psychology to attend the meeting.

FIVE ARE HELD LIABLE FOR TAX DEFICIENCY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The board of tax appeals held four Atlanta men and one Mobile man liable today for a $12,289 income tax deficiency of the French Dry Cleaning Company, of Atlanta.

The board ruled Benjamin E. May, Mobile; Arthur I. May, Joseph May, Benjamin F. May, all of Atlanta, received assets of the company when it was liquidated and were responsible for unpaid taxes. The board also found Alvin H. Fuller, of Atlanta, liable for $2,640 in unpaid taxes in connection with the same company.

The Universal Car Broadens Its Field with New Economy and THE LOWEST PRICE IN YEARS

For more than thirty years Ford has been "The Universal Car." And the name takes on a newer, broader meaning for 1937, with the addition of a 60-horsepower V-8 engine to the Ford line.

The new "60" makes possible the lowest Ford price in years, and brings smooth, dependable V-8 performance within the reach of more people than ever before. It means also a choice of two V-type 8-cylinder engine sizes. 85 horsepower for maximum performance. 60 horsepower for maximum economy. Both engines are built into the same big body size.

The "60" is a replica of its brilliant older brother, except in size, weight and power. It was first developed for England and France, where fuel costs are high. Two years in service there have proved that it creates an entirely new standard of modern motoring economy.

If you want a big car for a small budget—a car you can own with pride and drive with pleasure—ask your Ford dealer to show you the new car with the new engine.

HOKE SMITH SELECTS HONOR GIRL STUDENT

In the last lap of the race which is to determine who will be crowned Miss Hoke Smith of 1936-1937, we find that Betty French, of 7-A-1; Mary Evelyn Lewis, of 8-B-1, who was crowned Miss Hoke Smith of 1935-1936, and Mabel Everett, of 9-B-3, are coming down the home stretch at full speed and with plenty of vigor.

These three girls were the holders of the greatest majority of votes out of the eight candidates who survived the first elimination. The first elimination took place on Monday, November 16, and required each candidate to have at least 500 votes.

Miss Elgin Poole, of the English department, who handled the selection so well last year, is again sponsoring the contest. Her associates from the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, respectively, are Miss Clara Bright, of the math department; Mrs. Ben. F. Meyer, of the English department, and Miss Dolly McLendon, also of the English department.

An assembly was held recently for the purpose of acquainting the students with the remaining candidates who are competing for the title of Miss Hoke Smith of 1936-1937. They were introduced by their campaign managers and took their places one by one on the stage.

This assembly lasted only a short time. The remainder of the period was used to show two short comedies to all who were subscribers of the Vanguard, the school paper.

FORMWALT CELEBRATES AT HARVEST CARNIVAL

Everyone in Formwalt school had a wonderful time at the "Harvest Carnival" on Friday afternoon. There was a candy-pulling, many games, good things to eat, and the crowning and royal entertaining of the " Harvest Carnival Queen of Formwalt school."

Formwalt children had a bottle shower for the Tuberculosis Association. Four sixth grade boys, Frank Priles and James White, of High 6, and Fred Blankenship and Roy Heath, of Low 6-1, carried the bottles to the clinic. Miss Dickenson and Miss Logan, who were pleased to get the large number of bottles, told the boys that each of some of the large bottles saved the clinic four cents. Miss Dickenson carried the boys on a tour of the buildings. Thet boys were delighted with the X-ray room and the treatments that were being given to the patients.

High 6 are proud of their attendance record. They had the attendance banners eight of the nine weeks of the first quarter, and there were 30 pupils who had perfect attendance for the entire quarter. Mrs. Stegall entertained them at a party.

Low 6-1 enjoyed decorating their room for Thanksgiving. On the windows they have five scenes showing the Pilgrims in England, Holland, on the Mayflower, in Amertica, and the first Thanksgiving feast.

Low 6-2 believe in a beautiful environment. See their indoor rock garden.

High 5-1 boys have been 100 per cent in attendance for one week. Clarence Skelton and Wallace Robins drew and colored three panels on the blackboard. Emily Alhadeff, Rachel Benenisty and Sarah Thomason dressed Christmas dolls. Each one, who could, gave to the Community Chest.

Children of the Lee Street school enjoyed a trip to the West End branch of the First National Bank Tuesday. We were told about the vaults and safes for storing money. BETTY CALLAWAY.

Superintendent's Message.

My dear Boys and Girls:

How rapidly the days come and go! It seems only yesterday that we entered school and now we are at the Thanksgiving time. "Rich gift of God—a year of time" and now we come to that season when we are to express our appreciation to God for this rich gift, for the friends and loved ones who have made life happy for us, for the nation that has protected us, for the God above us who has guided and directed us.

For three centuries and more your fathers and mine have lived on these shores. They have seen a few struggling colonies along the Atlantic coast expanded into a great empire 3,000 miles wide and 1,500 miles deep. We have seen a few struggling colonists expand into more than 120,000,000 people; we have seen the Stars and Stripes extended over territory reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. We have had the opportunity to live under the direction of a government that has decreed that none of her people shall starve and that life is the most precious of all legacies and that people are more important than things. How happy we ought to be for our churches, for our schools, for our city, for our state and our nation!

I sincerely hope that every boy and every girl will genuinely and truly give thanks to God for the blessings that have so richly crowned our lives. I am so afraid that hundreds, and even thousands of us, will just think of Thanksgiving as a time to indulge ourselves in pleasures and in excitement; a time for holiday, and forget that it is a real and genuine time of Thanksgiving to God. I want you to have a good time; I hope the Thanksgiving holidays will mean much to you, but certainly before you go out into your pleasures and to your parties and dances and dinners, let's give a little thought to the great God who loved and made us and rules over us and who directs in the affairs of the world. Blessed is that nation whose God is the Lord, and the only way that we can make God our Lord is to make Him Lord of our individual lives.

Always your friend,
WILLIS A. SUTTON, Superintendent of Schools.

DAVIS SCHOOL PUPILS TAKE TRIP TO LIBRARY

Miss Martin, our principal, attended a program given by the third grade on Armistice Day.

Fifth grade has 127 points in Red Cross. They have more points than any other grade in Davis Street school. The fifth grade has been talking about beauty this week. They wrote a poem about beauty. They have been looking at pictures. Some are of beauty in nature and some are of beauty in work. They also made some peep shows. Some are of Uncle Remus, Indians and safety. Miss Martin came and chose the best peep show and Miss Pratt and some children took them to the Anne Wallace branch of the Carnegie Library.

Sixth grade had a radio program on Friday on education week. Cecil Vandiver broadcasted it and the pupils taking part were Edith Carter, Elizabeth McGuire, Helen Lander, David Edge, Roy Carden, Wilburn Williams, and Mary Fields. The sixth grade garden club transplanted their pansy plants this week. They hope to have an early start in their flower gardens next spring. They have enjoyed the chrysanthemums from their garden this fall.

Good book week was observed by a visit to the library to see the peep shows by the second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades on Tuesday morning. Each child enjoyed the trip. It was a pleasant walk and the safety patrol boys assisted the teachers in traffic. Every peep show was interesting. MARY EVELYN FIELDS.

TENTH SCHOOL PUPILS GIVE GOOD BOOK PLAY

Low kindergarten will go on a Christmas shopping trip this week.

High and low kindergarten have enjoyed shopping for plants and pots and bringing plants from home to beautify the room and rock garden aquarium.

Low 1 has made a lovely window garden for their room.

Low 1 are bringing in materials for the house they are building.

High 1 are bringing in plants and ivy for their room.

Low 2 are bringing in their favorite story books for Good Book Week. They also have a play about good books which they like to dramatize.

High 2 are learning songs and poems about Jack Frost.

Low five are trying to be more thoughtful of other people. They have brought in many useful and warm garments for little friends who are less fortunate than they.

High 5 welcomed a social science demonstration from Mrs. Felton, a teacher from another school. They are sorry that their teacher, Mrs. Pennington, has been absent.

Low 6 are delighted to welcome Evelyn Bland again. She has been absent since September on account of a broken leg.

Low 6 have enjoyed making art glass windows in connection with their study of the cathedrals of the middle ages.

SPRING SECOND GRADE PLANS TO WRITE PLAY

The kindergarten children are anxious to have all of their daddies here for the P.-T. A.

Low 1 have made a barn in their room, like the one they saw at the farm.

Low 2 are planning to write a play. They are also making books as gifts for daddies' night. They are very much interested in their Sunday School chart. They have been making little drawings of grass.

High 2 and 3 are going to have a Dutch market. They are working on it.

High and Low 3 are being painted.

Low 4 spent their prize dollar for ivy bowls.

Low and High 4 are glad to welcome Eleanor Mathis from R. L. Hope school.

Low 5 are making a Pilgrim fireplace. They have a cradle, too.

Jane Campbell, of Low and High 5, has just returned from the Texas centennial. She is telling interesting stories of her visit.

Jack Hook, of High and Low 6, is the editor of the European Daily. He has lots of good news about Europe.

We had an interesting program on Armistice Day. Mr. Roy LeCraw was the speaker. GWENDOLYN NEELY.

ADAIR THIRD GRADERS VISIT AVIATON FIELD

High 2 had a most enjoyable party last week and invited their parents. They had 24 mothers and their fathers present.

High 3 enjoyed two interesting trips last week. First they arrived at the airport just after the plane from Miami. The pilot showed them inside. They saw another plane leave for Chicago. Then they visited the farm house at the Hapeville Orphans' Home where the dairy, fine sheep and hogs were of especial interest.

Many beautiful leaves have been brought into High 5 from over the week-end. A pretty spray of sour wood from Neel's Gap was the most beautiful.

Low 6 went to Emory University November 5. Five mothers and their teacher took them. They saw a snake, and learned that it can do four things with its tongue—feel, smell, taste and hear. They saw a mummy 2,800 years old. They saw paper made from Georgia pine. They had a good time.

Some of the boys in High 6 have been busy getting the Bermuda grass out of the iris border in the school garden. They have marked off all the beds and walks, so that each grade can care for its own flower bed.

PUPILS AT KIRKWOOD HAVE COTTON EXHIBIT

Low 3-2 are glad to have Joe Brown back at school. He has been absent on account of a tonsil operation.

Low 4-2 are enjoying the study of textiles. They have a wonderful exhibit of cotton, from the seed to the garment. They are also much interested in the study of Egypt.

Low 5-2 have been making a study of Eli Whitney and the first cotton gin.

Low 5-1 have been writing stories on gratitude—telling about the things we are thankful for and how we might express our gratitude.

Low 6-2 are proud of the 10 children who attended school each day during the first quarter.

Low 6-1 were very glad to have Emily Calhoun from the Lovett county day school visit them last week.

High 6-1 have been working on sculpture, one of the fine arts, and are very enthusiastic over the work. Several members of this class will visit Murphy Junior High school Thursday, November 12. I know we will enjoy the two hours spent there and will derive much help that will be of great benefit to us when we enroll in that school in February.

High 6-2 are making a study of different organizations that have for their object "service." They are interested in making some books in which to keep valuable information about each organization studied.

Kirkwood pupils were delighted last Tuesday to have as their leader of their weekly chapel period, Dr. White, the new minister of Kirkwood Baptist church.

Our Red Cross juniors sent Halloween hats, decorations, and boxes filled with candy to the Decatur Orphans' Home to use for a Halloween party. JOYCE MAE HASLETT.

CHILDREN AT PEEPLES FORM BAND OF MERCY

Low 6-1 has a pet animal club. The president is Jack Griffith, Carrie Donald is secretary, and Norma Jean Powledge is treasurer. Each of the children wrote a description of his pet animal. The other members of the class guessed what the animal was.

This week they have plucked from the garden blue violets, marigolds, chrysanthemums, lantana, monkey-faces, ageratum, salvia, zinnias, sweet alyssum and petunias. The hollyhock still has several blooms on it.

Low 6-2 have a "Band of Mercy Club." The president is Charles Harrison; Betty Ramsey is secretary. They have a new boy from out of town, Billy Murphy.

High 5 are enjoying writing letters to a chile in the Hawaiian Islands and other children, too.

On November 13, Mother Guppy presented Low 5 with five baby guppies.

High 3 are making booklets about Switzerland.

Low 3 have a beautiful rock garden with all kinds of ferns and flowers on the old sandtable.

Billy Fields, of Low 2-1, moved to Miami, Fla., and all the class wrote him a letter.

Low and High 1 went for a nice walk and saw many interesting things. They made a picture of a policeman and postman on the board.

Low 1 went to the Baptist Orphans' Home to see farm life.

High 6 are delighted with their library test papers. Madge Lancaster, Leonard Slaughter and Sam Bolen made "perfect," and 20 others out of the class of 32 made "very good."

Billy Porter, of High 6, had charge of the Armistice Day program and presided with so much poise and ease that he has been selected as our class president. ANNIE JOHNSON.

EAST LAKE OBSERVES WEEK FOR EDUCATION

American Education Week was observed at East Lake by having the parents visit school. First they came on Tuesday night to open house, then again on Friday on parents visiting day.

The classrooms were places of varied interests.

In the kindergarten the children are studying pets, so they have built a pet shop to take care of their rabbit, chickens and canary birds.

The first graders built a fine fence for their farm. These children are engaged in their first library experience, also. They love their bookmarks and books.

In the second grade, one's eyes were drawn to the board which had these words in large letters, "From Field to Oven." The children have been studying bread and have built a bakery, visited one, ground wheat and baked bread.

Third graders are studying Hebrew life and are building furniture like that used in Hebrew times. They have also been interested in leaves and have made a fine leaf book.

In the fourth grade are pictures of Greek gods drawn and painted by the children, a pyramid and several palm trees. The children are deeply interested in their Egyptian study.

Marionettes are being modeled in the fifth grade. When completed they will be used in presenting some favorite stories of the fifth graders. They surely look interesting.

Medieval life is the center of interest in the sixth grade. The children have made shields, swords, a castle, cut designs for stained glass windows, and are making a trade map.

Every day is full of interesting activities which make school lots of fun. DON HUTCHESON.

OFFICIALS SEEKING CITY SCRIP TAKERS

Local Groups Contacted in Effort To Gain Absorption of Pay Roll Paper.

Fate of efforts to get several local organizations to absorb about $700,000 worth of city pay roll scrip may be known tomorrow, it was indicated yesterday.

Councilman Aubrey Milam, finance committee chairman; Mayor-nominee William B. Hartsfield and B. Graham West, city comptroller, will seek new conferences tomorrow with a view of getting the organizations to agree to cash the scrip, which will be issued for the last half of November and for the full month of December salaries.

If such an agreement is reached, it will eliminate possibility employes may be forced to discount the scrip.

Already $100,000 worth has been issued to non-school employes, representing their salaries for the first half of November.

FINE LIQUOR SEIZED IN DOWNTOWN RAID

One Man Arrested After Discovery of Electrically Operated Trap.

Atlanta detectives yesterday uncovered an elaborately constructed cache, seized $1,000 worth of choice liquors and arrested a man in a raid on a room in the McKenzie building, Williams and Forsyth street.

Detectives John Crankshaw and J. B. King, who made the raid, reported a section of the floor was raised when an electric button was pushed, revealing the cache of fine imported and bottled in bond whisky.

The officers arrested a man who gave the name of Robert Brown, of a North Boulevard address. Brown was charged with violation of the state prohibition law and made bond of $500. His case was set for hearing Tuesday afternoon in recorder's court.

CHOIR SINGER TO START CONCERT CAREER SOON

PENN YAN, N. Y., Nov. 21.—(AP) Miss Florence Hartley, 24-year-old soprano who was "discovered" while singing in a Sunday school choir here, will leave Monday to appear as soloist with the Miami, Fla., symphony orchestra during the winter season.

The protege of Madame Louise Homer, Miss Hartley will resume her studies under the famous prima donna at Palm Beach before making her debut with the orchestra on December 7.

The Penn Yan girl, born in Hamilton, Scotland, was taught to sing her first songs by Paddy Lynch, a bobbie on the police force of her home town.

Low 6 were invited by Mr. Clark to go down to the St. John church to see the stained glass windows. They enjoyed their visit.

MATILDA FRANCO,
VIRGINIA MEEKS,
SARAH HINTON.

CHILDREN AT STANTON HAVE COMB ORCHESTRA

Last week the third grade enjoyed a visit to the green house. Mr. Robinson explained the palms to them. He also taught them how they care for the Christmas flowers. The class is writing letters to him about what they learned at the green house. Mr. Robinson is to give a prize to the two who write the best letters. The trip has aroused a great interest in gardening.

Kindergarten boys and girls have a comb orchestra. They have learned to play three pieces.

We had a very interesting program on Admistice Day with the kindergarten teacher in charge. Claire Cox, of the kindergarten, sang "Soldier Boy" and the class, wearing soldier caps, joined in the chorus. Roy Dyer recited a poem, "On the Flag;" Thomas Lively recited "In Flanders' Field," and the school sang patriotic songs. The speaker was Captain Walter LeCraw. He and the friend with him wore their artiller uniforms of blue and gold. His talk was enjoyed by every child present.

EDUCATIONAL REFORM IS URGED BY COLLINS

Community Study Stressed as Growing Need in Present-Day Teaching.

Education of Georgia's chidren through a comprehensive study of the community in which they live was urged by Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, in an address yesterday before the annual convention of the Georgia Association of School Superintendents.

Under such a program, "finding the sources of worth-while experiences is the first concern of the teacher," he said. "Guiding pupils into and through them in such a way that they will be worthwhile for each child and for society is her next task.

"There is no one best way of bringing children in touch with the life of the community. Excursions with a group purpose, making, collections and exhibits, investigations of particular problems, visits to the class and the school by people who can give valuable information or points of view are only a few types of possible activities which the teacher and the pupil group will devise to meet a particular need or interest. Essential phases of such experiences are group planning and group evaluation of results."

Three Roads to Goal.

To organize the community study in terms of the persistent problems of living may be accomplished in three ways, the school superintendent declared. He suggested a thorough survey of the community be undertaken by the entire school system; group study by faculty members with a common interest; or, the individual teacher will think through the types of experiences her pupils should have and by personal investigation find out what the community offers to enrich their lives.

Collins touched briefly on the points previously stressed at the meeting, the uniform seven-month school term, the minimum teachers' salary, the equalization fund, and the transportation fund. He expressed the belief the legislature and the new governor would co-operate to the fullest with the superintendents in accomplishing school reform.

Officers Elected.

B. A. Lancaster, of Vidalia, was elected president of the association for the coming year, and D. D. Still, of Buena Vista, was named vice president. Others selected were S. F. Maughn, of Commerce, secretary-treasurer, and Allen Smith, Sam A. Wells and W. E. Knox members of the board of directors.

R. L. Ramsey, new executive secretary of the Georgia Education Association, explained how the association intends to carry out the proposed legislative school program which was approved Friday.

During the afternoon, the school superintendents were guests of Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, at the Tech-Florida football game.

NAVAL HERO DIES

Believed Last Survivor of 'Old Ironsides.'

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 21.—(AP) With cheers of high school students ringing in his ears, William D. Plumb, 75, believed to have been the last survivor of the crew of the U. S. S. Constitution, dropped dead on the school platform after presenting a picture of his beloved "Old Ironsides."

A seaman on the ship in 1882, he sailed on her again in 1931 by special dispensation of the Navy Department.

Plumb presented the picture at East Side High school yesterday and expressed his appreciation of the gifts by school children of the nation which made possible the refitting of the historic warship and its cruise in 1931.

As the children cheered his speech, he toppled from his seat.

WPA RECREATION UNIT OPENS AT BASS SCHOOL

The Bass recreation center, sponsored by the recreation department of the WPA, has opened for the winter in the auditorium of the Bass Junior High school. The center is open from 6:30 to 9:30 o'clock on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, with sports, dramatics, gym work and handicraft on the program.

Miss Lucile Taylor, supervisor of the center, has worked out a schedule of activities to include adults and those over 16 who are not enrolled in a public school. Monday nights are reserved for women, with Miss Florence Willis, director of handicraft, offering interesting classes in the subject.

Men will occupy the center on Wednesday nights, with gym classes, basketball and volleyball games and other sports. The gym is open for basketball games on Friday nights.

31 Atlantans Called to Colors To Aid Hard Labor Creek Park

One 'Recreational Demonstration Project' Appointee Demands Change of Name as First Move; Group Asked To Recommend Plans for Area.

Thirty-one Atlantans were conscripted by the federal government yesterday to help make a winter and summer fairyland out of 5,985 acres of farm land in Morgan county, which has been officially christened with the enchanting name; reading from left to right:

"Hard Labor Creek Recreational Demonstration Project."

First, the government expects those 31 Atlantans to make a "thorough study of the recreational needs and possibilities in the populous region which will be served by the project" and then they are expected to make recommendations that will cause people to exclaim breathlessly to groping tourists:

"Man, if you want to have a good time you sure can have one at that Hard Labor Creek Recreational Demonstration Project on United States Highway No. 76, 54 miles due east of Atlanta near the geographic center of Georgia's population!"

Scoff at Handicap.

Quite a mouthful for the sentimental southerner but plans for the area's development, according to officials of the National Park Service at Richmond, will overcome the forbidding aspects of the playground's name.

Hard work on the playground building has started already over on the banks of Hard Labor Creek. Under construction right now is a camp designed to accommodate 100 persons. Twenty-four sleeping cabins have been completed. A central dining hall and kitchen, administration building, infirmary, craft shop museum, wash house, sanitary equipment and four lodges are contemplated. A 225-acre lake has been impounded to provide for swimming, boat and fishing.

The Hard Labor Creek Recreational Demonstration Project is near Rutledge in Morgan county, one of 46 such projects in 23 states. The land is unsuited to profitable agriculture agriculture and the government explains that these projects "are not parts of the great chains of national parks and monuments which are selected because of superlative scenic or historical values," one reason why the names are not made so alluring as those of the more expensive play areas.

Milner Heads Body.

Willis Milner Jr., insurance executive, will head the Atlanta committee, and L. E. Mansfield, director of Atlanta Boy Scout Council camping activities, will be vice chairman. Boyce M. Edens, director of the Community Chest, will be secretary. Other members of the committee, who will receive this week their formal notification of appointment, are:

Mrs. Wright Bryan, Girl Scout commissioner; Miss Lucile Cannon, Girl Scout director; Weaver M. Marr, Boy Scout council executive; Herbert Oliver and Miss Rhoda Kaufman, Family Welfare Society Board; A. L. Loeb, Board of Federation for Jewish Social Service; Mrs. F. J. Henry and Miss Metta May Mitchell, Y. W. C. A. board; Stephen R. Styron, Red Cross life-safing chairman.

W. J. Sayward and Miss Eva Hancock, Camp Fire Girls' board; Wilmer Kimberley and Lawrence Willet, Y. M. C. A. board; Miss Melanie Gaines, Fulton county department of public welfare; Dr. E. H. Rice, Emory University; August Fischer, Georgia WPA recreation director; Adjutant Richard Fitton, Salvation Army; the Rev. Herman L. Turner, Boy Scout council president.

Bert Collier, Community Chest; H. Reid Hunter, assistant superintendent of Atlanta schools; Arthur J. Harris, paper company executive; Hugh Trotti, business manager of The Atlanta Constitution; Herbert Porter, publisher of the Georgian-American; George Biggers, business manager of the Atlanta Journal.

W. E. Mitchell, power company executive; T. Guy Woolford, Community Chest budget chairman; Kendall Weisiger, telephone executive, and Hal Hentz.

"I intend to make a motion that we do something about that name at our first meeting," said Hugh Trotti yesterday.

SUPPORT CLAIMED FOR CIVIL SERVICE

League Says 115 Solons Will Back Amendment for Reform.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The National Civil Service Reform League announced today that a proposed new amendment to the constitution would be introduced at the next session of congress with the support of at least 115 senators and congressmen.

The amendment would require all federal government jobs to be filled by competitive civil service examinations.

H. Eliot Kaplan, secretary of the league—of which the late George W. Wickersham was long the leader—said a poll of legislators elected November 3 showed 59 men pledged, in writing, to support the amendment as offered and 56 more committed to vote for it in principle.

A number of congressmen who answered the poll were noncommittal, Kaplan said, but none expressed "outright opposition."

He exhibited letters from veteran congressmen who said the power to dole out jobs did as much harm as help to their political careers.

The drive for a constitutional amendment started during the Presidential campaign. Kaplan said it was due to noncompetitive posts opened by creation of "alphabetical agencies" of the New Deal.

ARMY ENGINEERS SEEK HIT-AND-RUN SKIPPER

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 21.—(UP)—Angry army engineers in charge of the new steel Wilmington jetty sought a hit-and-run skipper today after his boat tore a hole in the Breakwater and then fled out to sea. A ferryboat crew saw the accident from a distance but was unable to distinguish the vessel's name.

LONG DELAY PROBABLE IN NEW DEAL RULINGS

Justices Expected to Postpone Decisions Until Stone Returns.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(UP) Long delay in decisions of important pending supreme court cases was foreseen tonight as a result of critical illness of Justice Harlan Fiske Stone, noted liberal member.

Stone is still confined to his bed and while convalescing, it may be a month or more before he can return to the bench. His condition is reported as "weak" but he is improving slowly and steadily.

It was believed the court will not decide any cases involving a narrow division without consulting Stone.

As much has been intimated by the fact that Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes faithfully vouches Stone in on each case argued so that he may, if necessary, cast his vote.

May Delay Decisions.

Stone voted on none of the cases decided at the last recess of the court. It is possible that some decisions now held up may have split the tribunal and will not be handed down until his return. With but one exception, the court's decisions, numbering more than a score, were unanimous when delivered November 9.

The cases left undecided include:

The multi-million dollar patent claims of Robert Esnault-Pelterie, French inventor of the "joystick."

The claims of Grigsby-Grunow employes for health benefit insurance they paid the now bankrupt firm.

The question of validity of the one per cent gross revenue tax imposed on Washington utilities companies.

It was regarded as highly possible that Stone's vote is needed in these cases, although failure to decide them may be due to the complexity of the questions involved or delay in writing the opinion.

During the past two weeks the court has heard argument in several important cases which may result in split opinions. Stone's vote may be needed to break a "tie" of the court in which the jurists have divided, 4 to 4.

Rather than decide an important issue this way, it is believed the court would allow the case to remain undecided until Stone could act.

In event of a "tie," the decision of the lower court would be sustained, whether in favor of the law or against it. Such decisions have no binding force on decisions of future cases.

Among the important cases in which a "tie" is possible are:

The fight of utility companies against administration efforts to confine tests of the utilities holding company act to the Electric Bond and Share case in New York city.

The attack of the Duke Power Company on the New Deal's policy of aiding municipalities to establish their own power and light systems through PWA grants and loans.

7 DROWNED IN BAY AS VESSEL SINKS

Ten Survivors Paddle Raft With Hands Through Icy Waters.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Nov. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—The 100-foot motorship Hibou keeled suddenly and sank in Georgian bay today, drowning the captain, the stewardess and five seamen.

Ten survivors reached shore on rafts which they paddled with their hands for half a mile to Squaw Point, about four miles north of Owen Sound.

They were taken to a hospital, suffering from exposure.

Captain Norman McKay, veteran Great Lakes skipper who was taking the Hibou on her last voyage of the year to Georgian bay and Manitoulin Island points, was on the bridge with First Mate James Agnew when the vessel listed suddenly at dawn.

Both were thrown into the icy water. The first mate reached a raft, but the captain was drowned.

The stewardess, Iona Johnson, also lost her life.

None of the survivors could explain the foundering. The vessel, owned by the Dominion Transportation Company, of Owen Sound, was a remodeled tugboat. She carried 150 tons of general merchandise.

Father Leaves Daughter Estate and Bit of Advice

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 21. (UP)—Written on mourning paper and filed in probate court yesterday, the will of Louis Tower, Providence businessman, leaves to his daughter his entire $500,000 fortune—plus a few words of advice.

The last paragraph of the will contained this written advice to Mrs. Julia T. Jackson, who inherits the fortune:

"Julia dear—do not speculate, but keep money invested in good, sound, high-grade bonds. Dad."

POLICE MAKING GAINS AGAINST CRIME--HOOVER

Americans Are Becoming More Law Abiding, U. S. Officer Says.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(UP) Americans are becoming more law-abiding, Director J. Edgar Hoover, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, reported tonight.

Police forces of the nation have made wide gains in strong drives against criminals in recent years and these gains have been accelerated in 1936, Hoover said in a survey of crime conditions.

These gains are reflected in virtually every form of crime. Murders during the first nine months of this year decreased from 1,017 in the same period last year and from 1,144 in the first nine months of 1934.

Kidnapers and bank robbers, against whom the FBI has waged unrelenting war, have decreased almost to zero. The wave of kidnapings which swept the country in 1933 and 1934 has virtually petered out.

Holdups Decrease.

Bank holdups, a major source of income for criminals, likewise decreased. There were only two bank robberies in cities of more than 100,000 population during the first nine months of this year.

Robberies, including those of highway and stores, decreased from 14,716 in 1931 to 8,325 this year. Automobile thefts fell from 64,738 in 1931 to 34,859 in 1936, a reduction of 46.2 per cent.

Larcenies reached a high point of 123,321 in 1935 in cities included in the report, but in the first nine months of this year dropped to 112,602.

Only two classes of crime, rape and aggravated assault, failed to drop. With the exception of the south Atlantic and the west south central states, all sections of the country reported increases in rape.

Aggravated assaults in the 69 reporting cities increased from 7,520 in 1935 to 7,991 this year. Residents of the south Atlantic and east south central states had the most cases.

Assault Charges.

In North Carolina arrests for assault totaled 368 persons per 100,000 population to lead all states. Virginia was second with 197.8 per 100,000 and Georgia third with 160 per 100,000. In New England states only eight persons out of each 100,000 were arrested on assault charges.

New England states, it was revealed, generally are the most law-abiding. Southerners generally are the greatest offenders. The murder rate in New England was 0.7 per 100,000, while in south Atlantic states the rate was 13; in east south central, 15.5 and in west south central, 12.5.

New York city led in the number of murders this year to September 1, with 98. There were 64 murders committed in Chicago, 34 in Dallas, Texas; 33 in Atlanta, 32 in Philadelphia, 28 in Cleveland, 26 in Detroit, 24 in New Orleans, 21 in Birmingham, 20 in Houston and 19 in St. Louis.

BUSINESS COOPERATION URGED BY U. S. C. OF C.

Says Industry to Work With Administration, But Reserves Right to Criticize.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States gave new impetus today to the post-election talk of business co-operating with the government, but at the same time asserted that business "has the right to expect co-operation from the government."

Disavowing any interest in partisan politics, the chamber, which has criticized some New Deal policies, said in its periodical, Washington Review:

"The government of the United States, as government, is entitled to the support and co-operation of its citizenship. That rule is universal.

"The government also is entitled to the expression of honest criticism, based upon facts and experience, regarding any steps that it may propose.

Expects Co-operation.

"Business, too, has the right to expect co-operation from the government."

The chamber added its objective was "to arrive, as nearly as possible, at a consensus of business opinion and to bring its conclusions to the attention of those administering the affairs of government and to the public."

The general expression of chamber policy was the latest of a number of statements stressing co-operation which have been issued in business and administration quarters since the election. One such, urging industry to give a "fair share" of jobs to older workers and to unskilled labor, was made by President Roosevelt himself.

Publication of the Washington Review followed approval by the Chamber of Commerce directors of a committee report suggesting that businessmen carefully survey the possibilities of regulating industry through state compacts.

The report said such regulation as that over electric utilities, milk production, use of natural resources and the like might be accomplished by agreements among states with similar interests.

The agreements would be subject to approval by congress, the report said, thus assuring that states would deal with regulatory matters in a way "consistent with national interest."

Urges State Compacts.

"Through the use of compacts among states," it added, "there would be respect for the constitutional reservation to the states of all powers not expressly granted to the federal government, with the practical effect the courts in reviewing compacts could take a more liberal view than in construing legislation purporting to be based upon limited federal powers."

Discussing specific economic questions, the Washington Review said bills to provide a six-hour day for railroad workers, to limit train lengths, and provide full crews, would "seriously interfere with responsibilities of railroad management" and add $900,000,000 to the annual cost of railroad operations.

On other issues, it cited a statement by the International Chamber of Commerce on "the beneficial aspects" of the tri-power monetary agreement, and said that corporations "are encountering many difficulties in comprehending" possible effects of the new federal tax on undistributed profits.

Seven Prominent Emory Alumni Approved for Honorary Degrees

Colorful Convocation Ceremonies Will Be Held on Campus on December 12 During Celebration of University Centennial.

Names of seven Emory alumni who have been approved by the Emory University board of trustees as candidates for honorary degrees at the centennial celebration were announced Saturday by President Harvey W. Cox.

The group was recommended jointly by President Cox and the university council of deans. The recommendations were submitted to the board and selection of the degree candidates followed a vote by the board.

Those selected and the degrees they will receive are:

Dr. Thomas Franklin Abercrombie, director of public health for the state of Georgia, doctor of science.

Hal Fitzgerald Hentz, Atlanta architect, doctor of laws.

Dr. Thomas Milton Rivers of New York city, official of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, doctor of science.

William Holcombe Thomas, justice of the supreme court of Alabama, doctor of laws.

Dr. Kemp Malone, of Baltimore, noted philologist, professor of English at the Johns Hopkins University, doctor of letters.

Dr. Isaac Cheyney Jenkins, Methodist minister of Lakeland, Fla., doctor of divinity.

Edwin Dart Lambright, editor of the Tampa (Fla.) Tribune, doctor of letters.

Ceremonies Planned.

The degrees will be conferred on December 12 at academic ceremonies on the campus. Hundreds of delegates from colleges and universities will participate in the colorful academic procession that will be part of the convocation. Charles Howard Candler, president of the board of trustees, will preside.

All fields for which Emory trains students are not represented in the list of candidates for honorary degrees because many outstanding alumni already have been given honorary degrees and because of a policy that prevents giving degrees to members of the faculty or others officially connected with the university, Dr. Cox stated.

Graduated in 1903.

Dr. Abercrombie, who will receive the Sc.D., was graduated from the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons (later absorbed as a part of Emory University), in 1903. He is now serving his fourth consecutive six-year term as head of the state department of health. Dr. Abercrombie was graduated from Douglasville College in 1898. He then went to the medical college for his M. D. He is a member of the executive committee of the state council of social agents, the Georgia Training School for Boys and the Georgia Training School for Mental Defectives. He is retiring president of the Conference of State and Provincial Health Authorities of North America and is author of many articles on public health.

Mr. Hentz received a B.Ph. degree from Emory College in 1904. Later he studied at Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris. He was awarded the B. Arch. degree from Columbia University in 1912. Since 1909 he has been an architect in Atlanta. He has supervised construction of Shrine hospitals for crippled children in Chicago, Shreveport, and Greenville, S. C. In Atlanta he has supervised the building of the Emory University hospital and nurses' home, and many store buildings. He is a member of the board of consulting architects for the United States Treasury Department, director of the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children, a former president of the Atlanta Council of Boy Scouts and Phi Beta Kappa.

I. C. C. MAY EXTEND FREIGHT RATE PROBE

Body Prepared To Investigate Reasonableness of 'Class Prices.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission notified shippers and carriers today to advise it on or before December 12 whether a proposed investigation of class freight rates in the southern territory should be limited strictly to class rates or be broadened to include interterritorial rates to and from the southern territory.

The commission announced in its notice to the shippers and carriers it was prepared to enter an order instituting an investigation of the reasonableness of class rates within southern territory.

Petitions for the investigation have been filed by a joint conference of southern state commissioners and shippers, state regulatory commissions in various southern states, the Southern Traffic League, North Carolina Traffic League, and other commercial organizations and shippers charging that the present class rates within the southern territory are unjust and unreasonable.

The commission said it believed that when such an investigation was begun requests probably would be made to broaden the scope of the inquiry to include various related interterritorial rates and decided to give notice to shippers and carriers today to make their demands known before the investigation begins, instead of afterward.

BURNS FATAL TO TWO.

PORT-ARTHUR, Texas, Nov. 21. (AP)—Two men died today from burns received in an oil fire on the tugboat Chief yesterday, bringing the total dead to four. Five others were injured. Those who died today were Chief Engineer Percy Snyder, 50, of Beaumont, and T. D. Lambert, 34, welding engineer, of Port Arthur.

Questions on Social Security Act Answered by Constitution Bureau

Social Security application blanks will soon be issued to 26,000,000 employes and account cards will go to each worker enrolled, as provided by the Social Security Act.

After the blanks are properly filled out, they must be returned to the government and the cards will then be issued enrolling the applicant as a beneficiary in the nation-wide old-age insurance program.

Is there something about the whole thing not exactly clear to you? If so, The Constitution, through its Washington Information Bureau, stands ready to help you.

Merely write out your question, phone, mail or bring it to the Social Security Question and Answer Editor of The Constitution. It will be sent by first air mail to Washington and, when the answer is received the same way, it will be published in The Constitution, using only your initials as identification.

Others' Problems.

Perhaps some of the problems presented below, from other Constitution readers, will clarify your own situation.

Q. Can the 1 per cent paid by the employer this year to the Unemployment Insurance Fund be counted an expense to business and be used as such when making out our federal and state income taxes for 1936? C. A. M.

A. The tax paid for unemployment insurance can be deducted by the employer in filing his federal income tax return. For information about state income tax, consult the State Tax Commission, Atlanta.

Q. Are employes of national banks under the Social Security Act? C. A.

A. National banks are "instrumentalities of the federal government" and as such they do not come under the act.

Bank Clerks Barred.

Q. I am a bank clerk, and since employes of a national bank, automatically members of the Federal Reserve system, cannot participate in the Social Security Act, and the organization for which I work has no old-age or pension benefits set-up, is there any legislation whereby as employes of industry, we will be allowed to participate?—A. H. D.

A. The Bureau of Internal Revenue has ruled that national banks are "instrumentalities of the federal government" and as such their employes do not come under the old-age retirement and unemployment compensation provisions of the Social Security Act. There is no section of the act under which they can participate.

To Compute Pensions.

Q. On just what basis will the amount of monthly payments by the retirement fund be determined?—E. G.

A. The monthly old-age retirement benefit to employes in an included employment who are eligible under the provisions of the Social Security Act are computed as follows: 1-2 per cent of the first $3,000 of earnings between December 31, 1936, and the date of the employe's sixty-fifth birthday, plus 1-12 of the next $42,000, plus 1-24 of earnings over $45,000.

Q. Would a man with several dependents be granted more monthly compensation than a man with none? G. M.

A. There is no provision of the Social Security Act which provides larger old-age retirement benefits for persons with dependents.

Q. Is it true that a concern employing less than eight does not come under the Social Security Act? I have reference to a local concern with 5 or 6 regular employes—A. C. T.

A. Employers of one or more employes in included employments come under the retirement provisions of the Social Security Act. Employers of eight or more employes come under the unemployment compensation tax provisions of the act, unless the state unemployment compensation law specifies a smaller number. Georgia has no state unemployment compensation law approved at the present time.

Unemployment Returns.

Q. Georgia has no state unemployment law. Do employers make returns on employes' wages in this state for unemployment benefits and if so, are employes in this state entitled to this benefit? When and how do they proceed to make a claim.—M. L.

A. Employers pay a federal excise tax for unemployment compensation equal to 1 per cent of wages paid in 1936; 2 per cent in 1937; and 3 per cent in 1938 and each year thereafter. Employes in a state do not receive unemployment compensation for two years after the date on which the state first levies taxes for unemployment compensation.

Which Name?

Q. Because my last name is very long, and few people can pronounce it, I have been using a different name in business. In filling out the Social Security blank, should I use this name, although I have not had my name legally changed?—G. A.

A. Neither the Social Security Board nor the Bureau of Internal Revenue has issued an official ruling about the name under which an employe must register if he has been using other than his real name in business. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., can furnish an official ruling on request.

FULTON TO ASK LAWS FOR HEALTH PROGRAM

County Board Seeks Compulsory Anti-Diphtheria Inoculation for Children.

Enactment of laws regulating diphtheria immunization for school children, garbage disposal, and food handlers' examinations in Fulton county will be asked of the next legislature by the Fulton Board of Health, Dr. Charles R. Adams, chairman of both health and commission boards, announced yesterday.

Bills now being drawn by County Attorney Ralph Pharr are to be presented to the Fulton legislative delegation soon, it was said, following a meeting of the health board last week.

Dr. Adams asserted the requested laws are a part of a general health program for the county which will be designed to eliminate cause and spread of disease.

Compulsory Inoculation.

The legislature will be asked to pass a law requiring all children entering school in Fulton county to be immunized from diphtheria before intial registration, it was said.

County doctors will administer the innoculation free of charge to those unable to pay for immunization, Dr. Adams declared.

The county seeks laws also to authorize the existing health department to dispose of garbage in thickly populated areas outside the city of Atlanta and to levy a reasonable tax in districts for this purpose.

Dr. Adams announced that a bill requiring all persons in the county who handle food for public consumption to be examined physically by a reputable physician will be presented at the next session. The county would pay half the cost of the examination and issue permits twice yearly, Dr. Adams said.

Conferences Planned.

Conferences of the Fulton delegation and the health board are to be held before the end of the year and it is expected other measures to increase health safety will be proposed.

A series of lectures by sanitary engineers, doctors and health experts will be heard beginning this week by the sanitary inspectors of the county. Dr. Adams said the present inspectors will be taught to carry out the provisions of the requested legislation and no new employes will be added to the pay roll.

13 MEXICANS KILLED IN FIGHT OVER LANDS

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Thirteen persons were killed and many wounded today in a clash between farmers of the neighboring towns of Santo Tomas and Santa Cruz Alpayecac, according to dispatches received here from Puebla.

The fight developed over a long-standing dispute over the boundaries of communal lands.

ROAD TAX DIVERSIONS ATTACKED BY PRINTUP

Petroleum Secretary Says Georgians 'Short-Changed' 32 Cents on Dollar.

Neil W. Printup, secretary of the Georgia Petroleum Industries committee, yesterday charged that Georgia taxpayers were "short-changed" 32.8 cents on every dollar paid in taxes for roads last year and that the result was curtailment of road work, losses in employment, wages and trade.

"Out of $17,020,000 collected from state gasoline sales taxes and registration fees from Georgia motorists last year, ostensibly to pay for roads, $5,582,148 was spent for other purposes," he explained. "Thus motorist taxpayers were 'short-changed' because they received only 67.2 cents worth of roads for every road tax dollar. In 1934 a total of $2,388,153 of their road tax money went to other purposes."

United States Bureau of Public Roads reports show every dollar spent on highways generates $3.15 worth of trade and wages in 24 different industries, he declared, and each $100,000 spent on roads provides a full year's employment for 103 workers. Continuing, he showed that 5,730 additional jobs could have been created in this state had all motor tax revenue been spent upon roads.

"We estimate also that there would have been gains in such industries as quarrying and brick, $968,000; cement, $1,073,600; iron and steel, $915,200; petroleum, $475,200; fuels and power, $440,000, and retail and wholesale trade, $1,460,800," Printup declared. "As regards road construction, it is estimated more than 930 miles of farm-to-market roads could have been built with that money, a real benefit to agriculture since a large proportion of farms in this state are still served by unimproved roads."

Bureau of Tuberculosis Control Purchases Mobile X-Ray Machine

The Division of Tuberculosis Control of the Georgia State Department of Public Health has recently purchased a new X-ray machine and truck for its transportation, which enables this division to offer to all physicians in Georgia where X-ray service is not available a consultation or diagnostic service of even greater value than before, according to Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the department.

The department has operated a tuberculosis field unit since October, 1930, to assist physicians in the discovery of tuberculosis, early and advanced stages, so all cases may have medical treatment and nursing supervision, Dr. Abercrombie stated.

"This diagnostic unit operates only as a consultation service for the physicians of the state and through its more than five years of service has been closely integrated with the physicians who have given their wholehearted assistance and co-operation in this work," the health director explained.

Deaths Decrease.

A slight decrease in the number of deaths from tuberculosis is reported for Georgia from January to August inclusive of 1936, as compared with the same period for 1935, the health director revealed.

A total of 1,156 deaths from tuberculosis was reported for this period for 1936 as compared with 1,208 for the same period of 1935, or a decrease of 59.9 per 100,000 population.

A case load of 19,856 was reported as carried up to June 30, 1936, by the WPA district tuberculosis nurses, Dr. Abercrombie stated. "These nurses made 3,716 tuberculin tests and secured 768 specimens for laboratory examination. Contact was broken in 1,146 cases; 101 applications were made to the state tuberculosis sanitarium and relief was obtained for 231 cases of tuberculosis during the first six months of 1936."

New Cases Revealed.

Through the Division of Tuberculosis Control, Dr. Abercrombie revealed an average of nearly 100 new cases are being brought to notice each month. At least 90 per cent of these are cases which will require treatment, medical supervision and social service to some degree for long indefinite periods.

"The fact that such a large proportion of advanced cases were found compared with the number of minimal or incipient cases shows definitely that the majority of people do not seek examination early enough and have ignored the usual symptoms that indicate there is tuberculosis disease and often wait until they are very ill before having the proper study of their cases made. It shows very clearly the necessity for people to consult their physicians when persistent symptoms of any kind are present."

The health director described the danger signals of invading tuberculosis as "a development of an unusual fatigue, undue nervous manifestations, loss of weight, and fever. These are the ordinary symptoms of early tuberculosis. When there is a cough and expectoration or blood spitting the disease is more advanced, but all of such cases should have a most thorough examination which should include laboratory tests and X-ray study."

GEORGIA SMASHES RAM'S BOWL HOPES WITH 7-7 TIE

Georgia Tech Wallops Florida Eleven, 38 to 14; Irish Defeat Northwestern; Marquette Loses

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 21.—It is dark as I write . . . only the press rows are lighted in the great empty baseball stadium where today Georgia wrought one of the great upsets of the year by tying Fordham, 7 and 7.

It was Fordham that was lucky to tie, not Georgia.

And the meekest people of all were the Fordham people. They came today wearing big buttons. The buttons read, "From Rose Hill to Rose Bowl."

The college of Fordham is located at Rose Hill in New York. But tonight the boys and girls were putting away their buttons. The perfume of the rose no longer wafts its way about Rose Hill. There is only the odor of the ram, the Fordham mascot, and we all know the ram has a perfume much like that of the goat.

The fightingest team in Georgia's great history stunned the east today. And they are saying in New York tonight that one of the great coaches in the game today is this young fellow Harry Mehre of Georgia who showed them how to get the most out of his men. And how to put a well-coached, smart and fighting team on the field to outplay a team which was, until this afternoon, rated one of the great teams of the nation.

Because this victory today stunned the east.

And it stunned Fordham which went back to Rose Hill and forgot all about the Rose Bowl.

PETE TINSLEY.

The greatest guard New York or the east has seen is Pete Tinsley, the rugged Georgia guard, whose tackles today threw back the Fordham attack for a loss of 44 yards.

He was in almost every play. He was smashing them back. He made the seven blocks of granite appear as no tougher than a paper wall. Never before has Georgia had a guard who played as he played today. Harry Mehre made him into a guard but the boy didn't like it. He kept wanting to play backfield. They tried him there this year and then had to put him back at guard. And he likes it. He has found more glory there than any other guard in years. And now he knows the coaches were right in the beginning.

He has another year. And today earned him a place on several All-American choices.

THE COACHES SAID.

Jimmy Crowley, the Fordham coach and a former assistant at Georgia a decade ago, said tonight:

"We were lucky not to lose. I am disappointed but I cannot say too much for the smartness and the fighting spirit of this Georgia team. It played great football. I guess we'd been reading the papers too much about how good we were. I tried to tell the boys but they didn't believe me. I thought Tinsley was one of the finest linemen I've ever seen. This was a fine Georgia team."

Said Harry Mehre: "I am awfully happy and awfully proud of the Georgia team. They fought all the way. They kept their heads up and they gave all they had. That was a fine Fordham team with a lot of power and good football and I guess we were lucky to escape with a tie."

Said Lou Little, coach of Columbia's team, who sat in the press box today:

"It was a fighting Georgia team and it played good football. I enjoyed seeing the game. They fought all the way."

All New York is praising the boys from Athens and their coaching staff. The team lived up to all the traditions of southern football.

You could hear the charge of the troops at Gettysburg today in this game. We are a peculiar people. We keep remembering the Civil War and when they put us up against the damnyankees we sort of get our dander up.

It was a great game.

WORLD SERIES SMELL.

Football in a baseball lot always seems a bit incongruous. For instance, a half hour before the Georgia team started in with those Fordhams, here we are perched on the second tier of seats in the box section with a long board in front for a table.

The press box is just up and across from left field and up forward to the right is the mound where Carl Hubbell works now and then—and how! And over there is first base where Memphis Bill Terry plays. The infield, usually kept like a drawing room, is scarred with cleats and the grass is worn thin like the scalp of that fellow who always is in the chair next to you at the barber shop taking a treatment.

The upper tier protrudes out over the sideline and there is no shelter over it. All this did not look so good as the gray clouds gathered and began to float around up above, threatening to leak rain at any moment.

The stands, which were packed in the early games of the World Series when the Yankees won, hold some 50,000 and a crowd of 30,000 sort of rattles around in them.

All the southerners are here, whether from Alabama, Tennessee or Carolina. The fact a southern team is here has them all out with bits of Georgia's colors, red and black.

GOSH, THEY LOOK BIG!

Georgia was out early taking a warm-up and getting used to the "feel" of the stadium, which has some funny air currents in for football.

All of a sudden, down some steps back of center field, the Fordhams came charging down, running very fast and very fiercely and looking as rugged as they were said to be.

I talked with Harry Mehre and the Georgia coaches just before the long climb up to the press box, and they looked pretty grim, as did the team. Georgia had been given no chance at all in the local press. The betting was 5 to 2 against.

TINSLEY LOOKS SURE.

At lunch today at Grantland Rice's apartment, he reported that Gaynell Tinsley seemed to be rated by all coaches who had seen L. S. U. play as one of the best ends in the game.

Rice will choose the All-American team, the one which is recognized as being the most official of all

Here's How Georgia Covered Fordham Punts---Mautte, Ram Back---Surrounded by Bulldog 'Team'

Frank Mautte, flashy Fordham back, didn't have a chance to make any long runbacks of punts yesterday at the Polo Grounds. And the reason was that the Georgia Bulldogs covered much too well. Note the great action picture above. Practically an entire Georgia team has Mautte hemmed in. Just after the picture was snapped five Bulldogs shown in the above picure hit Mautte as one. He got up. But later he left the game with an injured hip. Georgia made a great showing to hold the unbeaten Rams to a tie.

DUQUESNE BEATS MARQUETTE, 13-0

Golden Avalanche Removed From Nation's Unbeaten List.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The destroying Dukes of little Duquesne University crushed unbeaten Marquette into submission, 13 to 0, in a thrill-filled gridiron spectacle staged before 27,000 fans today, the second time this year the Nightriders have shattered the Rose Bowl aspirations of a major opponent.

Hard-running backs behind a rugged line that rushed Marquette's vaunted passing attack into oblivion wrote a sequel to Duquesne's earlier triumph over the Pittsburgh Panthers.

Big Boyd Brumbaugh tossed a 32-yard pass to End Ernest Hefferle late in the first period today and plunged two yards across the goal line in the final chapter to account for the two touchdowns. He place-kicked the extra point after the second tally to have a part in all the scoring.

Duquesne's stalwart like not only smothered every threat of the invading avalanche, but opened holes for their own backs to pile up a net gain of 297 yards compared to 98 for Marquette. First downs were 14 for the Dukes and 11 for Marquette.

Buzz Buivid, great passing star of the Avalanche, attempted 26 throws, but connected for only 10 and a yardage of 112 yards including 34 by interference.

Duquesne paraded 83 yards to its first score with Brumbaugh and Jim Cassillo reeling off long gains to prepare for the 32-yard scoring pass, Brumbaugh to Hefferle.

The Dukes' second touchdown came

Jackets Show Form To Wallop Gators

Shackles Dropped as Tech Almost Duplicates Last Year's Score With Great Attack.

By Jack Troy.

No longer can they be called the jinxed Jackets of Georgia Tech.

The golden-shirted hordes tossed off the shackles yesterday after spotting the fighting 'Gators from the University of Florida an early touchdown, and drove by land and air to a smashing 38-to-14 victory at Grant field.

In many respects, it was the same sort of drubbing the Jackets gave Florida last year. The only difference was that Tech scored one less point and Florida, completing a last-minute touchdown pass, score one more touchdown. The score last year was 39 to 7.

Florida's passing attack, while netting a touchdown, was used by Tech to very good advantage. Tech intercepted five 'Gator aerials.

A FLYING DUTCHMAN.

And the one that counted the most was the one Dutch Konemann intercepted in the first period and turned into a touchdown. Mayberry threw one out in the flat and Dutch Konemann caught it on the run.

He must have covered the 61 yards to the 'Gator goal line in record time. He really needed no blocking, although Ed Jones came up and blocked anyway.

It was noticed in the press box that Lawrence Hays was standing a bit to close to the line when he tried that first punt. One of the writers called the turn on the play.

Charlie Root must have noticed it, too. For the Florida tackle leaped in and blocked the kick with his chest. Meanwhile, Floyd Christian hawked the ball on the run and scored on a 10-yard dash.

This seemed to fire up the Tech

Tulane Routs Sewanee, 53-6

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Filling the air with laterals and forwards, Tulane scalped Sewanee's helpless Tigers, 53 to 6, today before a crowd of 10,000.

Hek Clark's little purple and white team fought gallantly but was utterly unable to cope with the Wave's sharpshooters and the big Green line.

It was apparent after the first five minutes that Tulane could win about as it pleased and "Red" Dawson took advantage of the situation to save his regulars for the next week's all-important clash with Louisiana State.

Tulane started with a rush, pushing over two touchdowns in the opening period and two more in the second. Sewanee braced in the third period after scoring their lone tally just before the half ended, and held the Dawsonmen scoreless. Tulane opened up again in the final quarter for four more markers.

RAMBLERS TRIP WILDCATS, 26 TO 6

56,000 See Irish Shatter Northwestern's Title Hopes.

By Charles Dunkley.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Fighting Irish of Notre Dame brought 'em back alive today.

They tamed, beat and caged the mighty Wildcats of Northwestern by the astonishing score of 26 to 6, ending a college football prowl that had not been halted through rain and sunshine for seven straight games, a raid that found them even feasting on the national championship dream of mighty Minnesota.

Notre Dame astonished a capacity crowd of 56,000 thrilled spectators, this blustery November afternoon by whipping the champions of the western conference in one of the biggest upsets of the season. The pop-eyed spectators left the Notre Dame stadium wondering which was now the ranking No. 1 football team of the nation. They knew it was no longer Northwestern.

SEIZE OPENINGS.

Notre Dame took advantage of every opportunity to outmaneuver the fagged out, hitherto unbeaten Wildcats to pile up their victory. The size of the score just about indicates the difference between the two teams.

Four touchdowns were scored by Notre Dame, one in each period, before the badly whipped Wildcats found themselves long enough to stage a 77-yard march in the fourth to register their only score.

The hero of Notre Dame's triumph was a 21-year-old youngster, Bob Wilke, of Hamilton, Ohio, playing left halfback. In the first period,

Bowl Hopes of Rams Erased by Bulldogs

Magnificent Line Play of Pete Tinsley Is Feature of New York Contest.

By Ralph McGill.

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—New York's drab November skies echoed tonight to the Rebel yell as a small group of Georgians cheered a Georgia team which this afternoon fought a highly favored Fordham team to a 7-and-7 tie and wiped that team from the slate of Rose Bowl prospects.

This was the same team that went forth at Tulane last week, grimly and with a fierce and mighty loyalty to Harry Mehre and to themselves determined not to lose no matter what the odds.

They were supposed to lose this game. But they stood in there to their guns and they fought with a gallantry which stirred the heart and turned a partisan New York crowd into rabid supporters of Georgia.

It was a game Georgia should have won, one touchdown pass being dropped and Fordham's one score coming after Georgia's one defensive lapse that put the ball at the Georgia 1-yard line.

35,000 SEE GAME.

Thirty-five thousand people looked on as this four-times defeated team, making the sort of fight Georgia always has made in its appearances here, turned back five Fordham threats and played winning football despite the fact the score ended with a tie.

It was, I think, Harry Mehre who turned the tide with his substituting. He had to call his cripples from the bench and toss them in there for brief intervals today because this was a powerful Fordham team.

Nothing they have said about that

Gophers Beat Wisconsin, 24 to 0

RANDALL FIELD, MADISON, Wis., Nov. 21.—(UP)—Minnesota's Golden Gophers exploded a three-touchdown barrage against Wisconsin in the first half today and whipped the courageous Badgers, 24 to 0, before 32,000.

Closing their Big Ten season in second place for the first time since 1933, the Gophers rolled up two touchdowns and a field goal in the first period and another touchdown in the second. They contented themselves with this decisive margin while the Badgers hurled all their might at the Golden wall without success.

All three Gopher touchdowns boomed from long range. Andy Uram, Minnesota's all-conference left halfback, rifled a long pass to Charley Wilkinson for the first one. Fullback Larry Buhler raced 64 yards for the second and Uram slashed left guard for the final score.

Miss. State Wallops Ole Miss, 26-6; L. S. U. Overwhelms Foe, 93-0

MAROONS BREAK TEN-YEAR 'JINX' TO DOWN RIVALS

Sasse's Team Scores Three Times in Fourth Quarter.

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Mississippi's largest football crowd, 20,000 looked on as Mississippi State broke a 10-year jinx here today with a crushing 26-to-6 victory over its fiercest gridiron rival, the University of Mississippi.

Taking advantage of Rebel fumbles in the final period, and utilizing its vaunted passing attack to good advantage, State turned an otherwise nip-and-tuck battle into a rout in the final minutes of play, scoring three touchdowns to add to its early lead.

The Maroon's first touchdown, scored in the first five minutes of play, was sufficient for a victory, but the Sassemen piled it on in the final period by capitalizing on the breaks, Ole Miss fumbles and with a fine passing attack.

ARMSTRONG STARS.

Charles "Pee Wee" Armstrong, State's ace passer, who has been nursing torn shoulder ligaments since the L. S. U. game got in the game for one brief minute, the last in the final period, and covered himself with glory with a 55-yard pass to Cross to give State its fourth touchdown.

State wasted little time in crossing the Rebel goal. Pickle punted out of bounds to the Ole Miss 4, and Peters kicked back weakly to the 34. Hight drew back his strong right arm and passed 18 yards to Gelatka to put the oval on Ole Miss' 10. Hight then blasted through tackle to the 3, and Steadman plunged over for the score in two tries. Pickle kicked the extra point.

OLE MISS SCORES.

Ole Miss drew blood soon after the second half opened. Standing on the State 37, Baumstein passed 20 yards to Bernard, who dodged two tacklers and raced over the goal line. And that was all for Ole Miss for the day.

BUCKEYES WIN FROM MICHIGAN

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 21.—(UP) Flashing a bewildering, variety attack that had missed fire in crucial contests this season, Ohio State today assured itself of a tie for second place in the Western conference race when it defeated the University of Michigan's Wolverines, 21 to 0, before 56,202 spectators.

The victory marked the third in a row for Ohio State over Michigan. It was only the second time in the lengthy series that started in 1888 that Buck teams had been able to take three consecutive contests from the Wolverines.

Strong on courage and fighting with the savagery of their jungle namesakes, Michigan carried the battle to Ohio in the first period, and more than held its own in the second quarter until its secondary defense collapsed to permit the Bucks' first touchdown. However, in the final half the Wolverines were easy targets for every offensive gesture Ohio made.

Beavers Triumph Over Webfeet, 18-0

CORVALLIS, Ore., Nov. 21.—(AP) Oregon State College, led by a fleet halfback, Joe Gray, defeated University of Oregon, 18 to 0, today for its first victory in the annual classic in four years. A home-coming crowd of 18,000 saw the game.

Gray, man of all work, never scored, but two of his passes, one in the first quarter and another in the second, went for touchdowns and he put the ball almost on the goal line in the fourth period, after which Fullback Kolberg carried it over.

Oregon almost scored in the first period but the officials ruled Nicholson's knee touched the ground in skirting left end and State took the ball on downs on its one-yard line.

LITTLE JOE RILEY.

UNIVERSITY, Ala.—It's no wonder they think little Joe Riley is a pretty good back at Alabama. Carrying the ball 96 times, he has gained 610 yards so far this season for an average of 6.4 per trip. In addition he has completed eight out of 26 passes and leads the team in punting with an average of 39.4 yards per boot.

'Bama Governor Lauds Bulldogs

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 21.—(AP)—To the Georgia Bulldogs in New York went this wire today from Governor Bibb Graves when the news of the 7-7 tie game with Fordham was received:

"Hooray for Georgia and Dixie."

Then, to his office force he added, "and that ought to end any doubt about Alabama going to Rose Bowl."

Grantland Rice Lauds Play of Mehre's Team

Praises Work of Pete Tinsley in Helping Hold Crowley's Fordham Team.

By Grantland Rice.

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—A flaming, smashing Georgia team, fighting the old-time wars over again, planted a large, heavy spike in Fordham's Rose Bowl gun today. Beaten four times in the south, crushed by Louisiana State and Tennessee, Georgia today held Fordham to a 7-7 tie before 35,000 startled spectators. In addition to this terrific upset, Georgia dropped a touchdown pass in the first period with no defender even close that would have left the southerners well in front.

Georgia outplayed Fordham through a big part of the battle, with a desperate defense led by Pete Tinsley, Georgia's brilliant guard, the southerners smothered Fordham's running game and only one desperate Fordham pass from Palau to Mautte, saved a Fordham defeat. In the first period, Georgia worked her way deep into Fordham territory. At this point, Fordham looked slow and sluggish with Georgia at her peak. A forward, a lateral and a fumble carried the ball to Fordham's 18-yard line and from this spot big Green, the 210-pound back from the red clay hills, whipped a perfect pass to Maffett over the goal line. There was no Fordham defender even close but in his overeagerness, the ball popped into Maffett's arms for a sure touchdown —and then popped out.

MAFFETT SCORES.

Later on, Maffett more than redeemed himself. After the first half had ended, 0 and 0, Coach Jimmy Crowley sent in a new Fordham team. He kept his regulars on the bench. In less than two minutes, Georgia recovered a Fordham fumble on the Ram's 20-yard line. Once again Big Green was called back in and once again the Giant Georgia back whipped a pass to Maffett. This time, well covered, Maffett made a brilliant catch for Georgia's touchdown. At this point, Crowley swung his regulars back into action. They carried the ball in a series of desperate thrusts by Mautte, Dulkie and others to Georgia's 20-yard line. Here in the next two plays Georgia rallied and spilled the next two attempts for a 10-yard loss.

Here came Fordham's final chance. Third down and 20 yards to go, a pass was obvious. Palau swung well back and pegged the ball to Mautte. The Georgia defensive back let Mautte slip by him for the catch and a moment later Dulkie crashed over for the tying score. The count was now 7 and 7. The Fordham stands were calling for another touchdown. But after a short Fordham march the southerners rallied again, broke up the Fordham attack completely and took charge of the closing minutes.

DEFENSE FEATURE.

Georgia's desperate defense in the last Ram march was one of the big features of the afternoon. They rushed the passers, harried them on every attempt—and finally, as Fordham made a final attempt to win the game, Maffett harried Palau so badly on an attempted forward that Palau fumbled and Candler dived on the ball. As there were less than two minutes left, this closed out Fordham's final chance for victory.

Georgia later had to kick and the Ram had another 50-to-1 shot chance, but against Georgia's inspired defense stopped every play.

Their surprising defense was led by Pete Tinsley, who stood out as the star of the afternoon. This fast, aggressive Georgia guard knifed his way through the Ram line on play after play. He took the seven walls of granite apart. On four different plays Tinsley threw Ram runners for losses varying from 5 to 9 yards. He was the most inspiring player on the field. Tinsley was not only fast and aggressive, but he had an uncanny knack of sizing up the play and meeting it at the right spot.

GEORGIA REBELS.

Fordham started the game as if there was little to do except march to the goal. Georgia came with exactly the opposite idea. It was not until Georgia had scored that the Ram finally came to life—and by that time it was too late. Candler, Gillespie and Maffett were also three Georgia stars, who played up to the final hilt. Their defensive work at times had Fordham's attack bordering on rout with losses of five, ten and twelve yards. Fordham lost a good part of her Rose Bowl prestige in this game.

Old Lou Praises Bulldog Eleven

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Louisiana State University students cheered themselves hoarse in L. S. U. stadium over the 7-7 tie of Georgia and Fordham. They considered that Georgia had lowered Fordham's stock for the Rose Bowl eligibles and raised L. S. U., which defeated Georgia, 47-7.

Reception Planned For Bulldogs.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Plans were under way here tonight to give the Georgia Bulldogs a rousing welcome Monday morning when they return from New York, where they played the great Fordham team to a 7-7 tie Saturday.

It is expected that the Georgia band and most of the student body, as well as many loyal Athenians, will turn out to greet the returning heroes at the station. Players and coaches will be honored at a breakfast at a local hotel Monday morning, shortly after the train arrives.

Southwestern Louisiana Institute Unable To Cope With Bengals.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Louisiana State University buried Southwestern Louisiana Institute's courageous "rest game" football team, 93 to 0, today under an avalanche of touchdowns.

The bayou Tigers, thinking of their old foe, Tulane, whom they meet next week and of the Rose Bowl, scored almost at will over the S. L. I. Bulldogs. The last quarter was cut by six minutes by mutual consent.

Coach Bernie Moore, of L. S. U., used practically every man he had, but the scoring continued with the third stringers scoring three touchdowns.

Louisiana State scored on its first play when Morton raced 15 yards through the line and over the goal. He, Coffee, Milner and Tinsley crossed the goal in the first period.

Crass (sub for Coffee), Rohm (sub for Miller), Reed (sub for Morton), and Mihalich each scored in the second.

Milner, Morton, Reed and Walker (sub for Morton), tallied in the third, and Johnson (sub for Coffee), and Walker (sub for Milner), added two more touchdowns in the fourth.

Tinsley, Rohm, Mihalich and Walker scored on passes.

DECATUR MEETS RUSSELL TEAM

By Roy White.

Decatur, tied for the North Georgia Interscholastic conference lead with Commercial High, will play Russell High, Thanksgiving morning at Decatur in the only prep game of the week for Atlanta fans. But it will have championship bearing, for a Russell win will leave only Commercial in the top position, and a Decatur victory will leave the conference still tied up.

Boys' High, undefeated since the 1933 season and winner of its third successive city championship, leaves Tuesday morning for Miami, Fla., and a Thanksgiving Day game with Miami High. The Miami High game is the last of 10 games for the Purples this season.

Tech High, with a 51-to-0 victory over Richmond Academy Friday night in Augusta, will have a week off, but will hold several light practices in preparation for a December 3 game with Landon High, at Jacksonville, Florida.

Decatur holds the key to the N. G. I. C. championship room and will be favored to beat Russell and force a play-off with Commercial for the title. The two teams played to a scoreless tie early in the season.

Decatur has shown some of the greatest rallies in th history of prep football this year. The DeKalb team lost to Tech High, Athens and Boys' High in succession and was leading in the last five minutes of the Thomaston game, losing, before the first rally was sprung.

The Thanksgiving game with Russell should be one of the best of the season and being played in the morning will in no way interfere with any afternoon activities.

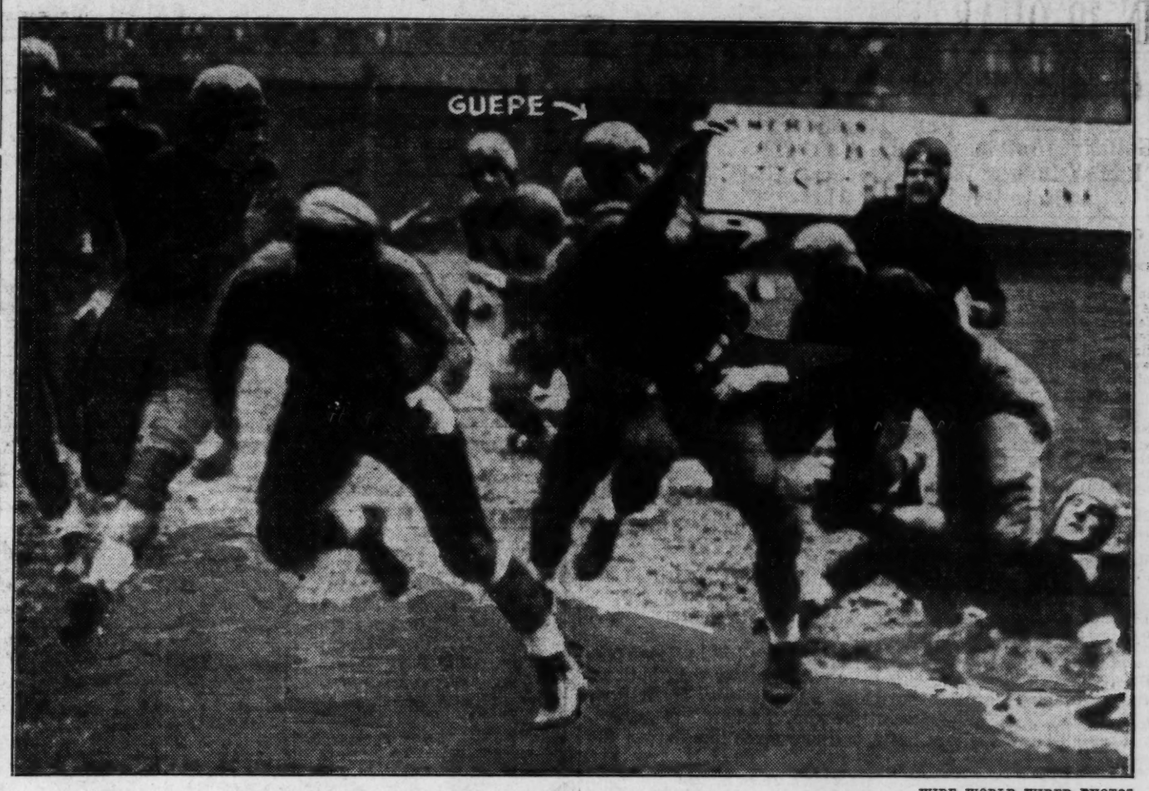

Riverside, Aggies In 14th Meeting.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 21.—When Riverside's Cadets face Red Barron's Aggies at Monroe on Thanksgiving Day it will be the fourteenth meeting in 12 years, and the outcome of the game will determine the relative strength not only of two of Georgia's greatest prep rivals but will also probably determine the outcome of the G. I. A. A. race.

In the series of 13 games played in the past 11 years, Riverside has won 9 to Monroe's 4 games. In 1925 the Cadets, who later won the G. I. A. A. title in a play-off with Lanier High, defeated Monroe 19 to 12. In the following year the Cadets defeated the Aggies 9 to 6 in the regular season and in a post-season play-off retained the G. I. A. A. championship by a 13-to-3 win. In 1927 the Aggies reversed the situation, defeating Riverside 9 to 7 during the season and 29 to 0 in a play-off for the G. I. A. A. crown.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—A third period touchdown by Quarterback Frank Sadowski gave Western Maryland a 6-to-0 victory here today over the Flying Cardinals of Catholic University.

Southwestern Upset By Centre Colonels

DANVILLE, Ky., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Playing the underdog role for the seventh time this year, the Centre Colonels closed their season today with a 20-6 upset victory over the highly rated Southwestern eleven from Memphis, Tenn.

Centre scored in the first period after getting the ball on Southwestern's 45. Two line plays gained 10 yards and a lateral, Dance to German, who forwarded to C. Gains, took the ball to the 1-yard stripe. Van Huss lugged it over and also kicked goal.

The visitors' lone tally came midway in the third quarter. Morton hurled a long pass to the Centre 35 where German intercepted the ball and was tackled. Hammond grabbed the oval from him while he was being downed and raced unmolested for a touchdown, the Colonels thinking the ball was dead.

Early in the fourth German went over from the 1-yard line and McGhee kicked goal. Late in the last period German again scored after a series of passes put the ball on the visitors' 1-yard stripe.

'Voice of Experience' Seems Slightly Stupid

The Voice of Experience, speaking through the medium of the public print on Marietta street, suffered something of a shock yesterday when Charley Preston, able Tech center, started at guard against Florida and played a whale of a game in the first half.

The Voice of Experience, sometimes known as the Galloping Ghost of Marietta Street, the same being applied because of his penchant of always declaring to be on the inside of any and all situations, vigorously declared on Friday that it was all a mistake. Preston could not play guard, he declared. He used such terms as a transformation brought about by the use of a magic wand, speaking of the change of Preston from center to guard.

He further said, in taking this young reporter to task, that they were chuckling all over the Tech flats about that report in the morning newspaper.

Well, it seems to me it was a pretty reliable report. Then, too, he who laughs last laughs best, to use a new expression.

Maybe Coach Alex knows a thing or two and doesn't have to resort to magic in shifting players to take care of an emergency.

What is it that Red Pepper does . . .? JACK TROY.

WILDCATS LOSE TO IRISH, 26 TO 6

Wilke bounced away on a 30-yard dash that gave Notre Dame its first score, and in the second he got away on an even more dazzling run, this one for 34 yards for the second touchdown.

In the third it was Wilke's quick kick which caught Northwestern napping and led to the most disastrous fumble of the afternoon. Wilke's quick punt sailed far over the head of Don Heap, flashy Northwestern halfback. For an instant he stood wondering what to do, then he tried to retrieve the bouncing ball, barely touched it, when Joe O'Neill came tearing along to recover it for Notre Dame on Northwestern's 3.

DANBOM SCORES.

After one smash failed, Larry Danbom, Notre Dame fullback, crashed over for the touchdown, that increased Notre Dame's lead to 19 points. Northwestern's series of misfortunes culminated in the fourth when a long forward pass by McCarthy to Wojichovski was ruled complete on its 20 because of interference. This breath-taking shot was about to fall into his arms when Adelman crashed into him.

After Notre Dame was penalized 15 yards for holding, McCarthy hurled another pass to Skoglund who grabbed it on Northwestern's 14. The Irish blasted the line going to the Wildcats' six and then McCarthy shot a shovel pass to Skoglund who dragged himself over the goal line pulling frenzied Northwestern tacklers along with him.

Illinois Is Winner Over Chicago, 18-7

STAGG FIELD, CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 21.—(UP)—Illinois kicked Chicago out of a tie for sixth place in final Big Ten standings today, defeating the Maroons, 18-7, before a home-coming crowd of 15,000.

The Illini victory was based on its passing attack which accounted for touchdowns in the second and fourth period. The last Illini score came a few minutes before the final gun after the Maroons were pushed back against their goal line on straight football.

Chicago counted on the second play of the fourth quarter when Lew Hamity blocked and recovered Ken Nelson's punt behind the Illinois goal.

AUBURN CRUSHES LOYOLA, 44 TO 0

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A devastating Auburn attack rolled up a 44-to-0 victory over Loyola, of New Orleans, here today in the Plainsmen's only home game of the year.

A home-coming day crowd of 5,000 witnessed the lopsided victory, in which the Auburn reserves displayed power equal to the regulars. The reserves counted three touchdowns in the first half, and two more in the final quarter, the regulars accounting for two during the third period.

Alert play by the Auburn line completely bottled up Loyola's backs. Two scoring threats were turned back by the victors. One followed a short kick, and the other a fumble on Auburn's 13.

Blake scampered 20 yards for the first marker, following a short kick, and a 45-yard dash off tackle by Tipper set the stage for the second. Tipper was dropped on the Loyola 18, but Blake passed to Williams in the end zone a few plays later.

Ralph O'Gwynne, third-string halfback, ran 90 yards for the third score on the first play after he entered the contest. Russell anexed the point, after having missed the first two attempts.

Auburn's regulars scored in eight plays after going on the field to start the second half. Hitchcock featured the drive with a 45-yard run around his right end, and Fenton went over from the 5, and kicked the extra point.

Gilbert, star Plainsman center, intercepted a Loyola pass on his 5 and ran it back to Loyola's 45. Hitchcock shot a long pass to Eaves, who took the ball on the 5 and ran across to score.

Pelham Sitz, sub fullback, ripped through the line for 45 yards as the final period opened, and went over from the 4 a few plays later.

Loyola's weary ranks were unable to check fresh Auburn third-stringers, and O'Gwynne set the stage for another touchdown with a 30-yard slash through the line. Kelly scored from the 6-yard line.

AMERICAN TURF CLUB IS FORMED

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(UP)—The American Turf Alliance, an organization of racetrack owners, was formed today at a meeting of a committee of racing association officers here with Walter H. Donovan, president of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners.

The organization will take the form of an agency to promote the welfare of the turf and will co-operate with other existing organizations, said Edwin J. Brown, representative of the Longacres track in Washington.

On motion of Colonel Matt J. Winn, president of the American Turf Association, seconded by Charles F. Adams, president of Suffolk Downs, Boston, Donovan was selected as chairman of the meeting and was empowered to proceed with drafting the constitution and by-laws of the organization. Others present were George H. Bull, president of the Saratoga Association; Edward Burke, of Havre de Grace, Md.; W. B. Millard, of Ak-sarben, Nebraska; Bud Burmeister, of Arlington Downs, Texas; John Sloan, of the New York State Racing Commission; Clem McCarthy, representing Bay Meadows, Cal.; Tom R. such teams, and he is assembling data now.

Rice remained away from the Yale-Harvard game today to cover the Fordham-Georgia game. At least one member of the seven blocks of granite, making up Fordham's line, if not two of them, may win a place on the All-America, although Rice, of course, will make no choices for 10 days or two weeks, all the data not being in his hands. Certainly, though, Tinsley is in the running for the south as are several others, although Rice makes no comment.

Grantland Rice remains the same great fellow, the man who has done more than any other man in the profession to make the sports reporting profession one of character.

JUST BEFORE THE GAME.

Just before the game the Fordham band appeared and marched before the student body to render a little number called—can you guess—"California, Here I Come."

The boys were inviting themselves. And because they didn't get to go, they are very, very sad.

And both the teams are Notre Dame teams.

Bulldogs Ruin Ram Bowl Hopes---Jackets Overwhelm 'Gators

GEORGIA SCORES IN 3D QUARTER OF GREAT UPSET

Gallant Bulldogs Ruin Rams' Chance To Play in Rose Bowl.

great line is wrong. It has power.

But those Georgia Bulldogs stayed in there, growling and taking hold. And Harry Mehre, using a good defensive man at one spot and an offensive man at another, juggled his fighting Bulldogs so that they almost won and with a tie contributed one of the major upsets of the season.

BLOCKS OF GRANITE.

They call this Fordham line "The Seven Block of Granite," but this afternoon Georgia gained enough through that line to make that attack a definite threat and thereby set up the pass attack more effecively.

Georgia threw two passes for touchdowns. One was dropped by Otis Maffet as the ball twisted out of his hands. The other was caught by Otis Maffett and he meant to get that one if he died trying.

That was in the third period. It meant a leaping, reaching catch, but he did it. I can see it yet, his long body hung up there against the green of the Polo Ground stands. His red jacket was vivid against the dark green of the stands.

HANGS IN AIR.

It seemed for a moment as if he were one of those movies that they stop still. He seemed to hang there in the air, his arms straight up and the yellow ball caught in the fingers.

And then two figures hit him. And he came down. But held the ball.

Lou Young kicked the point. Georgia had almost scored in that first period. This time they did. And Fordham was behind. The Fordham Rams came back.

They unleashed an attack which was desperate and powerful, led by Francis Mautte, Joe Dulkie and Al Gurske.

It moved 70 yards from the Fordham 30 to a touchdown. But all the while the Bulldogs were in there fighting, hanging on and growling. The Fordham advance was dammed up at the Georia 21. Two plays got nowhere. But somehow the Georgia defense, eager to be in at the kill and stop this one as they had the others before, was tricked.

Somehow, Francis Mautte got behind them. And he darted out in the clear to take a pass which Andrew Palau threw. The desperate Georgians pulled Mautte down at their own one-yard line. From there the berserk Dulkie took it over in two lunges at the line.

Andy Palau added the point and the score was tied.

And then the seven blocks of granite, which today were human after all, tried their best to shatter the thin red line before them.

And the big Fordham backs, fast and powerful as freight cars on the run, stormed at the line and the ends. They drove to the Georgia 23.

CAVAN KICKED.

And there the fighting Bulldogs smashed through the blocks of granite. And there the fighting Bulldogs blasted through to toss back the Fordham team and force a kick. It was at the Georgia nine.

Jimmy Cavan, after two plays at the granite block, had got 4 yards, kicked out to his own 45—a very good out. You would have loved this Georgia team today as it stood there by its guns and fought. It was outweighed, it was out-experienced, it was the underdog team. It fought with the keenness of a fighting blade. It fought with all the fighting spirit that flows in their veins, the heritage of a fighting race. And it was magnificent to see.

There was something in their fighting which reminded one of the story of that sergeant of marines at Belleau wood who led his men into a hail of machine gun bullets shouting, "Come on, you blankety-blanks! Do you want to live forever?"

This morning they were calling Jimmy Crowley one of the great coaches of America—and I guess he is. But today Harry Mehre had a team which was smarter and keener on its football than were the Fordham Rams.

Let us go back to that first half. There was the story of the game. There was the half in which the Georgia team, weak in reserves and lacking the weight and experience of their rivals, found out what they could do.

They went out to fight to the end.

And they were led in that first half by Pete Tinsley in the line. He was the greatest lineman on the field today. He made the crowd forget Franco the big man they said was the greatest lineman in the game.

Pete Tinsley was everywhere today. He made the Fordham granite look like paper. He was granite himself. The whole line of the clattering press box was sending out his name—Tinsley—Tinsley—Tinsley—.

That first half was very young when an exchange of kicks gave Georgia the ball and they drove to the Fordham 18. A pass, starting from Fordham's 45, went from Lou Young to Otis Maffett. He laterulled it to Lumpkin, who was there and the ball was wide. It went rolling forward and Asa Candler hawked it to fall on it at the Fordham 18.

Green threw a pass to Otis Maffett. He was in the end zone and he had the ball, but his hands were twisted. The ball dropped. A touchdown was gone. It hurt no one as much as Otis Maffett.

That was a heart-breaking loss.

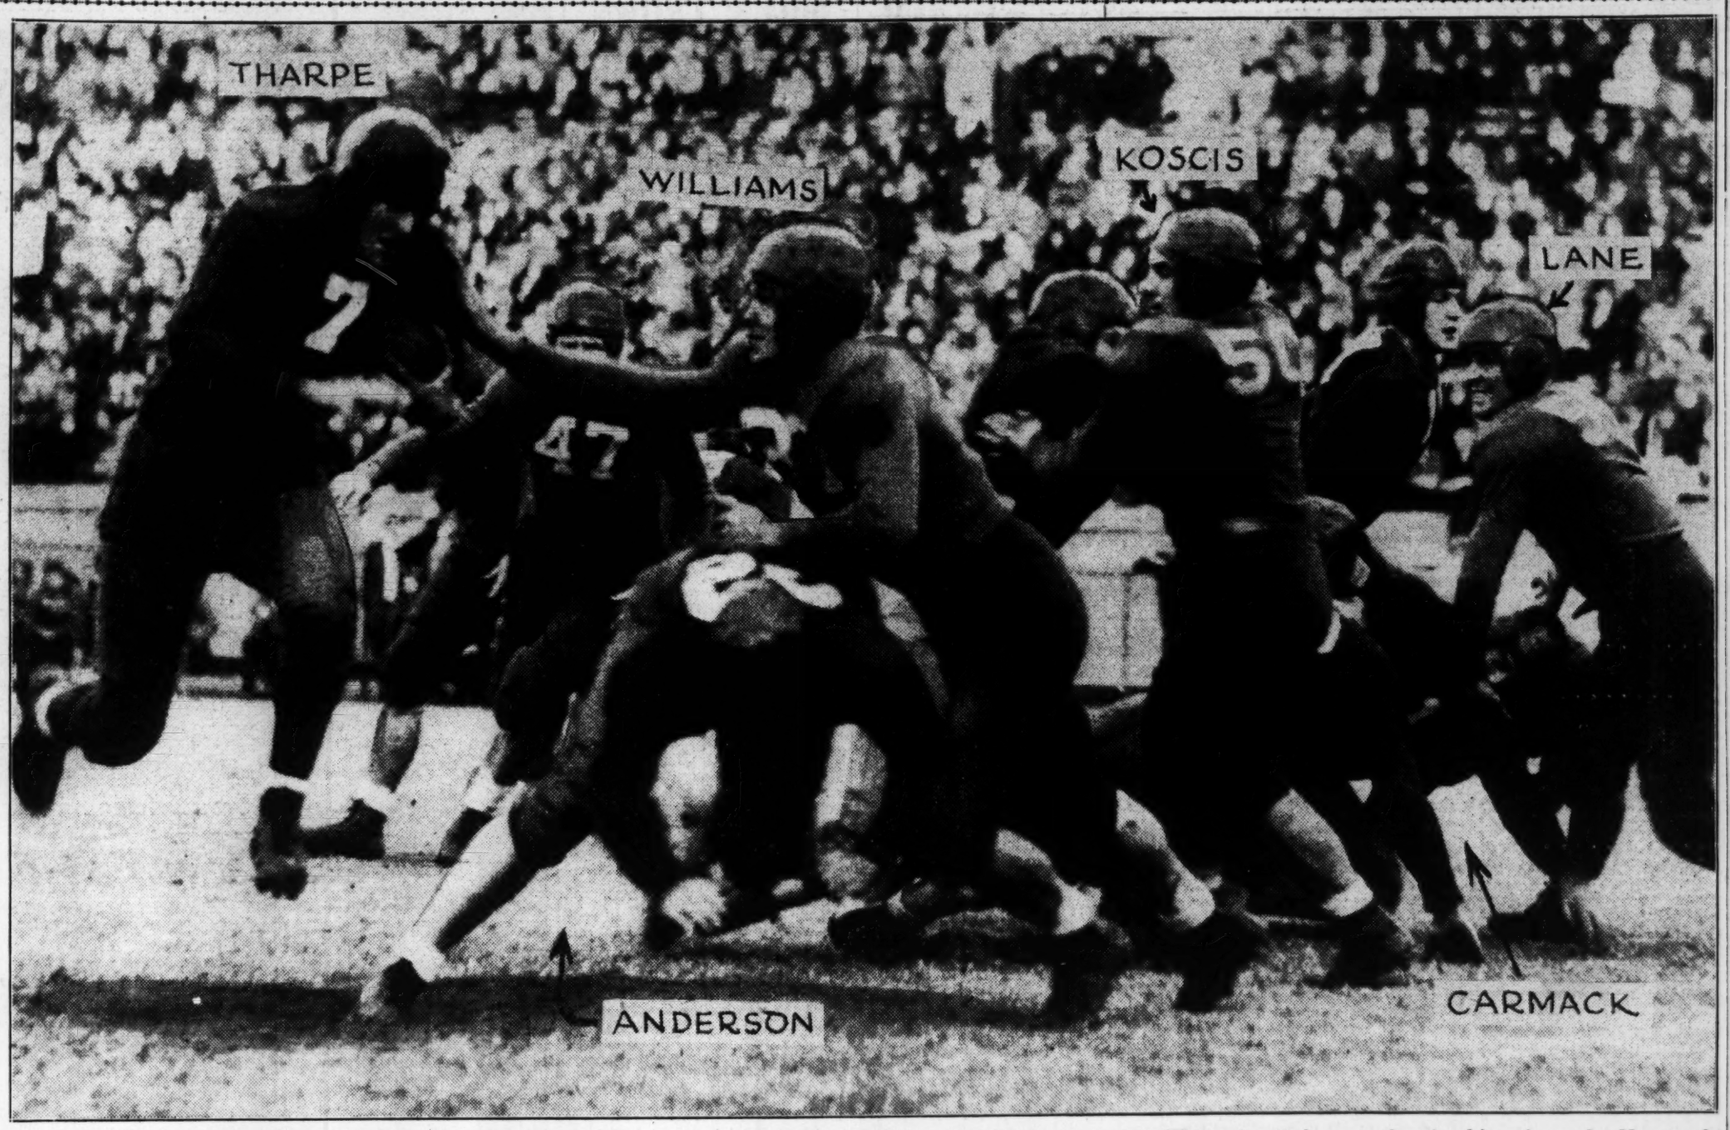

And look what happened. They tried another pass. And big Alex Wojiechowicz intercepted a pass and ran all the way to the Georgia 30.

There was the test of the fighting blade. There the test of Georgia spirit. A weaker team would have given up there. A team that had gone out mere-

He's Cutting Sharp---Is Ernest Tharpe---Behind Fine Blocking---At Grant Field

Ernest Tharpe, brother of the Tech line coach, was one of Tech's leading players in the Florida rout yesterday. In the above picture, Tharpe is running off right tackle for a gain of 10 yards in the third period. Junior Anderson and Eddie Carmack, diminutive guard who played a brilliant game, are supplying some excellent blocking. Notice that Tharpe is off the ground as he drives forward. He scored Tech's first touchdown in the opening period. Staff photo by George Cornett.

players. Dutch Konemann took the kickoff and returned 53 yards to the Florida 41. George Smith picked up 18 yards on an end-around play and Hays and Tharpe carted the ball to the 1-yard line.

THARPE SCORES.

Tharpe bucked it over from there.

This still left Tech trailing, 7 to 6, since Captain Julian Lane had kicked extra point.

But it was not long until Mayberry had passed and Konemann was gone with the wind.

Tech kept on driving away and a bit later there was a dazzling display of razzle dazzle for the third touchdown.

Sims passed from the Florida 40 to Dutch Konemann, who caught the ball at the 11. Konemann ran to the 6, was hemmed in, and tossed a lateral to Harry Appleby on the sidelines. Appleby breezed across the goal.

An intercepted pass was responsible for giving Tech the opportunity to make the next touchdown. Brock threw one which Big Bill Jordan caught on the sidelines.

JORDAN AWAY.

Jordan raced 44 yards down the sidelines, just seeming barely to avoid stepping out of bounds all the way. He was tackled at the 11. Scrappy Edwards swept wide around left end for the touchdown. And Sims kicked extra point. It was Tech's first extra point and made the score 25 to 7 for the first half.

Tech scored early in the third quarter.

The Jackets started from their own 37 after a fair catch by Edwards. Tharpe gained in the line and the razzle-dazzle, a forward from Edwards to Smith and a lateral to Chivington was good for 22 yards.

Tharpe and Edwards rammed the ball to the 11 and Edwards scored on a jaunt around left end. Moore added the extra point. It was a case of going 63 yars on eight plays.

Tech went 71 yards in five plays to score the final touchdown not long after in the same period.

MOORE RACES.

Starting at the Tech 29, Jimmy Moore raced 20 yards around right end. Edwards came right back with 19 yards around the other end. Moore, not to be outdone, picked up 14 at right end.

There was little preliminary. Tharpe plunged to the 8 and Edwards, cutting off left tackle, fell over the goal line.

It was quite a day for young Scrappy Edwards.

Florida, having fired the opening gain of 8 yards and a fourth down, first down at the Tech 18. Mayberry slammed a rifle-shot pass down the middle and Edwards intercepted. He returned 8 yards to the 18.

Edwards, led by Anderson, ran 4 yards off right tackle. Mullins came up fast to throw Edwards for a loss.

Then Tharpe handed the ball off to Edwards, who shot off tackle and fell across the goal line.

Moore's kick was blocked by Koscis.

Tech 38; Florida 7.

Anderson kicked off to Brock, then came down and made the tackle at the 21-yard line. Manning cut off left tackle for a gain of seven yards. Golden, in at fullback for Florida, got two more on a plunge at center.

Brock dropped back and passed beautifully to Rowe, who made a fine catch for a gain of 26 yards. A first and 10 at the Tech 44.

Manning was rushed by Morgan and Carmack and Brooks finished the job, throwing him for a loss of almost 25 yards.

Brock's pass bounced off Moore's chest into Manning's hands for a gain of 18 yards. Manning threw another pass which Edwards intercepted at the Tech 31.

PASS INTERCEPTED.

Then Edwards threw a pass and Rowe intercepted. He ran 28 yards and Edwards, the last man, caught him by one foot at the Tech 27.

Mayberry was badly rushed and had little chance to pass. He tossed the ball away. Mayberry gained three off right tackle. Mayberry passed perfectly to Ramsey, who dropped the ball.

Brock passed to Walker, end, for a gain of nine yards. It was a first and 10 at the 15 as Mayberry cut back over tackle for nine yards. Collins replaced Beard in the Tech backfield.

Carmack stopped Mayberry for a loss of one yard. There were passes back of the line, Golden to Brock to Mayberry, who lost another yard. Mayberry's fourth down pass was too high. Walker leaped for it, but to no avail.

The ball went over to Tech on the 20. The goal line stand of the Tech reserves was very good.

The quarter ended as Anderson hit the line for four yards.

Tech 38; Florida 7.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Anderson made 4 more on a buck. Moore kicked. Mayberry fumbled and what a pile-up ensued. Even the referee leaped into the pile. Williams had recovered for Florida at midfield.

Carmack, weighing only 152 pounds, was playing a brilliant game at guard for Tech.

Mayberry spun off left tackle for 11 yards. He tried a pass to Rowe and it was too long. Nixon replaced the valiant Carmack, a great little player. He stood out on the Tech line.

Mayberry passed and Moore intercepted at the 15, returning 14 to the 29. Edwards picked up 5 at left tackle. The shovel pass, Edwards to Moore, was good for 6 yards and a first down at the Tech 40.

Ramsey smashed through the interference and dropped Edwards for an 8-yard loss. A forward lateral, Edwards to Smith to Collins, was fumbled by Collins and Lane recovered at the Tech 35.

Mayberry fooled Tech with a quick cut back over right tackle and gained 3 yards. Mayberry faked a pass and ran 6 yards more. Mullins was stopped by Collins for no gain.

Mayberry passed to Ramsey for a

Here Is Jack Troy's Running Story of Tech-Florida Game

By Jack Troy.

GRANT FIELD, Nov. 21.—On the graying turf of old Grant field, players of the Tech and Florida elevens made ready to renew their rivalry in the 13th game of the series this afternoon.

Some wag suggested the graying turf was a reflection of the troubles Tech has had on Grant field this season.

Florida's bright orange pants and radiant blue jersies formed a pleasing contrast. The 'Gator players entered the preliminary work in fine spirit.

On the other side of the field, Tech's Jackets, attired in old gold from head to foot, kicked the ball around and went after a few passes.

A page in the program brought some laughs. There was a picture of Grantland Rice advertising a well-known brand of cigarets. Rice was smoking a pipe.

The camp followers filed in steadily and, shortly before the kick-off, it was indicated a crowd of possibly 10,000 would see the game.

Florida's 60-piece band, natily uniformed, provided plenty of cheer for the fighting 'Gators. Tech's band pepped it up for the jinxed Jackets.

Ralph Jordan and Buddy McCollum, Auburn scouts, were here to record every move the 'Gators made.

TECH WINS TOSS.

Tech won the toss and chose the north goal. Cushing kicked to Golden, who tumbled on his 18, recovered and ran back to the 27. Mayberry tried guard and was stopped by Nixon for no gain. On the next play, Mayberry broke off left tackle for 6 yards.

Lawrence Hays took Brock's kick and returned 12 yards to the Tech 42. On an attempted reverse, Williams tackled Konemann for a loss of 3 yards. Tharpe got back 1 yard at the line. Brock knocked down Hays' long pass intended for Konemann. Hays then went back to kick and Root blocked it. Christian scooped up the ball on the 10 and ran across the goal line for a touchdown.

It had been remarked just before Hays kicked that he was standing too close to the line.

Captain Lane kicked extra point.

Florida 7; Tech 0.

Konemann took the kick-off and returned 53 yards to the Florida 41. It was a brilliant return. Konemann dropped back behind a wedge and ran until his interference was no more and went the rest of the way on his own.

Konemann and Tharpe picked up 7 yards on two plays at the line. There was a backward pass, Tharpe to Smith, who made 18 yards on the end around lay, putting the ball on the Florida 16. The 'Gators called time out.

Hays ran off right tackle for 6 yards. Tharpe did some fine blocking. Tharpe then knifed through center for 7 yards. The ball was on the 3 as Tharpe bucked again. Lane stopped him at the Florida 1-yard line.

JACKETS SCORE.

Tharpe bucked over on the next attempt. Bugs Hendricks and Oxford replaced Golden and Williams in the Florida lineup. Konemann's try for extra point from placement was wide.

Florida 7; Tech 6.

Cushing kicked off and Brock, fumbling, recovered and stepped out of bounds at the Florida 18.

Mayberry picked up 2 at the line and then cut back outside of left guard for 9 more and a first down. Mayberry, trying right end, slipped. There was no gain.

Preston, playing a neat game at guard, stopped Mayberry for no gain.

Brock kicked and Hays received. He was stopped after a 4-yard return at the Tech 37. Hays picked up 5 but there was a holding penalty on Tech. It was Tech's ball at the 22. Hays tried a fake kick, with Konemann sweeping around to take the ball. But Ramsey was not fooled and threw Konemann for a 9-yard loss.

Hays kicked to Mayberry on the Florida 44, and Mayberry returned to the Tech 40, a fine 16-yard return. He ran out of the arms of tacklers.

Willis lost 2 on an attempted left-end sweep. Tharpe came up fast and tackled him. Then Mayberry tossed a long pass out of bounds. It was third and 12.

Mayberry's next pass was broken up by Hays. It was intended for Brock. Brock dropped back to kick. Hays took the ball on the run at his 10 and returned to the 18, where Ramsey tackled him.

Tharpe made 2 at the line. Tharpe handed the ball off to Hays, who gained 2 at left tackle. Konemann made only 1 yard on the same play.

ANOTHER PENALTY.

There was another holding penalty for Tech, putting the Jackets back to the 9.

Yon came into the game for Florida. Hays kicked 40 yards to Mayberry, who returned 14 to the Tech 35.

Mayberry threw a pass into flat; Willis was over there. He caught the ball and ran 24 yards to the Tech 10. It was only a 1-yard pass forward. Willis almost was away, but Hays finally got him by one leg.

A double reverse, Hendrix to Brock to Mayberry, was good for 7 yards as Mayberry wriggled through the secondary to the Tech 3-yard line. Hendrix made a scant 1 yard at the line.

Preston threw Mayberry for a 1-yard loss. It was fourth and four as the quarter ended.

Florida 7; Tech 6.

SECOND QUARTER.

Sims and Appleby replaced Tharpe and Hays for Tech.

It was just in time. Appleby made a great play on Mayberry's pass, knocking it right out of Ramsey's hands.

Tech put the ball in play at the 20 and Konemann made one yard on a plunge. Appleby picked up two.

Then Sims kicked to Mayberry on Florida's 43. Mayberry returned 10 yards to the Tech 47. A trick pass by Mayberry intended for Christian was knocked down by Sims.

KONEMANN LOOSE.

Mayberry threw another pass out there in the flat and Dutch Konemann, catching it at the 39, ran 61 yards to a touchdown. He did not need any blocking, although Jones came up and blocked a pursuer.

The Dutchman went a-flying up the left sidelines on a veritable track-meet sprint. Konemann's kick was good, but there was another holding penalty, nullifying the kick.

Sims tried a pass for the point and it was too long for Jordan.

Tech 12; Florida 7.

Hendricks took Cushing's kick-off at his 21 and returned 16 yards to the 37.

Mayberry delayed too long on a pass and Wilcox and Cushing threw him for a loss of 10 yards. Brock went back to pass and threw a long one out of bounds.

Mayberry went back to pass, found no receiver, and tried to run. He made a yard. Brock kicked almost straight up. Collins took the kick and returned two to the Florida 40. It was only a 14-yard kick.

Sims uncorked a long pass to Konemann, who caught it at the 11. Konemann ran to the six and then lateralled to Appleby, who ran across the goal line. It was a brilliant play.

Sims missed extra point.

Tech 18; Florida 7.

Cushing's kick was received by Mayberry, who returned 10 to the 25.

Mayberry tried to circle left end. Mullins knocked Jordan down, but Jordan reached out with one of his long hands and tripped Mayberry for a loss of seven yards.

Mayberry ran into grief at the other end. He lost a yard when Ed Jones hit him hard.

JONES BANISHED.

Brock kicked 48 yards to Edwards, who returned 16 to midfield. Ed Jones was banished from the game apparently for slugging. And so was Flyod Christian. They were slugging at each other.

There was holding against Florida and slugging against Tech so the play was called back. Then Brock kicked 48 yards again. The ball bounced out of bounds at the 35.

Edwards made a yard at left end. Then Sims quick-kicked 48 yards right back, and the ball was deaded at the Florida 17 by Jordan. Mullins, in the game for Hendricks, rammed left tackle for eight yards. It was Mullins again. He made it a first down, but Florida was off-side.

Beard replaced Collins for Tech. Rimmer replaced Cushing at tackle. Brooks replaced Preston at guard. Preston was shifted from center to guard to plug a gap left by the injury of Captain Mit Fitzsimons.

There was no stopping Mullins. He ran off left tackle for 19 yards. Brooks got him.

Brock's pass was intercepted by Jordan, who ran 44 yards down the sidelines to the 11. Jordan caught the ball at his own 45.

Edwards circled left end for a touchdown on the next play. Tharpe and Brooks provided some beautiful blocking.

Sims kicked extra point.

Tech 25; Florida 7.

Chivington kicked to Warren, who returned 10 to the 30. Moore replaced Sims in the Tech backfield. Two shovel passes, Mayberry to Rowe, sub for Willis, gained only 1 yard. Mullins made 3 at the line.

Mayberry kicked and Edwards fumbled momentarily. When he finally got his bearings, he was downed for no return at the Tech 20.

Tharpe bored the middle for 3 yards. Koscis got him. Edwards then sped off right end for an even 20 yards. This put the ball at the 43.

Edwards made 2 at the line. Williams tackled. Roberts was in at tackle for Tech. Edwards' pass intended for Moore was incomplete.

Morgan's chest broke up Moore's next pass. He couldn't get his hands on it. Moore kicked out of bounds at the Florida 17. It was a neat 38-yard kick.

BAD SNAP.

A bad snap from center caused Mullins to fumble. Mayberry recovered for a loss of 5 yards. Mayberry was tackled by Moore for no gain. Jordan tackled Mullins for a loss of 3 more yards.

Mullins kicked from behind his goal line to Edwards, who returned 14 to the Florida 42. It was a 47-yard kick. A forward, Edwards to Jordan, followed by a lateral to Chivington, was good for 15 yards. He the half ended.

Score: Tech 25; Florida 7.

THIRD QUARTER.

Junior Anderson's kick off traveled over the goal. Florida had it on the 20 as Willis tried left tackle and failed to gain. But Mullins made the ground on an off-tackle play. He got nine yards. Brock kicked on third down. Edwards fair caught the ball at the Tech 37.

On a fake reverse, Tharpe spun to the weak side and gained six yards. Edwards passed to Smith, who tossed a lateral to Chivington. The gain was 22 yards. A first and 10 on the 34.

After Morgan made three on the end around, Edwards sprinted around left end for six yards. Tharpe rammed center for the first down. Edwards threw the ball too low for Moore, who was open.

Edwards was off again. He circled right end for 12 yards, a first down at the 11. Moore put in a good block on the ends.

Then Tharpe handed the ball off to Edwards, who ran around left end for the touchdown and Moore kicked the extra point.

Tech 32; Florida 7

Tech had gone 63 yards on eight plays.

Mullins took Anderson's kick-off and returned 22 yards to the 36. Mullins handed the ball off to Willis, who gained four yards off left tackle. Mullins was stopped at left tackle. Tech had plugged the gap at that spot really for the first time.

MOORE GALLOPS.

Edwards fair caught Brock's kick at the 29. Tharpe handed the ball off to Moore, who hauled the ball 20 yards around right end.

Tharpe handed it off again to Edwards, who ran 19 around the other end. The ball was at the Florida 32. Moore skipped around right end for 14 yards, with Tharpe doing the egrly blocking. Tharpe then took the ball and rammed to the 'Gator eight. It was a nine-yard plunge.

Your hair can be a definite asset

You can't make the grade—socially or in business—on good-looking hair alone. Brains are still the top asset. But good-looking hair does help, and the up-and-coming man needs every plus. That's why he ought to know Vitalis—Vitalis and the famous "60-Second Workout."
Vitalis with the "60-Second Workout" loosens a tight scalp—stimulates circulation around the hair roots, the actual source of healthy, handsome hair.
The pure vegetable oils of Vitalis help replenish necessary oils. And the "60-Second Workout" wakes up dry scalps—rouses hair roots into new activity. Loose dandruff goes. Your hair looks more lustrous—more alive. It's smooth—natural—but it hasn't a trace of that common "patent-leather" shine.
Get a bottle of Vitalis. Start the "60-Second Workout" today.
ASK YOUR BARBER—He's an expert on the care of scalp and hair. He is recommending Vitalis in the new single-application Sealtube. It is the most sanitary package ever made. Be sure to get a Sealtube.

1. 30 Seconds to rub—circulation quickens—needed oils are restored.

2. 10 Seconds to comb—hair has a rich lustre but no "patent-leather" look.

42,000 WITNESS NASSAU RALLY IN 4TH PERIOD

Tigers Gain Moral Victory in Final Game of Season.

By Eddie Brietz.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 21.—(AP) The badly tamed Princeton Tigers deserted the jungle for the air today, came from the rear and topped off a so-so football season by holding a highly favored Dartmouth team to a 13-13 tie.

The game ended the season for both teams before a crowd of 42,000.

Each team counted a touchdown in the second. Dartmouth forged into the lead with another in the third and then the Tigers put on their spurt to tie things up soon after the fourth got under way.

Jack Daniel, a halfback, sent the Tigers into the lead at the start of the second. In three tries he ran 30 yards to Dartmouth's 15 just as the first ended. He went over from the three-yard mark on the third play of the second. Ken Sandbach added the point.

Dartmouth evened proceedings later in the same chapter when Merrill Davis blocked a punt and recovered. Bob MacLeod hurled a 20-yard pass to John Merrill behind the goal line for the score. Carl Ray's try for point was wide.

Another break helped the Indians score a second touchdown in the third and go into the lead.

Bill Lynch fumbled a pass from center and Henry Whitaker, Green fullback, recovered. Leonard Viens, a substitute back, promptly passed to MacLeod on Princeton's three. Joe Kiernan, another sub, hurled himself across the line to score. Ray's try for point was good.

A 15-yard penalty for clipping put Dartmouth back on its own six in the fourth period and forced Gordon Clark to kick out. Daniel returned 18 yards to the Green's 26, from where Sandbach heaved a beautiful overhead to Kaufman on the three. Lynch carried the ball across. Sandbach, with a chance to win the game with a successful try for point, missed.

Towns Credits Rabbit's Foot With Victory

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A rabbit's foot which carried Forrest "Spec" Towns to world-wide fame over the high hurdles, was good enough to carry Georgia's Bulldogs to glory on the gridiron Saturday and a 7-7 tie with Fordham.

At least, that's what "Spec" Towns himself believes.

Just before the team left for New York Thursday, the great hurdler and end on the football team, who is in a local hospital recuperating from an appendix operation, entrusted the good luck charm to Coach Harry Mehre.

"Keep the rabbit's foot with you at the game, Coach," Towns told his mentor, "and you can't lose."

Tonight the Georgia athlete reiterated the declaration from his hospital bed—that you can't lose with his luck piece. He knew because he hadn't lost a hurdles race since acquiring the foot.

Maybe Harry Mehre will want to retain the rabbit's foot for the Bulldogs' tilt with Georgia Tech here next Saturday.

Three Share Honors In East Lake Bogey

L. D. Hill, M. I. Slagsvol and A. C. Spinks shared top prize Saturday afternoon in the weekly blind bogey on the two East Lake courses. The winning score was 75.

Second place was divided between J. L. Morris, F. E. Stevens, C. G. DeNormandie, H. S. Roberts, M. R. Woodall, L. F. Meng, J. H. Yayman, T. A. Martin, P. G. Hanahan, J. R. Wham and D. J. Evans one stroke away from the winners.

The booby prize was won by J. F. Armistead.

Georgetown Drops Maryland, 7 to 6

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 21 (AP)—Georgetown University nosed out Maryland, 7-6, today on a fourth period touchdown to avenge two consecutive defeats by the Terps. About 12,000 fans packed Byrd stadium for the game.

Yale Back Skirts End for First Score

WIDE WORLD WIRED PHOTOS.

Al Wilson, Yale back, is shown sprawled on the ground over the Harvard goal line. Wilson scored the first touchdown after skirting end for five yards in the second quarter. The Elis beat the Crimsons, 14 to 13. The win gave Yale the "Big Three" title. Harvard entered the game as a decided favorite.

Georgia, Fordham Play to Tie

ly to do its best would have lost heart there.

But the boys from Athens dug in and fought. It was beautiful to see. They fought back three plays and when a pass was tried on fourth down Lou Young grabbed it at the Georgia 18-yard line.

That was the turn of the game. It was then the Bulldogs found the men opposite them were not granite as they had read but just boys like themselves, although at that some of them were a little older. But nevertheless, they were flesh and blood.

And so the Bulldogs spat on their hands, rubbed them on their pants and went to work.

The first half was scoreless, Georgia rushing an attempted placement by Mautte so fast that it was wide from the Georgia 20.

GEORGIA SCORES.

Georgia scored quickly as the second half started. Behind me, as they came on the field to start that half, I heard a small crowd of Georgians, from Athens and from New York, singing "Glory to Old Georgia."

And the boys came on.

Causey kicked off. Mulrey, on the third play of the series, fumbled and Quentin Lumpkin recovered for Georgia at the Fordham 20.

Young went through the granite for three yards. And then Green passed to Maffett. That story has been told.

Fordham came right back to score with a 70-yard drive, but had it not been for that one lapse in the defense, Fordham would not have scored.

Al Gurske led that drive. He is a great back, that Gurske, and no more powerful than a team of oxen. But even so had it not been for that one break in the defensive armor Fordham would not have scored. And had it not been for a bad break in that early pass Georgia would have won, 14 to 7.

Georgia stayed on defense all that last half after scoring a touchdown.

And it was a raging, fighting Fordham team, with the roses of California fading away, who tried mightily to score.

FORDHAM DRIVES.

The conclusion was dramatic. It isn't good newspapering to use that word. One is supposed to describe the scene so it will read dramatically.

But it is getting cold out here as I write and it will have to go.

Fordham was driving. Out of the rushing front of Fordham jackets there came the ball from Palau to Paquin. It was good for 22 yards.

And then Palau tried again. The most beautiful figure in the world appeared on the scene. The time was about up. There was time for a play or so if Fordham had caught that one.

But that beautiful figure, Alf Anderson, caught it instead, and Georgia had the ball. And the ball game.

The figures show that in the first half Georgia made five first downs to four for Fordham. In the second half Georgia made one but the total was 12 for Fordham and six for Georgia.

Fordham rushed for 149 yards to 88 for Georgia because Georgia was on defense.

But the score was 7 and 7 and Fordham knows that Georgia should have won and that Fordham, not Georgia, was lucky to tie.

'Biff' Jones Ends Career With Win

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Major Lawrence "Biff" Jones called out the last command of a long and colorful gridiron career today and watched the University of Oklahoma eleven score a 35-to-13 victory over Oklahoma A. & M. before 9,000 fans.

The Sooners jumped into a 15-point lead in the opening period with a safety and two touchdowns.

Jack Baer, cotton-haired junior quarterback, maneuvered the victory and galloped to a pair of touchdowns.

Jones leaves the gridiron game after this season to reserve his talents for the army.

Baer scored midway in the opening period when he went over standing up from the 38-yard line. Breeden scored the second touchdown from the 10.

Jones substituted a reserve line in the second period and saw Reynolds, Aggie halfback, go over on a triple lateral from the 13.

Baer made his second touchdown gallop from the 20-yard line early in the third quarter. The Aggies matched it with an 80-yard touchdown drive. Sophomore Earl Crowder scored the last two touchdowns, in the last quarter.

Crowley Presents Ball to Georgia

NEW YORK CITY, Nov. 21. After today's Fordham-Georgia game the two captains, Francis Mautte and Julius Caesar Hall, met and matched for the football after the 7-and-7 tie.

Mautte won and started away with the ball. Jim Crowley stopped him and sent the ball back to the Georgia captain with his respects and his regards.

It was a splendid gesture of sportsmanship. "It was a fine game," he said. "I think Georgia should have the ball."

Missouri's Eleven Takes State Honors

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The University of Missouri won the state football championship today by defeating Washington University, of St. Louis, 17 to 10, before 12,000 spectators.

Washington scored first when Londy kicked a field goal from the 25 in the second quarter. Quarterback Frye, of Missouri, then passed and knifed to the 1, from where he scored.

Frye passed to Dickinson for another touchdown before the half ended and place-kicked both extra points.

Frye's placement field goal from the 25-yard line in the third period increased the lead to 17-3.

Bukant, Washington ace, filled the air with passes in the fourth quarter and finally clicked with a 10-yarder to Minkey for a touchdown with only two minutes remaining. Londy converted.

Randolph - Macon In 27-to-7 Victory

PETERSBURG, Va., Nov. 21.—(UP)—Final period touchdown drives by each team today featured Randolph-Macon's 21-7 victory over Hampden-Sydney.

Randolph-Macon scored once in the first quarter, but the game was scoreless for the next two periods.

With only a minute of the final quarter gone, Jim Blair, of Randolph-Macon, skirted left end for 30 yards and six points. Randolph-Macon marched downfield again a few minutes later and Al Paliscak smashed over for the touchdown.

Hampden-Sydney's touchdown came in the middle of the fourth quarter. A series of passes carried the ball to the Randolph-Macon eight, from where Don Farnsworth plunged across the goal line.

Score by Periods:

Hampden-Sydney	0	0	0	7	—7
Randolph-Macon	7	0	0	14	—21

Touchdowns: Randolph-Macon: Paliscak 2; Blair. Hampden-Sydney: Farnsworth.

JACKETS ROUT FLORIDA, 38-14

shot, got in the final lick. Although trailing hopelessly after the second period, the Gators kept on trying.

With the ball at the Tech 44 and less than a minute left to play, Manning fired a long pass to Brock, who was in the clear. Brock made a great running catch at the 8-yard line and ran unmolested over the goal.

There was just time enough for Mullins to try for the extra point. He kicked it and the game ended.

Coach W. A. Alexander started a mixed team that included Charley Preston, the fine center, at right guard; George Smith and Morgan at ends; Hays and Tharpe in the backfield.

RESERVES PLAY.

Coach Alexander kept shooting in the reserves to rest the regulars and there is this much to say, the play of young J. L. Brooks and Eddie Carmack, the midget lightweight guards, was magnificent.

Preston did a great job at guard in the first half, as did Jack Nixon. Then Brooks and Carmack carried on the good work in the last half.

Scrappy Edwards was the chief ground gainer. Scrap, scoring three touchdowns, gained 105 yards from scrimmage. He was a Prairie Ghost on parade. He roamed far and wide.

Dutch Konemann was not used in the last half at all.

He needed a rest and Edwards was right.

Then, too, Moore, Tharpe and others were full able to share the offensive work.

Jack Chivington played well at center.

Tech was a first-half team yesterday. In fact, a first and second-half team. Blocking was much better if pass defense, at times, was not.

Mayberry, Mullins, Kochis and Ramsey played fine football for Florida. Mayberry gained 57 yards for Florida. He was very tricky on cut-back plays over tackle.

As to the statistics, it is noteworthy that Tech made 16 first downs to Florida's 8. All were earned.

Tech made 330 yards rushing to 254 by Florida. Tech lost 25 yards to Florida's 65. The Tech line was rushing.

Florida, however, made 140 yards on passes to Tech's 92.

The fighting 'Gators, on the other hand, tried 26 passes, completing five. Tech tried 17, completing five.

PENALIZE JACKETS.

The Jackets suffered somewhat on penalties. There were 60 yards' worth of penalties to five for Florida.

Ed Jones and Floyd Christian seemed to have some differences and did a bit of swinging at each other on the field. Whereupon officials banished both players.

No, indeed. No longer can they be called jinxed Jackets. They spotted Florida the first touchdown and went on from there to overcome the deficit rather quickly and turn the contest into a smashing triumph. It was Tech's first victory in the last four games.

It was a much more convincing victory than Georgia accomplished over the same team. And Tech, playing without Captain Mit FitzSimons and Phil Chance, did not use the regulars any more than necessary. Coach Bill Alexander was well pleased with the showing. He thinks the team will come up to the Georgia game next Saturday in good shape. Captain FitzSimons will, of course, be available for that game. Chances are, however, that Phil Chance will miss it.

The win over Florida was Tech's third in the conference. The announcement that Georgia had tied Fordham was greeted with a deafening clamor. The Tech fans were pulling for Georgia to win.

OLD ELI TAKES 'BIG 3' CROWN WITH TRIUMPH

Kelley and Frank Lead Blue in Second Period Rally.

By Alan Gould.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Yale rode the surging tide of football fortune to victory over Harvard today, 14 to 13, as the luck of Larry Kelley, amazing Eli captain, held good to the end of his gridiron career.

Trailing by 14 points at half time after Kelley combined with the great Clint Frank to put on a sensational second-period scoring show, Harvard came within a few feet of tying the score with a spectacular last-half comeback.

The game developed a battle that had a crowd of 58,000 in wild excitement, with the outcome determined by the thin margin of Fullback Vernon Struck's failure to place-kick the extra point after Harvard's second touchdown.

The victory, giving Eli Yale the Big Three title, followed a spectacular 26-23 decision over Princeton a week ago. It completed the Blue's season with only one setback, administered by Dartmouth.

KELLEY GREAT.

Captain Kelley, winding up his college career on the gridiron, was on the receiving end of a 42-yard scoring pass from Frank for Yale's second touchdown after being robbed of a previous tally by an offside penalty.

The achievement enabled the lanky Eli leader to finish off a remarkable record of scoring in every "Big Three" game over a three-year period. So far as the oldest inhabitants can recall, no son of Yale, ancient or modern, ever before accomplished that trick.

Charley Ewart's interception of a pass and Frank's long gallop to the Harvard 6-yard line from midfield paved the way for the first score. Al Wilson tallied on a wide sweep around his own left end. Bud Humphrey kicked the point from placement.

SECOND SCORE.

Striking swiftly through the air, Frank engineered the second touchdown. The ball was on Harvard's 42 as Frank faded back and hurled the ball to Kelley, who made a sensational catch 8 yards from the goal line and outsprinted two Crimson tacklers.

Harvard took the wraps off a substitute halfback, Ford, at the outset of the second half and immediately began a roaring comeback. The Crimson took the kick-off and traveled 80 yards in only eight plays for a touchdown. Struck plunging over from the 1-yard line and he place-kicked the extra point.

Early in the fourth period Colwell's punt from the end zone caromed out of bounds on Yale's 23. On the second play, with the ball on the Eli 21, Oakes passed down the middle to Ford, who caught the ball a stride from the goal line and stepped across untouched. Struck had to hurry his placement kick and the ball sailed wide.

Maryville Defeated By Carson-Newman

JEFFERSON CITY, Tenn., Nov 21.—(AP)—Carson-Newman College won the Smoky Mountain conference football championship today by a decisive 26-to-0 victory over Maryville College.

Young Breaks Up a Dangerous Ram Pass

Wide World Wired photos

Early in the first quarter, Fordham drove with a lot of power and reached the Georgia 32. The above picture shows one of the big reasons why Georgia took the ball. Lew Young's alert play has prevented Mautte from catching an important pass. It appears in the picture as if Young might be catching the pass, but it fell to the ground.

McGill's Running Story of Georgia-Fordham Game

By Ralph McGill.

POLO GROUNDS, N. Y., Nov. 21. There was a cloudy sky above, a brisk wind blowing out of the northwest and a crowd of 30,000 looking on as the captains of Fordham and Georgia met to toss the coin deciding the kickoff in their game today.

Mautte, of Fordham, won and Fordham kicked to Hartman, who ran back the kick 15 to his own 27.

Ed Young, bless my old eyes, went through the seven blocks of granite for 9 yards at right guard. Bill Hartman belted it for a first down at the Georgia 34.

Vandiver was stopped at left end with a yard. Babartsky getting him.

INTERCEPT PASS.

Causey's pass was intercepted by Palau, but Fordham was offside and Georgia advanced 5 yards. The blocks were granite, stopping Causey on a spinner at center. Hartman kicked it out of there, but Francis Mautte got it and with some very fine running got through five men and hauled the ball back to his own 44, a brilliant return.

Gurks got 4 at left tackle. He hammered it to a first down at the Georgia 44.

A pass was caught out of bounds, well out of bounds. A forward lateral, Palau to Paquin to Wojciechowicz got 9 yards.

Dulke made it a first down at the Georgia 30.

Fordham was running with a lot of power behind some fine line charging.

TINSLEY AGAIN.

Tinsley stopped Mautte with no gain. He did it again for no gain. The Fordhams evidently didn't think he meant it.

A pass was almost good to Mautte, Young batting it down. From a fake kick formation Palau tried another and Hall batted it down. The Bulldogs had been granite themselves. Especially that fellow named Tinsley. Georgia had it at its 32.

Hartman, on a reverse, went around right end for a first down at the Fordham 43.

Young got 5 over the Fordham right guard. Causey spun through the same spot for 4 yards. Wojiy got him. The end and halfback threw Vandiver for a loss at left end. A penalty on Fordham gave Georgia a first down at the Fordham 45, the first time in Fordham territory. Hartman got a yard at right tackle, and then Young passed to Maffett for 15 yards, and when he tried to lateral it, the ball hit the ground and rolled toward Fordham's line. Candler got it for Georgia and a first down at the Fordham 18. Young and Candler were really after the ball.

GREEN GOES IN.

Green went in and on the first play, passed to Maffett who was clear in the end zone. He dropped it as the crowd groaned.

It was a sure touchdown had he held it.

Green lost a couple at left end, this fellow Wojiy getting him and then came near disaster.

Causey, trying a pass to Young, who never looked around, had the ball grabbed by this fellow Wojciechowicz, known herein and hereafter as "Wojjy," who grabbed the ball and almost got away, the frantic Bulldogs pulling him down at the Georgia 30. He was almost gone.

Two bucks got 4 yards and then the Bulldogs ruined Gurske, who lost 8, Tinsley and Lumpkin getting him.

Young, taking no chances, caught a fourth-down pass instead of trying to bat it. He wanted that ball.

The Bulldogs had stopped another one this time at their own 18.

Young got 3 at guard as the quarter ended. Georgia 0; Fordham 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Cavan was in for Vandiver and Haygood in for Davis. Causey failed at right tackle. Cavan kicked to Mautte and Haygood and Causey got him at the 50.

Tinsley stopped Gurske but Dulkie came off right tackle to the Georgia 30 and a first down.

Mautte, running low and hard, smashed through to a first down at Georgia 20.

Dulkie got a yard at right tackle, Hartman getting him. Gillespie stopped Mautte with a 2-yard advance. Hartman piled in and got Gurske for no gain. Mautte tried a placement and it was wide to left.

The Bulldogs had stopped the third Fordham threat, taking the ball at their own 20.

Georgia was at her own 20. Alf Anderson went in for Causey. Hartman came around right end on a reverse for 8 yards. Cavan lost a yard at left guard. Cavan kicked to Mautte and he ran it back 15, a tough run, and was downed at his own 45.

Dulkie got a yard and then Tinsley, playing a magnificent game today, threw Mautte for a loss of 4 yards. Tinsley is a greater guard today than any other lineman on the field.

A forward-lateral, Taylor-to-Paquin-to-Mautte, got 8 yards from a fake kick formation. It was not enough and Fordham had seen it couldn't do just as it wanted to and so Fordham kicked out of bounds at the Georgia 24.

The line caved in on Anderson as he tried the line and Franco got him for a loss of a yard. But little Young, on a quarterback sneak, got a full 16 yards right through the middle of the granite line. It was a first down at the Georgia 40. Anderson got 4 at right end. Barbartsky threw Cavan for a loss of 6. Cavan kicked to Mautte and Gillespie was on him to down him at his own 25.

Mautte got 2 yards. Gurske got 2 at center. Dulkie was stopped for no gain by Tinsley. Palau kicked to Young who was downed at his own 38.

Cavan lost 10 yards when Franco was through and nailed him on an attempted reverse. Babartsky was hurt. Glenn Johnson and Roddenberry came in for Georgia. They helped Babartsky off the field. Anderson was hurt as he made back 5 of the lost 10 at right end. He was hurt but stayed in. The game was just a little rough. Roddenberry got just a yard at center. The half ended as they lined up for the play.

Georgia 0, Fordham 0.

Fordham had looked like anything but a Rose Bowl team. It looked no better in the first half than a half dozen southern teams who are not undefeated, as is Fordham.

Georgia should have been leading by a touchdown on the one pass which the weeping Maffett dropped as a sure score.

Georgia has made five first downs to four for Fordham.

Georgia had 71 yards rushing to 51 for Fordham.

During the half the Fordham band, led by two cheer leaders who had between them a very stubborn ram, paraded on the field and spelled out Dixie.

Back up in the stands a little group was singing "Glory to Old Georgia." It was quite an afternoon.

THIRD QUARTER.

Causey kicked to Woitkoski and he was downed at his own 21.

Mulrey was stopped by Tinsley. Mulrey got 5 at left tackle. Mulrey, on the next play fumbled and Lumpkin fell on it for Georgia at the Fordham 20.

Young belted through the Fordham middle to the Fordham 17. And on the second play Green passed to Maffett for a touchdowr The boy held this one, which was much harder, requiring a high leaping catch. It was a beautiful pass, straight and hard but he got it and fell as he caught it.

It was Georgia 6 and Fordham 0. Young's kick was good and it was Georgia 7, Fordham 0.

Green kicked off and Fordham had the ball at its own 25.

One play failed and then Coot Vandiver intercepted McKnight's pass and ran it back 12 to the Fordham 41.

Jim Crowley very hurriedly got four subs out of there and put in all he had.

Back of me in the stands a group of Georgians, local and isolated here, were yelling deliriously.

Vandiver got a yard at left tackle. Green lost 3 yards at right end. Anderson kicked to Mautte, but he was downed with 2 yards' return at his own 30.

Dulkie got 7 at right tackle. Gurske failed at right tackle. Haygood getting him; Dulkie, running hard, made the first down at the Fordham 40. Gurske went 16 yards around his right end for a first down at the Georgia 49. Johnny Jones went in for Green. Dulkie got 4 yards at left tackle. Dulkie, running like a wild hoss, got 7 yards and a first down at the Georgia 32. Lumpkin got him. They ran him again and he got 9 yards off right tackle. He made the first down at the Georgia 21.

The whole Georgia line was in on Mautte and he lost 6 yards at left end. Tinsley busted through and Threw Dulkie for a loss of 4.

The defense, pulled in, let Mautte get behind them and he took a pass from Palau, being downed at the Georgia 1-yard line.

Dulkie got half of it. On the next play he took it over his right guard.

Palau place-kicked the point.

Score: Georgia 7; Fordham 7.

Harry Harman, in for Tinsley, took the kickoff and was downed at the Georgia 30.

Young failed at center on a quick opening play. Vandiver lost 4 yards at left end. Harry Stephens went in for Anderson. Georgia was in desperate straits and was having to use crippled men.

Georgia lost 5 on penalty for excessive time on the play. Stevens kicked to Mautte, who ran it back 12 to the Georgia 40, but was called back and Fordham penalized 5 for offside.

Mautte fumbled the next kick, but Palau recovered at the Fordham 47.

Gurske went 5 off left tackle as the quarter ended.

FOURTH QUARTER.

It was turning colder very, very fast.

Mautte hit left tackle for 4 yards. Gurske made the first down.

Dulkie made the first down with yards to spare, being downed at the Georgia 36.

Gurske got a yard at right tackle. Mautte lost 2 yards at left end. He was hurt and removed from the game. A pass should have been good, but Dulkie dropped it. Palau kicked to the Georgia line, putting the Bulldogs in a tight spot.

Cavan went in for Vandiver. Hartman came over guard for 4 yards on a fake kick. Wojiy got him. A pretty fair center, that boy. Wojiy knocked Hartman back for a loss of a yard. Cavan kicked to Mulrey, who got it back just a yard. He was downed at the Georgia 45, and that was a good out by Cavan. Dulkit, on a reverse, got a yard at right guard. Cavan had Mulrey but his ankle turned on the play and he missed, falling down in pain as Rod-

Southeastern Champion Will Emerge in Next Saturday Conflicts

BENGALS MEET WAVE; BULDOGS BATTLE JACKETS

L. S. U. Will Have Clear Claim If She Can Topple Tulane.

By The Associated Press.

The championship of the Southeastern conference will be decided next week in the last big round of battles for 1936.

Post-season invitations to "bowl" games also hang in the balance in the traditional wind-up contests featuring Louisiana State's clash with Tulane and Alabama's skirmish with Vanderbilt.

Louisiana State, unbeaten and untied in Southeastern ranks, seeks its second straight conference title in the renewal of its ancient feud with Tulane at Baton Rouge. A victory over the Green Wave would clinch the crown for Coach Bernie Moore's powerhouse. They meet on Saturday afternoon.

On Thanksgiving Day at Birmingham Alabama, tied only by Tennessee in conference warfare, faces Vanderbilt's Commodores in its last stand. The Crimson Tide has won four games, and along with Louisiana State figures in the early talk surrounding Rose Bowl and Sugar Bowl invitations.

Otherwise the program shapes up with Kentucky engaging Tennessee at Knoxville and Georgia Tech clashing with Geor ia in traditional intraconference combats that date back to the turn of the century. The Kentucky-Tennessee duel is slated for Thursday, the Georgia Tech-Georgia fray for Saturday at Athens.

Auburn's Plainsmen, beaten only by Louisiana State in the Southeastern campaign and tied by Tulane, entertain the University of Florida at Montgomery Saturday in the final tussle for Coach Jack Meagher's traveling gridders.

In other games, Mississippi's Rebels invade Miami for a game with the University of Miami on Thursday and Mississippi State entertains Mercer at Starkville, Miss., on Saturday.

Three games for Southeastern machines remain on the slate after next Saturday. Tennessee plays Mississippi at Memphis and Florida is host to Mississippi State at Gainesville, Fla., on December 5. Neither of these games figure in the conference race.

The season's final is Georiga Tech's big intersectional skirmish with California in Atlanta on December 26.

Georgia-Fordham Running Story

denberry got him after a gain of but a yard. Glenn Johnson went back in the game.

A pass, Gurske to Palau, was good, although it looked to have been caught out of bounds. It was good at the Georgia 23.

It looked bad. But it looked a bit better almost immediately.

Palau, trying to pass, was tackled by Maffett. The ball fell from his hands and Asa Candler fell on it at the Georgia 37.

Three plays failed and Hartman kicked short out of bounds at the Fordham 44.

Dulkie got 2 yards at left tackle. An attempted pass was good, but two laterals lost 2 yards. They rushed Gurske and he was thrown for a loss of 8 yards.

Palau kicked out of there to Johnson, who got it back 6 yards to his own 34.

Badgett went in for Davis. Hartman, on a reverse, got 2 yards at right tackle. Roddenberry went through the middle for three more.

A pass, Anderson to Maffett, was dropped, costing a first down. Hartman kicked to Mulrey and Maffett nailed him in his tracks at the Fordham 22.

Gurske got four and then Dulkie got a first down at the Fordham 35. A pass, Palau to Paquin, was good. It was downed at the Georgia 41 and a first down. And then Alf Anderson leaped in as Fordham tried another pass and grabbed it for Georgia. The ball at the Georgia 37. Roddenberry lost 3 at right guard. He tried it again and failed as the game ended.

Georgia had won a great triumph with a 7-and-7 tie.

The Fordham band was silent. There were no California tunes. It was a great triumph for Harry Mehre and his team.

Tech-Florida Running Story

Tech was penalized for holding, setting the Jackets back to the 7.

Moore got a bad snap back of his goal line and ran out to the 11. It was a gain of 4 yards.

Mayberry took Moore's punt and as he took it Brooks took his feet out from under him with a savage block. Mayberry tried to pass, couldn't get the ball away and lost 8 yards.

Mayberry hurt, was replaced by Manning. The Tiger man of the Florida team had played a brilliant game in the face of heavy odds. If he ever got any real blocking, he would be hell to stop.

Manning passed low to Ramsey, who couldn't quite get his hands on it. Brock passed to Ramsey complete, good for 10 yards, leaving it fourth and 8. Brock kicked out of bounds on the Tech 15.

Beard handed the ball off to Moore, who circled left end for 17 yards. Allen fumbled on the end around, losing four.

Edwards passed and Brock intercepted at the Tech 48. Beard batted down Brock's long pass intended for Rowe. Brock fired another long one and it bounced out of Manning's hands after hitting a Tech defender. Manning found no receiver the next time and ran. He gained two and then Brock kicked off on the Tech 22.

Tech tossed a couple of incomplete passes. And another one. Brock broke it up.

Anderson kicked. Manning returned eight yards to Tech's 45. Manning again found no receiver and ran. He fumbled at the 44 and recovered. And then there was a brilliant pass.

Manning passed to Brock for a touchdown. Nobody was back there to defend. Manning caught the ball at the eight and romped over the goal.

Mullins kicked extra point as the game ended.

It was the last play.

Stalwart Tech Frosh---and Their Trusting Charges

The story is in a picture and, but for identification, really is a story without words. Three members of the Georgia Tech freshman football team, opponents of Georgia's Bullpups Thanksgiving Day at Grant field, are shown with children of the Scottish Rite hospital. The youngster on crutches at the left is Emory Taylor, who will be well and strong one of these days because of the annual game. Roane Beard is shown holding Geneya Kite, who is highly interested in the football. Mildred Morman, center, is very much interested also. Elmer McPherson, Tech back, is looking on and thinking how hard he will run with that ball in the cause of crippled children Thursday. James Reeves, extreme right, is another youngster who will have the use of his leg because of the game. The strong legs of Howard Ector, freshman back holding Hovis Leggett, also will run that weak legs may walk. Staff photo by Turner Hiers.

Crippled Children Due Your Football Dollar

Noble Cause Will Be Served in Tech-Georgia Freshman Game Thanksgiving Day.

By Jack Troy.

The cause of little children who came into this old world handicapped by twisted limbs once again will be championed on Thanksgiving Day by the freshman football players of Tech and Georgia.

The power of healing vested in the hands of skilled surgeons will be given full freedom of expression because of these freshmen and because of the loyalty of Atlanta people who take care of their own.

What good is money, after all, if its use is not directed in the achieving of something worthwhile? There is no greater, finer cause than the cause of little children. And, especially, little children who can see and talk but cannot walk; who can only stand when supported by nurses or crutches.

The investment of one dollar is a part of the power of healing. It is an integral part, since there is an institution to be maintained, instruments to be bought, surgeons to be hired and food to be served, along with many other necessary details.

MONEY FOR TREATMENT.

It seems a sort of sacrilege to mention money in connection with a cause so fine. And yet, on the basis of present-day living, the almighty dollar is a powerful force for good.

A football team is no stronger than its line; an institution is no sounder than its backing. It is the old and infallible truth of a chain being no stronger than its weakest link.

The cause of crippled children brings forcefully to mind the lines of a poem written by the immortal Frank Stanton—

"This old world we're livin' in
Is mighty hard to beat;
You get a thorn with every rose,
But ain't the roses sweet?"

These children of the Scottish Rite hospital know about the thorns—the roses will come later, with other and lesser thorns. And they will come, the roses will, because of the unselfishness of Atlanta people, two great schools, Tech and Georgia and others connected with the annual program.

The money derived from this game is diverted into only one channel. It flows through the various canals of the hospital system.

100% FOR CRIPPLED.

There's not 1 cent used for any other purpose. Tech and Georgia freshmen give their services absolutely free, as do game officials, ushers and all others having a part in the actual handling of the game, programs and so on.

Sports writers covering the game pay to get in Grant field.

It is, essentially, a charity event. But, somehow, it is difficult to connect charity with the cause of little crippled children.

Rather, it seems to be something people ought to do out of the goodness of their hearts, something they ought to do unsolicited.

If only people would take the time to visit the hospital, the sunshiny wards of the Scottish Rite hospital and see with their own eyes the miracles achieved with their dollar—well, then, walking around on sound legs, they would pause and think.

SOMETHING GRAND.

"Here," they would say, "is something fine, something spiritual. Here we see children, like tiny twisted plants, grow and blossom into the flower of strong, vigorous youth, under the tender care of competent, patient attendants."

Oh, it is something to carry away and remember so long as you each shall live.

The churning legs of stalwart freshmen players advancing the ball in a rivalry almost as great as that of their big brothers on the varsity elevens of Tech and Georgia provides entertainment worthy of the expenditure of the dollar.

But that, in the final analysis, is free. You do not spend a dollar for a game, but so that crippled children may some day throw away their crutches and play. And, later on, become upright and useful citizens.

It is something to think about.

Film Row Is First 100 Per Cent Group

Film Row has subscribed 100 per cent to the Tech-Georgia freshman game Thanksgiving Day at Grant field.

It is the first complete business organization in our town to secure a complete block of tickets for heads and employes.

Advance ticket sales for the game, which is a 100 per cent proposition for the benefit of the Scottish Rite hospital, are well ahead of last year.

Already, more than 5,000 tickets have been sold. And indications are that the crowd will exceed 12,000. More than 10,000 persons attended last year.

The game has been moved up half an hour this year in order to allow fans ample time for the Thanksgiving Day dinner. Starting time this year is 2:30 o'clock. Lights will be turned on at Grant field if necessary in order to finish the game.

M'CLAIN MEETS ITALIAN MONDAY

Count Pietro Rossi, who claims the world's light heavyweight title, clashes with Charlie McClain, the Oklahoma Indian, in the feature match at the New Spring Street arena Monday night.

Count Rossi hails from Naples, Italy, and he has been wrestling in this country for the past ten years. The promoters have gone to considerable expense in bringing this matman to Atlanta. He is one of the most colorful figures in wrestling circles. Count Rossi sports a long Vandyke beard and wears a monocle, but he is the exact opposite of what is expected of a gentleman. Few matmen can top his villainous deeds. He recently defeated Tiger Long at Miami, and he holds victories over Mickey McGuire and Tarzan Jordan won in Florida. The bout betwene the Count and the Indian athlete is expected to pack the arena.

Chin Lee, the Chinese wrestler who has made many friends since coming here, winning three straight matches from tough opponents, will meet rough opposition in the semi-final match when he encounters Don Jose, Mexican bad man.

Tony Papalino, the Italian, will be given another chance to pin the fast-moving Greek, John Ellis, in the opening match on the program. The Greek was fortunate to win over Papalino a few weeks ago and the Italian boy asked for a chance to even the score.

The Spring street arena is located at the junction of Spring, Peters and Garnett streets, the indoor arena is well heated and has a seating capacity of 1,500 patrons.

Reserve seats may be obtained in advance by calling Main 2539.

Howard Licks Panthers, 13-0

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Howard Bulldogs smashed their traditional rivals, Birmingham-Southern, 13 to 0, here today before 11,000 fans to cinch their second consecutive Dixie conference championship.

Ray Christian, Bulldog fullback, ripped the Southern line to shreds, gaining 259 yards on 33 tries. Birmingham-Southern's lone first down came on a long pass near the end of the second period.

So completely did Howard's line bottle up their opponents that Birmingham-Southern's net gain rushing was three yards.

After a scoreless first half, Wilcox ran 65 yards to Southern's 15, and then passed to Hopkins for a touchdown. Christian went through the line and cut down the sidelines for 55 yards for the second score in the final period.

Score by periods:

Howard	0	0	7	6	—13

Scoring: Howard, Touchdowns, Hopkins, Christian; points after touchdown, Christian (placement).

NEBRASKA ROUTS KANSAS STATE

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Nebraska football volcano which fumed harmlessly against Pittsburgh a week ago erupted today to smother the Big Six title dreams of Kansas State. The score was: Nebraska 40; Kansas State 0.

A victory today would have given Kansas State a title tie, but after the Huskers had slashed their way to a touchdown less than six minutes after the start, the 27,000 fans knew a repetition of the surprising 1934 Kansas State victory was not to be.

The Huskers rolled over three more touchdowns in the second, went scoreless in the third, and turned in two more in the final.

Nebraska kicked off, forced the Wildcats to punt, then had a touchdown without losing the ball. Francis went over from the 1-yard line.

Colgate Defeats Syracuse, 13 to 0

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Colgate University's brilliant lateral passing attack carried the Red Raiders to a 13-0 victory over Syracuse University in the 38th meeting of their traditional rivalry today before 30,000 fans.

Completing seven out of 13 forward tosses and all five of its laterals, Colgate kept Syracuse back on its heels most of the four quarters.

Ed Lalor, of Greenfield, Mass., star running and passing Colgate fullback, accounted for both his team's scores, plunging over each time from the one-foot line after passes paved the way.

Army Team Routs Hobart Eleven, 51-7

MICHIE STADIUM, West Point, N. Y., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Army's football team spanked the heretofore undefeated Hobart team, 51-7, today before 5,000 in Michie stadium.

The Cadets turned the game into a rout in the second half, scoring 20 points in the first five minutes of the third period.

Field Goal Gives Centenary, 3-0, Win

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Two evenly balanced teams, Centenary and Texas A. & M., battled here today to a 3-0 victory for Centenary before 7,000 fans. Stokes' place-kick in the second period scored the 3 points.

BAUGH'S PASSES GIVES T.C.U. WIN OVER RICE, 13-0

Christians Gain Tie With Arkansas for Southwest Leadership.

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Sam Baugh twirled the Texas Christian Frogs to a 13-to-0 victory over the Rice Owls and himself into a choice spot for All-American football rating today before 15,000 spectators.

Opening his aerial guns early in the first period, "Slinging Sam" tossed a touchdown forward to Walls and late in the final quarter put the ball in position for McCall to ram through for another counter.

The victory threw the "Winged" Frogs into a deadlock with idle Arkansas for the Southwest conference leadership.

Baugh, leading Southwest contender for All-America rating, took virtually complete charge of the offensive. He tossed 23 bullet forwards and 6 were completed for 153 yards. Two were intercepted.

Baugh also did a neat job of running and punting and played a terrific game on the defense.

Although the Owls completed seven of 16 forwards for 77 yards they never made a serious threat.

Baugh had trouble finding receivers early in the first quarter but after two punt exchanges, he stood on the 28 and tossed to Walls for a touchdown.

In the final quarter Baugh took a short lateral and ran to the Owl 47, bulleted to Hall on the 30 and shot another to Walls on the 15. A shovel pass lost a yard and then Baugh bulleted to Roach on the 5, from where McCall crashed through guard for a touchdown.

BAYLOR ADDS TO S. M. U. JINX

WACO, Tex., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Two touchdown sprints by Captain Lloyd Russell, Baylor's campus idol, dazed a Southern Methodist football team that fought back but finally fell, 13-7, here today.

Ten thousand fans gave Russell, playing the last home game of a brilliant three-year career, a riotous cheer and carried him from the field. He had preserved, almost single-handed, a tradition that a Baylor team has never lost to the Mustangs on their home field.

Russell, a twisting, swirling, kicking quarterback who did everything but carry the water bucket, trapped the Methodists in the first two minutes and they never recovered.

Two plays after the kickoff, Russell lateraled to Billy Patterson, sophomore passing demon, and then tore around his left end. Patterson, shielded by his great line, hesitated until Russell had stepped 15 yards past the scrimage line and fired a pass.

Russell took it on the Methodist 35, sidestepped through the secondary and crossed the line standing up.

Shortly after the second period opened Russell started firing passes to Gernand, took one himself from Patterson, ran to the Methodist 19 and then slid off tackle on a dazzling broken field dash to score. Gernand added the point.

IOWA WALLOPS FAVORED OWLS

TEMPLE STADIUM, PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 21.—(UP)—Iowa University scored two quick touchdowns against a Temple University second team and added two more against a first-string eleven today to upset the Owls, 25 to 0, before 15,000 fans.

The Hawkeyes scored from their own 29-yard stripe before two minutes had elapsed in the opening period when Bush Lamb took the ball off right tackle, cut back up the center and crossed the line untouched.

Oze Simmons, Iowa colored flash, repeated Lamb's performance two minutes later but added a touch of showmanship. He started wide around left end, stopped dead on the south sideline, shook off two tacklers and moved over the last 15 yards at a leisurely dog-trot. He had covered 74 yards.

Temple Coach Glen S. "Pop" Warner, who started his second team against the under-rated Hawkeyes, sent in the entire first string when this strategy backfired. But an inspired Iowa offensive that surpassed any that Temple had faced this season, ran up two more touchdowns against the Owls in the third period.

Penalties for unnecessary roughness, holding and offside nullified several Iowa drives. Temple fumbles kept the Owl offensive in check. Iowa tallied twice in a big third period, but missed a try for a field goal. The Howkeyes scored their third touchdown when Frank Gallagher recovered Pete Smith's fumble on the Owl 29. Lamb passed to Bob Lannon on the Temple 10 and Lamb cracked through right tackle for the score.

Evening School Beats Beck & Gregg Five

The Georgia Evening School Redbirds, metropolitan champions of last year, successfully opened its 1937 basketball season by defeating Beck & Gregg Hardware last Friday night by the score of 40-22.

Hebert Shutte, former Tech High star, led the scoring with 19 points. Brookshire, Enlow and Kidd looked good for the winners, and Woodcock and Owen were best for the losers.

Coach Bill Layton would like to schedule a number of games in and around Atlanta. He may be reached at Walnut 2981 or Vernon 1077, or at the school.

Knute Rockne Jr. Ejected From Tilt

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Knute Rocke Jr., son of Notre Dame's immortal coach, was ordered out of a prep school football game today for slugging an opposing player.

The 18-year-old Miami Military Academy cadet swung his fist at a Titusville High school player who had grabbed the ball from his hands after a line plunge.

Grinning, Rockne walked from the field and from the bench saw his teammates win, 27-20. Young Rocke, who did nothing else spectacular during the game, plans to enter Notre Dame next fall.

SHUTE, THOMSON IN P. G. A. FINALS

Pair To Battle Sunday in Championship Match.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 21.—(AP) James Wilfred Stevenson Thomson, the husky blasting blond with the terra-cotta complexion, and Densmore Shute, who has a contrastingly ashen appearance, today shot their way into the finals of the Professional Golfers' Association championship.

With styles as different as their appearances—Thomson, the acknowledged longest hitter in the game, and Shute, on the short side off the tees but one of the deadliest players about the greens—staged remarkable Horatio Alger comebacks to have a chance at the crown relinquished earlier in the week by Johnny Revolta, of Chicago.

THOMSON RALLIES.

Thomson, matched against his closest rival in the matter of long-distance hitting, rallied from a three-hole deficit through the 14th in the morning round to eliminate husky Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., 4 and 3, while Shute, having stretches of hot and cold golf, came from behind after being two down at the 31st to vanquish "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, the 38-year-old Louisville veteran, one up on the 36th green.

Thus the 36-hole match for the title tomorrow will be between a hitter and a fellow who is hard to match on short shots and putting.

Discounting past performances which give Shute the edge by virtue of his victory in the British open championship three years ago and his advance to the finals of the 1931 P. G. A. final as against Thomson's victory in the Australian open last year, Denny, so far, is leading Jimmy for shot-making honors this week.

NEEDS 154 STROKES.

Shute qualified with 154 strokes, two less than the maximum. Including that total and his scores for the five rounds of hand-to-hand conflict thus far, Shute has played 138 holes in seven over par 72 for the Pinehurst Country Club's No. 2 course, while Thomson, who qualified with 150, has negotiated 135 holes in 13 over par. Thomson started off quoted various at from seven to ten to one by local bookmakers, while Denny, held at 12 to 1, was almost overlooked in the early betting. The final will start at 10 a. m. (E. S. T.)

Thomson clearly earned his victory today over Wood, but he was helped no little by the Jersey giant's collapse after the 14th hole when he was leading three up. Wood, shooting the first six holes in four under 4s, rushed to a three-hole lead, going out in 33 to Thomson's 37. Craig had only 13 putts to the quarter pole. They halved the first five incoming holes in par, Jimmy chipping stiff for the four at the 13th, and then things began to happen to Wood.

MORRIS BROWN, CLARK TO PLAY

Annually for the last eight years, Clark University and Morris Brown College have met in the outstanding colored game of the football season here on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November 26. Ponce de Leon park will be the scene of their eighth meeting at 2 o'clock.

The colored population of the city look forward to this game as the most important of the year and at least 10,000 annually attend, along with several thousand whites who occasionally attend colored games.

Clark University, with a less impressive record this fall, stands like a block of granite in Morris Brown's way to another championship. Although the Wolverines must beat Tuskegee after the Clark game here December 5, the Clark game is considered as the most important barrier in their march to the coveted title.

St. Anselm Holds Holy Cross to Tie

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 21.—(UP)—Little St. Anselm's College, playing its second season of collegiate football, remained in the select group of undefeated eastern teams today by holding Holy Cross, an overwhelming favorite, to a scoreless tie before a crowd of 15,000.

The only scores recorded against the visitors from Manchester, N. H., this season are two safeties.

Spirida attempted a field goal from Holy Cross' 29-yard line in the final play of the game, but Gavin and Carr blocked the attempt. Earlier in the closing quarter, St. Anselm worked its way to the Holy Cross 17-yard line for a first down. Two line thrusts by Murphy and Butchka failed to gain and Holy Cross took possession after Kelley's two passes into the end zone were incomplete.

ARVEN TOURNEY BEGINS FEB. 19

Thomasville Golf Meet To Carry Purse of $3,000.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Nov. 21.—The Thomasville open golf tournament has been formally set for next February on the 19th, 20th and 21st, according to an announcement here Friday morning by Leland W. Crews, local pro, and manager of the Glen Arven Country Club.

Mr. Crews has just returned from a meeting of the P. G. A. at Pinehurst, N. C., where the national tournament of the professionals is being held and there presented the petition for a Thomasville open.

The 1937 tournament will carry a $3,000 purse and it will be the first of the southern tournaments held after the close of the California season. The pros participating in the Thomasville open will here direct from California and will open up the southern season at Glen Arven. Mr. Crews met many of the leading professionals at Pinehurst, among them being Sarazen, Manero, Revolta, Picard and others who expressed an intention of being present here for the February tournament.

The Thomasville open has become a fixture in the pro tournament routine and there is much interest here in the forthcoming event. The dates set for the tourney are very desirable, starting on Friday and winding up on Sunday as was the case last spring.

PURDUE IS TIED BY INDIANA, 20-20

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 21.—(AP) They rained forward passes all over Ross Ade stadium here today as Purdue and Indiana fought to a 20-to20 tie in as spectacular a football battle as ever took place in the 40-year rivalry between the two state schools.

With a tie for second place in the Western conference at stake the two teams put on an aerial offensive show in the last half which saw six touchdowns scored and left the capacity crowd of 30,000 fans in a frenzy at the finish.

After the second-half kickoff, two quick passes to Zachary from Cecil Isbell gave Purdue its first touchdown.

A blocked punt which Purdue recovered gave the Boilermakers their second chance and Cecil Isbell heaved one to Stalcup for another six-point marker.

Huffman started the passing for Indiana and sent the ball over twice on tosses to Kenderdine.

Purdue fumbled and Indiana recovered on the Boilermaker 15. Then Cec Isbell dropped the ball and Indiana recovered. Huffman promptly heaved to Beasley for a touchdown and Miller made the point.

In a desperate rally, Zachary took a pass over the goal line for a touchdown. Cec Isbell took careful aim in the darkness and place-kicked the extra point.

Vandy Draws 57,756 In Six Home Games

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 21.—(AP) The Vanderbilt Commodores, in six homes games this season, attracted a total of 57,756 paid customers, the business office reported today.

This figure was an increase of 13,889 over the 1935 total.

The average for the six games was 9,626 spectators, with the Tennessee game drawing 19,443, almost twice as large as the other two top-notch home games with Georgia Tech and L. S. U.

LEHIGH WINS.

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Lehigh pushed over three second-half touchdowns on Lafayette today for an 18-to-0 victory over their traditional rivals. Sustained marches of 58 and 45 yards in the third period and a 37-yard run by Hoppock in the last period scored the touchdowns.

Fred Perry Signs For Net Pictures

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.—(AP) Fred Perry, British tennis star who recently turned pro, signed a film contract today and announced he would make his permanent home in Hollywood.

Perry, husband of Screen Actress Helen Vinson, said he would confine tennis activities to the United States.

"She said she would never marry an actor," Perry commented, laughing. "But she never counted on this."

His contract calls for a tennis short subject, with probably others to follow.

He will start a professional tour in January, he said.

BERKELEY BEARS DOWN STANFORD BY 13 TO 0 SCORE

82,000 See Winners Check Indian Threat, Then Start Aerial Attack.

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Climaxing a season which started with defeat and disappointment and ended in sensational victories, University of California's Bears defeated their oldest football rivals, Stanford's Indians, 20 to 0, today before a sell-out crowd of 82,000 fans.

The first capacity throng to fill this stadium since 1928 saw touchdown marches in each of the last three periods net California its first victory over Stanford since 1931.

Staving off a Stanford scoring threat shortly after the game opened, the Bears called on a line-crunching, pass-throwing sophomore fullback, Vic Botarri, of Vallejo, Cal., for the spark that turned what had been expected to be a close encounter into a rout.

California scored early in the second quarter. Left End Henry Sparks taking a 35-yard pass from Bottari over the goal line.

In the third Chapman passed to Right End Schwartz for 28 yards. Then Bill Archer, sub left half, went over from one foot. Sparks added the extra tally.

Midway of the last period, Chapman intercepted a pass by Calvelli and returned 36 yards to Stanford's 18. From the 2-yard line Bottari lateraled to Chapman for the final score.

TARHEELS BEAT GAMECOCKS, 14-0

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 21.—(AP) North Carolina subdued an improved South Carolina team, 14 to 0, in the first half of the battle of the Carolinas today and kept control throughout a scoreless second half before a home-coming crowd of 10,000.

Jim Hutchins, 190-pound pile-driving fullback smashed 28 yards off guard to the opening touchdown soon after entering the game and spark-plugged the Tarheels from then on.

The second score, on six-yard plunge by Little, nimble Tarheel quarterback, capped a 63-yard drive in which Hutchins bucked the line for five yards at a try and alternated his runs with passes to Watson.

Tom Burnette, Tarheel halfback, booted the extra point after each touchdown.

Andy Bershak, North Carolina end, snagged Gamecock passers for repeated losses in pacing a star defense that broke up South Carolina aerials at crucial moments.

Pro Football To Hit Florida This Season

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 21.—(UP)—Florida's crowded winter sports program may be augmented this year by professional football.

Football Enterprises, Inc., a Jacksonville organization, today announced an attempt to launch professional football in Florida by bringing two American professional league teams south for a series.

Officials of the organization hope eventually to form a six-team league, playing a full schedule at major winter resorts.

The experiment will be launched by the New York Yankees and the Boston Shamrocks. They will clash in a night game here December 16, then go to Tampa, Miami and perhaps other tourist centers.

The only other attempt to establish pro football here was an outstanding financial "flop." The venture was made nine years ago by Red Grange and Ernie Nevers.

Army Will Retain Coach Gar Davidson

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 21.—(UP)—Lieutenant Gar Davidson, Army football coach, will be retained another year, it was announced today. Davidson, who has coached Army for four seasons, had been expected to be returned to active military service at the end of this campaign.

Kilgore Is Tapped By Honorary Frat

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 21.—Elected because of his fine scholarship record, his interest in the textile field and his general character, Wilton Kilgore, the ace of Alabama Polytechnic Institute's backfield this season, has been tapped by Phi Psi, national honorary textile engineering fraternity. Kilgore, who is captain-elect of Auburn's 1937 track and field team and is the Southeastern conference 440 champion, is probably the south's No. 1 all-around fullback on the gridiron. He is a senior in textile engineering.

WHAT PHYSICAL AND MENTAL FATIGUE DOES
TO MEN PAST 40
Many men at 40, in perfect health, without an ache or pain, wonder why they aren't as strong and as vigorous as they were 5 or 10 years ago. Mental and physical fatigue is the cause in the majority of cases. Fortunately, this condition can be helped by the use of a recently discovered hormone. This hormone stimulates the glandular system to greater activity—helps build up lowered vitality.
This hormone is now available, together with other valuable ingredients, in Zo-ak Tablets (Blue Box Men—Orange Box Women) and are sold and recommended by: Jacobs and Taylors Drug Stores. Zo-ak is the formula of a distinguished American physician, so you can take it with confidence. It contains no Nux Vomica (strychnine) or any other harmful drug. Free booklet called "For Men Who Want to Live," will be sent in a plain sealed envelope by Zo-ak Co., 56 W. 45th St., N. Y. Ask for Zo-ak economy size. You save $1. —(adv.)

By FREDERICK GARDNER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Buying forces exhibited a little more courage in today's stock market and recently depressed leaders were given an upward push for fractions to 2 points generally. There were a few much wider advances.

Brokers suggested the recovery may have been due partly to technical reasons connected with sharp declines of the previous two sessions. In addition, tension over European war dangers appeared to have lessened and more attention was paid to highly favorable domestic business factors.

The ability of utilities and rails to rally was a cheering influence. The comeback, however, was accomplished on relatively small volume. Transfers totaled 802,260 shares against 1,154,330 last Saturday, when the trend was downward. The Associated Press average of 60 issues was up .5 of a point at 71.3.

The dividend flow tapered off for the week-end but was expected to start again Monday. Earnings statements of the rails stimulated support for the transportation group. Steels found favor as expansion plans were announced by Youngstown Sheet & Tube. Rubber and sugar company shares were aided by predictions of expanding consumption. The power and light division, long behind the market, came forward on earnings prospects and hopes of near-by favorable court decisions.

On the cloudy side of the picture was the probability of new trading restrictions being imposed by the federal reserve board and Securities and Exchange Commission and fears that near-future net incomes of corporations may be affected by the widespread wage-boosting movement.

Guantanamo Sugar preferred was up 7 points at 50. Other conspicuous gainers included United States Steel at 74 3-4, Bethlehem 71, Allied Chemical 234, Youngstown Sheet & Tube 83 3-8; Consolidated Edison 46 1-2, American Water Works 25 3-4, Santa Fe 73 3-4, Union Pacific 134, Anaconda 51 1-2, Cerro de Pasco 71 1-2, Sears-Roebuck 98, Montgomery Ward 64 3-4, Goodyear 29 3-8. United States Rubber 41 3-4, Newport Industries 23 1-2, Firestone 33 3-4 and Standard Oil of New Jersey 65 7-8.

Bonds did better. Wheat and corn at Chicago were off 1-2 cent a bushel to up 1-4. Cotton advanced 20 to 95 cents a bale. Foreign currencies were a shade higher in terms of the dollar.

NEW ORLEANS SPOT COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—Spot cotton closed steady, 9 points up. Sales 12.90; good middling 11.05; middling 6,077; steady. 7,872.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 12.09 cents a pound.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Cotton ended the week on the upgrade today. Prices moved forward from 25 to 50 cents a bale in active dealings.

The market closed at the best levels of the day with December at 11.78, March at 11.69, July at 11.62 and October at 11.25. Spot cotton followed the trend in futures, gaining 9 points. Middling at New Orleans was 12.20.

Buying came mostly from trade interests. Contracts were supplied by hedge selling and some liquidation, particularly in December.

With only one more full trading session before traders are issued against the December option, this position received most of the attention from the trade. The opinion prevailed at the end today that the option had been fairly well liquidated.

Behind the day's advance informed trade circles saw evidence of the inherent strength in the basis for actual cotton in interior points and the apparent scarcity of certain grades. Reports were current that middling inch cotton was bringing well above 13 cents a pound.

The government's ginnings report, while a little larger than expected, did not cause a ripple on the trading surface. A total of 10,766,378 bales would mean that only 1,700,000 bales more would be needed to reach the estimated total yield of 12,400,000 bales predicted earlier this month by the crop reporting board of the Department of Agriculture.

Crop analysts were of the opinion that the early movement of cotton this season has made a comparison of the November 14 ginning and total yield this season with previous seasons impractical. Last year 2,200,000 bales were ginned after the November 14 report, but most agreed that there was not that much cotton remaining in the fields.

Good cloth markets continued to help the buying side of dealings. Manchester and Worth Street both reported a heavy volume of business.

Port receipts 27,562; season, 4,228,312; last season, 4,325,352. Exports, 34,001; season, 2,194,486; last season, 2,134,265. Port stocks, 2,896,369. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston were 172,042; last year, 221,053. Spot sales at southern markets were 43,852; last year, 29,083.

COTTON PRICES GAIN ON N. Y. EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—A late wave of commission house buying lifted cotton prices sharply today following early irregularity.

March rallied from 11.62 to 11.78 but on a little profit-taking reacted to close at 11.71. Final prices generally were 4 to 19 points net higher.

The opening was irregular at 3 points decline to 2 advance with near month liquidation and foreign buying in the later positions the principal factors.

Prices however, were fairly steady as trade and spot houses continued to absorb the liquidation. Advices to the effect that the Italian government would abolish restrictions on the transfer of foreign funds on December 1 was regarded constructively and attracted some of the late buying.

Ginnings of 10,766,378 bales prior to November 14 as reported by the Census Bureau at the opening were in line with trade expectations. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 176,000 bales against 245,000 last year and 116,000 two years ago.

BIG RECEPTION GIVEN CHYRSLER AT SHOW

Biggest Crowds in Recent Years Swarm Exhibit Show.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The acid test of the New York show finds the 1937 Chrysler line again triumphant. More orders and more "live" prospects were secured in the first three days of the big exhibition than in any other three days in recent years. Naturally, the bulk of the business was in the new low-priced Chrysler Royal, but the percentage of increase in sales of the Chrysler Imperial and Chrysler Airflow indicates to company officials that there is going to be a brisk demand this season for cars in the middle and upper brackets. This condition, by the way, applies not only to New York, which always buys a big proportion of the more expensive cars, but to the country generally.

The reception accorded the Royal by the New York public was most gratifying to Chrysler. Judging by the comments heard, Chrysler engineers hit a very popular chord when they gave this car exceptional roominess. One point of sales resistance to some of the lower-priced cars has been lack of generous interior dimensions. The Royal, which seats three passengers comfortably on either the front or rear seat of its sedan models, completely breaks down this barrier.

More than ever before, motorists seem to be manifesting an interest in the economical aspect of their cars. Here again the Royal has scored.

"The American public is rapidly coming to realize that it need no longer be necessary to run up big fuel and oil bills in order to secure brilliant performance," said Joseph W. Frazer, vice president of the Chrysler sales division. "Money saved on gasoline is money kept in one's pocket. The new gold seal engine that was designed by our engineers for the Royal, is the finest combination of performance and economy that we have yet achieved. Extensive tests made under actual driving conditions have proved that an owner can expect from 18 to 24 miles per gallon, even when much of the driving is in traffic with frequent stops for lights. This is a remarkable figure considering the size of the car and the fact that its engine develops 93 horsepower.

"Exceptional gasoline mileage is to be had throughout our 1937 line. Even the big Chrysler Airflow, because of its scientific streamlining that cuts down wind resistance, has a record of 18.1 miles per gallon on a transcontinental trip. We are sure that this economy of operation is going to be a big factor in sales."

ATLANTA MISSION ASKS FOR CHARTER

Rev. Felton Williams Tells Plans for Needy Under Expanded Program.

Application for charter has been made by the Atlanta Mission, the Rev. Felton Williams, director, announced yesterday.

Operating under a charter, the Mission plans to conduct a downtown home for homeless men and children, a community center for children in connection with the Sunday schools and churches, and summer camps for undernourished and physically defective children, Rev. Williams said.

Five new members of the executive board of the Mission were added at a meeting yesterday. New committee members are Allen Barr, president of the State Junior Chamber of Commerce; H. G. Garner, attorney and representative of the American Business Club; Earl Carmain, attorney, and representative of the Tammany Club; H. O. Bray, representative of the Carpenters' Union, and Dr. Z. S. Cowan, president.

The Atlanta Mission is located at 125 Ivy street, N. E., and provides 5,000 beds and meals each month for homeless men, including sick, old men and runaway boys, Williams said. Religious services are conducted each night and material and spiritual relief provided, he said.

Pontiac Dealers and Salesmen Attend School

Under the direction of F. C. Bray, Atlanta zone manager, and George L. Marvin, nationally known sales training expert, Atlanta territory Pontiac dealers and salesmen have just completed a course conducted at the Ansley hotel. This meeting in Atlanta was one of 58 being held throughout the country.

Crowds Throng Ford Salesrooms

Always awaited with eagerness, the new 1937 Fords created even more interest than when the company announced the model "A." The above scene, made in the showrooms of Ernest G. Beaudry, popular Ford dealer, gives an idea of the thoroughness with which the public scrutinized these cars.

FORD DEALER ORDERS HIGHEST FOR DECEMBER

Forecasts Largest December In History of Company.

December dealer orders of 1937 Ford V-8 trucks and commercial cars for domestic use are the largest in the history of the Ford Motor Company, totaling 35,043 units, it was announced at the home office of the company.

The record-breaking December total is credited to public acceptance of the new 60-horsepower engine and other new features of the 1937 trucks and commercial cars as well as to the general improvement in business and agricultural conditions.

An improved 85-horsepower V-8 engine is offered in addition to the 60-horsepower V-8 engine. Engines incorporate many advanced engineering principles.

A feature of the commercial car line is the new 112-inch stake. Both trucks and commercial cars have been improved in appearance by means of new styling and changes in the design of hood louvers, radiator shell and radiator grille.

RITES ARE SET TODAY FOR MRS. P. S. CLEIN

Final rites for Mrs. Etta S. Clein, wife of Phillip S. Clein, and prominent in Atlanta's Jewish community, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the residence, 404 Washington street, S. W.

The Revs. T. Geffen and Harry Epstein, and Cantor M. Landman, will officiate, and burial will be in Greenwood cemetery, under direction of Sam R. Greenberg. Mrs. Clein died Friday night, following a long illness.

Klein is an official of Congregation Ahavath Achim.

When the White Stripe Wriggles It's Time for You To Go Slow

A new technique in highway marking by which the traditional white guide line down the center of a roadway is changed to a waving wriggle when the road approaches an intersection is described in the current issue of Time magazine which, published today, describes tests of the new method now under way on the Pacific coast.

"A doctor once told City Traffic Engineer Ralph Dorsey, of Los Angeles, that in night driving a motorist's eyes become so sensitized to the white stripe painted down the middle of many highways that he follows it automatically, is thus likely to be drawn into intersectional crashes." Time reports. "The doctor suggested that there should be a signal to the eye which would warn the brain of an intersection ahead. Last week, Engineer Dorsey's idea of a good signal was amazing drivers at some dozen dangerous crossings in Los Angeles' San Fernando valley section.

"For 200 feet on each side of each intersection Engineer Dorsey removed the straight white strips, substituted a stripe with a snake-like wriggle. In the white paint are millions of glass beads one twenty-thousandths of an inch in diameter, making the wavy line a streak of fire in the headlights. Observing that it would take time to test his signal's efficiency. Typical driver reaction was that of Fire Chief Ralph Scott. Encountering the wriggle for the first time, he snorted to his wife: 'You know, I'm not drunk, but that line's moving!'"

RAIL LABOR BILL UPHELD BY COURT

Suit, Involving Union Dues Deductions, Brought Up by Workers.

DENVER, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Constitutionality of the railway labor act, as amended, was upheld by the federal circuit court of appeals today.

The suit was brought by the Brotherhood of Railway Shop Crafts of America, Rock Island system, against trustees of the Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf Railroad Company and the Chicago Rock Island and Pacific. It involved union dues deductions.

The act forbids railroads to deduct union dues from employes' wages.

The case was appealed from the Kansas federal district court.

The company deducted dues from pay envelopes until 1934, when it called the union's attention to the provision in the railway labor act, the suit said.

The union contended the amendment infringed upon the fifth amendment to the constitution. The company notified the union it would make no more deductions unless ordered by court.

COURT HOLDS GRANTOR HAS POWER TO REVOKE

The court of appeals laid down the rule yesterday that the same authority which grants a beer license "retains the power to revoke it for due cause."

The court upheld Superior Judge Claude Porter, of Floyd superior court, who refused to review a case growing out of the Rome city commission's expressed intention of revoking the license of Mrs. A. C. Ebling and Miss I. C. Ebling.

"A contract to sell beer is neither a contract nor a right of property within the legal and constitutional meaning of those terms," the court of appeals said.

The city of Rome charged whisky had been found in the Eblings' restaurant.

Blind May 'See' Wally By 'Portrait' in Braille

Mrs. Wally Simpson has been done in Braille.

WPA co-operation now makes it possible for the blind of Georgia to inform themselves as to the physical attractiveness of the British king's reputed fiance.

The Braille Guide, a daily and weekly publication, issued for the information of the blind, is published for 100 persons in Georgia who are being taught to read Braille or are employed in factories operated for blind workers.

Through translated "portraits" of world notables, the blind are enabled to gain impressions of the physical features of persons prominent in today's news. The latest issues have carried portraits of President Roosevelt, the Dionne quintuplets, Mrs. Carla DeVries, who kissed Hitler during the Olympic games," and Mrs. Simpson.

SUES FOR MILLION

Atlantan, Beauty Winner, Claims Contract Breach.

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Virginia Cogswell, 28, of Atlanta, Ga., who said she was one time known as the "Georgia Peach," won the "Miss America" title in 1924, and had been married seven times, filed a $1,000,000 damage suit here today against a New York firm.

Mrs. Cogswell alleged the firm sent her here to manage a local store, agreed to compensate her with 2 per cent of net sales, and replaced her with another manager in breach of a contract which called for two weeks' notice.

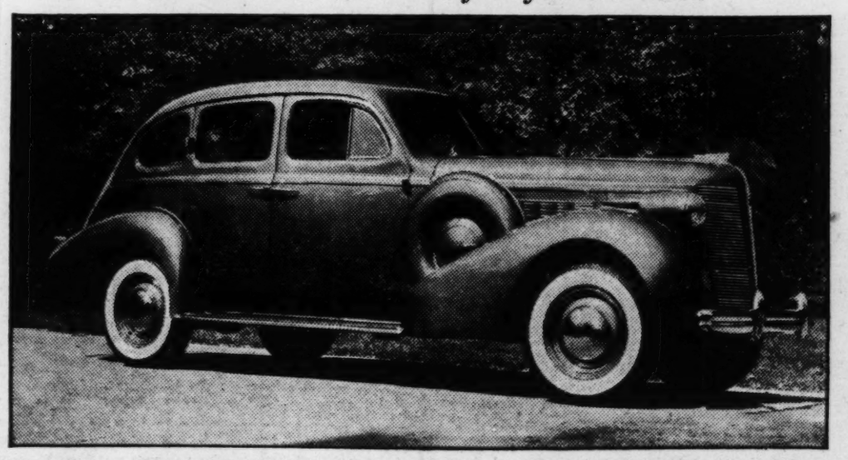

INJURED MAN IS FOUND LYING BESIDE TRACKS

An unidentified man found yesterday morning lying beside the railroad tracks a mile and a half from Red Oak was in an unconscious condition last night at Piedmont hospital, where his condition was said to be critical.

Fulton county police were informed by witnesses that the man fell from a railroad train. Details were lacking.

The victim was described as 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weight about 180 pounds. H has blond, curly hair.

Buick Adds New Body Style for 1937

One of six new body styles has been added to Buick's lines for 1937 in this plain-back series 40 special five-passenger, four-door sedan. It has a 100-horsepower, valve-in-head, straight eight engine and is built on a 122-inch wheelbase chassis. Jumbo size luggage space is provided in the tail of this smart new model. It is one of the lower priced cars of the four Buick 1937 lines. The new Buicks are on display here in the showrooms of Anthony Buick, Inc., 230 Spring street, N. W.

BUICK PRODUCTION NEARS NEW RECORD

Plant Comes Within a Few Cars of Largest Single Day Production.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 21.—The Buick Motor Company this week came within a few cars of an all-time high in daily production, it was announced today by Harlow H. Curtice, president, in New York, for the 1937 automobile show.

In response to one of the strongest retail demands ever experienced by the company, he said, output has been increased to the limits of capacity. A new schedule for December calls for the production of 28,000 cars.

The figures were made public by the executive simultaneously with an announcement to the nation-wide Buick dealer organization whose members are clamoring for more cars. It was designed to assure dealers everywhere as well as their customers that the Buick factories are meeting the unprecedented demand with fast shipments of cars to all points to the end that prompt delivery may be made on retail orders.

Production on Friday, November 6, totaled 1,333 cars, of which 1,061 were for domestic delivery not including the west coast, Mr. Curtice said. This output consisted of 100 units for exports, 172 cars assembled in the Los Angeles plant of General Motors for distribution in the Pacific states and the 1,061 cars built at Flint for shipment elsewhere in the United States. He said output for Monday, November 9, was expected to exceed the above total with the heavy daily volume scheduled to continue.

Unfilled orders at the factory and in zone points throughout the country were placed at 56,123 nits.

Commenting on market conditions, the Buick president reaffirmed his belief that the progress of recovery exceeds the average estimation of it and that 1937 will be the best post-depression year experienced by the industry. He said the Buick Motor Company now is traveling at the rate of 247,000 cars for the 1937 model year and that there will be no slackening in the company's production departments.

LIFE'S TOO SHORT

To be worrying with an old car on a cold morning—when the battery is weak and the starter goes b-r-r-z and then quits.

Probably it's barefooted and needs new shoes. You can keep on spending and spending—and in the end it's the same old car, not worth a nickel more.

Replace it with a later model with up-to-date improvements—reconditioned the ANTHONY WAY—the old car as part payment. Small monthly payments for the balance.

'FORGOTTEN' PRISONER RELEASED FROM JAIL

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The "forgotten man" of the Cook county jail went free today after two and a half years' imprisonment for contempt of court in failing to turn over $35,282 to an estate.

Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher released Raymond E. Prochnow because he had "served long enough to serve the requirements of the law."

Prochnow was greeted by his wife. They hurried to see his son, who had never been told their father was in jail.

Prochnow is 39 and an investment broker.

Victim of Heart Attack

HARRY YORK.

FORMER COUNCILMAN, HARRY YORK, PASSES

Well-Known Atlantan Stricken by Heart Attack While at Work.

Former Councilman Harry York, 52, of 158 Baker street, N. W., died yesterday as a result of a heart attack.

He was stricken while at work at the Ansley hotel. Doctors summoned ambulances and he was rushed to Grady hospital for emergency treatment. He was pronounced dead on arrival.

York was one of the most prominent figures in local politics for several years and represented the sixth ward as a member of council. He also took an active interest in fraternal activities.

He was born in York, England, and came to America in 1906. For several years he was a horticulturist at the Gould estate, on Long Island, N. Y. When he first came to Atlanta he became affiliated with a local floral company, but later was associated in insurance and bonding fields.

He is survived by his widow, the former Miss Annie Maston; a son, Edwin York; his mother-in-law, Mrs. Martha Maston; a sister-in-law, Miss Lula Maston, and two brothers-in-law, George F. and William Maston Jr.

Services will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon from the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes, the Rev. W. J. DeBardeleben officiating. Interment will be at Magnolia cemetery.

GIRLS' HIGH TIMES WINS DIXIE HONOR

All-Southern Rating Given Atlanta School Paper by Press Body.

Girls' High Times, weekly publication of Girls' High school, was awarded all-southern honor rating by the Southern Interscholastic Press Association at its Lexington, Va., convention yesterday.

The rating was awarded in recognition of editorial policy, make-up of the paper and general style, it was announced. This was the first year the Girls' High publication had entered for a rating. The paper, however, has won numerous honors conferred by the Georgia Scholastic Press Association, which meets in Athens each spring.

The Times was listed among the papers of Class A high schools with enrollment above 1,150, and was entered in competition with high school papers from 12 states. Only three other papers received such a rating.

Delegates to the convention representing the paper were Miss Katherine Parker, faculty adviser; Miss Doris Wenkel, editor; Miss Margaret Eisman, humor editor, and Miss Grace Goldstein, business manager. They are expected to return to Atlanta from the convention today with the honor rating certificate.

"We are proud of this distinctive honor," Evelyn Mathis, staff member, said. "The award was a surprise in that this was the first time the paper had been entered for the rating."

QUADS SURVIVOR GROWS.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Little Lee Earl Bridges, lone survivor of quadruplets born in a storm-swept cabin near Henath, Mo., three weeks ago, was on the road to becoming a heavyweight today.

ON THE RADIO WAVES TODAY

Penner Offers 'At Home' Program; Francia White Will Sing Tonight

Richard Crooks, Joan Marsh and Rubinoff Included on Programs.

By SAMUEL E. CLARKE.

Joe Penner in his new series is decidedly making a name for himself. The theme is different and the execution by Penner and his assistants is capably handled.

Joe, whose real name is Pinter, was born on November 11, 1904, in Budapest and arrived in America at the age of nine with his grandfather. He has done many odd jobs on his way up from singing in a choir to working in an auto factory. The comedian made his first radio appearance with Rudy Vallee in July, 1933, and was first seen on Broadway in the Greenwich Village Follies.

The well-intended but rather bungling Joe, black sheep of the "Park Avenue Penners," will embark upon another half-hour of his escapades when his Park Avenue family presents an "at home" broadcast to be heard over WGST at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The musical part of the program will feature Joy Hodges, soloists, with Jimmie Grier's orchestra, who will sing "Runnin' Wild." Grier's musicians will play "The Way You Look Tonight," "Bye Bye Baby," "Hors D'Ouvres" and "Tea On the Terrace."

JOE PENNER.

FRANCIA WHITE.

FRANCIA WHITE.

Francia White, soprano, will be featured with Nelson Eddy, baritone, during the "Open House" broadcast to be heard over WGST at 7 o'clock tonight. Miss White, who is from the west coast, is known in particular for her work as a coloratura soprano in operetta and musical comedy.

Eddy will be heard in selections including the "Son of God Goes Forth to War," "On the Road to Mandalay" and Massenet's "Vision Fugitive." Francia White will sing "I'll See You Again" from "Bittersweet."

The Pasternack medley will include "Swanee River," "Old Black Joe," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair," "Oh Susannah," "Camptown Races" and "Hard Times."

Josef Pasternack, who conducts the music for this program, credits the great Toscanini with having first put the baton in his hands.

Twenty-five years ago Pasternack was just another musician playing the viola under Toscanini in the Metropolitan Opera orchestra. One night, just before the performance the clarinet soloist was taken ill and Pasternack volunteered to take his place. To Toscanini's astonishment, he revealed that he could play every instrument except the harp. "You should be a conductor," said Toscanini, and Pasternack took him at his word.

BOWES' ANNIVERSARY.

The beginning of the fifteenth consecutive year on the air of the "Capitol Family" will be celebrated when Major Bowes marshals his regular entertainers and guest artists for the program to be heard over WGST at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

A satire on the major's "Amateur Hour" as presented by Ed East and Ralph Dumke will be the comedy highpoint for the birthday broadcast. The guest performances will also include songs by Joan Marsh, radio, stage and screen singing star, and the reading by Charles Hanson Towne of his own poem, "Around the Corner." Mr. Towne's reading of the verse is an annual feature of the program.

Special arrangements are being made for music to be sung and played by regular members of the "Capitol Family," including Helen Alexander, soprano; Nicholas Cosentino, tenor; Edward Matthews, baritone; Charles Magnante, accordionist; Sam Herman, xylophonist, and Waldo Mayo's orchestra.

TALK FROM LONDON.

Vernon Bartlett, diplomatic correspondent of the London News Chronicle, will outline current European problems for American listeners in a special trans-Atlantic Bulletin from London to be heard over WGST at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon.

In addition to his newspaper activities, Bartlett is one of the leading radio commentators of Great Britain.

PITTSBURGH SYMPHONY.

Reed Kennedy, former Pittsburgher whose baritone voice is winning constantly increasing acclaim on notable air shows, gives his fifth performance of the season with Antonio Modarelli and the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra as soloist on their program of "The Music You Love," to be heard over WGST at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Since his network debut two years ago, Kennedy has attracted much attention through his interpretation of operatic arias. His first group will comprise the stirring "Toreador Song" from Bizet's "Carmen" and "Land of Degradashun."

Following "On the Trail," from Ferde Grofe's "Grand Canyon" Suite, and the "Naila" waltzes played by the orchestra, Kennedy will sing Walter Damrosch's setting to the Kipling poem, "Danny Deever." His last number will be the "Desert Song" from Romberg's operetta of the same title.

Modarelli and the orchestra will open the program with a seldom heard work of Edward Grieg's.

AUDITIONS OF AIR.

Three outstanding singers will be the featured performers during the "Metropolitan Auditions of the Air" broadcast to be heard over WSB at 2 o'clock this afternoon. These entertainers are Jean Dickinson, coloratura soprano; George Britton, Chicago baritone, and Louise Bernhardt, mezzo-soprano, who comes from the same town as Geraldine Farrar.

Miss Dickinson was born in Canada and lived there for six years. Her early ambition was to be an actress and has played in minor Shakespearean roles in the west. At 16 she began to study voice and has sung operatic roles in the Denver Civic Grand Opera Company. George Britton, a native of Chicago, worked in sand and gravel pits to get money to further his education. He has always loved singing, and when he heard of the Juilliard Music School Fellowship he decided to try for it, and won. Louise Bernhardt comes from Melrose, Mass., and has studied music in Italy. She has sung in the American Opera Company, the San Carlo Opera Company and the Chicago Civic Opera Company. In 1931 she won the Naumburg prize, which gives the winner a Town Hall recital in New York.

Wilfred Pelletier, conductor of the Metropolitan opera orchestra, will direct the orchestra for the "Metropolitan Auditions of the Air," and Dr. John Erskine will be master of ceremonies today in place of Edward Johnson.

BAKER'S "COURTSHIP."

Gobbling Phil Baker, who lives in Mamaroneck because he likes that part best, will put out a Turkey day edition of the "Gasette" which will feature the "Courtship of Miles Standish" during his broadcast to be heard over WGST at 6:30 o'clock this evening.

Baker's version will have his dependable stooges playing important roles. Agnes Moorehead, will step to the fore as the desirable colonial girl; "Bottle" will lend authenticity to the interpretation of Miles Standish, while the backward Baker will plead his rival's case before the lovely heroine.

Hal Kemp's orchestra will supply the dressing for the program with "Let's Swing It" and "We're in the Money." Skinny Ennis will sing "With Plenty of Money and You" and the Seven G's will offer "Did You Mean It?"

RUBINOFF AND EDDIE.

Two old radio associates and friends will be reunited during Eddie Cantor's broadcast when Rubinoff and his violin will be heard over WGST at 7:30 o'clock tonight, as guest of the banjo-eyed comedian.

This air performance will mark the anniversary of Rubinoff's twenty-fifth year in the theater, and unless all plans go awry Cantor will force him to speak for the first time over the air. Rubinoff, as usual, claims that Cantor is slightly amiss in this contention and that he will let his famed Stradivarius do his talking for him, as it has done in the past.

Arthur Boran, radio impersonator, will also be a guest as will Mrs. Jimmie Wallington, the former Betty Jane Cooper, who will be heard in a singing and tap dancing role.

The music of Jacques Renard and his orchestra will be heard in several selections and Deanna Durbin, 13-year-old singer, will bring to the microphone another selection in her unusual soprano voice.

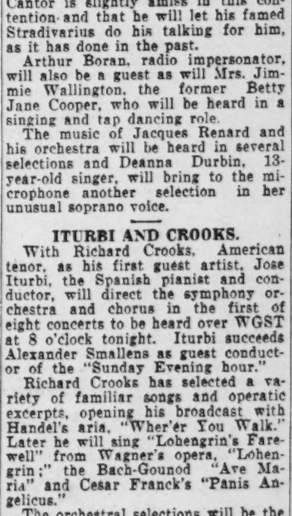

ITURBI AND CROOKS.

With Richard Crooks, American tenor, as his first guest artist, Jose Iturbi, the Spanish pianist and conductor, will direct the symphony orchestra and chorus in the first of eight concerts to be heard over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight. Iturbi succeeds Alexander Smallens as guest conductor of the "Sunday Evening hour."

Richard Crooks has selected a variety of familiar songs and operatic excerpts, opening his broadcast with Handel's aria, "Wher'er You Walk." Later he will sing "Lohengrin's Farewell" from Wagner's opera, "Lohengrin;" the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria" and Cesar Franck's "Panis Angelicus."

The orchestral selections will be the overture to Schubert's "Rosamunde," the introduction to Moussorgsky's "Khovantchina," and two Spanish dances from Manuel De Falla's "The Three Cornered Hat."

Beverly on "Workshop"

Beverly Younger, Texas actress, will make her New York dramatic debut on a future program of the "Columbia Workshop." Miss Younger, who has played stock in various parts of the country, has been added as a regular member of the "Workshop" troupe.

COMMUNITY SING.

The spirit of Thanksgiving day, as originally conceived in this country, will be vocally expressed by members of a studio audience in a CBS Radio Playhouse during the "Community Sing" program to be heard over WGST at 9 o'clock tonight.

Milton Berle, matching his wit with that of "the sponsor's daughter," will offer a special Thanksgiving comedy skit.

Billy Jones and Ernie Hare will contribute to the holiday mood of the program by singing a medley of more modern Thanksgiving selections.

Additional entertainment includes specialties by Wendell Hall, "Community Sing's" leader, and Andy Sannella's orchestra.

NEWS AND NOTES.

Edith Dick, of the "Hit Parade," used to be a dancer. Incidentally, the reason the "Hit Parade" will cut down to two half-hour shows is not enough song hits . . . Vera Van has retired from radio torch-singing business to marry George Ward on Thanksgiving Day. . . . Richard Himber spent all of his spare time during the past week at the New York automobile show. . . . Russ Morgan will make a one-night stand tour during Thanksgiving week. . . . Benay Venuta's name used to be Benevnuta Crooke, and Jacques Renard's was Jacob Stavinsky. In the movies you will see him billed as Charles Goring, although in radio and real life his name is Igor Gorin. . . . Abe Lyman made his New York debut at the Hotel New Yorker. . . Phil Baker is staying close to home these days as his wife is expecting the third Baker heir. The first was born on Thanksgiving and the second on New Year's Day. . . A New York radio authority contends that the only cure for excess commercials on the air is to shoot all the announcers. Probably on the theory that announcer prevention is worth a pound of cure. . . . Cab Calloway's new number, "Frisco Flo," will be featured in his new film. . . . Dick Messner's band playing from the Park Central hotel in New York and heard over the Mutual network, has resumed his broadcasts dedicated to leading colleges. This idea was tried last winter and was a success.

GARNERS ARE HONORED BY BAYLOR UNIVERSITY

Doctor of Laws Degrees Conferred on Vice-President and Wife.

WACO, Texas, Nov. 21.—(AP)—On the eve of his 67th birthday, Vice-President John Nance Garner donned cap and gown here today and joined Mrs. Garner to receive honorary doctor of laws degrees from Baylor University, the state's oldest educational institution.

Texas' most distinguished couple, applauded by 3,000 statesmen, educators, and friends, became the first husband and wife in the history of America to have honorary degrees conferred upon them at the same time.

President Pat M. Neff, of Baylor University, former governor of Texas, told the couple that though "they had walked with the great, we are proud of you in Texas because you have never lost the common touch."

Garner broke into a broad grin when introduced after the ceremony as "Dr. John Garner" and changed the solemnity of the occasion with his typical humor.

"I want to take one or two minutes—and that is more than I get in the senate—to express deep appreciation for the honor bestowed upon us," he said. "Language will not express how gracious, how proud, I am. I don't know of any honor that ever came to me in my life any greater than this old university has bestowed upon me today."

Congressman Fritz Lanham, of Fort Worth, said, "the course of the conspicious careers of Mr. and Mrs. Garner has been guided wisely by formulas prescribed by head and heart.

"In home and office alike, as efficient collaborators for the common good, they have manifested that rare wisdom which true education imparts."

MAN IS ORDERED HELD IN DEATH OF MERRITT

Coroner's Jury Recommends Campbell Be Charged in Jail Probe.

Recommendation that a charge of involuntary manslaughter be placed against Clark Campbell, of Lithonia, in connection with the death early Thursday morning of G. C. Merritt, 51, of 1126 Sells avenue, was contained yesterday in a verdict issued by Coroner Paul B. Donehoo.

The verdict, given following an inquest at the mortuary of J. Austin Dillon, also absolved police of any blame in connection with the case. Merritt died of a head injury suffered while lodged in the fourth-floor "bullpen" of police headquarters.

The verdict stated Merritt "came to his death from a basal skull fracture, produced by the deceased being knocked or pushed to the floor by Clark Campbell while both were incarcerated as prisoners at the Atlanta police station."

The coroner's statement then said: "We recommend that Clark Campbell be held on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. We further find that there was no maltreatment or neglect upon the part of any officer or employe of the Atlanta police station that in any way contributed to the death of the deceased."

The verdict followed an all-day hearing, at which several witnesses were questioned. Campbell is still being held on a charge of suspicion, and police announced the case would probably go to the grand jury.

Campbell is an enlisted man at Fort McPherson. Both he and Merritt were in the "bullpen," scene of many recent clashes between prisoners, on charges of drunkenness.

TWO ATLANTA REALTORS ON NATIONAL BOARDS

Frank C. Owens and Alvin Cates Honored at New Orleans Meeting.

A half-dozen or more of Atlanta realtors who attended the 29th annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in session during the past week at New Orleans, returned to the city Saturday. Others who attended will return today.

Two Atlanta realtors were honored by the national body. Frank C. Owens, of Draper-Owens Company, was elected to membership on the executive committee of the brokers' division, and Alvin B. Cates, of Adams-Cates Company, was re-elected as a member of the governing council of the national board. He was a member of this council for the past year.

"It was one of the largest attended and most successful conventions the national association has ever held," said Mr. Owens. "Every division of the association was well represented, and some very constructive and enlightening addresses were delivered. The hundreds of realtors from all over the United States were enthusiastic about future business conditions, and all predicted continued improved conditions, regarding real estate all over the country."

BUILDING MECHANICS GIVEN INCREASED PAY

National Hourly Wage Chart Shows How Gain Has Been Recorded.

The 1936 national wage chart of hourly wages paid to all types of building mechanics in 120 cities of the United States, and which has been issued annually since 1902, shows numerous increases over 1935. It is quite a contrast in relation to 1934 and 1935 comparisons where a division of raises and declines occurred. Among the major cities, Los Angeles is the only city where an unchanged building wage status was in vogue in 1936 as compared to 1935.

The hourly wages in practically all large cities of the east and west show that carpenters have been increased from 90 cents to $1 an hour in 1935, to $1.17 to $1.50 in 1936. Plumbers from an average of about $1.25 to $1.27 1-2. Painters have received on an average in the large cities of around 15 to 30 cents an hour increase. Bricklayers increased from $1.20 an hour to $1.50. In all lines of work there is an increase of from 15 to 30 cents an hour for 1936 over 1935.

Elizabeth, N. J., structural iron workers are the top paid building craft working 8 hours a day. Their hourly wage is $1.75, although a reduction when compared to the $2 hourly rate of last year. Chicago glaziers are the highest paid building craft working 7 hours a day. Their hourly rate is $1.80. New York electrical workers are the best paid building trade working 6 hours a day. Their rate is $1.70 an hour.

Asheville, N. C. pays the lowest rate of 25 cents an hour to laborers. Knoxville, Tenn., follows with a 30 cent hourly rate to the same craft.

Labor costs in 1936 are approximately 10 per cent ahead of 1935.

The building work week ranges from 30 to 48 hours and six, seven and eight hours in the work day. The established custom of most cities is eight hours a day and the 40-hour week.

Several cities anticipate wage increases on and after January 1, 1937. A 10 per cent increase for all building crafts of Rochester, N. Y., goes into effect after the first of the year.

Comparing present-day building wages with 1902 when this annual national chart was first published, an increase of 200 per cent is chalked up in the last 34 years. In 1902, Chicago craftsmen ranged between 45 and 55 cents an hour. Today their hourly wages are $1.50. Detroit in 1902 ranged between 25 cents an hour. Detroit wages now range between $1 and $1.25 an hour.

$25,000 STRUCTURE PLANNED ON PRYOR

Business House To Be Built at Nos. 213-215 by I. D. Weitz.

Work on excavation for the erection of a $25,000 business building has started at Nos. 213-215 South Pryor street.

The property is owned by I. D. Weitz, who is having the building erected as an investment by Bergman, Inc., with Ben Golden, of Bergman's, architectural designer.

The building will be directly across the street from Commercial High school. It will be two stories, of brick, with a handsome marble front, size 50x100. No tenant has as yet been selected for the proposed structure, which will be ready for occupancy within a few months, but several business concerns have made inquiry about it, and the owner is quite optimistic that it will prove a splendid investment for him.

DECATUR, AVONDALE GET NEW BUILDINGS

Handsome High School Is Planned; $40,000 Building Erected.

Building projects of interest are noted in two of Atlanta's suburban cities—Decatur and Avondale—involving some $100,000.

For Avondale comes a favorable report from PWA officials in Washington that a new 12-classroom high school will be built in that suburb. The amount involved, according to the report from Washington, is about $75,000, which includes some additions to school buildings in the district. However, the larger and more important project is the new high school, very much needed, citizens of Avondale declare.

The federal government will furnish 45 per cent of the cost, the citizens the remainder. It is said this may make necessary a municipal bond issue.

William J. Chase is the architect in charge of the work, and it is expected no time will be lost in getting to actual work on the building.

In Decatur, a new and spacious business building, costing around $40,000, has just been completed by Guy W. Rutland. The building is a handsome two-story structure, with marble front, erected on Atlanta avenue, one block west of Court square. It is fireproof, modern in every way, with 10 offices on the second floor. It is to be occupied by a new business for Decatur, the Hydraulic Hoist & Equipment Company, owned by Mr. Rutland. The company has moved in, and held its formal opening Friday.

SALES AND LEASES MADE BY M'CLURE

Farm Lands Are Included in Deals of Realty Company.

The following November sales and leases were announced through the McClure Realty Company yesterday, the sales being made by R. A. Ewing, of the company:

Mr. Ewing and Mr. Edwardy sold a farm and apple orchard in White county, six miles from Cleveland, Ga., to Frank Childs, of West Newbury, Mass., for $1,500.

Sold for Mrs. B. L. Edwards, house and lot at 1234 North avenue, N. E., to D. G. Head, Cleveland, Ga. Consideration on this deal was approximately $4,500, taking in exchange two houses and a lot at Clarkesville, Ga., for $2,750.

Sold for W. H. Oliver, four acres of land 1 1-2 miles east of Roswell to W. B. Word for $1,000 cash.

November leases made by E. Anderson through the McClure Realty Company:

E. B. Otwell, jeweler, 151 Mitchell street; owner, Gus T. Dodd.

Hollingsworth Floral Company, 76 Forsyth street, N. W., three-year lease; owner, Hugh T. Richardson.

H. G. Wells, barber shop, 158 Carnegie way; owner, Mrs. Dorothy High Petcet.

J. F. Torrence, restaurant, 92 Broad street, S. W., three-year lease; owner, Mrs. E. H. Gunby.

O. D. Smith, Whitehall Dental clinic; owner, Gus T. Dodd.

$12,390 WILL BE SPENT TO IMPROVE BUILDING

Work of remodeling the large building on the northeast corner of Peachtree and Pine streets, at a cost of $12,390, will be started immediately. The contract for the work has been let to the Barge-Thompson Company and the work must be completed in 65 work days, according to the contract.

This is the building recently secured under a long lease by the Lane drug-store concern.

According to the plans, the interior is to be completely gone over, a cafeteria is to be installed as a part of the street floor, and the entire corner of the building, at Peachtree and Pine streets, is to be made into a very handsome store for Lane occupancy.

SALES REPORTED BY HAAS-HOWELL

Realtors List $25,000 in Recent Home, Lot Transactions.

Recent sales to the amount of $25,000 were reported yesterday by Judson M. Garner, sales manager of Haas Howell & Dodd, realtors. The sales were made by Robert F. Head, G. W. Withers, Thomas Read, J. D. Brown, and H. F. Anderson, salesmen in the realty department. Following were the sales:

Advice on Writing A Classified Ad

In speaking before a real estate association in a distant state, on the matter of writing real estate advertisement, a speaker at the recent real estate board convention in New Orleans said:

"The readiness with which real estate can be sold depends on four things:

(1) The desirability of the property.

(2) The price asked for it.

(3) The state of the market.

(4) The way in which you word your offer.

"In writing a classified advertisement or want ad for the sale of property, just a few things are to be kept in mind. Remember, first of all, that the public does not like to be fooled nor have its time wasted. Therefore, state in your ad the facts concisely in regular sequence with no unnecessary verbiage. Tell them the true condition of the property. If it needs repairs, tell them that. If the kitchen has just been refinished, or has new linoleum, let the prospect know it.

"Remember this, that many times a sale is lost for the want of an additional word, or a line at the most, in an advertisement. A good formula to remember in the construction of real estate advertisements of both for sale or for rent, is the following: to get first the location of the property, because that is the first thing that comes in a person's mind. Secondly, the price; third, the type of home; fourth, the number of rooms, baths, conveniences, etc; fifth, size of the lot; sixth, a true statement of the condition of the property; seventh, transportation facilities; eighth, proximity of schools, churches, stores, etc. Then from this point on anything further that you might say, to my own way of thinking, is more or less gilding the lily."

LOW COST HOME NEED STRESSED BY REALTOR

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—"If we are to be a nation of home owners, we must initiate a plan of home financing that will enable the man in the low income bracket to buy a low-priced home on easy terms, said Robert E. Adams, of Tulsa, Okla., in addressing the land developers' and home builders' division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, at the association's 29th annual convention, in session here this week.

"Increase your mortgage term to from 10 to 20 years," said Mr. Adams, "lower your monthly payment of principal and interest; reduce the interest rate; include 1-12 of the annual taxes and insurance, and you bring all types of homes to a much larger market than ever before existed. We must plan and build 70 per cent of our new homes to cost, exclusive of land, $3,000, certainly less than $4,000."

WALL REALTY LISTS $30,000 SALES TOTAL

Largest Transaction Was Sale of 8-Unit Apartment on Boulevard Place.

Real estate sales aggregating $30,775, as made recently by the sales force of the Wall Realty Company, realtors, were announced yesterday by S. D. Wall, president. Of the eight sales listed, the largest and most important was the transfer of an eight-unit apartment at 575 Boulevard place, N. E., to an unnamed client. In this transaction a brick duplex building of six rooms each was traded, and the difference paid in cash. The apartment was purchased as an investment, the total price not given.

The following are the sales recently made:

Boland McLaughlin to Mrs. Lea Rose, 356 Pryor street, S. E., two-story frame house.

M. D. Norton to unnamed purchaser, 347-349 Central avenue, S. W., two-story frame duplex. Purchased for investment.

J. A. Wills to John Mansour, 305 and 311 Hunter street, S. E., two eight-room houses. Purchased for investment.

Mrs. A. F. Noyes to C. F. Bradly Sr., 877 Beecher street, S. W., six-room frame house. Purchased for residence.

James L. Mayson to Mrs. W. M. Sutton, 2055 Boulevard drive, N. E., Kirkwood, six-room frame house and lot. Purchased for residence.

E. T. Echols to unnamed purchaser, 40 acres of land with farm house. Near new WSB transmission station.

Mrs. E. H. Bolton to J. E. Allen, 44 Whitefoord avenue, N. E., six-room bungalow to be used for residence.

Exchange of 494-96 Parkway drive, N. E., brick duplex building with steam heat, consisting of six rooms to each apartment. Traded in on 575 Boulevard place, N. E., a two-story eight-unit brick apartment building.

Little Girl's Letter On Home Ownership

A splendid argument—"why one should own his own home"—is outlined in a very simple but charming letter written by a 12-year-old girl in a recent Omaha Bee News real estate contest and is reprinted from the Omaha Bulletin:

"I would like my daddy to own our home because then we would live in the same place a long time—always, maybe—and I wouldn't have to move away and leave my friends. I would always go to the same school where my friends go, and where I know the teachers and the principal.

"We could fix up our house and yard the way we want it, build cupboards in the kitchen and screen the front porch to suit mother, and I could have a tree house and swing, and maybe a fish pool. And we could plant flowers and bushes wherever we liked and be sure that we would get to see them grow and bloom.

"If my daddy bought our home, sometime we would have it all paid for, and then we would have more money to spend on things we want—like vacation trips or a bicycle, instead of putting so much into rent.

"And I would feel so important to be able to say, 'This is our home—we own it.'"

HARVESTER COMPANY PLANS LARGE ANNEX

A number of contractors have submitted bids for the building of an addition to the plant of the International Harvester Company of America, at 580 Whitehall street, of which E. R. Bush is Atlanta manager.

This additional building is to be built in the rear of the present plant, fronting mostly on Humphries street. It is to be one story and will afford the company about 15,000 more square feet of space. It will be used mainly for the assembling and erection of trucks. It is understood the improvement will cost about $50,000. The contract will be awarded within a very short time.

$18,000 WAREHOUSE CONTRACT AWARDED

Work is to begin at once on a one-story brick, steel and reinforced concrete warehouse at 276 Miller Reed avenue, S. E., for the Gaylord Container Company.

The contract has been let to the Beers-Collins Company, of Atlanta, at a price approximating $18,000.

VALUABLE INDUSTRIES ATTRACTED TO SOUTH

Dixie Eventually Will Become Great Manufacturing Area, Says Smith.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—Recent progress of new industry in the south and evidence that it is destined to be a great manufacturing area in the future was put before the National Association of Real Estate Boards at its annual convention here Thursday by George C. Smith, St. Louis, assistant to the president of the MKT lines, in an address given before the industrial property division of the association.

Industrially, the south is young, Mr. Smith said. Prophesying that it will gain industries at an accelerated pace, and that as this happens king cotton will no longer dominate the economy of the south, Mr. Smith cited as concrete evidence of the speed with which industrial development is taking place the fact that the Missouri-Kansas-Texas lines has announced one new industry or expanion on its rails for every working day so far this year.

"Actually on October 1, we were short only five days of that great record," Mr. Smith said. "With the uncertainties of the election out of the way we fully expect to finish 1936 with one a day every day."

U. S. Steel Expansion.

Speaking of the $30,000,000 expansion program to be undertaken by the United States Steel Corporation at the Birmingham plant of its subsidiary, the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, announcement of which October 15 he called "the most important industrial announcement of the year," Mr. Smith said:

"The carrying out of present plans of the corporation will certainly mark the end of the present depression so far as Birmingham and environs are concerned. But the announcement has an even greater significance than that. It was determined upon, 'with a view to the continued industrial growth of the south' and 'to provide tin plates for the ever-growing demand from the packing industry' there. The expansion program includes two batteries of coke ovens, a blooming mill, a continuous strip mill, producing steel sheets up to 48 inches wide, two continuous cold rolling mills and a tinning mill with a capacity of 4,000,000 base boxes of tin plate annually. Completion of these new facilities will require 1,500 construction workers and 2,500 operatives."

Lists New Industries Coming.

Among important new industries announced for the south Mr. Smith listed:

A tetra ethyl lead plant at Baton Rouge to cost $2,800,000.

A new cottonseed oil plant at Harlingen, Texas.

Three distilleries in Kentucky.

A rayon mill expansion at Rome, Ga., costing $2,800,000.

Three sugar mill expansions in Louisiana.

Several new and expanded oil refineries.

The rebuilding of 73 coke ovens at Birmingham, costing $2,000,000.

Contracts awarded and to be awarded for other building activities aggregate as follows:

Residential and commercial $174,605,000.

Public buildings, including schools $383,056,000.

Roads, sreets and paving $457,782,000.

Drainage, dredging and irrigation $127,143,000.

Filling stations and garages $9,273,000.

Levees, revetments, etc., $37,050,000.

Sewers, drainage and waterworks $109,224,000.

Total contracts awarded and to be awarded $1,820,378,000.

Cites Advantages.

Summing up the reasons why he believes the south will become more and more powerful industrially, Mr. Smith said:

"There is an abundance of raw materials, from the farm, the mine, the forest and the sea.

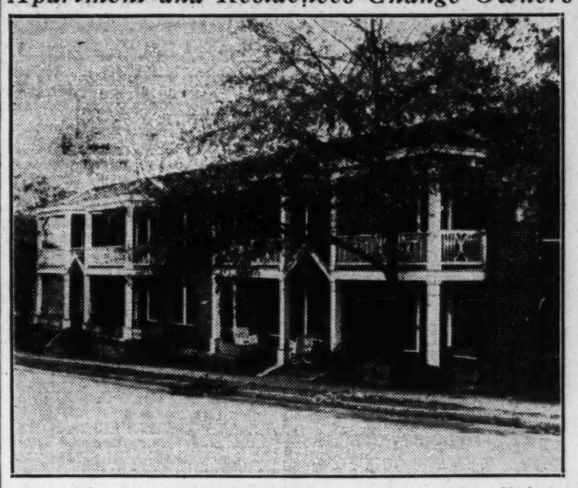

"Power is plentiful and cheap. Labor is abundant, efficient and comparatively less expensive than in the north.

"Water is plentiful and of excellent quality. Overhead costs are generally much lower than in the north.

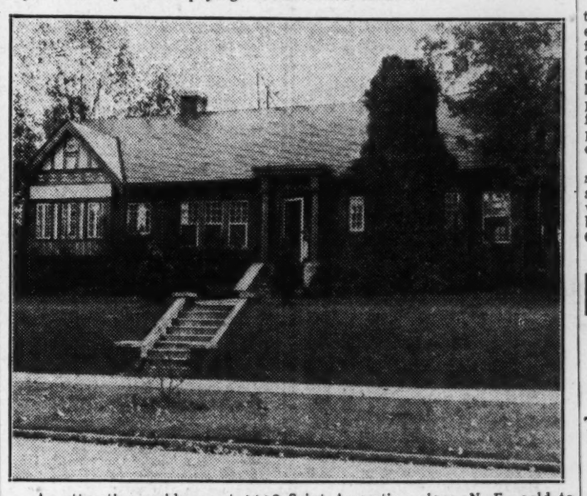

"And because of excellent rail and water transportation facilities the world is available as a market through a series of well-equipped ports extending from Corpus Christi to Baltimore."

Apartment and Residences Change Owners

An eight-unit apartment at 575 Boulevard place, N. E., sold during the past week by Wall Realty Company, realtors, to unnamed purchaser. In the deal a brick duplex at 294-96 Parkway drive was exchanged, the buyer of the apartment paying the difference in cash.

An attractive residence at 1129 Saint Augustine place, N. E., sold to Mrs. Daisy L. McDaniel by the Jefferson Mortgage Company. It has five bedrooms and two baths, and is steam heated. In the deal a house on North Boulevard was exchanged. The price was announced as about $8,000. Staff photos by H. J. Slayton.

A pretty little residence at 1704 Stokes avenue, S. W., in West End Park, sold to E. E. White as a home by the Jefferson Mortgage Company, for around $5,000. Ed Reeves, of the company, handled the sale.

100 SUBURBAN ACRES BRING $10,000 PRICE

Auction Sale of Brown Property Disposes of 55 Lots to 25 Buyers.

A subdivision of 100 suburban acres, containing 55 lots, met with ready buyers Wednesday when the entire tract was disposed of in an auction sale conducted by the McGee Land Company.

Twenty-five buyers totaled the number of those who invested in the property, the total sum realized by the owners being $10,063.40—or a fraction more than $100 an acre.

In the sale was one six-room modern bungalow, this bringing a good price, according to Mr. McGee.

The property is located on Clairmont road, just north of Briarcliff road, four miles north of Decatur and seven miles northeast of Atlanta, known as the Dr. P. J. Brown and the late T. C. Brown property. Telephones and electric lights are available for the property.

It was a largely attended auction sale and one of the most successful held for some time by the selling agents.

THREE VACANT LOTS SOLD BY ADAMS-CATES

The sale of lots continues active, as indicated by the announcement by Adams-Cates Company, realtors, of three additional lot sales.

Carlton Operating Company sold to S. P. Belsinger, a lot having a frontage of 150 feet on Club drive, for $3,150. F. P. Phillips sold Lot 24 in Block N fronting on Crestridge drive, in Brookridge Park, to E. R. Johnson for $600. Both buyers plan to build immediately. The sales were handled by Hoke Blair.

Citizens & Southern National Bank, as trustee, sold Lot 5 in Block F at Fourteenth and State streets, to Paul Weir for $400. Josiah Sibley handled the sale.

THREE LOW BIDDERS ON HOSPITAL PROJECT

Three bids, each slightly lower than the amount the government announced it would spend, have been received by federal authorities for the infirmary buidling to be erected at Hospital No. 48, on Peachtree road. PWA has announced for this work an appropriation of $164,142. It is to provide a two-story addition, with 80 more beds for the hospital. Bids were called for some time ago, and now that a number of them are in, it is assured the contract will soon be let.

Among those who have sent in bids are J. A. Jones Construction Company, of Charlotte, for $154,175; Charles Mion, Atlanta, $156,000; H. B. Nelson Construction Company, Atlanta, $158,890.

TRACT OF LAND SOLD TO ELECTRICAL FIRM

Company Expected To Build Large Plant on Property Soon.

A large tract of land, said to equal 16 city lots, was sold last week through Haas Howell & Dodd, realtors, from E. H. Wood to the Walker Electrical Company. Some time in the near future, it is understood, a large manufacturing plant, to cost between $50,000 and $75,000, will be erected on the property for the electrical company. About $6,000 was paid for the land.

The property is located on Antone street, according to the record filed, but it is in close proximity to Holmes street and Hemphill avenue. It is a short distance beyond the city waterworks pumping station. The property purchased measures 217x770 feet.

R. M. Walker, head of the electrical company, purchasers of the property, states he has no immediate plans for improvement of the property, but that his company is looking ahead for the expansion he feels will result from better business conditions, and that the purchase was made so that in the near future the company would have a place to build a plant equal to its demands.

The company, now located on Means street, manufactures electrical appliances. While Mr. Walker did not reveal price of the improvement, it can be reliably stated upwards of $100,0000 will be spent on the new plant.

MANY LARGE PERMITS FOR BUILDING ISSUED

Three Cover School Projects at Total Cost of $120,570.

City building permits were given a boost during the past few days through permits for school buildings. Issued to the city of Atlanta were three permits totaling $120,570 for the following purposes:

$32,914—For one-story brick addition to the East Lake school, at 2440 Cottage Grove avenue, S. E.

$35,782—For one-story concrete block and brick addition to Faith school, at 1043 Fair street, S. E.

$51,874—To build a new school, one-story and basement, brick veneer, on Richland road, S. W., to be known as Connally school.

Work on these buildings has already been started, being done by day labor, under direction of J. W. Kreis. The federal government, under the WPA projects, is furnishing the labor and 50 per cent of the materials, the city furnishing the remainder from the bond issue voted a year or more ago.

Another school project, erected under the same plan, but for which no city permit has as yet been issued, is the building of a $25,000 school auditorium for the Davis Street school. Work is already under way on this building.

Still another permit, issued to the Prudential Life Insurance Company, through its agents, Rankin-Whitten Realty Company, realtors, is for alterations and general repairs, mostly interior, for the apartment at 75 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E. The permit was issued for $11,500.

A number of smaller permits, ranging around $2,000 to $3,000, were issued for small residences. Some of the larger residence permits were:

$5,500—For 1 1-2 story brick veneer dwelling at 1679 Homestead avenue, N. E., for W. A. Ozmer & Company.

$4,000—For one-story frame dwelling at 2666 Arbor avenue, S. E., for M. A. Morrison.

$4,000—For one-story frame dwelling at 946 Hope drive, S. W., for Galloway Construction Company.

$3,200—For one-story brick veneer dwelling at 1145 Princess avenue, S. W., for W. W. Turner.

$5,000—For rebuilding brick and stucco filling station at 1127 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E., for Gulf Refining Company.

$4,000—For one-story brick veneer dwelling at 495 Cleveland avenue, for W. L. Camp.

D. A. R. State Executive Board Adopts Resolutions in Bainbridge

By MRS. J. L. MIMS, of Hawkinsville,
State D. A. R. Editor.

Important resolutions were adopted at the meeting of the state executive board of the Georgia Society, D. A. R., held in Bainbridge. In the absence of Mrs. Max Land, state chairman of resolutions; Mrs. Julius Talmadge, recording secretary general, N. S. D. A. R., served as chairman. The resolutions follow: Resolution No. 1. Proposed by Mrs. John S. Adams, state regent. Resolved: That the D. A. R. of Georgia, in executive session assembled, extend their thanks and appreciation to the Bainbridge chapter, their friends and all other organizations, for their delightful hospitality shown at this time. Adopted by a unanimous rising vote.

No. 2. Proposed by the resolution committee: Whereas, the honor roll requirements now amount to 80 cents per capita, resolved that this be reduced to 60 cents per capita. Adopted. This will take effect after 1937 conference.

No. 3. Proposed by the resolutions committee: Whereas, it is vitally important that the business of the state executive board be completed in one day's time, and whereas, it is difficult to secure a full attendance of the members on account of the great distances in the state, therefore, be it resolved, that the fall meeting of the executive board be held alternately in Macon and Atlanta, as the most accessible points in the state, and that all expenses, including the luncheon, be borne by the members.

No. 4. Proposed by the Edmund Burke Chapter through Mrs. Rosa McMaster: Resolved, that the executive board of the Georgia D. A. R. indorse the selection and official adoption of a state tree. Adopted.

No. 5. Proposed by the Edmund Burke Chapter through Mrs. Rosa McMaster: Resolved, that the Edmund Burke Chapter recommends the selection of the live oak tree. The board recommended the action of the Edmund Burke Chapter in going on record as selecting the live oak tree as the tree most indigenous to all parts of the state, and one representing the sturdy, unchanging qualities of the Georgia pioneers.

No. 6. Proposed by Mesdames J. W. Oglesby and Eli Thomas: Resolved, that the state executive board recommend to the national society that the D. A. R. magazine contain more genealogical and historical research than at the present time, and that the state regent send this resolution to the president general and to the national chairman of the magazine. Adopted.

No. 7. Proposed by Mesdames J. H. Nicholson, Howard McCall, Eli Thomas, Tom Mell, J. E. Lane, J. L. Beeson and Miss Virginia Hardin. Resolved, that the Georgia D. A. R. society that sponsored the creation of the State Department of Archives and History and who have been at all times in close touch with the two directors, Dr. J. L. Knight and Miss Ruth Blair, are vitally interested in the future of the said department, do hereby go on record as standing for a separate, independent department of archives and history, adequately supported and staffed by trained workers. Adopted.

No. 8. Proposed by Mesdames J. H. Nicholson, Howard McCall, Eli Thomas, Tom Mell, J. E. Lane, J. L. Beeson and Miss Virginia Hardin. Resolved, that we indorse the work of Miss Ruth Blair, during the past 12 years as state historian, and respectfully petition Hon. John B. Wilson, secretary of state, to reappoint her to the office of state historian. Adopted.

Council of Safety Chapter, Americus, recently celebrated its twenty-eighth birthday at which Mesdames Rufus Lane and Walker Carter were hostesses. A business session, over which the regent, Mrs. Stephen Pace, presided, preceded the social affair. Mrs. Howell Simmons, past regent, offered a toast and presented Mrs. Nathaniel Stewart, a charter member, who spoke of work accomplished by chapter during 28 years and of distinguished women who have been affiliated with chapter. Mesdames Howell, Elam, R. M. Kelly and J. M. Pound took part in the interesting program.

At a recent meeting of Commodore Richard Dale Chapter, Albany, Mrs. O. E. Waddell was elected regent to succeed Mrs. I. M. Lucas who resigned. Mrs. Lucas will serve as first vice regent.

Mesdames L. L. Dickerson, Waldo DeLoach and Jack Beatty entertained John Benning Chapter, of Moultrie, at the home of Mrs. Betty. Mrs. J. D. McKenzie, new regent, presided. A report from committee on patriotic education revealed that a splendid program being carried out in city schools. Mrs. L. G. Cox, chairman of the Better Films Committee, told of outstanding work being done by this committee. Chapter voted to again award five medals in schools for historical essays and citizenship. Mrs. J. T. McArthur talked on "Life of Edward McDowell" and Mrs. Dickerson talked on "Southern Heritage in Hospitality."

The Octhcaloga Chapter, of Adairsville, met recently with Mrs. Julia Veach Stewart. The program combined the patriotic occasions on Lafayette, Constitution, Columbus and Navy days and the fiftieth anniversary of the dedication of the Statue of Liberty. The regent, Mrs. Alice Butler Howard, named chairmen for the committees for the year. A part of the afternoon was given to making of poppies to be distributed to the school children on Armistice Day.

Sergeant Newton Chapter, of Covington, met at the home of the regent, Miss Anabel Robinson, and the flag salute was led by the chairman, Miss Sallie Mae Sockwell. The president general's message was read by the regent. Mrs. L. D. Bolton presented the chapter with a book, "The Life of L. Q. C. Lamar." Mrs. Luke Robinson, guest speaker, gave a talk on the constitution of the United States.

LaGrange Chapter met at the home of Mrs. D. E. Morgan, with Mesdames Morgan, M. U. Mooty and Arthur Mallory as hostesses. The business session was presided over by the regent, Mrs. Arthur Mallory. Mrs. Neil Glass spoke of the patriotic days observed, viz.: Lafayette, Constitution, Magna Charta days. The regent announced that the D. A. R. marker for LaGrange College, ordered through PWA had arrived and appointed a committee to plan program and date of unveiling. The program was presented by Mrs. T. G. Polhill, and taking part were Mrs. Neil Glass and Miss Mary Head.

During the past week, the editor has received year books from Fort Early Chapter, of Cordele, of which Mrs. D. Holmes is regent and from Hannah Clarke Chapter, of Quitman, Mrs. Donald Davis, regent. Books are worthy of much praise and the chapters deserve credit for the splendid programs outlined for the year.

The attention of chapters, press chairmen, etc., is called to the following announcement from the state editor: Beginning with the first Sunday in December (December 6), and continuing through January, Mrs. T. J. Sappington, assistant state editor, will have charge of this column. After Sunday, November 29, and throughout December and January, material for publication in the official column, must be sent direct to Mrs. Sappington, at Eastman, Ga.

Ramsay—Hathcock.

CARROLLTON, Ga., Nov. 21.—The marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Ramsay to Tom Hathcock was solemnized October 24 at the Methodist parsonage with Rev. B. C. Matteson performing the ceremony.

The bride wore an attractive suit of blue wool with a black Persian fur cape and black accessories. She is the elder daughter of Mrs. W. S. Ramsay and the late Mr. Ramsay, and the sister of Mrs. Rufus L. Payton, Speer Ramsay, of Carrollton, and William Wirt Ramsay, of Canton.

Mr. Hathcock is a prominent young businessman of this section and is the son of Mrs. W. S. Hathcock, of Temple.

Marriage Announced Today

Mrs. George Glenn Hodges is the former Miss Marguerite Elizabeth Tarver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Tarver, and her marriage took place on November 14 in Heflin, Ala. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hodges, of Claxton. Mr. and Mrs. Hodges will reside in Houston, Texas. Photo by Bon Art studio.

How To Grow Sweet Peas

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

Is there any other flowers in all nature's wonderful collection that has the dainty fresh sweetness of the sweet pea? We think not.

Sweet peas fill that early summer gap in our year 'round flower chain that nothing else can. Sweet peas are refreshing in their sweetness. They make us feel so pure and clean and lift us up from the ordinary thoughts of life.

Unfortunately sweet peas outdoors only bloom for a few weeks during the warm days and cool nights of early summer, but even at that the abundance of reward is doubly ample for the slight effort in producing them. And thanks to our tireless plant breeders, we have now the new early flowering Spencer strain that extends the season two weeks by having bloom that much earlier than the regular Spencers.

SPENCER SWEET PEA.

Perhaps we had best stop to explain that there are three types of sweet peas.

1. Grandiflora—the old-fashioned small flowered type.

2. Large Spencers—the new large, wavey petaled type having extra long stems.

3. Early Flowering Large Spencers—An extra early selection of large Spencers having the same large, wavey petals but coming two weeks earlier on a more dwarfed plant.

To be successful in growing sweet peas it is only necessary to provide five requirements, all of which are very simple. Sunshine, good seed, good soil, drainage and innoculation.

Sunshine is necessary for full flower development and for healthfulness.

Good seed are necessary for the strongest, most vigorous plants of the finest new strains. Poor seeds lack vitality and breeding.

Good soil is necessary for heavy development of the growing plants. They are heavy feeders, particularly during the flowering period.

Good drainage is most necessary because sweet peas will not stand excessive moisture. When the roots reach free water the plants soon mold and die.

Innoculation with the proper soil bacteria is desirable, especially in soil where sweet peas have not grown before. Innoculation is just as important to you in your garden as it is to the farmer who plants vetch and clover and field peas in his fiends. The bacteria, together with good soil, stimulate a heavy vegetative growth, without which our returns may be disappointing.

Sweet peas may be sown in the latitude of Atlanta from late November until Christmas for fall planting, and from early February until the middle of March for the spring planting.

The idea in fall planting is to get the seed sprouted and root growth begun before severe cold and wet prevents. This allows a fine root development and the large early flowers that are superior to those from spring-planted seed.

In preparing the trench, it is wise to dig out about a foot wide and a foot and a half deep, stirring up the subsoil good, in the bottom. Four to six inches of old stone, brick, coarse cinders or aches provide fine drainage, while the soil mixed with sheep manure and peat moss in the proportion of four shovels of soil to one each of sheep manure and peat moss, is filled to within four inches of the top.

For a safe, slow-acting plant food, work in a pound of bone meal to each 10 feet of row. This will last well until just before flowering, when a quick acting commercial plant food can best stimulate fast growth.

In such a trench we recommend sowing a double row, planting in front the early flowering Spencers, and in the back the large, late Spencers. This not only allows for a single trellis or support for both rows, but insures a much longer season for continuous bloom. As soon as the early sorts begin to fade the late ones will be coming into full flower.

WHAT TO DO IN NOVEMBER.

IN THE HOUSE: Preparation should be made for bulbs and other flowering plants for use in the house. Jardinieres should be resurrected and cleaned ready for pots for Lily of the Valley, Paper White Narcissus, Hyacinths and other flowers.

SHRUBBERY: This is the proper season of the year for mulching Roses and Shrubbery as well as perennial borders and beds and this may best be done with the use of peat moss and leaves or straw. Too many leaves will sometimes cause rot by holding too much moisture, but if the leaves are mixed with peat moss and straw there will not be as much danger of rot.

TREES: This is the proper season for protecting and repairing all kinds of trees. For the lesser injuries such as small broken limbs this can be done very simply, but in the case of large cavaties, an expert had best be called.

PEACH TREES: Use paracide to combat the Peach Tree Borer.

For best results sow one ounce of seed to 25 feet of row or a quarter-pound for a double row 50 feet long, and when they begin to show well above the ground rake in a little soil about them every two or three weeks for protection through the winter.

In early spring when they begin to grow well up above the ground, thin them to the width of your hand apart and pinch them back to four leaves. This will insure a heavy, stocky plant that will have plenty of space to fully develop, producing the finest flowers with the longest stems.

Crowding causes short stems and small flowers.

Sweet peas inspire unselfishness in that the more the flowers are cut the more they will bloom. In fact, they must be kept cut if the plant is to have a long flowering season.

It is our good fortune to have almost all the colors of the rainbow to select from in choosing varieties of sweet peas. More and more are sweet pea lovers turning to the individual varieties following the custom as practiced in planting gladiolus, dahlias and other flowers where expert breeding has brought out wonderful new varieties.

For the beginners perhaps the mixtures are best, for they provide truly a kaleidoscope of color and are just as vigorous and full of life as the others. But for those who have graduated from the "mixture" group may we suggest that you have just as great a thrill in store for you as did that young doctor who paid $7.50 for a Jane Cowl dahlia last spring to add to his collection.

In richness, in brightness, that dazzling orange scarlet, early flowering variety, "Glitters" has no equal while "Loveliness" is fully as early, being a soft pink with edges picoteed rose and is very vigorous.

Blue Bird brings blue into the picture while Zvolanek's Rose is perhaps the largest flowered of them all and is a beautiful rose pink.

Then when we come to the large, late Spencers we almost are swamped because there are so many wonderful varieties.

Heavenly Blue, Mary Pickford, a lovely cream pink; Sunset, a new bright rose, suffused amber, and Tangerine Improved, a gloiwng orange, all are good representatives and all will certainly do well in your garden.

Sweet peas are so wholesome in their dainty sweetness no garden could be perfect without them, and, too, they are vital in filling in to make the garden picture complete. Their cost is little, their culture is so simple—sunlight, good seed, good soil, proper drainae and inoculation. Allow us to invite you to join the great ranks of sweet pea lovers. This is the very best time of year to plant sweet peas for the earliest and largest flowers on the longest and strongest stems.

Cherokee Garden Club Meets Tuesday

The Cherokee Garden Club holds its November meeting on Tuesday at 10:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Howell Caldwell on Peachtree road. Mrs. De Sales Harrison, the president, will preside.

Members are urged to bring with them for display any unusual winter plants as well as attractive November flower arrangements. An open forum will be conducted among members on the subject of winter plants and planting with Mrs. J. C. Harris Jr., the program chairman, in charge.

Questions, Answers On Garden Subjects

By Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown.

Question: Tell me what to do for my bed of lily-of-the-valley now.

Answer: I would wait until winter weather comes, December, then I would mulch my lily-of-the-valley bed heavily with manure. I would not use this too fresh, but it does not have to be as well rotted as we usually require it to be. This flower does best on the north side of your house, and in a partially shaded place. I would not overlook the opportunity to plant some of the treated pips in a pot for indoor bloom, it only takes 21 days for them to come into blossom after being planted.

Question: When can I plant roses?

Answer: Since our fall weather has been so mild I do not feel that roses are quite ready to plant. I would wait until a hard freeze makes them more dormant. I do not suppose that it would really hurt them, but I like for my plants to lose their leaves before I do my fall planting and transplanting. After planting them I believe it pays to hill the soil up around them about five or six inches. Do not use the dirt in your rose bed for this, but bring in some more soil, then in the spring you can level it down or remove it entirely if your bed is already high enough.

Question: What do you think of mulching a rose bed with manure?

Answer: I think that a mulch of manure on a rose bed during winter is beneficial if put on correctly. Never pile it up around the stem of the rose bush, always leave several inches between the rose stalk and the manure. You can kill plants by using it too close.

Question: Is it time to plant tulips now?

Answer: I do not think the weather has gotten cold enough to plant tulips. I would buy my bulbs at once, since I am afraid that the demand is much greater than the supply. But I think that you can well wait until December to plant.

SAFE MILK

Typhoid fever, which is being widely discussed, does not come from a cow giving milk, but from a person who is a typhoid carrier that handles milk, whether he be employed by the Pasteur League, plant, or raw milk producer.

In order to assure purity and protection for our customers, not only the employees of Brownlee and Lively, but their entire families from one year old and up are vaccinated against typhoid fever.

UNDULANT FEVER

Our cows are tested every 60 days by government authorities against Bangs disease, which causes undulant fever. We want our custmores to know that they are properly protected when they drink our milk.

Our cows are also tested regularly for tuberculosis by a veterinarian.

Therefore, drink Brownlee and Lively's milk and feel satisfied that you are not only drinking the best, but the purest, safest and most wholesome milk sold in the city of Atlanta.

McCullar, Milledgeville.

Mrs. James Maddox Issues Message To War Orphans Committee Chairmen

By Mrs. C. B. McCullar, of Milledgeville, State Editor.

Mrs. James Maddox, of Rome, past department president and chairman of education of war orphans committee, issues the following important message to Georgia Legion Auxiliary members: "As chairman of the education of war orphans committee I am very anxious that definite progress be made this year, to be of real assistance to the 386 orphans in Georgia, the boys and girls whose fathers were killed in action or died from wounds or other causes, between April 6, 1917, and July 2, 1921, the date of the legal termination of the World War.

"Several years ago a bill was introduced, and passed, in the Georgia legislature, providing $150 a year for each war orphan between 16 and 21 years of age, who had lived in the state for 12 months prior to the passage of the act and of making application for the benefits thereunder, and who were attending school within the state. The money was to be used to provide for matriculation fees, board, room rent, books and supplies. It also provides that such children shall be admitted to state educational institutions tuition free.

"However, no appropriation was made for the money to provide these benefits. As there remains only a few weeks until the next legisltaure meets in January, I am begging the local chairmen of this committee, together with the unit presidents, to talk with your representatives and senators and explain this situation, and enlist their interest so that when the bill is introduced, he will know why the American Legion Auxiliary is concerned over its passage. Also tell him that in no year will there be a need for more than $3,000.

"It is of utmost importance for you to locate these war orphans who wish to continue their education after completing high school. This is our obligation. In the past a list was sent each unit giving names and addresses of these boys and girls. Should the list be lost, I will be glad to send you a duplicate copy.

"Please bear in mind that in 1943 the youngest of these children will have reached the age of 22 and then our opportunity will be gone for aiding in educating the children of the men who sacrificed their lives for this country during the World War."

The Roy Dozier Legion Post and Auxiliary opened its new home last Wednesday night at Crawfordville. The dedication exercises were held after an oyster supper there Legionaires and auxiliary members from the entire section were guests at the affair. Greetings were extended by Commander Horace Wynn, of the post Mrs. J. V. Lyles, auxiliary president, was in charge of the program Former Area Commander C. B. McCullar, of Milledgeville, was the principal speaker. Others who attended and spoke briefly were Dr. J. W. Davis, commander of the Warrenton post, Past District Commander B. C. Kitchens, of Mitchell, and Mrs. C. B. McCullar, state auxiliary editor.

A large number of auxiliary members attended the Legion and 40 and 8 meeting in Macon Sunday at a hotel

Georgia will be represented at the national auxiliary conclave in Indianapolis next week by Mrs. J. W. Oglesby Jr., department president, and Mrs. J. R. McMichael department secretary, both of Quitman, who will attend the presidents' and secretaries conference November 23 and 24, and by Miss Helen Estes, of Gainesville, area child welfare chairman, who will attend a committee conference Thursday there.

Hospital hostesses for November and December in the three Georgia hospitals that are the special care of the auxiliary, are as follows: November, Gainesville, Clarkesville and Athens, for Atlanta Hospital No. 48 Washington, Eatonton and Hawkinsville, for Augusta Hospital No. 62 and Ocilla for the Milledgeville hospital. For December, Macon, Griffin, Brookhaven and Darien are hostess units for No. 48; Augusta, Albany, Jesup and Madison for No. 62, and Greensboro for the Milledgeville hospital.

Three district meetings were held last week. Mrs. J. P. Kelly's district rallied at Valdosta Wednesday, and on Thursday Mrs. J. W. Bland presided at her district meeting in Forsyth. Mrs. A. C. Mitchell's district meeting was also held at Darien Thursday.

Two new units have been organized in the department. Mrs. A. C. Mitchell, first district vice president, organized her first unit as part of the Armistice Day celebration at Sylvania. Mrs. H. E. Sanford Jr., fifth district vice president, organized the West End unit with Mrs. M. W. Davis as acting president.

MISS DOROTHY MANGET.

Of cordial interest is the announcement by Dr. and Mrs. James DePass Manget of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Manget, to Walter Wayne Hogan, of Nashville, Tenn., the marriage to be solemnized on Tuesday, December 22.

The bride-elect is the only daughter of her parents and her brothers are J. D. Manget Jr., John and Fred Manget. Miss Manget attended Girls' High school and received her A. B. degree at Wesleyan College in Macon, Ga.

Mr. Hogan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edwin Hogan, of Nashville, Tenn., and is the brother of Edwin Young Hogan, of Delray Beach, Fla. The groom-elect is a graduate of University School and Hendrix College in Conway, Ark., and is associated in business with Marshall & Bruce Company, of Nashville.

Bainbridge Is Host To 35th Session Of the B. W. M. U.

The thirty-fifth session of Georgia Baptist Women's Missionary Union recently met in Bainbridge, and Mrs. A. B. Congor, president of the Federated Women's Clubs, welcomed the body in behalf of Bainbridge; Mrs. M. F. Flowers, for the local Woman's Missionary Society. Mrs. A. C. Pyle spoke of the many evidences of welcome shown by the people of the city in the things done for the comfort and pleasure of the visitors.

Mrs. R. L. Hall, of Newton, presiding officer, gave an inspirational and instructive program. Mrs. D. K. Talbert, of Brinson, was elected secretary. Prominent women addressing the convention were Miss Kathleen Mallary, of Birmingham, secretary of Southern Baptist Women's work, two missionaries, Mrs. George Green, of Ogbomoso, Africa; Mrs. Norman Williamson, Japan; state secretary of W. M. U., Miss Christian; young people's leader, Miss Mary Robinson, and divisional chairman of the Margaret Fund, Mrs. J. C. McClellan.

Mrs. Charles Cater spoke for White Cross work and Mrs. C. S. Hodges for stewardship. Reviewing the year's work Mrs. Hall said there had been steady growth in departments. A small deficit, needed to complete the Sue Maynard Loan Fund was given by delegates.

Messages of sympathy were sent to Mrs. H. H. Tift. Miss Lena Kingsley and former southwest division missionary, Miss Ruth Jinks, who were ill. A gift was sent Miss Jinks in a hospital in Atlanta.

An impressive pageant on personal service was presented by Mesdames Clayton Walker, W. J. Brockett, H. B. Wynn Jr. and Miss Hulbert, of Bainbridge. Recognition was given to the Brinson and Rebecca societies for securing an offering from every woman in the church. A memorial service was held for Mrs. J. F. Stone, of Cairo, former superintendent of Taylor association. The convention meets at Fitzgerald in 1937.

Miss Phillips To Be Bride of Mr. Orr On December 27

The announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. George S. Phillips of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eloise Phillips, to Sam J. Orr, is of wide social interest throughout the south. The marriage will be solemnized at the St. Philips' Procathedral on December 27, the date of the bride's parent's forty-second wedding anniversary, with Dean DeOvies officiating.

The bride is a descendant of prominent southern forebears, her mother being the former Miss Elizabeth Hunsinger, descended from the Hannons and Hunsingers of North Carolina, her uncle being a captain in the War Between the States. The bride-elect's father is descendant of the Sullivans and Phillips, two of the oldest families of South Carolina, his father being in the War Between the States, spending four years in Virginia as captain of Orr's Regiment in the Confederate army.

Miss Phillips is a sister of Mrs. J. E. White, Mrs. W. N. Floyd, Mrs. Robert Baldwin and "Pup" Phillips, John T. Phillips, all of Atlanta, and Tench Phillips, of Daytona Beach, Fla. She was graduated from Girls' High school in '32 and is a member of the Eta chapter of the Tau Beta Phi national sorority.

Although never having made a formal debut, Miss Phillips has been a popular member of the younger set. She has brown hair and grey eyes and possesses a charming and sparkling personality which have won for her countless friends.

The groom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frederick Orr, of Cumming, Ga. His mother was formerly Miss Nancy Annabelle Heard, of a prominent north Georgia family. He is the youngest of four brothers and after graduation from Cumming High school attended University System of Georgia Evening school. He has resided in Atlanta for the past ten years, being employed in the sales department of Ivan Allen-Marshall Company.

Ellijay Lions Club held the first meeting for November and enjoyed a delightful oyster supper served by the Woman's Club at the community house. Miss Rachel Moss, musical director of Gilmer County High school furnished the music. The club voted to accept a challenge from the Chatsworth club in a basketball game in Chatsworth on November 21, the Chatsworth Lions to return the game at a date to be announced later. The club went on record as favoring another fair next year and will begin plans early so as to make it better than ever.

Congratulations of Georgia clubwomen are extended Mrs. J. E. Hays, of Marshallville, on her appointment to the office of director of the state department of archives and history. The offices Mrs. Hays has filled and the diversity of her accomplishments afford an ample idea of her efficiency, for few have had lives more replete with activities which make for better home and community, and the creation of interest in state and national life. Mrs. Hays was president of Georgia Federation from 1919 to 1923, and served as recording secretary of general federation from 1922 to 1926.

Mimeographed copies of two valuable original manuscripts by Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, general federation director for Georgia, are at state headquarters, Henry Grady hotel, Atlanta, for distribution upon application: "Parliamentary Law Every Woman Should Know," and "Fundamentals of the Foundation Fund." Mrs. Ritchie had this work done and every clubwoman should send for copies and study them. Other available material includes the revised "Federation Quiz." and "Standard of Excellence for Clubs."

The current and special edition of the "Lucas Leader" dedicated to Tallulah Falls school that is a splendid tribute to the school and to its trustees, its faculty and its children. Lucas, "A Great Name in Paints," helped materially to repaint and redecorate the buildings at Tallulah this past summer, following an appeal from Mrs. H. M. Nicholes, of Atlanta, chairman of supplies for the board of trustees. The official organ for the John Lucas & Company tells the story of how Mr. and Mrs. Hazen discovered Tallulah, and how Mr. Hazen, paint engineer, directed the boy students in using the paint his company furnished. The paper is beautifully illustrated with pictures of the buildings, the surroundings, the patrons and the children.

Judge and Mrs. W. W. Stark, of Commerce, were visitors in Atlanta on Tuesday. Mrs. Stark attended a meeting of the Colonial Daughters of the 17th Century which she has recently joined. She is chairman of National Defense in the United States Daughters of 1812, and elder for the Georgia Society of Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims. As chairman of Bible literature in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Stark reports a wide demand for the outline of study which she has had published for the clubs.

Many interesting pilgrimages have been made to the school this fall by Georgia clubwomen and friends of Tallulah, the latest being the pilgrimage of the Atlanta Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls School, who enjoyed a most delightful day on November 9. The group, 50 in number, was headed by Mrs. W. B. McBurney, president, and Mrs. Harrison Hines and Mrs. John B. Duncan, chairman and co-chairman of the pilgrimage committee. Especially were they delighted with the Armistice Day program given by the fourth grade under Miss Wimberly's direction, and stated that it should be given in every school in the state.

According to the new yearbook received from Quitman Woman's Club, each month's program is in charge of a special department of work which also has a definite project for the year. November will be under the direction of the welfare and health division, with projects: Christmas Health Seals Sale. Help with tuberculosis house for county and with tuberculosis clinics. December will feature a Christmas party under the fine arts department.

Homerville Woman's Club has elected the following officers: President, Mrs. H. M. Peagler; first vice president, Mrs. Erwin Blitch; second vice president, Mrs. E. J. Smith; secretary, Mrs. W. C. Wooten; treasurer and custodian, Mrs. R. G. Dickerson; parliamentarian, Mrs. J. H. Poppell.

Georgia clubwomen will be greatly interested in the report that our two fine Tallulah girls, Bessie Lawrence and Frellie Eberhart, who are at Middle Georgia College, Cochran, this year, have been excused from Saturday classes because they have excelled in their marks which must show an average above 75. These girls hope to devote their abilities to the teaching profession when they have completed their junior college work.

The junior music festival, a semi-annual event sponsored by the fine arts department of the Decatur Woman's Club, had a delightful and successful program this past week, with Mrs. S. R. Christie, chairman. There was a large attendance at each performance and 200 children took part.

Georgia Federation welcomes as a new member group the Stellarville Parent-Teacher Association, with Mrs. Leland Zeigler as president. This is an affiliate group in the sixth district.

Dallas Woman's Club observed book week on Wednesday with a book shower and tea at the clubhouse where the library is housed. This was a county-wide meeting following the recent opening of the library with a nucleus of 800 books.

Clubwomen sympathize deeply with Mrs. J. B. Shaw of Hartwell, in the tragic death of her young son, Judson Shaw Jr. During two administrations Mrs. Shaw has been tenth district chairman of Tallulah Falls school.

While in Vidalia on Tuesday evening, Mrs. A. B. Conger was entertained in the home of her girlhood chum, Mrs. V. P. Wright, with a tea. Mrs. H. G. Bell, of Bainbridge, a sister of Mrs. Wright, was also an honor guest.

Officers of Millen Woman's Club honored Mrs. A. B. Conger with a bridge party recently at the home of Mrs. Cleveland Thompson. Sharing honors with Mrs. Conger was Mrs. H. G. Bell, of Bainbridge. The honor guests were presented with sewing kits in leather cases, and high scores were won by Mrs. Arthur Cates and Mrs. Conger. These were given appenzel handkerchiefs.

Another social courtesy tendered Mrs. Conger in Millen was a pretty luncheon given by Mrs. Cleveland Thompson. The out-of-town guests were Mrs. H. G. Bell, of Bainbridge; Mrs. W. C. Somers and Mrs. W. L. Oliver, of Vidalia, and the honoree.

Clubwomen Lose Valued Friend.

By MRS. A. B. CONGER. of Bainbridge, President of Georgia Federation.

In the passing of the Hon. Clark Howell Georgia has lost an honored citizen, and clubwomen a true friend. For more than a quarter century Georgia clubwomen and Mr. Howell were business associates, and for 38 years of unbroken use of The Atlanta Constitution as the official organ of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs there resulted a sense of personal friendship, of personal admiration and regard.

Among those who knew him, no man was better loved. Among those who worked with him, there was one who did not feel inspired by his personal, constructive counsel. The indelible imprint of his character is left both upon our organization as a whole and upon the individual members.

It was my privilege to know Mr. Howell and our friendship gained in strength with each meeting. His unfailing courtesy and his kindness were very sweet to me. We have lost a loyal friend—one with us in our work since its beginning—whose place can never be filled.

Macon Clubwomen Hear Mr. Turpin Discuss State Laws

The "Trend of Georgia Laws" was the subject of W. C. Turpin's address before Macon clubwomen who assembled recently at the clubrooms in Baconville park. To sum up his talk, Mr. Turpin said: "If there is any trend of law in Georgia, on the administrative side, it is toward a more centralized state government with more administrative boards and more state regulations and more powers in the authorities in Atlanta."

Mr. Turpin said: "In the next 25 years a reform must be seen in the procedure and many antiquated rules discarded. "Cases must be tried more promptly and decision reached without the delay which is now the order of the day

"A great deal of the law under which we live is judge-made, explaining that due to the volume of business and these antiquated rules that it is now impossible for the judges to give the amount of time and thought to decisions which they themselves would be first to advocate. As an example of the old decisions, Mr. Turpin read a short excerpt from a case decided in 1852, the excerpt being a leisurely gem of flowery and literary discourse.

Mrs. McKibben Lane, pianist, played. Mrs. Stanley Elkin, chairman of the music committee, introduced Mrs. Lane, a member of the Saturday Morning Music Club. Mrs. Leonard Booth, president of the club, presided at the business session, when reports were given by officers and chairmen, including Mesdames John Clark, H. D. Walker, Bruce Carr Jones, E. Ulman, W. W. Duncan and Brooks Geoghegan. Mrs. Stanley Elkin, chairman of the music department, announced that a choral club is being organized under her supervision.

Mrs. Henry Harris, chairman of the book review and current topics group, extended invitation to members to attend the interesting meetings outlined for that division. New members introduced were Mesdames H. A. Brittingham, R. B. Dame, Morgan Arden, J. A. Temple, Gerald Wilcox, Roy Bethune and Della C. McManus.

The luncheon decorations were arranged by Mesdames Leroy Thompson, J. H. Pate, Fleetwood Maddox, Luther Bloodworth, Lovick Lingo, Gus Wing, George Patterson and J. J. Gill. The Thanksgiving motif predominated in the table decorations, centered with pumpkin baskets containing fruit and cake cornicopias at each plate holding nuts and candies. Roses, potted plants, marigolds, chrysanthemums, dahlias and cosmos were arranged attractively throughout the club rooms. Hostesses for the meeting were Mesdames B. J. Bashinski, J. P. Boone, Gordon Singleton and Burton Hayes.

State Officers Attend Meeting.

Luncheon preceding the regular November meeting of the Vidalia Woman's Club honored prominent clubwomen, including the state president, Mrs. A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge; Mrs. J. M. Simmons, state corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. E. Ledford, president of the first district federation of clubs, and her district officers; Mrs. Cleveland Thompson, of Millen, state chairman of fine arts, and Mrs. H. C. Bell, of Bainbridge.

The executive board of the Vidalia Woman's Club were hosts at the luncheon at the hotel. Mrs. Fred Huie, club president, was toast mistress and musical features were arranged by Mrs. W. C. Somers, chairman of American music and folksong. Mrs. J. B. Brown, chairman of American citizenship in the local club, and Mrs. Dewey Deen, cochairman, directed the program when Mrs. Conger made her address on the theme she chose for her administration, "Education for Citizenship."

Third District President Issues Her Official Message Today

MRS. EVELYN McGEHEE, OF COLUMBUS.

Mrs. Evelyn McGehee, of Columbus, president of the third district of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, is a woman of recognized ability. She served as president of the Columbus City Federation of Clubs, as president of the Wynnton Study Club, and as president of the League of Women Voters. The following message is from Mrs. McGehee to the clubwomen of the third district:

"I am today extending greetings to the women of the third district. I am also asking your full co-operation with me and with your district chairmen, and at the same time as your new district president. I am pledging you my best efforts to make the next two years count for much in our chief work. I feel keenly the honor as well as the responsibility you have given me, and I sincerely hope that I may prove worthy of your expectations. Please feel that I will always deem it a privilege to respond to any call that you may make on me. With Mrs. Ritchie and Mrs. Conger standing behind us I know that we will be ready to meet any emergency.

"It has been said that America is poised today as if in mid-flight, between a post that cannot be recaptured and a future that must be made. The challenge to us, as clubwomen, is to make of that future what we will. Seldom have we had greater vision and more courage in our women than at the present time.

"We also appear to be on the verge of a world crisis, but we are also on the threshold of a great opportunity, for crisis is but another name for opportunity. Then let us co-ordinate our club life and prepare to meet this challenge opportunity.

"We live in a day when we may telephone a friend in Europe or speak with passengers on ships at sea—or broadcast all over the world, and we realize truly that "no man liveth to himself." Even the most isolated community is bound with a thousand threads to all the other communities in the world, and so we can truly say that the world has become one neighborhood. We are first the center of ever-widening circles of home and friends, then we become a still wider circle, group, carrying out a program deliberately and thoughtfully planned by our great leaders. And so today I hold before you the whole program of our club—look at it. Work for the aims that it hopes to achieve. And as a reward we will have a deeper experience as we have wider and more intimate knowledge of life with clubwomen of their need and their gifts."

Tallulah Falls School Party Given By Clubwomen in Hogansville, Ga.

Hogansville clubwomen featured a Tallulah Falls School party at the November meeting held in the city hall clubrooms, and honor guests were Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, of Atlanta, and a group of Tallulah boys and girls, Dr. and Mrs. Didmoore, president of Bowden College; Mrs. Albert Hill, of Greenville; Mrs. H. M. Bird, of Bowdon; Mrs. W. Howard Means, of Zebulon; Mrs. Henry Mobley, of Covington.

Invitations were sent to fourth district clubs and the response and co-operation were deeply appreciated by the Hogansville club.

Mrs. B. A. Hogan, the president, was in the chair, and pledge to the flag was led by Mrs. C. J. Killette; club collect, Mesdames A. B. Elizer and Mrs. R. E. L. Harris, and welcome address by Mrs. Hogan, after which the program was turned over to Mrs. W. E. Griffin, fourth district president and presiding with Mrs. Hogan were: Mrs. H. M. Bird, of Bowden, and Mrs. Albert Hill, of Greenville.

The Hogansville Glee Club, accompanied by Miss Lucile Harvey, rendered several numbers, and readings were given by Barnell Smith and Thelma Trussell. Mrs. Byrd introduced Dr. Didmore, who talked on "Progress in Education." Mrs. Fitzpatrick was introduced by Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Fitzpatrick introduced the teachers and pupils of Tallulah Falls School and gave an address on Tallulah School's progress in education. The students sang "Tallulah" and "The Little Brown Church," with the club members joining in.

An example of the Sunday night services held in the school, was given with Miss Edith Thomas conducting and featuring "Three Aims," which were: Knowledge, understanding and character training, with Misses Norma Matthews and Dorothy Hill.

During the luncheon hour Mrs. Fitzpatrick displayed beautiful handicraft made by the boys and girls at Tallulah Falls, schools, including hand-woven articles made on old-fashioned looms, work baskets and trays made of Georgia broom sage and straw, trays woven from waste card sent the school from different mills in Georgia.

Mrs. Griffin introduced her official family, including district officers, as follows: Mrs. Howard Means, of Zebulon, treasurer; Mrs. C. J. Killette, Hogansville, corresponding secretary; district chairmen, Mrs. H. M. Bird, Bowden; Mrs. Albert M. Hill, Greenville: legislation, Mrs. R. M. Mobley, Covington, clubwoman; Mrs. B. A. Hogan, Hogansville, education; Mrs. A. B. Anderson, Hogansville, safety in the home; Mrs W. D. Howell, Zebulon, music; Mrs. R. C. Johnson, American folk song; Mrs. George Caldwell, of LaGrange, publicity; Mrs. Pierce Lee, Hogansville, public instruction.

Miss Price, art teacher at Tallulah, displayed original designs and work done by the pupils and stressed the need of art in teaching any subject. A duet was rendered by Mrs. W. D. Howell, Mrs. R. C. Johnson, Mrs. George Huguley, of LaGrange, read "Bread and the Bone," and "Dedication of Amphitheater in Pottsville." The Tallulah students rendered the school song, "My Great Unchanging Friend," and the goodbye song, "Pollywolly Doodle All Day."

Infantry School Observes Birthday.

Launching the fourteenth year, the Infantry School Woman's Club entertained with a program tea on October 19 at the Officers' Club in Fort Benning, and the invitation list included adult members of the families of active, reserve and retired officers, members of the army nurse corps, teachers of the children's school, and the executive board of the Columbus Federation of Women's Clubs. Receiving were Mrs. T. J. Camp, president, and her executive board: Mrs. Asa Singleton, wife of the commandant; Mrs. Maxon Lough and Mrs. Robert Turley, vice presidents; Mrs. Richard Gayle, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. T. Fitts, recording secretary; Mrs George Steinmayer, treasurer; Mrs. John R. D. Cleland, auditor; Mrs. Alexander Patch, parliamentarian.

After being welcomed at the door by Mrs. R. G. Howie and her committee, Mrs. Camp greeted the visitors and explained the activities of the club under the divisions, music, literature and gardens. She expressed the pleasure derived from contacts made by the ladies of the post through the woman's club. General Asa Singleton, commandant, paid tribute to the work done by the club and told how helpful the organization had been to the commandant. He specially welcomed the visitors from Columbus, speaking of Columbus and Fort Benning as one unit. Mrs. Kenneth McGregor, of Maxwell Field, Ala., rendered piano numbers, after which tea was served to several hundred guests.

Mrs. Conger Speaks At Montezuma Club.

Mrs. A. B. Conger, president of Georgia federation, spoke to Montezuma clubwomen at the November meeting, presided over by Mrs. A. B. Bussey, the president. Mrs. Conger chose or the keynote of her address the second chapter, fifteenth verse of the second book of Timothy, which reads: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

She urged women to study the situation at hand, voting intelligently, thus promoting American ideals in the home, in the school, in the community life, realizing more and more our duty to the youth of today.

Mrs. J. E. Hays, past president of Georgia federation, introduced Mrs. Conger. Mrs. R. C. Collier presented Mrs. Jule Felton in a vocal solo, with Mrs. F. M. Mullino at the piano. Visitors were Mrs. Emmie Williams and Mrs. A. D. Williams, of Yatesville.

Hoschton Junior Club.

Hoschton Junior Woman's Club held its November meeting with the president, Miss Janet Cash, presiding, and the club was to sponsor a program at the Hoschton Woman's Club meeting in December. Mrs. J. O. Braselton, past president of the ninth district, was guest speaker and gave an interesting address on "The Place That a Junior Clubwoman Fills." Social hour hostesses were Misses Alberta Allen and Charlotte Stewart.

Reports Are Given At Jefferson At Jefferson, Ga.

Jefferson Woman's Club held the November meeting at the home of Mrs. H. J. W. Kizer, with Mesdames W. S. Pinson, A. S. Johnson, B. E. McCollum and George Westmoreland, cohostesses. The collect was read by Mrs. L. H. Isbell; the American creed by Mrs. H. J. W. Kizer, and salute to the flag by the club. Mrs. M. M. Bryan presided over the business meeting. Miss Eugenia Boone, home extension chairman, reported a "Protect Your Teeth" project being put on in the county, and asked co-operation of the club.

Mrs. H. E. Aderhold, public welfare chairman, stated that $75 worth of Christmas seals had been purchased, to be sold by the club; $62.50 of this amount will be retained by the club, to be used in any local charitable work. The school children will be asked to help sell the seals and a prize will be given the grade selling the largest number.

Mrs. Guy Strickland, community service chairman, urged that club members join the Red Cross, and spoke of fire prevention, closing her report by reading a touching little poem depicting the tragic results of reckless driving. Mrs. Stanley Kesler, fine arts chairman, asked that teachers interest their pupils in art by studying different pictures, their coloring, etc.

Motions were made and passed, as follows: That a letter be written by the secretary to county commissioners, asking that funds be furnished whereby the county nurse may further hold her position; that the $6.45 deficit on the Ella F. White Foundation be paid; that $2.00 be paid to M. I. pupils to help with their newspaper work; that chairs at the Log Cabin be exchanged for folding chairs, which can be used at club meetings; that the time of meeting be changed to 3 o'clock, instead of 3:30; and that the club purchase the book, "Gone With the Wind," for the club library. Mrs. M. M. Bryan read "In Flanders Field" and readings were given by Miss Sara Wills.

Present were: Mesdames H. J. W. Kizer, W. S. Pinson, B. E. McCollum, George Westmoreland, A. S. Johnson, T. D. Johnston, J. N. Holder, Guy Strickland, L. H. Isbell, C. B. Lord, J. C. Turner, T. T. Gainesville Study Club Features 'Bible in Art'

Mrs. Ben Gaillard, a program chairman of the November meeting of the Gainesville Study Club, held at the home of Mrs. E. E. Kimbrough Jr., gave a comprehensive resume of the "Bible in Art."

Mrs. Gaillard divided her discussion into four periods of history, touching in each the outstanding artists and sculptors. Mosaics and tapestries were mentioned and an exhibition of pictures by outstanding artists depicting scenes from both Old and New Testament added interest.

Mrs. W. R. Garner, club president, presided over a round-table discussion of federation projects, including the Tallulah Falls Industrial School and the Federation Cook Book, which is being planned.

The roll call was answered with current events, those responding being Mesdames Roy Newman, Pierpont F. Brown, Campbell Brown Jr., Pinckney Whelchel, H. H. Dean, Jesse Meeks, A. S. Hardy, Arthur Roper, Katharine Dozier, Charles Strong, Cleveland Whelchel, Harold Castleberry, P. D. Horkan, Claude Williams, Mrs. Gaillard and Mrs. Garner. Mrs. Kimbrough and Miss Katharine Dozier.

Fourth District Student Aid Honor Roll.

Mrs. J. A. Corry, chairman Student Aid in the fourth district, writes: "At our last meeting the Barnesville Woman's Club voted to place the names of Mrs. William C. Stafford, honored citizen of Barnesville, and Mrs. A. O. Murphey, a past president who served the club for nine years, on the Founders' Memorial Roll of Student Aid. In honoring these splendid women we are honoring ourselves. We formerly placed the name of Mrs. L. C. Tyus, also of the Barnesville Woman's Club, on the Founders' Roll.

The fourth district won the silver trophy last year for the most outstanding work for Student Aid and is making a fine record that promises another year of accomplishments. Mrs. Corry wrote that the clubs in their December meetings will give the Student Aid questionnaire and program.

Canton Woman's Club.

"Universal Peace" was the theme of the program at the meeting of the Canton Woman's Club on Friday and was in charge of Mrs. P. W. Jones, chairman of the Tallulah Falls committee. Mary Foute Jones read John Galsworthy's "Valley of the Shadow," and Miss Beulah Lee Hensley sang, accompanied at the piano by Miss Martha Gault. Kipling's "Recessional" was sung as a double trio by Miss Sue Arrington, Mrs. Max McCanless, Miss Martha Galt, Mrs. W. G. Nunn, Mrs. J. W. Chamlee, with Mrs. Griffin Roberts, accompanist. Hostesses were Mesdames C. E. Day, J. W. Chamlee, Ethel Conn, D. W. Donley, W. S. Dick, C. C. Edge, O. P. Galt and Msis Daisy Crisler.

Canton Junior Woman's Club inaugurated their study of a course in American literature on Tuesday evening at a meeting at the home of Miss Lela Ledford. The teacher of journalism at Canton High school gave the "Introduction of American Literature." Miss Marie Blackwell gave a reading, and Mrs. G. M. Doyal discussed the "New Poetry." Acting as hostess with Miss Ledford was Miss Lois Edge.

Warm Springs Woman's Club Celebrates Its 25th Anniversary

The Warm Springs Woman's Club celebrated its 25th aniversary on November 12 at the Community House, which has been completed, and which project was sponsored by the club. Mrs. R. A. Sloan, who has been the capable president, for past seven years, presided at the celebration.

A program on Armistice Day was observed. Mr. Wallace, guest singer, rendered, "Keep the Home Fires Burning," and Mrs. Gene Bulloch Worth read an appropriate paper. Mrs. S. P. Killan, who served two terms as president and worked tirelessly for the betterment of the club, presented Mrs. F. C. Brooks, of Columbus, Ga., reared in Warm Springs, and who was the founder of the club, and acted as the first secretary, and is an honorary life member. She spoke of the feeling of friendship, and esteem in which Mrs. Brooks is held by the club and the community.

Mrs. O. H. Alexander, chairman of the program committee, presented the charter members, who spoke on why they had been members for 25 years. Past presidents gave the most outstanding feature of their administration.

The artistically decorated birthday cake held 25 candles, and past presidents were presented a candle for each year of service. Mrs. Neal Kitchens was the first president, and as a testimonial to her efficiency and untiring efforts during these early days of the club's existence, she was called on to fill this office five and one-half consecutive years. Other presidents were Mrs. J. O. Butts, Miss Mattie Bulloch, Miss Lucie Harris, Mrs. R. O. Phillips, Mrs. C. A. Bulloch, Miss Lula Williams, Mrs. S. P. Killian, Mrs. Sara Reid, Mrs. George Johnson.

Mrs. J. O. Butts, a charter member, and who has rendered valuable service to the club, related the history of the club.

Mrs. R. A. Sloan and Mrs. Will Reid conducted an impressive memorial service for Mrs. Sarah J. Bussey, Mrs. Ben Allen, Miss Mattie Bulloch, Mrs. W. J. Brown, Mrs. S. T. Norris, Mrs. Ella Killian and Mrs. A. V. Gorham.

Mrs. A. C. Dunn Sr., and Mrs. Cora Hill, loyal charter members, gave interesting talks. They seldom have been absent from any meeting.

A happy climax to this birthday party was the notification that Warm Springs had won $400 in a state-wide contest, which fund will probably be used on the Community House.

'Education for Citizenship' Is Theme Of State President's Address

Mrs. A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, spoke recently at Millen Woman's Club, delivering an inspiring address on her ideals for the Georgia federation ouring her term of office. She gave as her slogan "Education for Citizenship" and asked that the federation be made a "constructive force for good in every Georgia community."

She conceded that the average clubwoman is a home-loving body but showed the necessity of going out from home to make conditions better on the outside for it is there that the children get many ideas and ideals. She said, "We can't keep our children inside always. So we must go out with them. We must keep abreast of the times and move along with our children."

Among the club activities she stressed were club institutes, forums on public affairs, the Georiga federation's cookbook and the nine departments of the federation which she likened to "the facets of a diamond, which make it glitter and gleam."

Mrs. Congor was introduced by Mrs. C. Thompson and Mrs. Floyd Rackley. Other visitors were Mrs. H. G. Bell, of Bainbridge; Mesdames W. C. Sommers, Hugh Thompson and W. L. Oliver, of Vidalia; Mrs. W. R. Turner, of Cordele; Mrs. W. E. Alwood, of Macon; Miss Laura Robbins, and Sylvania and Mrs. A. B. Clark, of Atlanta.

Mrs. Charles Wadsworth, president of the club, conducted the business meeting. Outstanding reports were made by the library committee, Mrs. Hendrick Brinson, chairman; the cemetery committee, Mrs. C. B. Landrum, chairman; the better homes and garden committee, Mrs. Ralph Lee, chairman, and the building committee, Mrs. John Bates, chairman. Mrs. Bates stated that work done by the building committee had been completed with the installation of heat in the community house. Mrs. Lee reported that crochet mats for the community house table were being made.

The club joined the Red Cross, being the first to enroll in Jenkins county. Mrs. Wadsworth appointed Mrs. Chapple Chandler chairman of the committee to work in Millen for the Georgia federation's cook book. Mesdames Clyde Dekle, Jasper Johnston, George Mays, Ed Fletcher and Lloyd Walker will sell tickets for the program of poetry which Dr. W. F. Melton, of Atlanta, will give at the community house on November 24 under the sponsorship of the fine arts committee of the club.

The program was introduced by Mrs. Floyd Rackley. Mrs. W. C. Sommers, of Vidalia, accompanied by Mrs. Thompson, sang "Ava Maria," by Schubert, and "Th Nightingale and the Rose."

Hostess committee included Mesdames C. B. Landrum, George Mays, W. L. Robinson, A. S. Cates, Allen Edenfield, Alma Reese, John D. Newton, Andrew Fries, Andrew Tarver, John Oatts and Joe Edenfield Sr.

At the December meeting the better homes and garden committee, with Mrs. Ralph Lee as chairman, will be hostesses, and Mrs. Dice Anderson, of Macon, will speak on "Christmas in Literature."

Mrs. Ralph Butler Urges Clubs Formed in Every County in State

Mrs. Ralph Butler, of Dallas, first vice president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, issues the following message to the clubs: "If we of the Georgia federation are to continue on the firing line and meet the challenge of the future, we must continue to grow not only in mind but in body as well. Holding this thought, as chairman of club extension, I am asking that every clubwoman in the state serve with me on this committee. We have as a goal, a club in every county in the state. Quite a number of counties boast of many clubs, but there are many counties where the women are deprived of the privilege of service afforded through the work of the federation.

"We are asking the district officers, the club presidents and the individual members to check their districts and contact some one in a neighboring town where they may help organize a club, that more and more women may have the joy of the benefits offered through club work. We are also asking that "every member get a member." This is not a new slogan but we urge that each of you make it a personal matter. If every clubwoman in Georgia would bring into the federation just one member it would mean that our membership would be doubled, our dues would be doubled, our medium of service would be doubled and our power of achievement doubled.

"We are going to have an honor roll of every club that federates, a club and of every district that is 100 per cent with a club in every county. Awards will be made at the council meeting in April, at Macon, one to the club showing the greatest increase in membership, net gain (loss deducted), and another to the district federating the most clubs. All competitions for these awards must have reports in the hands of the first vice president April 1.

The membership campaign in the general federation is from March 1, 1936, to March 1, 1937. Competition for awards is very keen so show your pride in your club and your district by doing your best in this important phase of club work. Membership blanks when filled in by clubs desiring to join the federation must be sent with list of members and dues, to Mrs. Ralph Butler, Dallas, Ga., first; Mrs. Butler forwards them to Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, state director, for her signature, and Mrs. Ritchie sends them to the state treasurer, Mrs. C. W. Heery, 566 Park avenue, Atlanta.

Royston Woman's Club Meets.

With the president, Mrs. Stewart Brown presiding, the November meeting of Royston Woman's Club was held at the school building and the pledge to the flag was led by Mrs. S. G. Alapaugh, and the collect was read by Miss Bertie Forbes. Mrs. H. E. Osborn, chairman of citizenship, reported that, with the co-operation of the town officials, the club would sponsor a clean-up week. Mrs. J. A. Dyar urged that the women vote and take a more active interest in citizenship.

Mrs. Worley Adams asked for reports from the division chairmen of the American home department, and Mrs. H. L. McCrary, chairman of gardens, told the purpose of a garden. Miss Annie Jim Carlton told the plans for her committee on homemaking to have an exhibit in December of the work done in the freshman and sophomore classes in home economics. The forestry chairman, Mrs. F. G. Moss, urged planting shrubs and trees.

Mrs. Jep Winn announced the observance of book week and stated that her committee would sponsor an essay contest in the high school. Literature and poetry chairman said a "Poetry Clinic" would be held at an early date, and Mrs. Lady Veal told of the Georgia writers who were holding the spotlight. Mrs. Hubert Dyar reported seven pairs of shoes donated for needy, and it was voted to send $2 to Hospital 62 for Thanksgiving.

Attractive yearbooks were distributed by the chairman, Mrs. J. F. Sosby, and Miriam Strickland, vice president of the junior club, reported its meeting. Mrs. W. T. Irvine gave the current topic, and visitors welcomed were Mrs. Rufus Lester, of Wadley; Mrs. Marian King, of Virginia; Miss Miriam Strickland, and Mrs. Hunter Strickland. A program on "The American Home" was presented by Mrs. Worley Adams, featuring a song by Mrs. C. E. Veal, and a talk by Miss Lula Peek, tenth district chairman of the American home.

Clayton Woman's Club Meeting.

Clayton Woman's Club held the November meeting at the home of Mrs. C. W. Holden, with Mrs. T. A. Duckett and Mrs. Ed Holden as cohostesses. Mrs. C. R. Hendrix, the president, presided over the meeting and 21 members and five visitors attended. The finance committee reported a profit of $31.22 realized from the recent county fair. The club voted to have installed, as soon as possible, playground equipment for the children at the Rabun county school.

The program committee, including Miss Joan Smith and Mrs. J. G. Gower, presented an interesting program on literature. Rev. Echols, of Clayton Methodist church, gave an instructive outline of the history of the printed English Bible, exhibiting several editions of this Book of Books. An unusually interesting feature brought out was the reading by Rev. Echols of the 14th chapter of St. John from each edition, giving the different versions of this chapter.

Mrs. J. G. Gower talked on Georgia poets and poetry, which is a subject dear to the hearts of native Georgians. Miss Mary Teasley talked on other Georgia writers, and the columnists responsible for the interesting editorials in the daily papers. Miss Sarah Holliway read "Free Joe," by Joel Chandler Harris. Mrs. T. L. Bynum rendered a vocal solo, the everbeautiful "Mighty Lak' a Rose," words by the beloved Georgia poet, Frank L. Stanton.

Makes Request Today.

Mrs. A. Glenn Mickel, of Robertstown recently elected treasurer of the ninth district, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, asks the clubs of her district to be prompt in sending in dues for 1937 to her. All dues should be in the hands of the state treasurer by January 1.

Fifth District President Appoints Chairmen For Her Administration

Thanksgiving Dinner of 50 Years Ago Was a Rare Feast

Scattered Family Returned Home For Year's Most Important Meal

Table Groaned Under Mountain of Good Things to Eat.

By WALTER K. PUTNEY.

Fifty years ago, Thanksgiving was the most important holiday in the year. Often it required a sacrifice of time and work to get home—a journey by train part way, a long ride on the stage, a half-day taken up just in traveling. Usually, the folks came the day before and stayed over until the day after Thanksgiving.

The reunion was a happy one for all, but happiest for the boys and girls when they went into the kitchen and pantry and saw what was in store for them. The Thanksgiving family table of that time is seldom seen today, with half a dozen different kinds of dessert pies, chicken pies baked in great milk pans, vegetables in generous dishes, and cakes, cookies and fruits!

For days in advance, mother and the girls who lived at home, or members of the family who lived near by, worked in preparation for the great event. There were no modern conveniences for cooking, no gas or electric stoves, no refrigerators to keep things preserved. The good things to eat were all baked, broiled stewed or roasted the day before Thanksgiving, except the chickens and turkeys.

Plenty of Pie!

Cakes and pies were the first to be turned out, in numbers that would make the modern housewife hold up her hands in wonderment. These were stored in the pantry. It was not unusual for mother to have at least 40 pies ready for consumption, a dozen cakes, a crock full of cookies and bread enough to almost fill a baker's cart. Among the pies baked for the occasion were apple, mince, squash, cranberry, raisin, apricot, blueberry, blackberry and pumpkin. The last named was the great home favorite, known to the boys as "punker" pie.

The dining room table was extended by using other tables, boards laid across sawhorses, and small tables for the grandchildren.

The morning of Thanksgiving was a busy one. At daylight, the women folks got up and started in. Vegetables were made ready for boiling. The fruits were carefully wiped and put into dishes. Nuts were cracked and the little auxiliaries were all seen to before breakfast.

Baking the Chicken Pies.

Then came the baking of those great chicken pies made in milk pans. Turkeys were usually not plentiful and if a family happened to have one or two, they were roasted on the day before Thanksgiving and "warmed up" after the chicken pies were done.

The family all attended church in the morning, except one or two members who were putting the finishing touches on the dinner. Then, when they returned from church, everybody got things "up" for dinner. There was a hustle and bustle everywhere, but no confusion. Finally, the table was literally loaded with the "starters" (there were no such things as courses in grandmother's time) and the family pitched in.

The table was literally loaded with "starters."

What did it matter if some had to eat with kitchen knives and forks or if broken cups had to be utilized? Grandfather loaded up the first plate with chicken pie, a small slice of turkey, two potatoes, turnips, squash, a spoonful of beans or canned peas, a dab of applesauce, and perhaps a little jelly. Then he passed the plate and said: "If you want more, come back for it!"

Second Helpings Urged.

To most folks, it would seem that one plateful would be sufficient, but every person present was urged to be sure to eat enough and if one finished one of the "fixin's," there was a great hullaballoo if the plate was not passed for more.

The "starters" having been cared for, pies were brought in. If any person balked at less than four different kinds, grandfather made some remarks about city folks 'havin' mighty delicate appetites."

Following the pies came cakes—favorite cakes baked especially because grandmother had not forgotten how John or Henry or Mary or Martha always "took to" one particular kind. Cookies lay on plates here and there and each one of the family could help himself. The fruit was raised on the farm, mainly apples of various kinds. But there were also pears that grandmother had kept down cellar—the hardy varieties with thick, tough skins but wonderful flesh—and there were dishes of preserved fruits like currants, blackberries and cherries. But the greatest attraction was the special dish of fruit from the family tree, out in the orchard.

The Family Tree.

The family tree was a distinct New England institution. Just when it originated nobody knows. It was not genealogical in nature, but a well-shaped, healthy tree—the best of the orchard. As each child in the family approached his sixth or seventh birthday, a shoot of his favorite apple was grafted on this sturdy tree. Later, the apples from that branch belonged to that child, or the money received from their sale was his. At the Thanksgiving reunion, grandmother had a big dish of apples from that family tree, as a reminder of the good old days long gone by! That dish, perhaps, brought more sentiment into the gathering than any other part of the day's celebration.

NOVEL DEVICES FOR FEEDING BIRDS WILL HELP THEM SURVIVE THE COLD

By RAY J. MARRAN.

Birds have a difficult time trying to find something to eat during the winter, so it is up to you boys and girls to provide bread crumbs and scrap meat for them, especially when the ground is covered with deep snow. There are many ways of feeding birds besides scattering grain and bread crumbs on top of the snow. Some of these methods are novel, and you will get a lot of enjoyment out of watching the birds eat at your feeding stations.

The easiest way to watch the birds feed is to scatter food on one of your window sills. Yard feeding stations can be made from shallow platforms attached to a pole set in the yard. The rinds of halved grapefruit and oranges may be used by nailing the half rinds to a tree limb, or by swinging them from the branches with string. Fill the rinds with crumbs and grain. Tack fat meat to the tree trunk, then cover it with a square of wire netting (not screen wire) so the birds can perch on the wire and peck at the meat beneath it. This wire covering prevents greedy birds from flying away with the whole piece of meat.

Suspended by String.

Meat may also be suspended from tree branches on strings. Provide perches on the strings so the birds may sit down while eating. This method prevents cats and squirrels from stealing the meat.

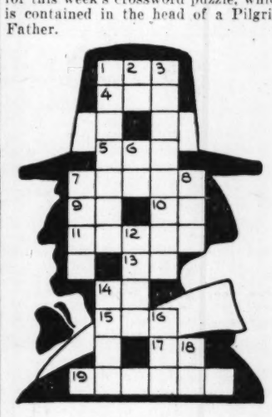

Another novel type of squirrel-proof bird feeder is a small, open-sided house, made to slide along a wire clothes line as sketched. To avoid wading through the snow when placing feed in this type of feeder, attach kite string to the feeder as shown, so it can be pulled up to your back door, then pulled to the center of the clothes line, where squirrels and cats cannot reach it and steal the bird's food.

There may not seem to be many birds in your neighborhood, but once your establish a bird feeding station, you will be surprised at the number and variety of birds that will patronize your station.

A Seat for David

A Short Story

It was the rush hour of the evening. Crowds thronged the station platform waiting for the north-bound trains. As she waited, Miss Jacobs frantically counted her charges for the tenth time. She vowed silently that she would never again venture into the city with 12 lively orphans.

"If I ever get them back safely to the Stanley Jones Orphanage," she thought grimly, "I'll never take them outside the iron gate again."

She grabbed the hand of the tiniest orphan and held it tight, just as he was on the point of dashing away into the crowd. The train was coming. Quickly she counted them again to make sure.

"Twelve." Yes, they were all there. The train rumbled and screeched into the station.

"Come on, children. Follow me!" Miss Jacobs called out above the noise of the crowd. "Watch where you step. Don't get lost. Into the back car, Ellen. Take my other hand, Jimmy. Oh, dear, the seats are all taken. Here, hold onto me! David, you can't reach that strap. Oh, do look out!"

But the warning came too late. With a sudden jerk the train had started again. Little David, standing on tiptoe, straining every muscle to reach the strap, lost his balance and fell headlong right into the lap of a jolly looking man of about forty.

"Well, well, hello, sonny," the man gasped.

"Well, well, hello, sonny," the man gasped when he was able to get his breath. He stooped to pick up David. But with his hand on David's arm, he stopped short and stared into David's big grey eyes. Miss Jacobs, watching them was surprised to see the nice looking man turn pale when David smiled at him. He leaned over and lifted David to his knee.

"Who are you?" he asked. "What's your name?"

"David Long," the boy answered.

"Is that your mother?" the man nodded towards Miss Jacobs. David shook his head.

"I don't have any mother," he said. And then because he liked the man he added, "I don't have any father, either. I'd rather have a mother and father than anything in the world," His lip trembled.

The man's arm tightened around David's shoulder. "I'd rather have a little boy like you than anything in the world," he said. "I once had one. He was very, very much like you."

"Where is your little boy?" David asked, interested.

"He's in heaven," the man answered, his voice husky.

David's eyes opened wide in surprise.

"Why, isn't that funny! he exclaimed. "That's where my father and mother are. Do you suppose maybe they know your little boy?"

The man smiled. "Perhaps they do," he answered.

David sat contentedly on the man's knee for a few moments, his brow puckered in thought. Then he looked up at the man.

"Wouldn't it be nice," he said eagerly "if you could adopt me, and my mother and father could adopt your little boy? Then everybody would be happy!"

The man looked startled. Miss Jacobs stepped forward and touched David's arm.

"Come, David," she said. "You mustn't annoy this gentleman."

"Wait!" The man clutched David more tightly. "That suggestion isn't so bad. If it could be arranged . . ."

He looked inquiringly at Miss Jacobs, who nodded encouragingly. The man sighed and settled back into his seat.

"I think, David," he said happily, "that you've made a sale!"

Posers

These eight questions are drawn from widely different fields. Therefore you may not be able to answer all of them, but you should get a few without any trouble.

1. What eight cities have baseball teams in the National league?
2. With what statesman did Abraham Lincoln engage in a famous debate?
3. What form of government did Germany have up to 1918?
4. What island lies at the southern extremity of the Italian "boot"?
5. In what year was George Washington born?
6. What American states touch the Gulf of Mexico?
7. Where was the Boer war fought?
8. What is sarsaparilla?

Eating Huge Dinner On Thanksgiving May Help Solve a Riddle

If you have any trouble guessing the second riddle below, save it for next Thursday afternoon. Then, if you are sufficiently well stuffed with turkey and pumpkin pie, it ought to be easy.

1. Why is an ax like coffee?—Wava Minor.
2. What is the difference between Jonah and an old-time Thanksgiving dinner?—Paul Slattery.
3. Why is fruit cake like the ocean?—Annette Brown.
4. Why has hair electricity in it?—Anony Mouse.
5. Why is Jesse Owens like an unlighted cigaret?—Jerry Eldridge.

GIVING THANKS AND THANKSGIVING

Next Thursday is Thanksgiving Day. Every boy and girl knows the meaning of this holiday, and the reason it was established. In fact, we all know these things so well that the chances are we don't pay any attention to them.

You don't believe that? All right, stop a minute and think exactly what Thanksgiving Day means to you, personally. A big football game? A huge dinner with turkey and all the trimmings? A family gathering? A day of freedom from school and lessons? Honestly, now, aren't those the things you think of in connection with Thanksgiving?

All those methods of celebrating the day are very good, in their place. But don't you think it would be a good idea to give a little thought to the fundamental idea of Thanksgiving—a day for expressing our gratitude to God for all the blessings we have received?

Giving thanks is good for us. It makes us feel a little more humble, a little less selfish. Try it—all by yourself, quietly; just thinking things over for a minute or two. Then, go for the turkey and the football game, and more power to you!

Young Dog Deserves Clean, Warm Kennel For Winter Weather

By HORACE MITCHELL.
Pets Editor.

How is the old pup these days? Have you looked inside his house? Does it smell good?

Lots of people keep their dogs in outdoor dog houses all winter. And if the house doesn't start the winter spick and span and clean, it will be very dirty indeed by spring.

A good dog house ought to have double walls with the spaces between the studding stuffed with shavings or some similiar material. A drafty house means a sick dog when the weather is bad. So does a poorly ventilated house.

How to Ventilate.

Have the walls good and tight against the wind, but up above the dog's head, have some sort of opening for the bad air to pass out. If this aperture can be closed with a sliding board, it will be very fine. Then you can fix it so the dog will be comfortable in any temperature.

The cheapest disinfectant for the inside walls is creosote or carbola. The latter is a mixture of disinfectant and whitewash that kills germs and makes the walls white. But with dark colored dogs, there may be some trouble with the whitewash, part of it rubbing off on the hair. However, this does no harm.

The Dog's Bed.

A dog's bedding in winter is very important indeed. Clean pine shavings are good. So are pine needles. Both of these can usually be secured for nothing, the former at some lumber mill and the latter in the woods. Cedar shavings especially treated for dogs are particularly good.

But whatever you use, have enough so that the dog can make a snug nest for himself. Most dogs will paw the shavings around and around until they've fixed a hollow place that is just right for them. Then they'll curl up with their tails over their noses and sleep well through the coldest weather.

Short-haired dogs and short-tailed dogs need more protection, of course.

Use Nut Baskets For Table Trim On Thanksgiving

By KATHERINE HOUISON.

Nut baskets for the family Thanksgiving dinner table are easy to make and inexpensive. All you need is a few small boxes, some shelf paper, ribbon, crepe paper and cardboard. Choose your colors to harmonize with the table decorations.

First, cut strips of cardboard for the handles of your baskets. The width and length will depend on the size of your boxes. Be sure the cardboard is light enough to bend easily. Wrap the handle with crepe paper and make a paper bow or flower to fasten on one side. Now glue this handle to the box and you're ready to line the "basket" with crepe paper to match the handle.

Next, cut the scallops off the shelf paper, making it wide enough to stand up just above the edge of the box. Cut a narrow crepe paper fringe in a contrasting color, paste it around the inside of the scallop, then fasten this to the outside of the box.

If you want to use the baskets as place cards also, fasten a small card bearing the guest's name to the bow on the handle.

And after dinner the whole family will enjoy this game:

Give each one a pencil and paper and tell them to write a dinner menu, using foods that begin with the letters in "Thanksgiving." Here are a few samples to give you the idea.

T—Turkey.
H—Ham.
A—Apples.
N—Nuts.
K—Kale.
S—Sugar.

Changing Ink To Water Easy For Young Magicians

By THOMAS THE MAGICIAN.

I believe the very first trick I ever saw performed was the changing of ink to water, but as to the identity of the magician who did the effect, I must admit that my memory fails me.

This week I am going to tell you just how to perform that same trick, so popular a decade ago.

Effect: A glass tumbler is exhibited by the magician. It appears to be about half full of ink, which the performer proves is the case by inserting a white card into the liquid and bringing it out half covered with the ink.

Now, he covers the glass with a handkerchief and when it is removed the ink has changed to half a glass of water.

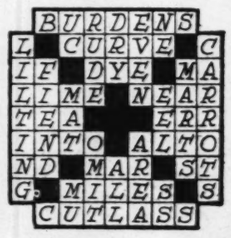

Explanation: The secret of this effect lies in the fact that the glass is lined with a piece of black silk, rolled in the shape of a cylinder and then sewed. Attached to this cylinder is a black thread with a small ring or button tied to the other end, which hangs over the edge of the glass.

When the cloth is placed over the tumbler, the button or small ring is grasped with the fingers, and thus the thread carries the lining away.

In regard to the inked card, this is accomplished with the aid of a card which is inked on one side. The card is then turned around when it is dipped in the (supposed) ink, and the reverse inked side is revealed.

Professor Noodle, Famed Inventor, Poses for Portrait in Laboratory!

For months now we have been deluged with letters from our readers, asking for a picture of Professor M. T. Noodle, famous scientist whose Goofy Gadgets have made it easier to do practically anything you don't ever do anyway.

While we have been eager to comply with these requests, it has been very difficult to get the professor to pose just now perfecting a hair tonic which will cure fallen arches, stuttering, hangnails, hives, housemaid's knee and eyestrain. The tonic consists of 99 9-10 per cent water and 1-10 per cent salt. The salt got into the mixture by mistake because the professor always eats kippered herring for his lunch.

The professor will be glad to receive letters from anybody who is particularly anxious to have something invented. He guarantees to solve all your problems with a Goofy Gadget which will make every job a pleasure and life just a bed of roses, complete with thorns.

ATLANTA MUSIC NOTES

by Mozelle Horton Young

It seems so futile to be writing "Atlanta Music Notes" this week, for with the heaviness of the terrible tragedy that befell the Atlanta Conservatory of Music Thursday, with its sorrow for the three musicians who perished and the others that were hurt. It seems that all music is silent. Those musicians of the community who actively participate in the goings-on that make up the musical life of the city, even if not personally connected with the tragedy, are heavy-hearted and have only sympathy and concern for their colleagues.

Evening Bell Service.

The Evening Bell services have been resumed at Peachtree Christian church. This vesper service, which begins at 5 o'clock, is rather unusual in its plan. A theme is selected around which the anthems, hymns, organ numbers and a short talk by the minister are woven. The theme will be "Thanksgiving" Sunday, the following anthems being used: "Rejoice, for Blessings Round You Fall," from the cantata "Ruth," by Gaul; "Praise, My Soul, the King of Heaven," Mark Andrews, and "All Praise to God Eternal," a Russian Thanksgiving hymn, arranged by Harvey Gaul, sung by the antiphonal choirs. These services are preceded by a 30-minute program on the tower chimes. Rev. Robert W. Burns is minister and Mrs. Victor B. Clark organist and choir director. The public is cordially invited.

Studio Club Musicale.

The music group of the Studio Club, with Margaret Fraser chairman, will present its November musicale Monday night at 8:30 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Claude Smith Jr., 2528 Rivers road. The program will be presented by Ruth Powell, soprano, member of the faculty of Bessie Tift College, Forsyth; Haskell Boyter, baritone, and the Lindner quintet, comprised of Robert Harrison, first violin; Maurice Segal, second violin; Georg Lindner, viola; Thomas Hutcheson, 'cello, and J. T. Pittman, pianist. Mrs. John Felder will accompany both singers. Members of the club and a limited group of their friends are invited.

About James Melton.

James Melton, distinguished young tenor of concert and radio fame, will be presented in concert by the Atlanta Woman's club, in the club auditorium, at 8:30 p. m., December 1. Mr. Melton made his first progress toward his musical career by playing a saxophone for college dances. The head of the University of Florida, where Melton was a student, once heard him sing and earnestly advised him to make a serious study of music, so James promptly enrolled with a singing teacher. Later he matriculated at the University of Georgia, and the next year moved on to Vanderbilt University, in Nashville, Tenn. In Nashville, he studied with Gaetano De Luca, the opera singer, who was immediately enthusiastic over the quality of Melton's voice. After finishing his college course, Melton went to New York and became a member of Roxy's famous gang, singing regularly over NBC networks. Soon afterwards the Revelers felt a great need for the clear, reliable tone of his distinctive voice, so he joined that celebrated quartet. His concert debut was at Town Hall, in New York, followed by a recital tour.

Singers who merely vocalize instead of projecting personality through songs are his pet aversion. Six feet, three inches tall, and weighing 196 pounds, he played first-rate college football, and is still devoted to the game above all others. His most prized possession is his boat, in which he cruises around Long Island sound in his leisure moments.

Ensemble Program.

The first evening program presented by local artists in the current season of the Atlanta Music Club was given last Tuesday night in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club to a large and responsive audience. The program was under the chairmanship of Caroline Dowman. Elinor Whittemore King is the general chairman of the evening programs. The program Tuesday was composed entirely of ensemble numbers.

At the beginning of the program Mrs. Dowman dedicated the program to the memory of Alfredo Barili, beloved Atlanta musician, the anniversary of his death being Tuesday. Mrs. Dowman and Louise Morrison, president of the club, both of whom were pupils of Mr. Barili, opened the program with a stirringly dramatic interpretation of Cesar Franck's "The Djinns," based on the poem of the same name by Victor Hugo. Mrs. Dowman read the poem prior to the performance, adding to the understanding of the work.

The middle portion of the program was devoted to a reading of the entire "Trio, Opus 50," by Tschaikowsky, by Mrs. King, violinist; Eleanor Hodges, 'cellist, and Mrs. Dowman, pianist. These artists gave their combined artistry in a profound and moving interpretation of this great work, lending to it a wealth of warmth and beauty.

Mrs. Dowman and Mrs. Morrison closed the program with another two-piano group, bringing a brilliant ending to a fine program with three extremely attractive Spanish numbers. These two artists make a perfect team for two-piano playing. Their nuances, their tonal shadings, their interpretations, their synchronization, are always satisfyingly "en rapport."

Salvi Ensemble.

"Congratulations and hearty wishes for many more such programs!"—goes to the Student Lecture Association of Emory University and its capable manager, Dr. Ross McLean, for the presentation of Alberto Salvi, world renowned harpist, and his instrumental ensemble to a large and enthusiastic audience in Glenn Memorial auditorium last Monday night. Seldom has Atlanta heard such perfected ensemble playing as this quintet of artists afforded that night. The quintet was composed of Mr. Alberti, Caroline Selfronk, flute; Florence Gindl, violin; Robert Alexa, viola, and Alfred Mazzari, 'cellist. Their playing was marked by the most artistic and highly finished degree of ensemble playing imagineable, and the audience recognized their true value with great emphasis. Highlights of the ensemble numbers were the "Quintette," by Jean Cras; "Variations Libres et Finale," by Pierne; and the quartet in Mozart's "Quartet in D Major."

Mr. Salvi proved himself well deserving of the reputation of being one of the world's greatest harpists, for what he demonstrated in the way of technique and skill on the harp was almost unbelievable. Outstanding among his solos were his own composition "The Fountain," and "Bourree in B minor," Bach-Salvi. There were several other harp solos on the program and the audience demanded many encores.

On their first real big venture in the way of a concert attraction the Lecture Association has made a decided success. Should they decide to continue in this field, and if the concerts are as wisely selected as this one, I am sure Atlantans will give them whole-hearted support.

Organ Guild Program.

The November program of the Georgia chapter of the American Guild of Organists was presented last Monday night at the temple on Peachtree, with Dr. Charles A. Sheldon Jr., organist of the temple, presenting a program of Jewish music. Dr. Sheldon was assisted by the temple choir, comprised of Mrs. D. C. Admas, soprano; Mrs. Elyea Carswell, contralto; George Allen, tenor; and Walter Herbert, baritone. The choir was assisted by a guest quartet, Mrs. Charles Sheldon Jr., soprano; Mrs. Luther Byrd, contralto; Vaughn Ozmer, tenor, and Haskell Boyter, baritone. Dr. David Marx, Rabbi, made a welcome address that also gave much information about the meaning of the music of the Hebrew service. The entire program was most impressive, and artistic. Dr. Sheldon played in the beginning two Bach chorale preludes, "When We Are in Deepest Need," and "In Thee Is Gladness," with lovely contrast and fine organistic depth of meaning. The choir offered a beautiful rendition of Max Spicker's "Psalm XCII," and one of the most effective choral numbers of the program was "May the Words of My Mouth," a Sephardic melody. Fine choir ensemble and religious beauty was given to the singing of traditional passages from the day of atonement services, and the double choir reached a moving program climax in "Adon Olom," by Max Spicker. Two other organ solos that Dr. Sheldon played with keen insight and excellent technique were a prelude on a traditional melody, "Mooz Zur," by Harold V. Milligan, and at the close of the program the "Finale," by Sesar Franck.

Emory Orchestra's Success.

The Emory University Little Symphony orchestra, under the capable direction of Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, opened its 15th season with a most successful concert in Glenn Memorial auditorium last Sunday afternoon to a capacity audience. They were assisted in achieving this success by Minna Hecker, coloratura soprano, and the Emory Glee Club.

The orchestra pleased the audience with its finely balanced and well-worked-out performances of "Waltz Suite," Brahms; the first movement of Dvorak's "New World Symphony;" "Trepak," from Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite," and excerpts from Wagner's "Tannhauser."

Miss Hecker won an ovation with the superb beauty of her voice in the singing of "With a Painted Ribbon," Beethoven; "Love," Bletchman, and "Charmant Oiseau," by David. Irene Leftwich gave artistic support at the piano, and Herman Fittz, flutist, played a lovely obbligato.

The Glee Club, with the orchestra supporting them, gave beautifully penned renditions of "Goin' Home," Dvorak-Fischer, and "The Lost Chord," Sullivan. The program came to a climatic close with Miss Hecker, Francis Nunn, baritone; the Glee Club and the orchestra uniting forces in the performance of Pilgrim's Chorus," from Wagner's "Tannhauser."

Mrs. Elsas Guest Artist.

The Corelli Junior Music Club will hold its November meeting at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Ruth Dabney Smith, 14 The Prado.

Mrs. William Elsas, pianist, will be the guest artist for the afternoon. She will play two compositions of Liszt, "Forest Murmers" and the "Gnome Dance." Miss Smith will play a group of violin solos, with Mrs. Elsas accompanying.

The officers of the club are: Pearl Burns, president; Mary Quigley, vice president; Russell Williams, secretary, and Betty Fewell, treasurer.

Home Recital.

Mrs. Victor B. Clark will present the first of a series of recitals at her home in Haynes Manor Wednesday night. Those presenting the miscellaneous program will be Charlotte Bruce, Bess Madill, Gladys Gilstrap, Blanche Strickland, Frances Falks, Grace Smith, Gladys Cobble, Mrs. H. J. Bruce and Walter Battle.

Damrosch Opera for Met.

Walter Damrosch is nearing completion of his third grand opera, and it will be presented at the Metropolitan Opera House during the spring season of 1937. The libretto of the opera is based on Edward Everett Hale's story, "A Man Without a Country," and is the work of the poet, Arthur Guiterman. The composer and the librettist have added a love story to the original story of a young American naval officer who, in a fit of temper, curses the United States, and thereby becomes a sort of American Flying Dutchman, passing the remainder of his life on warships.

New Books and Music.

THE SCHOLES MUSIC HANDBOOK, by Percy A. Scholes; M. Witmark & Sons, N. Y., publishers, $1.50. 101 pp.

This convenient-sized little musical handbook, which has been edited for the American reader by Will Earhart, will be a very valuable addition to anyone's (musician or layman) library. It is designated as "a miniature encyclopaedia of music and musical terms for teacher, pupil, radio listener, concert-goer, professional, amateur, musicologist, and all music lovers"—and that just about covers the entire human populace, doesn't it? One admirable feature of the book is that correlated entries are grouped together, yet any item can be found easily. The classified groupings are: "Keys, scales, intervals, chords;" "Time and rhythm;" "Forms and styles of compositions;" "Details of forms and styles;" "Performing directions;" "Instruments;" "Voices;" "Written and printed music;" "Reference list of terms," and "French, German and Italian particles and other stray words, terminations, etc."

For Choir Directors.

A new collection of ten Russian anthems for soprano, alto, and baritone—attention choirs with a scarcity of tenors!—compiled and arranged by Gordon Balch Nevin, has just been published by J. Fischer & Bros., New York. The anthems are all very lovely and are adaptable either to trios or to three-part choruses. Among the composers represented are Kalinnikoff, Arensky, Rimsky-Korsakoff, Ippolitoff-Ivanoff, Balakireff, Rachmaninoff, and Tschaikowsky.

NEEDED TAX REFORM

As the inequalities of application of the undistributed profits tax law passed at the last session of congress are revealed, it becomes increasingly certain that congress will give serious consideration to modifications of the law to the end that the burden of taxation may rest equally upon all classes and types of business.

It is vitally important, in addition, that the law should be so amended that corporate earnings may be devoted, without having to carry an added burden of taxation, either to the restoration of deficits and the retirement of debts incurred during the depression years, or for the expansion of plants, now needed by practically all industries as a result of the enforced economy of operation during recent years.

In citing the necessity of modification of this law, especially because of its unhealthy effect on the stock market, the New York Times editorially comments that—

The undistributed profits tax has been impelling corporations to declare much larger dividends than they would if it did not exist, because it imposes arbitrary penalties on the retention of surplus. In its early stages such a tax makes stocks seem more attractive by increasing the immediate dividend return they yield. Ultimately it may make them seem much less attractive, because the tendency of such a tax must be to retard the enlargement of factories and consequently of production, while it may tempt some companies to keep reserves inadequate to tide them over bad periods.

In this respect, therefore, the undistributed profits tax as now written is not only a threat to the future stability of industry and business, but imperils the soundness of the securities held by the investors of the nation.

Corporations, both large and small, and particularly in the latter class, are confronted with serious financial problems relating to the future development of their business because of the tax.

Many corporations, which during the past year have shared in the general prosperity and showed earnings for the first time in a period of years, emerged from five years of depression with deficits, reduced surpluses, or a large indebtedness. Under the undistributed profits tax such corporations must either pay out substantially all of their earnings as dividends and allow their unsound financial condition to continue, or else retain their earnings for corporate purposes at well-night prohibitive costs.

Large corporations with accumulated surpluses and little, if any, indebtedness can evade this tax by the disbursement of earnings and remain in a much stronger competitive position. Such corporations having access to the capital markets when new capital is needed have no fear in disbursing earnings.

Small growing businesses, however, faced with the necessity of plant expansion, debt retirement, and other similarly desirable business procedure must pay a prohibitive cost to maintain and improve their competitive situation.

Unquestionably there should be some provision made which will permit corporations in this class to retire indebtedness existing prior to the passage of the revenue act with some portion of their earnings for the next few years without having to pay a tax for the exercising of sound business judgment.

The tax is also a definitely limiting factor on necessary industrial plant expansion which must come if the heavy goods industries are to regain their normal production and consequently do their share to reduce unemployment.

The textile industry, for instance, is composed not of a few large concerns as in some industries, but of hundreds of relatively small units. Almost without exception these units have operated at a net loss for the five-year period preceding 1936. In that period substantial improvements have been made in the efficiency of manufacturing methods and merchandising. Many of these mills are without capital funds and, being comparatively small and with an indifferent earning record for the past five years, cannot enter the capital markets to obtain the required capital for needed improvements. They are now confronted with the alternative of either paying a very high penalty for the retention of earnings to make these needed improvements or the unsound business course of paying out in dividends the first substantial earnings the industry, as a whole, has enjoyed in a period of years. Similar conditions are true in many other industries.

Another inequitable feature of the act is that requiring payment of dividends before the end of the fiscal year in which the earnings accrue. In other words, large corporations whose interests are scattered throughout the country, and the world, in many instances, as well as small corporations with inadequate accounting records, are obliged to declare dividends against estimated earnings which year-end adjustments may prove to be incorrect. Certainly the act should be changed to permit the declaration of dividends out of preceding years' earnings for at least a period of 90 days subsequent to the close of the year in which such earnings were accrued.

The undistributed profits tax law was enacted in the closing days of the last session of congress, when both Democratic and Republican members were seeking to bring about early adjournment in order that they might be free to take part in the presidential campaign, already in its preliminary stages.

In the confusion of these closing sessions members of both the house and senate, while voting for the new tax, expressed the belief that it would be necesssary to perfect it in several important phases. The correctness of this position is conclusively proven by the inequalities of application, and the restricting effect upon business and industrial development, which have now become apparent.

In these two vital respects the tax will act as a major obstruction to the return of sound economic conditions and the lessening of unemployment, both objectives to which President Roosevelt has pledged himself during his second term.

There is ground for the confident expectation, therefore, that congress, with the approval of the administration, will give early attention in the coming session to the elimination of the unwise provisions, and the inequalities of application, contained in the law.

Certainly the representatives in congress from the south, now the most rapidly developing industrial section of the nation, should present a united front to that end.

A VITAL GEORGIA NEED

The extent to which the safety of every citizen of Georgia demands the creation of a state police force similar to those now in existence in practically all the large states of the Union is forcibly presented in a series of articles by Representative Clement E. Sutton, of Wilkes county, the first of which appears on the opposite page. The other two articles will appear in following issues of The Sunday Constiution.

No man in the state is better qualified to discuss the vital need of Georgia for a combined state police and highway patrol, and the far-reaching service rendered by such organizations, than Representative Sutton. An influential member of the general assembly, he has made exhaustive study of the systems now in operation in other states and the extent to which their services increase the safety of the public, not only on the highways but in the home and in the pursuit of business.

In his first article Representative Sutton reviews the growth of the state police system during the past quarter of a century, with 28 states now maintaining highway patrols. Georgia, as he points out, is one of the few states which has no force of any kind charged with the enforcement of state traffic laws. As a rule, the activities of state police are restricted to offenses committed on the highways, but they perform far-reaching service in assisting local police and deputies in keeping the peace and in trailing criminals wanted for the commission of crimes of violence.

While relieving local police forces of much responsibility and expense, there is no clash between the functions of state and local officers, this being emphasized by the fact that overwhelming indorsement to the creation is given by the peace officers of small communities and the police forces of the larger cities.

In no state in the Union is a highway patrol more urgently necessary than in Georgia. The largest state east of the Mississippi river, it is an impossibility for local law enforcement bodies to properly police the state, as is shown in the ease with which criminals, generally coming from other sections, commit crimes of various kinds and then find comparative safety as soon as they leave the community in which the crimes are committed and take to the public highways.

This threat is becoming more serious as the annual fall and spring trek of criminals to and from Florida leads them through Georgia. Bank and postoffice robberies and other crimes are becoming constantly more numerous as these criminals stop over in Georgia long enough to replenish their cash. In recent years but few of those responsible for these crimes have been apprehended.

With an effective state police force not only would the hazards of the highways be lessened, but such criminals would avoid Georgia as they do the states in the north and west which have alert patrolmen cruising their highways.

The series of articles by Representative Sutton are a valuable contribution to the consideration of the bill calling for the creation of a state police force which will be introduced in the forthcoming session of the legislature. They should be carefully read not only by the members of the general assembly, but by local officials and by the public.

THE ELDER EMPLOYABLES

Citing that re-employment has increased rapidly during the past year, and that reports from industry are to the effect that further large gains in employment may be expected during the coming year, President Roosevelt points to the preponderance of skilled and unskilled workers of 40 years of age or over who are being passed up by industry in filling places made possible by increased prosperity of the nation.

In a statement issued just before leaving for South America, he says:

It is widely known that many of the largest industries will not hire workers over 40 years of age. To a large extent, this policy is responsible for the relatively large number of older workers on relief. Leaders of business must recognize the consequences of this hiring age policy—it condemns many in the group of workers to permanent unemployment. It is scarcely necessary to point to the seriousness of this policy. Long continued unemployment for the older workers results sooner or later in unemployability, and this leads to a permanent problem of support. The burden of support is carried ultimately in large measure by industry itself. It is to the best interests of industry to recognize its responsibility, not only by substantially increasing employment . . . but by giving a fair share of the new jobs to the workers over 40 and to expand opportunities for the hiring of unskilled workers.

The real worth of a worker, skilled or unskilled, is not determined by the number of his years. Senility or disability comes to some individuals before 40, others are at the height of their usefulness between 60 and 70. Arbitrarily fixing the age of 40 as the employable limit is not only an injustice to the worker, but deprives industry of the opportunity to employ men who have both experience and physical fitness.

The full value of an individual, whatever his race or calling in life, seldom comes before 40 years of age, and if this age limit for employables is persisted in, thousands of worthy individuals who lost out during the depression are barred for life from the activities for which they are best fitted.

The man past 40 usually has a family which looks to him for support. Deprive him of the right to work because of his age, and all become potential charges upon some form of aid. Give him employment at gainful wages and he will support his family and his wages will go into the spiral of commerce and trade that will aid in creating employment for still other persons. This is one of the impressive lessons of the President's warning to industry that it will be well to heed.

LIQUOR CONFISCATIONS

When the nation voted overwhelmingly for repeal of the trouble-breeding prohibition amendment to the constitution, the state of Georgia was given an opportunity, along with other forward-moving states, to legalize the sale of spirituous liquors, and by this means end the reign of bootleggers and lawlessness and at the same time secure a large revenue from licenses to liquor dealers.

The state legalized the sale of beer, and wine manufactured in the state, but by a few votes retained the ban on sales of "hard liquor," but that short-sighted action has not put an end to the importation of liquor that is legal in other states, nor the flood of moonshine that is distilled in the hills and vales in all sections of Georgia.

Captain John A. Scharf, Atlanta police department custodian, reports that from January 1 to the end of October a total of 8,907 gallons of whisky was seized, this figure comparing with a total of 5,020 gallons for the whole of 1935, and 5,104 gallons confiscated here in 1934.

Police were as vigilant in 1934 and 1935 as they are this year; they have never let up on their efforts to enforce the law, difficult as it has been with the small force available for this particular duty. The increased seizures are due solely to the fact that the state is experiencing a continuance of the growth in the liquor traffic that has been recorded under both federal and state prohibition laws.

Passing a law does not mean that it can be enforced if it is opposed by a large per cent of the public, and the state will continue to be a prey to this species of law-breaking and all of its evil subsidiaries until it takes the common-sense plan of legalizing the sale of liquor, and placing the sale under restrictions that will enable officers efficiently to cope with violations, and thus bring about the universally desired increase in true temperance.

FARMERS' MARKETS

The great increase in diversification of farming activities of Georgia agriculturists, resulting in raising livestock and poultry, and production of grains, hay and a wide variety of vegetables and fruits, is producing a situation that must be met with adequate farmers' markets in county seat towns and other populous centers where surplus products may be sold for cash at any time during the year.

In a communication appearing on the opposite page, Phil C. McDuffie, leading Atlanta attorney, calls attention to this great need for the farmers of the state, and suggests the establishment of a chain of depots, located at strategic points and operated under supervision of county farm agents, where products of the farms may be assembled, graded and packed for the wholesale market, and urges that the incoming general assembly provide funds for the establishment of such markets under leadership of Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture-elect.

The Constitution commends to earnest consideration any sound and feasible plan that will eventuate in adequate farmers' markets where the surplus products of the farms, as well as the specialized crops, will have ready sale. As Mr. McDuffie cites, there is ample market for cotton and tobacco. The poultry cars and trucks which operate in certain sections are gradually extending marketing facilities for poultry products; creameries that are being established in widely separated parts of the state are keeping pace with increase in dairying, and the auction sales of livestock provide markets for stock of all kinds in the districts where there are enough to make these sales of interest to buyers. But despite the number of curb and other markets that have sprung up within the past few years, there is still a dearth of places where the farmer with a small surplus of farm products may find a market.

The Constitution is a pioneer advocate of diversified farming, and for more than a quarter of a century it has stressed the necessity for farmers' markets in every part of the state. It has urged that the establishment of these markets was not up to the farmers, but to the business interests of every town which is the center of a farming district.

Georgia may well copy the independent town market system that is common in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and every other northern state, where in towns as small as 500 population there is at least one place where a farmer may sell a dozen eggs, a pound of butter, a load of hay, wheat, corn, oats, a cow or horse, and receive cash in the transaction. Seasonable vegetables and fruits are also collected, graded and packed, and quantity production handled.

Practically every town of any size in the state of Georgia has a chamber of commerce and one or more civic organizations whose purpose is to work for the economic betterment of the entire community. It would appear that they could engage in no more forward movement for economic improvement than to co-operate with some individual or firm in establishing an adequate farmers' market.

It would stimulate the efforts of every farmer in the section to further production of produce that would be sold at home, and having received cash for his sales he would spend it at home in the mercantile establishments and with members of the various professions, and it would keep in the town a large portion of the cash that goes elsewhere for produce that could be raised on adjacent farms.

Hitler and Il Duce now see eye to eye, according to Count Ciano. In the new diplomacy, it will be remembered, a wink is as solemn as a treaty.

With bonuses and blanket wage boosts the order of the day, can't we look for a revival of the old-time knockabout team of easy come, easy go?

There's a difference of opinion concerning the G. O. P.'s future. Some think it is going the way of the Whigs. Others point out that life begins in '40.

M. ASHBY JONES.

As I Remember Him.

From the vantage point where I stood in the crowded chapel at the funeral of Clark Howell last Sunday afternoon, I could trace in the personnel of that significant gathering the full-orbed circle of the life interests of Atlanta. And in those sympathetic faces one could read, more distinctly than words could tell, the story of a life which had entered in comradely helpfulness into every phase of the life of his community. As I stood there, memory swiftly swept me across the intervening years, and I was entering for the first time the editorial room of The Constitution, as a messenger boy with "copy" from my father.

I saw again the incomparable Grady and heard the music of his contagious laughter. I looked once more into the mystic depths of the eyes of "Uncle Remus," where fairies danced. And for the first time I caught the radiant smile of Clark Howell, the young correspondent. He was talking with youthful enthusiasm to Mr. Grady. As I waited the only word which came to me distinctly was "Atlanta," rhythmic as a chorus, and sounding like the triumphant shibboleth of battle. Ever afterwards the name of Clark Howell suggested to me the name of Atlanta, and whenever I heard the name Atlanta, I thought of Clark Howell. It was more than a trick of memory. His life was deeply rooted in the life of his beloved city, and his sentiments and loyalties were indissolubly intertwined in her welfare.

From Atlanta.

Yes, Clark Howell was characteristically "of Atlanta, Ga.," and his full and rich life found expression in and through her sentiments and traditions, her institutions and enterprises. Yet in that pyramid of flowers which rose in a profusion of perfumed beauty above his coffin, there were floral tributes of loving admiration from all over this nation. And his desk at the office was well night buried beneath the messages of affectionate sympathy from the highest to the humblest in American life. Why is it that one who was so identified with a city, a state, a section, should at the same time be so broad in his influence, as to be honored by an entire nation?

I think we have here the story in epitome of every life which has made any worthwhile contribution to the world. When the great Galilean Teacher was sending His disciples out, He told them to go "Unto all the nations, beginning from Jerusalem." So when we are seeking the source of any great truth, or life, we follow its pathway backwards to its "beginning," and find that it came from some "Jerusalem." Here is its birth place—its homeland. Here it is deeply rooted in its native social soil, nurtured by its traditions, and permeated by its sentiments. These sentiments twine themselves about the trees of one's birthplace, sweeten "the waters of the old well," color the hills and valleys of childhood, and sing their songs in streams, as they go purling to the sea.

Life is ever inductive, proceeding from the particular to the general. Before one can love humanity he must learn to love the people who are around him. And he who has no loyalties to his past, can never be trusted with the future. If he can easily forget his childhood, he will be insensitive to the obligations of his manhood. Atlanta was Clark Howell's "Jerusalem." But neither Atlanta, Georgia, nor the south could limit his vision, bound his interests, or circle his sympathies. He wrote, spoke, and worked "beginning from" Atlanta, but his messages and influence went out unto all the nation.

Unto Humanity.

That was because he was first, and essentially, human. Here is to be found the secret of his charm and influence. "Human" is a larger word than "Georgian" because it describes a larger life. To be a "Georgia" only, is to limit one's interests and affections to those who live within a province. To be "human," in its deepest significance, is to be conscious of one's kinship to mankind, and to be sympathetically interested in human needs and aspirations the world round. Our beloved friend did not live "within" Georgia, but "from" Georgia, "unto all the nations."

This is not the interpretation of an exagerated affection. From time to time through the years, it has been my privilege to sit in the editor's office of The Constitution—permeated with hallowed memories, and consecrated with sacred associations—and witness the procession of human appeals that came to that desk. That door was ever open to the call of human welfare, without any discrimination of race or nationality, class or party. This does not mean that Clark Howell's judgment was not colored by personal and partisan prejudices. He was intensely personal in his relationships, and partisan in his political loyalties. But I do mean that his human sympathies were not limited by personal nor partisan lines.

Perhaps no group will miss him more than the negroes. By inheritance, temperament, and an intelligent appreciation of the true values of our southern civilization, Clark Howell was the fearless champion of racial justice and kindness. So I shall ever remember him, sitting in his beloved old office. There is a knock at the door. The chair, which turns so easily north, south, east or west, swings around. With a radiant smile upon his lips and a coardial "come in," he is ready, not necessarily to agree, but to listen to any cause which is human.

When McPherson Was Born.

Note received from my old friend, Charles H. Killian, commenting on a "Fifty Years Ago" paragraph about the building of Fort McPherson. It is these personal, reminiscent revelations that make the history of our town and our people so fascinating. He writes:

"I remember the great interest taken in the project, the strenuous endeavors of our leading business men and others to secure the post and how glad everyone was when the work was actually begun.

"There had been another post here, the McPherson Barracks in West End, established soon after the War Between the States and garrisoned with federal troops to keep the turbulent citizenry, the "ex-rebels," the Ku Klux and the rest of the population under control and to "rub it in" on them and impress upon them that "treason is odious."

"But the McPherson Barracks had been abandoned for years, the houses had been sold by the government and were occupied by private families."

Is This One Still Standing?

"One by one," Mr. Killian continues, "these ugly buildings have disappeared until there is only one left; it stands between Spelman Seminary and the railroad and may have disappeared since I was out that way last.

"But things had changed. We had a Democrat for president, Grover Cleveland, and although some congressmen from the north or west would occasionally "wave the bloody shirt," we had no further fear of federal troops.

"I do not know in what year troops were first stationed at Fort McPherson. It was, to the best of my recollection, in 1890 or 1891. I know that I went out there for the first time in the summer of 1891. Some months, perhaps many months, before the barracks were ready for occupancy a regiment was sent there. Since there was no place for them on the reservation they pitched camp on the other side of the railroad somewhere between Oakland City and McCall's Crossing.

"It was a pretty sight, too, the long rows of white tents in the green woods, the tall flagpole with the Stars and Stripes fluttering from the top and the blue uniformed soldiers doing sentry duty or moving about the encampment.

Here's the Heart of the Story.

"Now I have finally gotten to my story. When the barracks were ready the soldiers broke camp, struck their tents, hauled down the flag and moved in, but they left the flagpole standing.

"It stood there for close on to thirty-five years. A nice house was later built near it but neither workmen, owner nor tenant molested the flagpole. Indeed, I rather think the owner took steps from time to time to make repairs and keep it standing. For many years, going to and from my place of employment near East Point, I would see from train or trolley that flagpole, partly hidden by a clump of tall, thin pines, and I would wonder how many persons, besides myself, if any, ever noticed it, knew what it was or how it got there. The house still stands some two hundred feet right back of Gammage Crossing in Oakland City and about the same distance from the L. & N. belt line, all close to the underpass under the Central Railway and Lee street.

The First Trolley Line.

"The first street car line to Fort McPherson ran via Pittsburg, came right down the main street of the little village of Fort McPherson, ending at the railroad depot. I rode it many a time in the year 1900 when I was night telegrapher at the railroad depot there.

"It was torn up twenty or more years ago and the people there served by the present East Point line, which was extended from the corner of Lee and Gordon about 1899, as well as I can remember.

"There was a line projected many, many years ago from Fort McPherson to East Point to connect with the Atlanta-McPherson line. It was graded to within a mile of East Point, track laid, trolley poles placed and then abandoned. For want of funds, I suppose. The old roadbed is still plainly visible. I have been curious about that abandoned line but have never been able to find anyone who could tell me about it.

"How do I know that track was laid and poles set? Well, some of the poles were still standing twenty-eight years ago, a few cross ties were left and I picked up several spikes which I took to the office and used as paper weights. Page Sherlock Holmes. Quick, Watson, the needle!"

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Friday, November 22, 1911:

"'Not a locker club in Atlanta, with possibly one exception, is operated in accordance with the law,' stated John E. McClelland, member of the police board, at a meeting of that body yesterday afternoon."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Wednesday, November 22, 1886:

"'Katie Jones,' the young woman who came to Atlanta last August and placed herself under the care of Chief Connolly, has been heard from since she left the city Saturday night. Miss 'Jones' went out of Atlanta on Conductor Dunlap's train, and before reaching Montgomery made known to the conductor that her destination was Greenville, Mississippi."

Parked Automobiles Handicaped Firemen, Points Out Dr. Roy

Editor Constitution: In our daily papers there has occured a great deal of criticism in reference to the management of the fire on Broad street November 19, 1936.

As an eye-witness from my office windows and also a position on the streets, I am confident that all the blame should not be attributed to the fire department.

When the fire occurred, automobiles were parked around all three streets so closely that it was impossible for any fire trucks to get within fighting distance of the building on fire. In addition to this, hundreds of peopie massed themselves together as closely as they could to the burning building and in this way interfered with all possibility of getting ambulances and fire apparatus close enough to the burning building.

The whole fault, as I see it, was due to the police department in not trying to clear the streets and sidewalks of people and cars immediately on the discovery of the fire on Broad street.

While it may be true that some of the apparatus is very old and should be replaced, all the trouble can not be attributed to this condition.

Had the fire department been able to get their trucks and ladders and other fire-fighting apparatus quickly to the building, they would have accomplished a great deal more.

Coming down to the gist of the whole matter, it is traffic regulations and inefficiency of the police department which was the real cause of the delay in extinguishing this unfortunate holocost.

Georgia Weekly Press Editors Regret Death of Clark Howell

FRIEND OF LABOR.

(From the Journal of Labor.)

As The Constitution has grown in size, in attractiveness, in circulation and influence, as the organization has grown with it, as new departments have been added and old departments expanded, Mr. Howell has grown in the minds and hearts of those who, together with him, have been the makers of one of the greatest newspapers in this country.

Mr. Howell was one of the best friends organized labor has had in Georgia. He attended the first meeting of the Georgia Federation of Labor and was a frequent visitor to succeeding meetings of that body—always a welcomed visitor. It was his sympathy and understanding of the principles of organized labor that on more than one occasion helped promote the cause of unionism here in Atlanta, particularly among the printers and employes of the newspapers. His advice and encouragement have been a valuable asset to labor.

We must recognize, too, the imprint he has made upon the civic and political life of the two generations he has served. It is not for us to recount here the various offices he has held whether locally, in his state, in his party or in the nation. It is but for us to record the fact that all the while his influence has been ever widening and deepening.

The thing that has impressed us is not the fact that he has been the central figure in many a political battle, not the fact that he has attracted national attention by his bold strokes for civic and political purity and his sledge hammer blows in the fight against graft and political corruption, but the fact that he has come through all of these stronger intrenched in the respect of his fellow man. Even those who disagreed with him, at times, most bitterly, have come in the end to admire his sterling qualities of fairness, courage and rugged honesty.

So let us pay here a tribute not to what he has done but to what he has been, not to his accomplishments in the newspaper world nor in the political world, nor in statecraft, but to his character. Let us record in these columns our admiration, even our lasting debt of gratitude for the life he has led and the place of friendship he has won in our hearts.

Covered Himself With Honor.

(From the Thomasville Press.)

The announcement of the death of Editor Clark Howell, of The Atlanta Constitution, was a shock to the entire south, and Georgia especially. He was, indeed, an outstanding true type southern character in the newspaper and political field who through his activities had surrounded himself with general confidence and covered himself with honor. His pleasing personality surrounded him with confidence and love, and his departure from life is deeply mourned. Truly Clark Howell will be missed.

Outstanding Journalist.

(From the Walker County Messenger.)

In the death of Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Georgia and the nation lost a citizen of great usefulness. He was an outstanding journalist, a brilliant writer, a leader of the Democratic party, a power in politics, and his active interest in the upbuilding of his state and nation never wavered. Through his pen he brought nation-wide recognition to Georgia and in him our state, nation and the world had a worthy representative. He will be sorely missed.

Dauntless Leader.

(From the Rossville Open Gate.)

Clark Howell was a courageous and uncompromising fighter for what he believed was right, but he was never a crusader, reformer or sensationalist. He was direct, frank and unostentatious. Journalism lost one of its most distinguished figures, Democracy a dauntless leader, Georgia a loyal friend and wise counsellor.

Friend of Country Editors.

(From the Madisonian.)

A great Georgian and a great Democrat passed on in the death of Hon. Clark Howell. He was a great friend to the country editors of Georgia.

(From the Calhoun Times.)

An active and aggressive leader for more than half a century, Clark Howell has left the impress of his life upon his state as few men have been privileged to do, and his death brings to a close a life of unusual usefulness and service.

Nation Has Lost a Statesman.

(From the Cobb County Times.)

Rarely does one man entwine himself into the foundations of so many enterprises as did Clark Howell Sr., editor of The Atlanta Constitution.

The nation has lost a statesman and leader of public opinion who possessed rare qualities combining both conservatism and liberalism, the state will find an irreparable vacancy in the ranks of its leading citizens and The Constitution has lost a publisher and editor of noble character and unexcelled ability.

Inherits Responsibility.

(From the Fitzgerald Leader.)

Major Clark Howell Jr., for several years general manager for The Constitution, under the will of his lamented father, becomes editor in chief and majority owner of The Atlanta Constitution. The ability of Major Howell is widely and favorably known to the newspaper fraternity over the states, and will share in the high esteem in which his beloved father was held in Georgia and throughout the south, to which he had consecrated his journalist ability and was a factor in building its material and cultural interests for the past 50 years. He has carved out for him a difficult place, to uphold the illustrious name in journalism, created by his father and grandfather, who preceded him in the position which he now holds. His ability to live up to their standards is not doubted by those who know him and the press of the country wish him and The Constitution a long period of successfully carrying on the traditions of his forebears.

Loss Almost Irreparable.

(From the Adel News.)

Georgia lost one of its most distinguished citizens when Hon. Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, died last Saturday. Mr. Howell was not only a great editor and a brilliant and versatile gentleman but he was a most modest man and a gentleman whose great heart was ever in attune with the highest and best things of life. His loss is almost irreparable. His gifted and able son, Clark Howell Jr., will carry on well the work of his eminent father.

Georgia Will Miss Him.

(From the Fulton County Review.)

Georgia and the south will miss Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Atlanta Constitution. Clark Howell made of his newspaper a beacon light by which the people of the south were guided toward progress.

Record Written in History.

(From the Newnan Herald.)

Clark Howell was a great editor, a great citizen, and a great friend. It is perhaps, as the latter that he is at this moment most mourned by the members of the newspaper fraternity. He was a friend of every newspaper in Georgia and the south. To each of those conducting newspapers, especially in Georgia, his death comes as a personal loss—one that time will never wholly eradicate from their hearts. His record is written in the history of this section, in imperishable terms.

Loved His State.

(From the Thomaston Times.)

Long a leading figure in journalism, politics and civic affairs, Clark Howell was known as a man of integrity and uprightness in his dealings with his fellow man. His newspaper was recognized as one of the leaders of the south and nation and had taken its part in every movement relating to betterment and uplift of this section. He was a man who loved his state and section and did everything he could for its advancement. He was a valuable asset to Georgia and the south. His death is a distinct loss to both.

First Citizen of Georgia.

(From the Walton Tribune.)

Clark Howell was the first citizen of Georgia, and probably did more for the state than any man of his generation. The welfare and well being of the state always was a passion with him, transcending all other considerations and adding eminence and luster to a great career. A great man and a magnetic leader has fallen, but his works will live so long as time endures.

Recognized World Over.

(From Franklin News and Banner.)

Not only Georgia, but the whole country mourns the passing of Hon. Clark Howell, president and editor of The Atlanta Constitution, national Democratic committeeman, statesman, and philanthropist. He was a national figure, recognized the world over, and was worthy of the great esteem in which he was held.

Was Symbol of Democracy.

(From Atlanta Southern Israelite.)

The passing of Clark Howell Sr. is felt with a sense of deep, personal loss by Atlanta Jewry and our co-religionists throughout the country, for whom the noted statesman and editor had come to stand in his long career as a symbol of democracy. His belief in the spirit of religious freedom and tolerance was a bulwark against subversive movements, and among the most inspiring chapters in his life were those in which he, with the other great lovers of democracy, defeated un-American forces. His high principles and influence in American life were a source of inspiration to the nation.

Was a True Friend.

(From the Baker County News.)

Death has claimed a truly great Georgian and American—Hon. Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution. And although death removes him from work, the example he has set in life will continue throughout the ages and all mankind will be blessed by having had him. Signally honored nation-wide, he was regarded a true champion of democracy such as we in Georgia know it; he championed the cause of right over wrong and even in politics, he played the game fair and square. Aside from his duties in public life and his political connections, Editor Clark Howell was a true friend; a man who delighted to do his fellow man a favor.

Inspiring Leader.

(From the Douglas County Sentinel.)

Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, has passed on. Probably was never a more loved man in the south than Clark Howell. Atlanta and the south will miss him. He was honored by several of our Presidents, and played a great part in honest politics of this state. Clark Howell was a friend to all those who knew him and was loved by all who knew him. He was an inspiring and loved leader.

Example to State and Nation.

(From the Journal of Labor.)

What remains of the mortal flesh of Clark Howell rests beneath the soil he loved so well, and greatly should it rejoice to receive him into its bosom. But it could not claim him until his life was separated from it, separated so that indeed it might be the freerer to extend its influence and touch the lives of others. That life, that sterling soul that he was, still will continue to leaven the lives of the people of the city, the state and the nation he loved.

Won Place in Hall of Fame.

(From the Lithonia Journal.)

Few men have had the opportunity to wield the power and influence in Georgia that was wielded by Hon. Clark Howell Sr., editor of The Atlanta Constitution. Through the columns of his paper he exerted a tremendous influence on the lives of thousands, and helpd to mould public opinion on practically every subject from politics to science and religion. He carried on in the footsteps of Henry W. Grady and won for himself an important place in the state's hall of fame.

Outstanding Citizen.

(From the Blue Ridge Summit-Post.)

The state of Georgia lost an outstanding citizen in the death of Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution. He was a leader in Georgia politics and was always ready to back up every move of any kind which would be a benefit to Georgia or the people. He will be missed by all who knew him.

Great Editor and Publisher.

(From the Crawfordville Advocate-Democrat.)

The death of Hon. Clark Howell, president and editor of The Atlanta Constitution, removes from the press of the state and nation a great editor and publisher. It might be said of Mr. Howell that he was Georgia's "first citizen." His leadership had long been nationally recognized and he had been the recipient of many honors. Mr. Howell was admired by many for his ability and his courage and there are thousands who loved him for his unfailing courtesy and kindness.

STATE POLICE FORCE SHOWN AS VITAL GEORGIA NEED

EFFICIENT SYSTEMS EXIST IN 28 STATES

Representative Sutton, in First of Three Articles, Cites Invaluable Service of State Patrols.

The vital need of Georgia for an efficient and well equipped and directed state police force is discussed by Representative Clement E. Sutton in a series of three articles, written especially for The Constitution, the first of which appears today. In the folowing article Representative Sutton forcefully presents the far-reaching benefits received by other states which have established highway patrols.

By CLEMENT E. SUTTON,
Member of General Assembly From Wilkes County.

As a part of the program of the administration there was introduced at the 1935 session of the general assembly of Georgia a bill which sought to create a system of state police under the complete cntrol and direction of the military department. A substitute measure was adopted by the house placing the proposed system under civil service. The senate refused to consider the measure after the military feature was rmoved from the bill.

The bill which the house adopted was modeled after the systems of New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan, which have been found to be efficient in those states, with such changes as would be adapted to conditions in Georgia.

There was an organized attack made on the bill by some of the industrial leaders of the state, and despite the growing number of traffic fatalities and popular demand for the creation of a state police, the session ended with the bill occupying a pigeon hole in the senate chamber.

It was proposed to pay the expense of the initial setup by an appropriation of $50,000 from the State Highway Department, all future expense to be borne by a nominal fee of $1 to be charged for a driver's license.

Systems of Other States.

According to the report of the research bureau of the Kansas legislative council, there have been four periods of development in the state police systems of the United States.

1. The border patrol period.
2. The beginning of the modern state police systems.
3. The reorganization and expansion period.
4. The period of development of the highway patrol.

The earliest form of state police in the United States was the organization known as "the Texas Rangers," a force established in the early days of the Texas republic for police duty on the Mexican border. The provisional government of Texas authorized the formation of three ranger companies under the jurisdiction of the commander-in-chief of the regular army. The duties of this force were largely military, and though a certain amount of criminal investigation has been undertaken by the rangers since 1904, it still retains some of its early characteristics. The Texas Rangers were reorganized by statute as late as 1919. There also exists in Texas at the present time a state highway patrol, whose duties are largely connected with violations of traffic laws.

In 1865 Massachusetts inaugurated a "state constabulary" exercising general police powers. This organization was first combined with the district police, and later the state police.

Arizona established a force of rangers similar to that of Texas in 1901, Connecticut created its state police in 1903 and New Mexico organized a mounted force in 1905.

The modern system of state police commenced with the establishment of the Pennsylvania system in 1905, followed in 1917 and 1919 by New York and Michigan.

In 1919, as automobile travel increased, and highway construction began in earnest with the enactment of the federal highway program, the need for a mobile police force to cope with the modern criminal was recognized by other states, and West Virginia, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Rhode Island either created a new force or enlarged their state police department. At the beginning of the year 1934, 28 states maintained highway patrols, of which nine had been given full police powers, three states maintained a special force for emergency purposes and four states had a "state sheriff." Only two states, Pennsylvania and Texas, maintain both a state police and a highway patrol, and while there is splendid co-operation between these departments, they will probably be merged in one system.

Georgia is one of the few states which has no state force charged with enforcement of the state traffic laws.

Authority of State Police.

The state police are generally delegated the same authority as possessed by sheriffs or other peace officers, which includes enforcement of all criminal statutes, though they are primarily charged with regulation of traffic and detection of offenses committed on the highways.

Besides their general duties the state police (and highway patrol) are charged with many special duties; such as those duties required by fire, fish and game wardens, enforcement of laws regulating drivers' licenses, supervision of outdoor advertising, inspection of theaters, checking explosives, collection of oil and gas taxes, weighing and measuring trucks, and use in strike duty.

It has been found by experience that the efficiency of the state police is impaired when they are directed to fields other than offenses committed on the highways, and considerable criticism has been directed against the force for participating in riot duty, especially in labor strikes, though their handling of strikes has been found to be more satisfactory than by militia composed of young men without previous police experience. This criticism has been met by refusal to allow the state police to be used on strike duty except upon request of the governing authorities in the vicinity of the strike with the approval of the governor.

Relationship to Local Police.

One of the chief objections raised to the creation of a state police force in Georgia has been the fear that it would deprive local officers working on a fee basis of their main source of revenue. This objection has been shown to be unfounded in those states where similar conditions exist, and the Peace Officers' Association of Georgia, having a large membership of officers from counties operating under the fee system, adopted resolutions at its 1936 session held at Savannah advocating the creation of a state police in Georgia.

The sheriffs and deputies of the rural counties in Georgia, with a few exceptions, who work under the fee system, are compelled to bear their own expense for all invstigations, whether resulting in an arrest or not. They are frequently called to drive long distances to investigate an offense committed on the highway, only to find both offender and informant gone upon arrival. These duties would be largely assumed by the state police, although the fines derived from prosecutions would be paid into the county treasury, where the local peace officers would be allowed to participate, the state police being on salary, receiving no share of the fine imposed.

The police of the larger cities likewise desire a state system. The jurisdiction of the city officer is fixed by the corporate limits of the city in which he is employed, and a fleeing criminal is generally safe after crossing the corporate limits, unless the alarm has been communicated to the sheriff. Under actual working conditions in all of the states now maintaining a state police, it has been found that the state police are able to work in harmony with local officers without a conflict in jurisdiction. While it is the policy of state police when on patrol to investigate criminal acts wherever committed and to make the necessary arrest, the prisoner, together with any information secured, is generally turned over to the local officers on arrival in order that the state patrolmen may continue their duties without undue delay, unless the crime is a major offense requiring joint investigation of the police and local officers.

Services Performed by State Police.

Not all of the duties of the state police relate to detection and arrest of criminals. By personal interviews and warnings they are often able to prevent serious infraction of traffic laws, and to compose complaints and disputes likely to lead to more serious crimes. The New Jersey police in a 10-year period made 27,000 arrests, issued 130,000 warnings against infractions of law, and gave 400,000 interviews to persons reporting or involved in criminal offenses. The chief value of a state police is of course first aid, assistance and advice to travelers on the highways.

A typical illustration of the character of work performed by the state officers may be gathered from the last annual report made by the members of the New York system. During the year 1934, 50,459 arrests were made and convictions were secured in 46,953 of the cases handled. Only 2,000 of these cases were pending at the end of the year, and approximately an equal number of complaints were dismissed for lack of prosecutions or for other cause.

The type of charges comprised violation of practically every criminal statute of the state, offenses against traffic laws leading with 34,469 cases, disorderly conduct next with 3,726, larceny third with 2,956,, and assault fourth with 1,471. In addition, 29,274 investigations were made without arrest.

The value of stolen property recovered and delivered to the owner amounted to more than $300,000 and fines collected for violations of criminal laws to $292,127.24. One of the most valuable services rendered was the inspection of vacant property. In the seven districts in New York state a total of 10,881 vacant cottages, largely in rural districts, were protected by the state police while on patrol, with only 16 unlawful entries during the period, with property reported missing in seven houses.

The New York force covered more than 8,000,000 miles of road on patrol in the 12-month period embraced in the report, including automobile, motorcycle and horse patrol, and under most difficult weather conditions. The report filed by the superintendent of the New York state police is typical of those of other states.

(In his article next Sunday Representative Sutton discusses the organization of the state police forces in states in which they have been brought to a high degree of efficiency.)

Markets for Produce Of Georgia Farmers Is Pressing Need

Editor Constitution: The greatest need of Georgia today is a more efficient means of distributing farm products other than cotton and tobacco. The farmer is being advised repeatedly to diversify his crops, to cut down on his production of cotton, and to plant a few acres of this and a few acres of that—that he can no longer subsist unless he does so.

To this the farmer immediately answers: "What am I going to do with it after I grow it? It can't be consumed in my own locality, and there is no local buyer who will buy it from me and ship it into other localities where there is a demand. Cotton is something I can grow and sell the day it is ginned at some sort of price, while if I plant other crops and my neighbors do likewise, I have no buyer for them at any kind of price." How true this condition is the residents of farming sections know only too well.

The establishment through state aid of a sufficient number of farm depots in charge of county agents would greatly aid in the solution of this difficult problem. Here the farmers could bring at stipulated times their chickens, eggs and, at different harvesting periods, their peas, beans, legumes, baled hay, potatoes and other surplusses and diversified crops.

The depots could handle the correct sorting, grading, packing, etc., which is essential to sucess in highly competitive markets. A central bureau, representing the various depots, could act as a sales agent in disposing of accumulated products. By such a collective plan the many small quantities of produce brought in by the individual farmers could be concentrated for sale and shipments made in large quantities or carload lots.

Such depots could also operate a cannery for the purpose of canning tomatoes, fruits, vegetables and other similar farm products, which our towns and cities consume to the extent of millions of dollars annually—the greater part of which is now being shipped into our state from elsewhere.

There is no state in the Union better adapted for the production of such produce—only for the lack of a means for putting them in a marketable condition and the lack of systems of distribution, we spend millions of dollars yearly that could be turned into the pockets of our own farmers, greatly enhancing the value of farm land throughout the state and increasing our state wealth by many millions of dollars annually.

Such a plan is not only feasible, but it has now reached the point where it is almost a matter of necessity. The average Georgia farmer, unless something of this kind is undertaken by the state, cannot hope to attain a decent standard of living, nor can he hope to make life on the farm sufficiently attractive for his children, the majority of whom now come to the city at the first opportunity, either real or imaginary.

If such a plan, under leadership of Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture-elect, could be put in operation by the next legislature, it would render our farmers and every citizen of the state a service of inestimable value.

Messages of Regret Over Death of Clark Howell Pay Earnest Tribute to His Long Life Of Constructive Leadership and Unselfish, Inspiring Service to State and Nation

In common with all those who knew Clark Howell, I was shocked to hear of his death. May I extend my very deep personal sympathy. I feel that I have lost a personal friend and I know that the great work he accomplished is one which will not soon be forgotten.

HENRY MORGENTHAU,
Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C.

Permit me to join with the many thousands of others in expressing deep regret over the passing of Clark Howell. He rendered a service to the nation and to his native state which will never be forgotten. He has left to his family a priceless heritage in one of the finest names of our day.

J. F. T. O'CONNOR,
Comptroller of the Currency, Washington, D. C.

I had the honor and joy of serving under Clark Howell on the Federal Aviation Commission. His patience, wisdom and foresight endeared him to everyone, and his going is very keenly felt. I shall always look back upon that service with the very pleasantest of memories and to his passing with a real sense of personal loss.

Please allow me to express to the members of the family my sincerest sympathy.

FRANKLIN K. LANE,
Washington, D. C.

Illness prevented me from telegraphing immediately upon reading the sad news of the death of the distinguished Clark Howell.

I served with him on the Railroad Commission and became very much attached to him.

Sincere sympathy to the family.

ALFRED E. SMITH,
New York.

Although I have not had the, opportunity to see Clark Howell of late years, yet my meetings with him in the past stand out vividly, and I have from a distance followed his career as so many of our other countrymen have done as they recognized his great vision and outstanding work for the progressive development of our citizens and our country.

EDWARD A. FILENE,
Boston, Mass.

Clark Howell has gone to a better and happier world. He leaves this world better and happier for having lived in it, and thousands everywhere mourn his passing. Taey placed his body in West View cemetery this afternoon, but his dauntless spirit is still here. That spirit will continue to inspire his friends, his employes and his coworkers on The Atlanta Constitution.

It was his body—his hands, his brain, his heart, his tongue—which they banked with flowers at West View. His sorrowing friends took one last look at these beautiful flowers, and some may have thought they left him there.

But what a glorious mistake! As long as the presses in The Constitution building run, his spirit will be there. As long as there are hungry souls and disheartened people, his spirit will comfort, cheer and bless. As long as there are hard jobs for strong and sturdy men, his spirit will guide and direct, and just as long as the people of Georgia need a shining soul to inspire and encourage, just so long will the spirit of Clark Howell be there to direct them to higher and better things.

Yes, his hands are out there and will no longer grasp his friends' in a sincere hand-clasp. His eyes no longer sparkle with joy; his voice is stilled and will never again be raised in behalf of the public welfare.

His brain is resting but his spirit is here—all about us—with his family, his friends and in his print shop.

Just as the spirits of Henry Grady, Joel Chandler Harris and Frank L. Stanton inspired and directed him all these years and caused him to devote a long life of service to the state and nation, so his spirit will live on and on and cause us to devote our time, thought and talents to the good of humanity and the service of our state.

Truly the spirit of Clark Howell will ever live, and that illustrious trio of immortals, Grady, Harris and Stanton, are happy today, for in the glory world they have been joined by their coworker and good friend, that intellectual giant, Clark Howell.

We need not sorrow in this vale of tears. He would not have it so. By his belief in his fellowman and his faith in an eternal God, he has pointed the way—the path of duty and the way of truth—and some day when we shall be gathered beyond the battlements of heaven at the foot of the Cross, we shall see him again. His smile will be a benediction and his hand-clasp will again warm our hearts. Until then we shall bask in the light of his shining life, and his spirit will be around and about us constantly to cheer, bless and inspire.

Until then, let's hold high his torch of faith and carry on as he would have us do, and we shall be better and the world happier for the life he lived among us.

As for me, I have lost my best friend, and in my sorrow I pray that I may so live that I shall be with him on that glad resurrection morn when he shall gather his friends about him and again talk to them face to face. Then my tears will be wiped away and all sorrow will vanish from my heart.

HUGH HOWELL.

To my mind, Clark Howell was an ideal citizen of the south, and the south will miss him as well as his individual friends.

JUDGE E. D. THOMAS,
Superior Court, Atlanta, Ga.

Citizen-Statesman.

Clark Howell was more than a great editor. He was a citizen-statesman with the interests of his state and the entire south constantly guiding him in the direction of his fine newspaper. He served the general good and, as The Sun said editorially yesterday, he "rounded out a well-filled career of accomplishment which will remain a monument to his name."

W. F. SCHMICK,
The Sun, Baltimore, Md.

Some may praise him for his work in journalism. Some will pay him due tribute for his civic enterprise. But to me, Clark Howell Sr. meant a great deal more than that—he was a helper, a friend—and it is hard that he will no longer be down there on Alabama street, ready to help, whatever the problem.

ALLAN C. GOTTSCHALDT,
Atlanta, Ga.

Tribute From Doctors.

I want to express the sympathy of the Medical Association of Georgia in the death of Mr. Clark Howell. His desire and inclination to be of help through his idea of public health has meant the saving of hundreds of lives of the underprivileged people of Georgia.

B. H. MINCHEW, M. D.,
President, Medical Association of Georgia, Waycross, Ga.

Friend of Organized Women.

For many years Clark Howell has been our understanding and very generous friend. The contribution which he has made to the advancement of organization work among women is beyond estimate. His name must ever remain enshrined among those who have loved Georgia, her people, and her welfare beyond any cost to self.

The General Federation of Women's Club joins the women of the Georgia Federation in a real and personal grief at his passing.

My own sense of loss is great. As president of the Georgia Federation I found him always willing to listen to my problems and to give advice. He will be missed beyond words to express.

EDITH A. RITCHIE,
Dir. for Ga., Gen. Federation of Women's Clubs.

The passing of Clark Howell was a great grief to me. We had been friends and associates from our early youth and there was no one of my extensive acquaintance of whom I was more fond. Even before our association on the Democratic National Committee, I watched his career with great pride.

UREY WOODSON,
Dir. of Alien Property Bureau, Department of Justice, Washington, D. C.

The entire Foundation family has asked me to tell of our sincere sympathy at the death of Clark Howell. We feel that the country has lost an outstanding leader and friend whose untiring efforts and great kindness on our behalf have left with us a monument which we will always have.

H. N. HOOPER, Administrator,
Georgia Warm Springs Foundation.

From Representative O'Connor.

Clark Howell was my good friend and contributed greatly to my aspirations in congress. We shall all miss him.

JOHN J. O'CONNOR,
Chairman Committee on Rules, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Tribute by Judge Adams.

Clark Howell was a man of commanding ability and inflence for good. He was one of Georgia's best citizens and had a kindly, genial friendly spirit, to which his friends readily responded.

JUDGE SAMUEL B. ADAMS,
Savannah, Ga.

Far-reaching Influence.

Clark Howell's influence was felt and recognized far beyond the limits of his city and state. While his love for Atlanta and for Georgia was supreme, his intense patriotism embraced the whole country.

His city, his state, and his country will miss him, but his loss will be felt most deeply by his friends.

J. T. HOLLEMAN.
Atlanta.

Clark Howell was a national figure long before I got into the newspaper business and throughout the time I have been in Washington he has helped me countless times as he has any number of other reporters. He was always very generous in his estimate of my work which was a source of encouragement when I most needed it, and for which I shall always be grateful. I know this is true of a great many others who have grown up in the business in his time. All of us shall miss him.

RAYMOND CLAPPER,
Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance, Washington, D. C.

Georgia and the nation at large will miss Clark Howell greatly and his progressive and sage counsel.

STEVE F. MITCHELL,
Attorney.
Tifton, Ga.

In the death of Clark Howell I lost a valued friend, the newspaper profession an able editor, and the state one of its most useful and devoted citizens.

WILLIAM H. FLEMING,
Attorney.
Augusta, Ga.

Clark Howell was a great citizen, and a great newspaperman; but above all, he was a great and good man, to whom I looked up with the highest respect.

ROBERT HECHT.

I can say that all my life there has never been any man for whom I had higher respect and who, to me, was a greater ideal. No Georgian and no southerner has ever epitomized the culture and graciousness of southern chivalry as did Clark Howell. But beyond this, he was a friend and those who knew him loved him.

LINTON M. COLLINS,
Department of Justice, Washington, D. C.

To the state of Georgia there has come an irreparable loss, while to the city of Atlanta, Clark Howell's death is not short of a real calamity.

JOHN W. HAMMOND,
Secretary, the State Senate, Atlanta, Ga.

The state of Georgia has suffered a great loss. I never knew a sweeter and kinder character than Mr. Howell.

TATE WRIGHT,
Clerk and County Attorney, Board of Commissioners for Clark County, Athens, Ga.

In losing Clark Howell, Atlanta, Georgia and the nation has lost a most valued citizen whose counsel, advice and assistance we shall greatly miss.

CHARLES J. CURRIE.
Atlanta, Ga.

The entire country, the city of Atlanta and innumerable friends, including myself, have suffered a great loss in the passing of Clark Howell.

D. A. CALHOUN,
District Manager, Techwood Projects.

I admired Clark Howell as a fine gentleman, as a man with plenty of common sense, and above all as one who was willing to be of assistauce in public matters and privately to any one with a just cause.

HERBERT J. HAAS.
Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta is a strange place without Clark Howell's presence, and it is hard to estimate the great contribution he made to our growth and progress. I regarded him as synonymous with "Atlanta"—just as "Peachtree" or "Whitehall."

CECIL A. ALEXANDER.
Atlanta, Ga.

Clark Howell was truly an outstanding man and his loss will be greatly felt throughout the souht.

HARRY SOMMERS.
Atlanta, Ga.

We of north Georgia College sorrow with you and the state in the passing of Clark Howell.

J. C. ROGERS,
President, North Georgia College, Dahlonega, Ga

This community, state and nation have lost the presence and personal leadership of a real conscientious citizen, and Clark Howell's example and results of his labor will live for many years to come.

JAMES L. RESPESS, C. P. A.,
Atlanta, Ga.

Clubwoman's Tribute.

Clark Howell's death is a great loss both to the state and nation.

MRS. A. F. McGHEE,
President, Bibb County Women's Democratic Club, Macon, Ga.

Clark Howell and I had been close personal friends for 20 years and during the Populist days, through his newspaper, he did more for the Democratic party in the state of Georgia than any other 10 men in the state. I always honored and loved him.

WATTS POWELL.
Vienna, Ga.

Since Clark Howell's going the country is the poorer. He had lived well.

BUNYAN STEPHENS, D. D.,
Pastor First Baptist Church, Rome, Ga.

American journalism, in the death of Clark Howell, loses one of its outstanding leaders and firmest supporters of editorial ethics. The record of his career is one which any newspaperman might be proud to have achieved.

DAVID E. SMILEY.
Editor and President the Daily Times, Tampa, Fla.

Clark Howell's death is a real loss to American journalism.

RALPH H. TURNES,
Business Manager N. E. A. Service, Inc., Cleveland, Ohio.

The people of Atlanta, Fulton county, the state of Georgia and the United States, in the passing of Clark Howell, have lost a most valuable citizen.

BEN T. HUIET.

Clark Howell to the newspaper publishers and fraternity in interest and co-operation did much for all, he was always willing and never failed to take the time to offer both friendly and helpful advise and co-operation.

RUFUS A. SHORE,
The Journal, Winston-Salem, N. C.

I am among the thousands who feel that, in the death of Clark Howell a genuine friend has left us—and that friend had the real qualities of greatness—loyalty, kindliness, talent—and courage."

ROBERT B. TROUTMAN,
Attorney, Atlanta, Ga.

I knew what Clark Howell meant to the state and nation, but his friendship through all these years has meant much to me personally and I will miss him greatly in the years to come so long as my own life is spared.

EUGENE S. AULT,
Cedartown, Ga.

Merchants Saddened.

No group of people in Atlanta have more reason to be saddened over the passing of Clark Howell than the members of our association. We never asked him to speak before the association but that he gladly complied. We never asked him for any service that he did not willingly render. We know he was a true friend of our association and its members, and that he was a great citizen who did much toward making Atlanta a happier and better city.

L. L. AUSTIN,
Executive Secretary, Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association.

Atlanta Lodge of Elks wishes to register regret in the passing of Clark Howell.

He exemplified such a variety of good things that it would be difficult to single out any one as a crowning virtue. He is truly characterized by the phrase, "One who loved his fellowmen." J. CLAYTON BURKE.
Secretary Atlanta Lodge No. 78, Atlanta, Ga.

Clark Howell was always deeply and vitally interested in the welfare of Georgia farmers and the entire agricultural and industrial development of the south.

I regarded him as one of the most outstanding leaders in the south and his passing is a deep loss not only to this section of his birth and life work but to the entire nation.

JARVIE JORDAN,
Manager, Director and Treasurer American Cotton Association and Better Farming Campaign, Atlanta, Ga.

Clark Howell's accomplishments in life will continue to live as an everlasting monument to Georgia.

W. H. WHITE,
Atlanta, Ga.

Of all the men I have met in business or socially, Clark Howell was one of the very few in positions of prominence, whose manner to those having but little of this world's goods was wholly lacking in pomposity and condescension. If he had left no other inheritance to his sons than this gift he would have left them rich indeed.

ELIZABETH H. McCALLIE,
Atlanta, Ga.

I am one of those thousands of Atlantans, Georgians and Americans who admired Clark Howell as a man and as a citizen. But, more than that, I am one of those whom he never failed when his individual kindness and influence was needed. Although I have not the power to pay my debt to him in kind, it will be settled in a full measure of gratitude and remembrance.

ELLA MAY THORNTON,
State Librarian, Atlanta, Ga.

The Atlanta Council of Federated Church Women deeply deplore the loss of a valued friend in the death of Mr. Clark Howell Sr.

We write with the multitude of his other friends in grief at his passing.

MRS. A. W. WALDMAN, Pres.,
MRS. S. F. BOYKIN, V. Pres.

Numberless people throughout the nation share in the sorrow of the loss of Clark Howell. He was admired not only for his untiring, patriotic service to the state and nation, but for those admirable, human qualities which made him the friend of all mankind.

JAMES E. WARREN,
Atlanta, Ga.

Judge Persons Saddened.

I shall always carry a personal feeling of loss in the death of Clark Howell, as I have long loved and admired him as a friend and advisor. He was always kind and considerate of me, and I never hesitated to take unto his overburdened mind any problems which perplexed me, and which needed his action or advice for solution. This place in my life now made vacant will be hard, indeed, to fill.

JUDGE OGDEN PESRSONS,
Forsyth, Ga.

Clark Howell's glorious, cheerful, unselfish, sound advice and counsel will always be a lovely memory to me. His public service is a matter of record. His private deeds of helpfulness and encouragement leaves a memory of inspiration.

EARL H. CONE,
Atlanta, Ga.

Clark Howell gave a long life to high and lofty service, a life in which he spread the fine influences of a sturdy character into the thinking and the activities of his people.

He was ever on the right side of the right question and he never let down from a lofty plane of character, fairness and sound principles.

HERVEY W. LAIRD,
Lakeland, Fla.

I have followed Clark Howell's great career through his own and other papers since I was a college boy. I have always admired him as a man and as a journalist. The state and nation will miss him.

BOB GUNN,
Athens, Ga.

Clark Howell, like the Savior of men, will be appreciated more as we walk away from his tomb and have a retrospective view of the great and noble life that he lived with his devotion to the highest purpose of his fellow man.

SAM TATE,
Tate, Ga.

Aid to Business.

Turning to his public life and his conduct of The Atlanta Constitution, I want to testify that the business interests of this state will sorely miss Mr. Howell. The Constitution was one paper that was always fair to business and would always present the views of the business interests of the state. He had vision to see that the happiness and welfare of everyone in the state depended on the successful operation of business and commerce. The Constitution, under his management, was a forum in which every interest in the state, every division of society in the state, could secure a fair hearing and feel assured of fair treatment of its case.

WILLIAM D. ANDERSON,
Macon, Ga.

I deeply appreciate Clark Howell's life, his character, his good works, and I sincerely mourn his passing.

ERNEST M. DAVIS,
Camilla, Ga.

Clubwomen all over Georgia will mourn his going. I was one of the first "club editors" 30 years ago. It is still a privilege to feel that I am almost a member of the staff of The Constitution, and I trust I may carry on with you at the helm.

MRS. HARVIE JORDAN,
Secretary, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, Atlanta, Ga.

The nation, the state of Georgia, and the city of Atlanta in particular, have lost a great man in the passing on of Mr. Howell, and I, personally, have lost a true friend who was always willing to aid me whenever he could. WILLIAM A. DUNLAP,
Acting Chief, Dist. Office Div., Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

A native of South Carolina extends his sympathy to the bereaved family of Mr. Clark Howell, who claimed South Carolina as the place of his birth.

J. C. (CLARK) BROWN.

The loss of Clark Howell is shared by the entire country, and I feel it particularly as I always looked upon him as a good friend, and he proved it on more than one occasion.

The only consolation is that he lived such a useful and exemplary life for more than the average allotted time.

A. C. BIESE,
Jacksonville, Fla.

I shall ever remember Clark Howell's genial personality, friendly and helpful attitude toward all worthy causes and, above all, his true worth as an American citizen standing as a tower of strength against the evils of the day and championing the right as he saw it.

JOHN B. GAMBLE,
Athens, Ga.

Clark Howell had a notable career, and has indeliby left the mark of his influence and contribution to high standards of newspaper publishing, government and politics, in the history of our country.

GEORGE A. KELLY,
Vice President, The Pullman Company, Chicago, Ill.

I consider the death of Mr. Howell one of the greatest losses that the south could sustain at this time.

D. W. WEBB.
Miami, Fla.

Georgia and the south have lost one of their outstanding citizens.

A. F. SANFORD,
Knoxville, Tenn.

With many other Georgians I feel that the state has suffered an irreparable loss in Clark Howell's departure from us.

BARRY WRIGHT,
Attorney, Rome, Ga.

Clark Howell was a wonderful character, a magnificent citizens, and a great asset to Georgia as well as the nation.

P. O. KNIGHT JR.,
Tampa, Fla.

America has lost a leader, the negro race a friend, the Atlanta public school system a promoter.

C. L. HARPER, Principal,
L. D. SHIVERY, Sec. of Fac.,
Booker T. Washington High School, Atlanta.

From Church Women.

The Georgia Council of Federated Church Women is sorrowing because of the passing of its good friend, Mr. Clark Howell Sr.

The members of this council feel that Mr. Howell's aid in the upbuilding of its work through the generous publicity he gave to its activities is beyond computation.

May The Constitution long endure as the best newspaper of the south and as the best friend of worth-while women's organizations!

WILLA BAILEY,
(Mrs. E. M. Bailey)
President, Georgia Council Federated Church Women.

The Georgia Society of Chattanooga, Tenn., mourns the loss of America's illustrious son, Hon. Clark Howell.

This is a sad day for the United States. Mr. Howell's life was an inspiration to millions of men in America, and his writing, teachings, and labors were by far and large, an effort to love a war-torn world back to peace.

GEORGE W. CHAMLEE, Pres.

I regret that in the important days ahead of us we are to be denied the benefit of Clark Howell's large experience, his clear thinking and his fine advice.

FITZGERALD HALL, Pres.,
The Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis R. R.

Everyone who knew him or knew of him will miss him. The south especially mourns for him.

PAUL A. ROCKWELL,
Asheville, N. C.

Mrs. Glass and I were deeply grieved when we learned that Clark Howell had passed on; and in addition to the loss I feel over the ending of a career which has reflected so great credit to southern journalism, I feel a personal loss.

POWELL GLASS,
The News, Lynchburg, Va.

Clark Howell's life and work is a beautiful tribute, an example by which we all should be guided.

WILL CARTER,
Atlanta, Ga.

We feel deeply the loss of Mr. Howell, as will not only Atlanta and Georgia, but the south and nation.

DR. L. C. FISCHER, Pres.
The Crawford W. Long Memorial Hospital, Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. Howell's passing leaves a gap in the ranks of this community and this country which can never be filled, and his life will always be a cherished memory to all of us who knew him.

ROBERT E. MARTIN,
Atlanta, Ga.

I recognized in Clark Howell the fine spirit, courage and knowledge that are attributes of real men, and it is indeed a pity that such fine characters cannot be with us always.

ROBER M. NELSON, Vice Pres.,
Certain-teed Products Corp., New York, N. Y.

There have been very few men in the history of Georgia who have had a larger influence on the life of the state and have made a larger contribution to its general welfare than Clark Howell.

MARVIN S. PITTMAN, Pres.,
South Georgia Teachers College, Collegeboro, Ga.

Clark Howell is one of the few men who was nationally known and nationally respected. He was a gentleman who served his day and generation in a high degree.

CHANDLER BULLOCK, Pres.,
State Mutual Life Assurance Co., Worcester, Mass.

We counted Clark Howell as our friend. He believed that education makes better citizens and was accordingly interested in our schools and colleges. It was always possible to go to him with a problem, and receive wise, friendly and generous counsel. He will be greatly missed by all of us.

FLORENCE M. READ,
Atlanta University, Atlanta, Ga.

There are too few men like Clark Howell who stood courageously for the right and who conducted his newspaper always in the public good.

GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS,
New York, N. Y.

Clark Howell's exalted sense of citizenship, coupled with his extraordinary ability in leadership has left an indelible imprint upon the progress of every movement looking toward Georgia's and the south's best growth and development along all worthwhile lines during the past half century. His sterling worth and wise leadership attained world-wide acknowledgement and appreciation.

W. D. TRAVIS, President
Covington Kiwanis Club.

Clark Howell was a great man, not only as a newspaper publisher but as an American citizen. His death is a loss to journalism.

JOHN N. WHEELER,
New York, N. Y.

No one has done any more for good clean government, for the average citizen in the state and nation, and for the good of the Democratic party than Clark Howell.

ALTON COGDELL,
Atlanta, Ga.

Clark Howell was one of Georgia's truly great men and statesmen. Measured by his influence in public affairs of the state, he had no peer in his day and generation. Possessed of a clear mind and sound judgment, he could be depended upon to be on the right side of every important issue, and he had the ability to express his views in clear, forceful language.

MAJOR P. C. HARRIS,
Washington, D. C.

Ad Club Resolutions.

Resolutions adopted at the meeting of the Atlanta Advertising Club.

Whereas, the final "thirty" has been written to the brilliant story of the life and achievements of the Hon. Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Atlanta Constitution, and

Whereas, the entire nation has suffered a great loss at his passing and the publishing business in all its branches has suffered an especial loss,

Therefore be it resolved that the Atlanta Advertising Club express in these resolutions its sorrow, its deep sense of loss and its appreciation of the unselfish and far-reaching service he gave to his nation, his community and his calling during his distinguished career.

Adopted this eighteenth day of November, Nineteen-Thirty-Six by the Atlanta Advertising Club.

JAMES W. PETTY JR., President.

In the death of Clark Howell both journalism and the nation have lost one of those outstanding individuals who always seem to have the time, the inclination and the ability to devote to the larger interests of humanity.

HARRY M. TILLINGHAST,
Vice President, R. Hoe & Co., Inc., New York, N. Y.

Clark Howell was one of my closest personal and political friends and associates. In his death Georgia lost its foremost citizen and the nation one of its leaders.

CARL VINSON, M. C.,
Washington, D. C.

Nothing in Clark Howell's amazingly busy and fruitful life appealed to me more than the fact that, although exalted to high places from the beginning of his career, he never lost the "common touch"—never wanted for sincere interest in men of true worth without regard to station; never lost his enthusiasm for any movement that gave promise of some worth-while development of benefit for his state or section, however modest its beginning might be.

HERBERT E. CHOATE,
Atlanta, Ga.

Clark Howell was a true friend to all of us who knew him so well. The south, and the whole nation will sorely miss him. To the Democratic party, he was a loyal supporter and a real and true friend, and to his Atlanta—he was a real booster and a real citizen who loved his city, state and country.

J. SAUL,
Atlanta, Ga.

Shocked and regretful comment on Mr. Clark Howell's death not only flood his country's press, but echo from every port visited by his aviation-communications committee in his round-the-world itinerary. His wonderful personality kindled many friendships among those peoples and races and he left them knowing about their problems. His notes on that mission will prove a valuable contribution to history.

GEORGE E. GARY,
Rome, Ga.

While it was inexpressibly sad to realize that Clark Howell's physical self was with us no longer, one's poignant sorrow was lightened by the thought that his noble spirit, his goodness and kindliness will be ever-present in the hearts of those who knew and loved him. For men who had reached the summit of journalistic, political and social success without losing their humaneness and common touch with the people do not die.

They leave behind them a spiritual heritage and inspiration which are indestructible.

JOSEPH A. LOEWINSOHN,
Atlanta, Ga.

Clark Howell---Patriot.

Weep not, O, South of an immortal fame!
A symbol of thy greatness passes on:
Carved on thy heart the virtue of his name—
One with the dust of sons forever gone.

Gone with that glorious company who reign
In the far Court of Truth, who loved and fought
That liberty might live without the stain
Of sordid might—how gallantly they wrought!

Methinks when first upon the shining strand
His olden comrades greet him with a smile,
To welcome him to that celestial land
Where live all patriots without stain or guile.

He will look round him with appraising eye
Upon the glories of that radiant land,
And smiling say: "How like the south this sky—
Or is one's love of country herein banned?"

To heaven's conventions he may gently bow;
But love of country is a deathless fruit;
The angels will not chide him that he now
Remembers Georgia e'en at heaven's gate.

ARTHUR S. HARDY.
Hamilton, Ga., Nov. 16, 1936.

Death in November.

(On reading of the passing of Mr. Clark Howell Sr., whom I did not know personally, but whose kindly and helpful influence I have felt for many years.)

When comes the waning time of year, dear God,
And sun still warms the earth with lingering smiles,
Let me, with flowers from the chilling sod,
Go forth with him into the distant miles.

Before cold winds have whipped bare all the trees,
Before the frosts and snows have had their run,
While scent of roses still is on the breeze,
Let me seek distant courses with the sun.

In November, with the closing of the year,
When fields have not forgot the crops they bore,
When mocking birds and robins linger near,
I would close my eyes to open them no more;

For, oh! 'tis in the waning time, dear God,
I'd have them lay me in the red clay sod.

JENNIE M. DELOACH.

Clark Howell.

Fair Georgia mourns
But through her tears
She views his splendid,
Glorious years,
And thinks about
A task well done
From this her honored
Fallen son.

A power in nation,
City, state;
A stalwart midst
The nations great,
A loving father,
Sincere friend,
He wielded justice
With his pen.

I know your dying ears
Would catch
The jingle of
The pearly latch
And when it opened
There would be
Frank Stanton there
To welcome thee.

And Henry Grady
And Lanier
With Joel C. Harris
Would be near,
With outstretched arms
To welcome you
To that paternal
Rendezvous.

A brave and loyal heart
Is stilled,
An empty niche
That can't be filled.
The southland mourns
Beside his bier
With aching heart
Its homage rears.

CAPTAIN JOHN S. MADDEN.

SERVICE TO STATE.

(From the Winder News.)

In the passing of Clark Howell Georgia loses her outstanding editor and public character. For 50 years this man had labored unstintedly in the service of his country and state. In this service he had little thought of adding to his own greatness or fame. Uppermost in his mind was always the burning desire to help build here a great and glorious state as a part of a mighty nation marching under the banner of human freedom, and to add to the blessings and enjoyments of his fellow Georgians. If ever there was a public man in the state who honestly and sincerely desired to make this a better state in which men of all classes might dwell in ever increasing happiness, that man was Clark Howell.

ONE OF NATION'S NOBLEMEN.

(From the Walton News.)

The name of Clark Howell has gone down in history as one of the nation's noblemen—a man of untrammeled convictions and who, regardless of those who saw fit to differ with him on any question, he was unmovable, and history will bear us out in the claim that he rarely ever lost out in any position he assumed. He bore a distinction far-reaching, decidedly enviable and the members of the state and national press feel the keenest loss.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, SUNDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 22, 1936.

Nation Approves 'Pay Roll Tax' in National Poll as Plan Begins

America Sympathetic To Marriage Uniting Edward, Mrs. Simpson

Poll No. 2
AMERICA'S OPINION OF EDWARD'S ROMANCE

Should the King marry Mrs. Simpson? Should he make her Queen of England? These are questions for Edward, for Wallis Simpson and for the English. But these questions leave unanswered another and equally absorbing one—What does America think of the King's romance? The Institute of Public Opinion offers the answers to that puzzle in the exclusive poll reported below.

By Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—While a British parliament cogitates and cabinet ministers take counsel together, while a royal court bubbles and a whole British empire rocks with rumors of marriage for Bachelor King Edward VIII and Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, formerly of Baltimore, U. S. A., American citizens have recorded their opinions of such an alliance for the Institute of Public Opinion.

Their consensus is—figuratively speaking—

"The king can do no wrong if he follows his heart."

The exact question which the Institute put to Americans in all walks of life was, "Would you like to have King Edward marry Mrs. Simpson?"

Of those having a direct opinion, 61 per cent answered "yes" and 39 per cent answered "no."

The dimensions of this sentiment may be understood better if it is remembered that President Roosevelt led Governor Landon, when the ballots were counted, by about the same margin.

British Opinion Lacking

Now, technically, the only consent King Edward requires is his own. An English statute jammed through parliament by George III in 1772, just before the American Revolution, says as much.

But all informed persons agree that King Edward will not marry if British public opinion should oppose it. That is the only opinion which the monarch has to think about very much, and it would be one of the biggest news stories of 1936 if some British Institute of Public Opinion could make known what Britain thinks.

American reaction to the king's romance is another story, but it is pertinent because the lady was born an American citizen, Wally Warfield, of Maryland; and American newspapers have handled the story as the biggest romance since Cinderella.

Partially, this emphasis has been to please the women, but today's poll by the Institute of Public Opinion shows that women are not quite so approving of a royal marriage with Mrs. Simpson as are men.

Fondest approval comes from the voters living in small towns, who are more than two-to-one in sympathy with the royal romance, if there is one.

This is the way five groups of Americans mark their ballots:

	Favoring Marriage	Opposing
Women	60%	40%
City Persons	61	39
Small Town Persons	68	32
Farmers	57	43
Young Persons	65	45
NATION	61	39

What Will Edward Do?

Will the king marry?

When the monarch recently asked parliament to make provision for the payment of $200,000 annually to his queen, if and when he marries, Britons and Americans thought the engagement as good as announced. Even now, while reports conflict on what the king considers to be his duty, most reports agree that the king is in love.

It is on this promise—that the king really wants to marry Mrs. Simpson—that Americans cast their ballots.

"If he loves her," voters chorus to the Institute, "let him marry her." And a farmer's wife in Oregon adds, "The poor boy is probably tired of marrying his second cousins anyway."

Persons who say the king should not marry Mrs. Simpson offer the explanation that the British monarch is a symbol and not a private individual, or they point to the objection of his church to the remarriage of divorced persons.

Many of these objections come from the New England voter, where the vote approving a marriage is only 52 per cent. The south—another section with deeply ingrained principles—consents with a vote of 53 per cent to 47 per cent.

The royal romance is more popular in the states between the Hudson river and the Mississippi, however, where the voters average two-to-one approval. Peak of approval occurs in the Rocky Mountain states, stretching from Montana to the Mexican border and an area—paradoxically—where the American tradition of isolation and "hands-off-Europe" has been strongest.

Many Have "No Opinion"

Many American newspaper editors, confident that their readers enjoy King Edward's love affairs as much as their own, have ballooned the "Simpson story" to help fill front-page gaps left by the election.

Today's poll uncovers a core of apathy in American opinion regarding the king, however, which may cause editors to scratch their heads.

The number of voters with "no opinion" is the highest the Institute has found on any subject within recent months, since approximately two voters in five complain, "That's England's business," or "Who cares?"

America Speaks on the World's No. 1 Romance

"Would You Like to Have King Edward Marry Mrs. Simpson?"

Yes---61% No---39%

Baltimore 'Consents' to Royal Alliance

Her Ancestors as Good as His,' Hometowners Say, Concerning Match.

By Institute of Public Opinion.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21.—Prideful and envious, most Baltimoreans are in favor of a marriage between King Edward VIII and the woman who was Baltimore's Wally Warfield, Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

"It is a triumph for Baltimore," is the way many a local woman expresses herself to interviewers from the Institute of Public Opinion.

"Her ancestors date back as far as his. They are a good match," is the judgment of another.

There is an undercurrent of disapproval, however, and the vote favoring the match is only 54 per cent to 46 per cent here.

The sentiment of the country at large favors the match by 61 per cent to 39 per cent. Perhaps the explanation is similar to the one advanced for the prophet who was "not without honor, save in his own country."

Disapproving Baltimore citizens give other explanations, however. "I don't think the king should marry a divorcee," is one objection.

"He should marry someone in his own class, but if he does marry her it's nice she's from Baltimore," admits another.

Down on Biddle street, where Wally Warfield lived until her post-debutante days, Baltimoreans are divided almost 50-50.

NATION-WIDE COMMENT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—From all parts of the country the Institute of Public Opinion has received verbatim comments regarding the contemplated marriage of King Edward VIII and Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson and regarding the treatment of the world's No. 1 romance in American newspapers.

The Institute asked, "Would you like to have King Edward marry Mrs. Simpson?"

Comments range from apathetic "Who cares?" to "Gosh, yes!"

Many voters thought the question no business of the United States and said so, as did a physician in Omaha, Neb., who answered:

"It is immaterial to me if he marries an American or an Asiatic. It has nothing to do with our depression, statesmanship or common sense."

Others objected to such a marriage because it "might give England undue influence over American foreign policy."

"It's just a clever plot of England's to get our sympathy again," charges a Louisiana produce dealer. But a Denver housewife thinks it would "make a fine, moral alliance between the United States and Great Britain, and it might put some needed new blood into European royalty."

But Others Disapprove, Reminded of 'Another Henry the Eighth.'

Most frequently objection to the marriage is the belief that divorced persons should not remarry. A variation on this theme is the comment of a storekeeper in the midlands of Pennsylvania:

"Edward VIII is bringing back memories of Henry VIII."

Of the approving majority, the comment of a Cheyenne, Wyo., businessman is probably typical:

"I think it would be OK. It would be nice to see the honor go to an American girl."

Other comments:

"It makes no difference to me, but I like to read about it."

"It takes our minds off our own troubles for a few minutes."

Strong Pension Demand Doomed GOP's Strategy

47 States Favor Contributive System; Landon's "Pay-as-You-Go" Plan May Have Frightened Workers.

Poll No. 1
FIVE QUESTIONS THIS POLL ANSWERS

1. Does the country approve of the "pay roll tax" as a means of creating an old-age pension fund?
2. Were Republican campaign tactics against the tax foredoomed from the start?
3. How do city voters feel about the "pay roll tax"?
4. Do country voters agree with them?
5. How do Republicans vote on the contributive tax plan?

By GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Along Main street, U. S. A., there is so much sentiment for the government's old-age insurance plan—which the public has learned to call the "pay roll tax"—that the Republican attack on this principle during the campaign clearly did not have a chance.

A nation-wide poll by the American Institute of Public Opinion finds that 68 voters in 100, on the average, favor the old-age security program for which the government commenced this week the gigantic business of enrollment.

Beginning January 1, both employers and workers will be called upon to contribute 1 per cent of their weekly earnings or pay rolls to a great pension reservoir. During the closing days of the campaign the Social Security Board labored to impress the voters that workers and employers must contribute equally to this fund. The question on the Institute ballot makes the specification clear:

"Do you favor the compulsory old-age insurance plan, starting in January, which requires employers and workers to make equal contributions to workers' pensions?"

The nation's vote of approval, which comes from a carefully chosen cross-section of the population, is 68 per cent—more than two-to-one and considerably more than President Roosevelt's popular vote.

Voters from both major parties concur in approval. Democrats (i. e. all who voted for Roosevelt) are 82 per cent in favor of the contributive pensions, while Republicans (all those who voted for Landon) are divided 50-50 on the merits of the plan. Here is the vote:

	Contributive Pensions? YES	NO
Democrats	82%	18%
Republicans	50	50
Lemke Voters	73	27
Socialists	79	21

Although labor voters in today's poll accept the present plan, there are signs that labor may presently seek to amend the provision which calls for an equal contribution from the worker, in favor of a tax paid entirely by the employer.

Landon for "Pay-as-You-Go" Plan

Both sides in the old-age pension dispute have agreed that the present social security act is not perfect, that experience will show where flaws and rough spots can be removed. Led by Governor Landon, however, the Republicans began a frontal attack on the contributive feature of the old-age pension plan. The Governor denounced the administration program as a "cruel hoax" on the workers and as a menace to "the whole cause of social security in this country."

Charging that the contributive pensions would cover only about half of the working population, that its benefits would be low, and that it would create a great reserve fund but not protect such a fund from raids by congress, the Republican candidate asked for a "pay-as you-go" system under state auspices.

"My criticism of the present act is not that the purpose is bad," said Landon in declaring his belief in the principles of old-age pensions. "It is that this act will involve a cruel disappointment for those of our people least able to bear the shock of disappointment . . . I will not promise the moon."

But today's Institute poll reveals that Landon was raising his voice against too strong a tide. In questioning the contributive feature of old-age pensions, Landon appeared to be questioning a principle long-sought and fought for by the man in the street. As William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said of the law, it is a "form of legislation for which workers have prayed and petitioned for many years."

Only the future can show whether Governor Landon's criticisms were valid. For the present, an immense wave of sentiment for social security and old-age pensions has given the countersign of approval to the contributive plan, whereby employers and workers contribute equally towards workers' pensions.

G. O. P. Tactic Fails

Between September 29—when Landon made his attack on the administration security program and was answered by John G. Winant, of the Social Security Board—and late October, there was little debate on the old-age pension plan. Late in October, however, Republican strategists seized on the "pay roll tax" feature as a major card against the Democrats in appealing to the city worker.

But today's Institute poll shows urban voters strongly in favor of the "pay roll tax" and voters in the 10 largest cities most enthusiastic of all. The last-minute G. O. P. tactic was pre-doomed.

Even rural voters, many of whom as agricultural workers will not share in the benefits of the contributive pensions, are almost two-to-one in favor. For the farmer, indeed, the "pay roll tax" may prove a source of grief by raising the price of things he buys; this was the reason the late Huey Long gave for his one-man filibuster against the security act shortly before his death. But so strong is the sentiment for old-age pensions today that the present plan wins a tidal wave of approval from coast to coast.

Only one state—South Dakota—dissents, and there the voters are divided 59 per cent to 41 per cent against the contributive plan. Other states where the issue is close include Connecticut (50 per cent in favor), Vermont and New Hampshire (each 58 per cent in favor). In New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts and other industrial states the average vote is two-to-one or better.

Nation Asks Merit System for Entire Postal Service

Voters Want Even Farley's Post Under Civil Service

Poll No. 3

By an executive order President Roosevelt recently put postmasterships under the merit system. But executive orders have been reversed before; they may be again. Does the country want this reform consolidated? To find out, the Institute has asked the voters this question:

"Should the entire Postoffice Department, including the Postmaster General, be put under Civil Service?"

By Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Marking their ballots with pens, pencils or pieces of colored crayon, American voters have unofficially confirmed an executive order which President Roosevelt promulgated with a stroke of his own pen last July: They favor the extension of the civil service merit system throughout the Postoffice Department.

The President's order affects nearly 14,000 postmasterships of the first, second and third class, which have been among the chief prizes of the party spoils system for years.

Voters in the Institute of Public Opinion poll would go further than the President did, however, for they would place the entire Postoffice Department, including the cabinet post now held by Postmaster General Jim Farley, under the scope of the Civil Service.

The nation-wide vote on the proposal is 86 per cent in favor and 14 per cent opposed to extension of the merit system from top to bottom in the department.

Partisans Agree.

Just before the house of representatives adjourned last June it waged brief but bitter debate over the Ramspeck bill, which would have effected the same purpose as the President's order, but would have made the reform permanent by statute. Republican opposition, aided by the two-thirds rule, prevented the enactment of the bill and charged that it would "freeze" the present Democratic postmasters in their jobs for the rest of their lifetimes.

Governor Landon himself scorned the President's order as "not a real step toward a merit system in the Postoffice Department," but a partisan attempt to perpetuate Democrats in office.

In today's Institute poll, however, the exact details of the plan were not at issue, and members of all parties were largely able to agree on what should be done. As shown in the following tables, Republicans are more anxious than Democrats for the sweeping reform:

	Reform Postoffice? YES	NO
Democrats	84%	16%
Republicans	88	12
Lemke Voters	87	13
Socialists	88	12
NATION	86	14

Of all the sections of the country, the 13 southern states show the least enthusiasm for more civil service in the department. But even throughout the south, the vote in favor is a hearty 83 per cent to 17 per cent. In the middle Atlantic area, on the other hand, sentiment reaches 90 per cent to 10 per cent in favor of the reform.

The 48 states are unanimously agreed.

Effect on Cabinet.

If the entire Postoffice Department should be put under civil service, including the postmaster general, one effect might be to reduce the President's cabinet to nine members, for cabinet members are appointed by the President and confer with him on matters of policy. Obviously, a "merit system postmaster general" could not be appointed in the usual way, and he would have no business with administration policy.

Such a change in the cabinet is not altogether impossible.

The rebellious colonists had a Postoffice Department before they had a Declaration of Independence, and it functioned outside the President's cabinet until 1829, when President Jackson elevated the postmaster general to the ranks of his chief advisers.

Since Jackson's day the postmaster general has most frequently been a skillful politician directly responsible for his party's machinery. But last September, when John D. M. Hamilton announced he would not take the post of postmaster general if Landon should be elected, Governor Landon indorsed his opinion and promised to "select the most competent executive job I can find, draft him for the job and put the department on a business basis."

It is only a step from this viewpoint to a department exclusively under the merit system.

Today's poll shows that such a policy would have the support of American voters, men and women, farmers and city dwellers, the poor and the not-poor. Six special groups, with their votes, are given below:

	Reform Postoffice? YES	NO
Farmers	82%	18%
Small Towns	84	16
Cities	88	12
Women	87	13
Young People	90	10
Reliefers	89	11

What will happen?

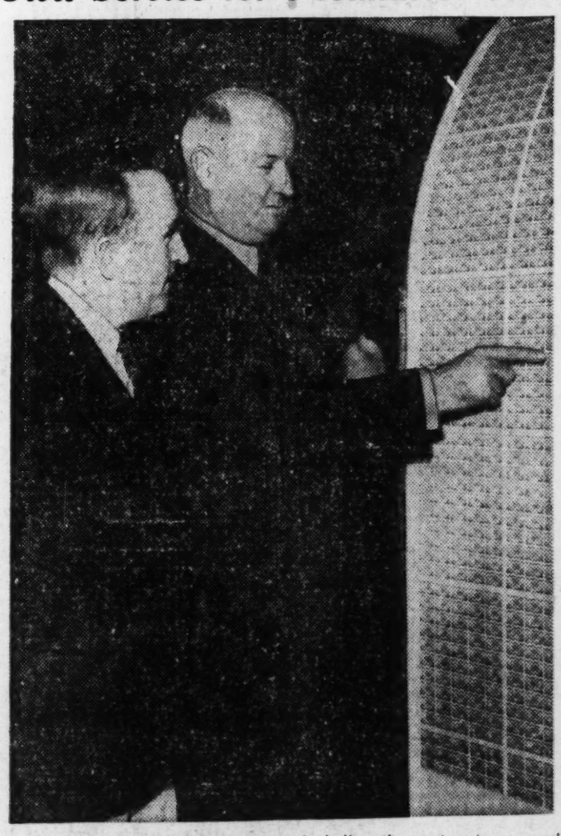

Public opinion is clearly opposed to the use of the postmaster generalship as a cabinet headquarters for the national chairman of the administration party. It favors a "career" executive, earning appointment and promotion through the department up to the top.

Either for this reason, therefore, or for some other reason, Postmaster General Jim Farley may not be a member of the President's new cabinet, though commentators agree that he can probably sit in the cabinet again if he wants to.

But what of the other posts in the department and what of the 14,000 top-grade postmasters?

Only an executive order keeps them under merit classifications today, and an executive order can be rescinded by the issuer or his successor. If the Republicans should take office, it would be a mighty temptation to rescind Roosevelt's order until they had appointed a new staff of first, second and third class postmasters.

Civil Service for Postmaster Jim?

The entire Postoffice Department, including the postmaster general, should come under the civil service merit system, according to the overwhelming majority in an Institute of Public Opinion poll reported today. Above, Postmaster Farley with Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming.

Next Week

Two questions thrust to the forefront by the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt are the subjects of Institute polls to be reported next Sunday. The first, a general question, concerns the President's future policies:

"Should President Roosevelt's second administration be more liberal, more conservative, or the same as the first?

The second is a specific question, made timely by almost-daily reports that the White House has been considering a new NRA:

"Do you think the President and the congress should seek to enact a second NRA?"

Poll Shows the Odds They Faced

During the campaign Governor Landon (left), Chairman Hamilton and Colonel Knox assailed the plan to tax employers and employes for old age pensions. They proposed a state assistance plan. But a nation-wide Institute poll today shows voters 68% in favor of the "pay roll tax."

Miss Anne Babington And Harvey Hamff Will Wed Dec. 22

Interest centers today in the announcement of the wedding plans of Miss Anne Babington and Harvey Hamff, whose marriage takes place on Tuesday, December 22, at 8:30 o'clock, at the Druid Hills Methodist church. Dr. R. L. Russell will perform the ceremony, assisted by Dr. John Brandon Peters.

Robert Kenneth Babington will give his daughter in marriage and Miss Rae Miller will act as maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Misses Mary Malone, Mildred Clarke, of Staunton, Va., cousin of the bride-elect; Doris Dunn, Hilda Reed, Jane and June La Fontaine, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles La Fontaine, will be the flower girls.

Mr. Hamff has chosen his uncle, Dr. Frank N. Harvey, of Jacksonville, Fla., as his best man and the groomsmen will be his brother, Christian Hamff; Thomas Babington, brother of the bride-elect; Hardy Coleman and Dr. Lloyd Adams.

Prior to and during the ceremony a program of nuptial music will be rendered by Mrs. Clyde Withers, organist; George F. Lindner, violinist, and Vaughn Ozmer, vocalist.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Babington, parents of the bride-elect, entertain members of the wedding party, relatives and out-of-town guests at a reception at their home on Williams Mill road. Assisting in entertaining will be Misses Jane Goulding, Sarah Dobbs, Mrs. C. W. McCrary, Mrs. Douglas Cone, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Newberry, Judge and Mrs. Ralph McClelland, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Maxwell, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Anderson and Miss Rosa Neely. Miss Elizabeth Hamff, sister of the groom-elect, will keep the bride's book.

Miss Babington shared honors yesterday with Mrs. R. L. Russell, of Gainesville, Ga., and Mrs. Paul Newton, of Nashville, and the luncheon given by Mrs. Roy Hendee and her mother, Mrs. Henry W. Bowden, at their home in Druid Hills. The affair was in the nature of a surprise kitchen shower for Miss Babington.

Present were Miss Babington, Mesdames Russell, Newton, Marion Sims, J. J. Bookout, W. T. Felber and R. K. Babington.

Griffin Marriages Are Announced

GRIFFIN, Ga., Nov. 21.—The marriage of Miss Mary Lois Ross and Leslie W. Reeves, of Griffin, was solemnized Saturday evening at the home of the Rev. Dr. James B. Turner, pastor of the First Baptist church, who officiated. A small group of friends and relatives witnessed the ceremony.

The bride was lovely in an ensemble of navy blue woolen, trimmed with silver fox fur and worn with a white satin blouse. She wore an off-the-face hat of blue velour, other accessories of navy blue and a corsage of sweetheart rosebuds and valley lilies. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Reeves left by motor for Chattanooga, Tenn. Upon their return to Griffin they will reside at 357 East College street.

Mrs. Reeves is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Ross and is widely popular in Griffin circles. She was graduated from the Griffin High school in 1934, and has one sister, Miss Betty Ross, of Griffin. Mr. Reeves is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus B. Reeves, of Griffin, and has two brothers, Cary and Harry Reeves, both of Griffin, and three sisters, Mrs. J. C. Harris and Mrs. Gus Buhler, of Griffin, and Mrs. G. R. Wayne, of Detroit, Mich. He was educated at Griffin High school and Young Harris College and is now one of the city's popular young businessmen, being in charge of the parts department of Randall-Blakely, automobile dealers.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Evans Jr., of Griffin, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ethelyn, and Elmo Parham, the ceremony having been performed on Saturday at the home of the groom's brother, W. B. Parham, in Atlanta. The Rev. W. H. Moon performed the ceremony. The bride wore navy blue crepe made on fitted lines and other accessories of navy blue. Her corsage was of sweetheart roses and valley lilies. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Parham will reside at 550 South Sixth street. Mr. Parham is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Parham and both he and his bride are prominent residents of Griffin.

Miss Jewell Chalkley, of Griffin, and Zeddie Martin, of Griffin, were married here on Saturday, with Judge Steve Wallace, ordinary of Spalding county, officiating at his home. The bride wore an ensemble of Prussian blue with black accessories. Mrs. Martin is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Chalkley and was educated in the schools of Fayette county. Mr. Chalkley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Martin, of Griffin, formerly of Fayette county, where he received his education. He is in business in Griffin, where he and his bride will reside.

Miss Doris Thomas, of Griffin, and John Costley, of Tallapoosa, were married on Saturday in Griffin, the Rev. W. L. Hines officiating, at the home. The bride wore a fall model of black crepe, trimmed with green and black accessories. Mrs. Costley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Thomas, of Griffin. Mr. Costley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Costley, of Tallapoosa. After the wedding trip the young couple will reside in Tallapoosa.

Mrs. Marie Sutton, of Griffin, and Thomas Johnson, of Carrollton, were married on Saturday in Griffin, Judge Steve Wallace, ordinary of Spalding county, officiating. The bride wore a gray ensemble with black accessories. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Dobbins, of Griffin. Mr. Johnson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Johnson, of Carrollton, and is a prominent young farmer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Berry announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary, and Walter David Kendrick Jr., the Rev. Wilson Walker, pastor of the East Griffin Baptist church, officiating on Saturday, at his home in Griffin. Mr. Kendrick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Kendrick. The young couple will reside in Griffin.

Mrs. Carrie Moore announces the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Bessie Moore Cooper, and William Handley, the Rev. W. J. Tolbert having performed the ceremony on Friday in Griffin. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Moore and the late Tobe Moore. Mr. Handley is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Handley. The young couple will reside in Griffin.

Waite—Padgett.

Mrs. Frank Grimble Waite, of Savannah, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Waite, to Hardy L. Padgett Jr., of Atlanta, the wedding having been solemnized in Greenville, S. C., on November 14. Mr. and Mrs. Padgett will reside in Atlanta.

Miss Wilson and Mr. Moseley Wed at Ceremony December 30

MISS FRANCES CAROL WILSON.

An announcement that holds an unusual degree of interest to friends is that made today of the approaching marriage of Miss Frances Carol Wilson to James Gwyn Moseley, which takes place at the home of the bride-elect, late in the afternoon of December 30.

Miss Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Wilson, who have made their home in Atlanta for 25 years, having come to this city immediately following their own wedding ceremony, which was held in North Carolina. They are graduates of Duke University and of families well known in North Carolina and Virginia.

After graduating from Girls' High school, Miss Wilson pursued the study of art, her chosen field, at the High Museum from which she was graduated with honors. Mr. Moseley, a graduate of Central Night school and later a student of the University of Georgia Evening school, is active in the business life of Atlanta's young men. He is associated with the Grizzard Advertising Agency. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Moseley, formerly of McDonough, but residents of Atlanta for the past 12 years, where Mr. Moseley Sr. has been prominently connected with one of the city's larger retail establishments.

Miss Wilson and Mr. Moseley hold place of leadership in the life of the West End Baptist church, about which much of their activity has centered and in which their warmest friendships have been formed. Miss Wilson has chosen for her wedding the day which marks the silver anniversary of her parents.

Miss Lucille Oslin Weds Ira Palmore

A marriage of interest to a wide circle of friends was that of Miss Lucille Oslin, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Edgeworth Oslin, of Atlanta, and Ira Allen Palmore, son of the late J. D. Palmore and Mrs. Palmore, of Richmond, Va., which was solemnized yesterday at high noon at the home of Mrs. Bates Block, on Peachtree.

Rev. T. M. Calloway, of Wadley, Ga., an uncle of the bride, officiated in the presence of immediate family and close friends.

Prior to and during the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by a stringed ensemble.

The ceremony was performed in the drawing room where white roses, chrysanthemums and fern formed the decorations. Tall silver candelabra, holding white candles, stood at each side of a prie-dieu on which the bride and groom knelt during a part of the ceremony.

The bride wore an afternoon gown of dull gold crepe, made with princess bodice buttoned to the neck with amber buttons and the flared skirt was finished with a narrow pleated ruffle. She wore a smart hat of brown antelope, and accessories of brown suede. Her shoulder bouquet was talisman roses and valley lilies.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served. Mrs. Block wore a gown of black velvet with corsage of gardenias, and Mrs. H. L. White, of Sandton, Va., a sister of the groom, was gowned in wine crepe, with a shoulder spray of valley lilies.

The bride traveled in a smart two-piece model in brown and rose wool, with leather accents. She wore a brown felt sport hat and brown accessories. A top coat of camel's hair completed her ensemble. After a motor trip to Florida they will go to Richmond, Va., to reside.

Shipp—Walker.
NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 21.—The marriage of Miss Sarah Shipp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Edgar Shipp Jr., of Americus, to George Bennett Walker was solemnized at the First Presbyterian church here on November 14, with Rev. O. M. Trousdale officiating.

The bride is a graduate of Sullins College, Bristol, Va., and the University of Georgia, where she was a member of Phi Mu sorority.

Mr. Walker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Walker, of Forest, Miss. He attended Davidson College and the University of Mississippi, and is a member of Phi Psi fraternity. He is a cartographic engineer of the soil conservation service and is now located in Lindale, Texas.

Miss Sarah Nichols Will Wed Mr. Judge at Home on Dec. 5

Of cordial interest is the announcement of the wedding plans of Miss Sarah Nichols, daughter of Mrs. John M. Nichols Sr., and Thomas Jackson Judge, whose marriage will be solemnized Saturday, December 5, at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the bride-elect's mother on Euclid avenue. Rev. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church, will perform the ceremony in the presence of the relatives and close friends of the young couple.

The maid of honor and the bride's only attendant will be Miss Jean Hicks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Hicks. John M. Nichols will give his sister in marriage, and Charles F. Wysong will be best man. The ushers will include Frank D. Nichols, Charles W. Nichols, brothers of the bride-elect, and Thomas J. Seigler. John Nichols, small nephew of Miss Nichols, will be the ring bearer. After the ceremony Mrs. John M. Nichols Sr., will entertain at a reception for her daughter and Mr. Judge.

Two lovely affairs were given yesterday in honor of Miss Nichols and her fiance. Miss Margaret Cheshire and Miss Mary Snow were hostesses at a luncheon in honor of the bride-elect at the Colonial Terrace.

Present were Misses Nichols, Sarah Dobbs, Jean Hicks, Mary Havens, Lucile Logan, Elaine Ahles, Muriel Pierce, Marjorie Hollingsworth, Frances James, Mesdames E. S. Jones, John M. Nichols Sr., J. J. Cheshire and the hostesses. In the evening, Miss Jean Hicks entertained at her home on North Decatur road for Miss Nichols and Mr. Judge.

Miss Netherton Becomes Bride Of Mr. Hansford at Church Rites

Brilliance and beauty of detail featured the nuptials last evening of Miss Elizabeth Netherton, of Montezuma and College Park, to Louis Hansford, of Macon, the ceremony taking place at the First Methodist church in College Park. The Rev. Walter S. Robison, pastor, officiated.

The church was beautifully decorated in white chrysanthemums and rich foliage, interspersed with seven-brnached candelabra holding burning white tapers.

A musical program was rendered by Mrh. Hugh DuRant. The musical numbers included McDowell's "To a Wild Rose" and "Liebestraum," by Liszt. Lewih Hamilton sang, "All For You" and "Oh, Promise Me."

The ushers were Harold Youmans, Netherton Stilwell, Lamar Hutcheson and W. H. Guerry, from Montezuma.

The bridesmaid was Mrs. W. H. Guerry, of Montezuma. Mrs. Harold Youmans was her sister's matron of honor. They were gowned alike in taffeta, fashioned with square decolletage and featuring short puffed sleeves. The skirts were floor length, trimmed with bands of velvet. They wore small hats of gold tulle, trimmed with velvet. Mrs. Guerry wore green and Mrs. Youmans, magenta. They carried arm bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums tied with matching satin ribbon.

Miss Betty Youmans, junior bridesmaid, was gowned in yellow taffeta, trimmed with green velvet, and her hat was yellow velvet. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of yellow chrysanthemums.

Charles P. Netherton gave his sister in marriage and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Lee Hansford, of Americus.

The bride's patrician brunette beauty was accentuated by her wedding robes of white bridal satin and tulle. Her gown, which was princess style, was fashioned with cowl neckline, the sleeves were full to the elbow, fitting close to the wrist, and a gracefully fitted skirt, which featured a long train. Her veil of illusion tulle, fashioned cap style, was trimmed with rows of orange blossoms and was made with a waist-length face veil. The bride carried a bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies showered with swainsona.

Mrs. R. L. Netherton, mother of the bride, wore black crepe and a shoulder cluster of pink rosebuds and valley lilies. Mrs. H. D. Hansford, mother of the groom, wore a black crepe dress and a spray of pink rosebuds and valley lilies. Mrs. Parker Stilwell, sister of the bride, wore a blue crepe dress and a shoulder cluster of gardenias.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Harold Youmans entertained at a reception, assembling the wedding party and out-of-town guests. White chrysanthemums predominated in the decorations of the home, featuring the color scheme of green and white.

The beautifully appointed bride's table, overlaid with a handsome lace cloth, featured silver and white decorations, lighted by crystal candelabras, with the three-tiered wedding cake gracing the center of the table.

The couple left for their wedding trip to Miami, Fla., the bride traveling in a green wool costume suit trimmed in gray squirrel. Her accessories were green suede and she wore a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

After December 1, the couple will reside in College Park.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Guerry, from Montezuma; Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hansford, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Pierce, Miss Montine Hansford, from Macon, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hansford, from Americus.

Mrs. Barge Honors Trio of Debutantes.

Mrs. Otis Barge entertained at tea Friday at her home on Habersham road, in compliment to a trio of debutantes. In the living room, where the receiving party stood, pink roses were used as decoration. Standing with Mrs. Barge were the honor guests, Misses Julia Colquitt, Catherine Campbell and Annette Hightower, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Barge, daughter of the hostess, who was home from Sweet Briar College, Va., for her mother's birthday, which was Friday. The table in the dining room had a cover of real lace, graced with silver bowls holding Pernet roses and valley lilies. At either end, silver tea and coffee services were placed, and pouring were the mothers of the honor guests, Mesdames Walter Colquitt, Morton Campbell and T. J. Hightower and John A. Boykin.

Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Ben T. Carter, W. B. Willingham Jr., A. H. Eidson, Edwin Camp, James Respess, R. I. Barge, Creighton Callaway and Griggs Shaefer, John Morris and Misses Julian Boykin, Alma Knight, Georgia Oliver, Frances Hoyt, Edith Willingham and Dorothy Belle Barge.

Tea was served by Mrs. Guy and Mrs. Jack Palmer and her committee.

Present were Misses Louise Girardeau, Lamar Lowe, Margaret Ridley, Emily Harrison, Martha Crowe, Nelle Chamblee, Ethel Cockrell, Cornelia Cooper, Sarah Brannan, Lutie Powell Burckhardt, Catherine Bishop, Katherine Golucke, Jane Blick, Grace Trimble, Mesdames Harry Lange, Robert McMichael, Leroy, Stewart McGinty, O. W. Candler, C. H. Morris, Griffith Edwards, Ernest Rogers, Annie Marpon Lynn, John J. Egan, Hal Smith, Milton Candler, Jack Palmer, Ralph Paris, A. P. Philips, Bynum, Dan Sage, A. S. Grove, Paul Duke, Park, Fred Cole Jr., Whitner Howard, J. S. Burckhardt and Mrs. Donaldson and Mrs. Tucker Irwin, Joseph Massee and Joseph Read.

Mr. and Mrs. Shoun Honor Debutantes.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Shoun were hosts at a beautifully appointed dinner party Friday evening at their home on Andrews drive complimenting Misses Kathrine Newman and Laura Maddox, popular members of the Debutante Club.

The affair preceded the debut ball of Miss Elkin Goddard at the Piedmont Driving Club and assembled a limited number of the debutantes and their escorts. The home was decorated with quantities of yellow and white chrysanthemums and autumn foliage.

Miss Speers and Mr. Walker Wed At Druid Hills Church Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Johnston Speers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Speers, to Charles Nathaniel Walker Jr., was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Druid Hills Methodist church by Rev. John B. Peters, in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and friends. Prior to the ceremony Miss Ethel Beyer, organist, and Stanley Perry, soloist, rendered a program of nuptial music.

Miss Venetia Harwell was the bride's only attendant and Harry M. Woodard served the groom as best man. Miss Harwell wore an afternoon gown of aquamarine taffeta made with large puffed sleeves trimmed with rust-colored velvet bows. The full swing skirt was trimmed at the bottom by a wide band of rust velvet and she wore a rust velvet turban. Her bouquet was formed of talisman roses tied with rust-colored velvet ribbon.

The bride's gown of white satin was made with a short train and the bodice was fashioned with a cowl neckline. Small white satin buttons trimmed the long close-fitting sleeves and were the gown's only trimming. Her veil was fashioned of princess lace and misty white tulle, the beautiful veil being worn by Mrs. J. A. Thornton, the former Miss Virginia Garrison. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses and swainsona tied with white satin ribbon.

The bride was accompanied to the altar by her father by whom she was given in marriage, and the ushers were B. C. Speers Jr., the bride's brother; Dr. Steve R. Johnston, the bride's cousin; J. A. Thornton and Charles Wilson.

The church was attractively decorated for the occasion with palms, foliage plants and baskets of large white chrysanthemums. Cathedral candelabra holding gleaming white tapers were arranged on the choir rail and on either side of the altar.

Mrs. Speers, the bride's mother, was attired in wine-colored velvet with which she wore black accessories. Her shoulder bouquet was fashioned of talisman roses. Mrs. Charles N. Walker, the groom's mother, wore a plum-colored taffeta dress and black accessories. Her shoulder bouquet was formed of yellow roses.

Mr. Walker and his bride left immediately after the ceremony for Detroit, Mich., from which they will begin a motor trip to Canada. They will return by way of New York and after December 1 they will be at home in an apartment at 919 Greenwood avenue in this city.

Kitchens—Youngblood

ASHBURN, Ga., Nov. 21.—Mrs. B G. Kitchens, of Ashburn, announces the marriage of her only daughter, Miss Annie Myrtle Kitchens, to Dorsey Youngblood, of Sycamore. The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. H. Duncan at the Baptist parsonage in Ashburn on October 31.

Miss Hopkins Makes Debut on Dec. 24.

One of the most brilliant presentations of the season will be the supper-dance at which Misses Carroll and Elizabeth Hopkins entertain to introduce their debutante sister, Miss Helen Hill Hopkins to society.

This affair will take place on December 24 at the Piedmont Driving Club, and will assemble several hundred members of the social contingent.

Miss Hopkins, one of the most popular members of the debutante coterie, is being complimented at a round of social affairs. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Hopkins.

Miss MacIntyre, Fiance Are Feted.

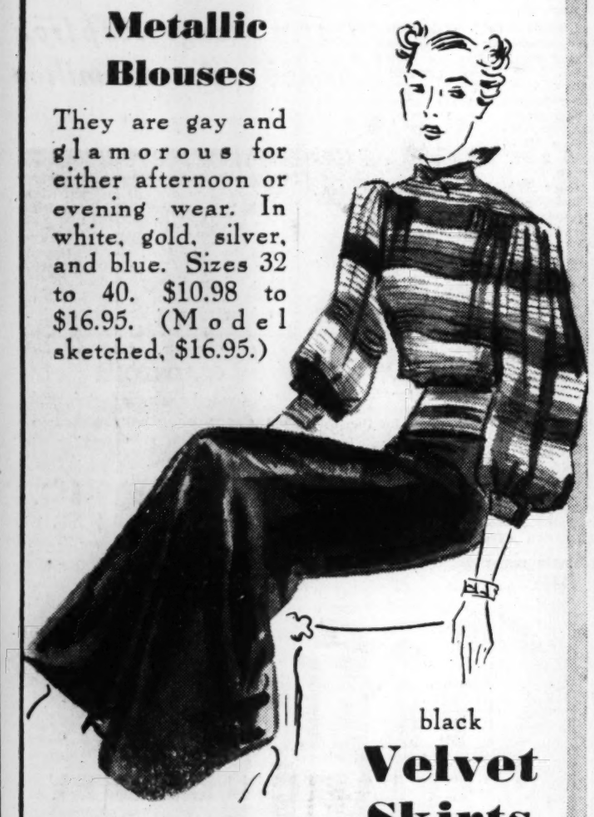

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Quin and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Yancey entertained at an aperitif party yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Quin on Montgomery Ferry drive in honor of Miss Louise MacIntyre and her fiance, Dr. Julius Hughes. Yellow chrysanthemums and autumn foliage were used as decorations throughout the house.

In the dining room the lace-covered table was graced in the center with a silver epergne filled with yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, and silver candlesticks held yellow tapers. Guests included the members of the wedding party.

'Seeing Selves as Others See Them' Is in Store for Debutantes Here

By Sally Forth.

MEMBERS of the current Debutante Club will see themselves as others see them on the night of December 1 when they assemble at Loew's Grand theater as guests of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Jenkins, to witness a preview of a renowned film to be released at an early date.

As the debbies and their escorts step from their automobiles in front of the theater and enter the lobby, a movie cameraman will be on hand to snap them in action. At the close of the preview the pictures of the debbies and their dates will be flashed on the screen which, no doubt, will bring forth giggles galore, plus "Ohs" and "Ahs" from the pretty young buds seated in the audience.

The preview party will honor Nancy Hill, of New York, who is visiting the Jenkins' debutante daughter, Sara, who makes her formal bow at a breakfast on Thanksgiving morning at the Piedmont Driving Club. The debbies and their friends will enjoy coffee served in the lounge after the preview party when, no doubt, the debutantes will decide among themselves which one of their group is most qualified for a screen career.

THIS story will interest young men whose frat brothers insist they meet their "kid sister" at a dance. Three years ago Johnny Phillips told Sam Orr at a dance that he wanted him to meet his sister. Sam was not very thrilled over the prospect, for, rather unfortunately, he had always been "stuck" with somebody's sister at dances. This time it was different, and when John introduced him to his sister, Eloise, Sam was perfectly willing to be stuck with this charming young girl. John had asked him to "take his little sister off his hands for the dance" and little did he know that Sam would take him seriously and some day take Eloise to the altar instead.

That is exactly what happened, for Eloise and Sam are announcing their engagement today in other columns of this paper. The Tate Mountain Estates is a perfect heaven for romances and it was there over a year ago that Sam and Eloise really decided to be Mr. and Mrs. Their marriage takes place two days after Christmas, and although the date falls on Sunday, they are going to be married at the Pro-cathedral of St. Philip because on this date Eloise's parents celebrate their 42d wedding anniversary.

BOUQUETS and baskets filled with every color and variety of flowers banked the end and reached to the ceiling of the ballroom when Elkin Goddard made her debut Friday evening at the Piedmont Driving Club. Orchids formed the star which centered the floral array, and an old-fashioned bouquet made of pink and white bouvardia occupied the place of honor in the effective arrangement.

The bouvardia bouquet was the gift of Mrs. George Lanier Sr., of West Point, who was on the Mediterranean cruise with Elkin, when the lovely debutante was accompanied on the voyage by Mrs. J. N. Goddard and Mrs. Stanton Pickens, her mother and sister. Elkin wore a wreath of miniature orchids in her hair that added an attractive touch to her becoming costume when she made her debut at the brilliant ball given by her parents.

IN THE steady and fashionable line of guests entering the home of Judge and Mrs. Walter Colquitt last Wednesday to greet beautiful Julia Colquitt upon the occasion of her debut, was a small young person dressed in gold cloth. She received a cordial greeting from Mrs. Colquitt who, in turn, asked her daughter if she knew her. Julia smiled but answered in the negative

"Why, this is Margaret Mitchell," said Mrs. Colquitt, and Julia was so thrilled and excited that she dropped her bouquet of gardenias to shake hands with the famous young Atlantan.

Later in the afternoon, Anne Irby, one of the debs assisting in entertaining, dashed up to Sally Forth in a state of unusual excitement. "Oh," she said, "I've never been so thrilled and excited in all my life. I've met Margaret Mitchell, and she called me Anne!"

SNAPSHOTS collected here and there—Emily Evins just thrilled to death (and who wouldn't be?) over receiving an enormous basket of flowers at her debut party last Thursday sent all the way from San Francisco. The sender—a handsome young ensign in the United States Navy air service. Helen Hill Hopkins wrapped practically from head to foot in confetti at Emily Evins' dance, and trying to untangle herself while her partner showered more confetti on her. Frances Weinman Latimer smartly attired in black velvet with ermine outlining the neckline and bordering the full tunic, and attending a recent party. Mrs. Preston Arkwright finding street car tickets at Julia Colquitt's debut party, which somebody dropped on the floor. The two Julias, Willet and Fleet, attending debut parties together. Mrs. Michael Hoke carrying a rake, hoe and shovel out Peachtree street, preparatory to digging in her garden on Argonne drive.

Druid Hills Garden Club.

Druid Hills Garden Club was entertained at luncheon Thursday by Mrs. Thomas Eldridge and Mrs. Joseph Read, at the home of Mrs. Eldridge, 1410 Ponce de Leon avenue. The club voted to contribute $25 to the Community Chest this year. Mrs. Clyde King Jr. and Mrs. Luther Randall, entered a shadow-box, a study in black and white, at the garden center, which merited 90 points. Mrs. R. J. Taylor Jr. was welcomed as a new member.

Miss Edith Harrison told of the national council meeting at White Sulphur Springs, and of garden centers throughout the United States. Mrs. Carl Lewis, program chairman, outlined work to be done in the garden this month.

Miss Margie Webster Weds Mr. Logan, Of Charleston, S. C.

Characterized by dignified simplicity was the marriage of Miss Margie Louise Webster, daughter of Franklin Adams Webster, to Wade Hampton Logan, of Charleston, S. C., which was solemnized yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in the chapel of All Saints' Episcopal church.

Dr. W. W. Memminger officiated in the presence of the immediate family and a few close friends. Mrs. Mozelle Horton Young rendered a beautiful musical program before and during the ceremony.

The chapel was decorated for the occasion with palms and Easter lilies. Seven-branched cathedral candelabra, holding burning white tapers, added to the beauty of the setting. Hagood Clarke and Hagood Clark Jr. were ushers.

Miss Katherine Geffcken was junior bridesmaid and only attendant. She wore a becoming dress of blue moire taffeta, made princess style. Her bouquet was an old-fashioned nosegay of pastel-colored flowers.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, W. Hampton Logan Jr. For her wedding costume, the bride chose a suit of bright blue wool with a gray fox collar, worn with a gold satin blouse. Her hat was a becoming model of dark blue trimmed with brighter blue. Her corsage was of Talisman roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Logan is the daughter of Franklin Adams Webster and the late Mrs. Webster, who was, before her marriage, Miss Lizzie Mure Middleton, of Charleston. Her maternal grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. William James Middleton of that city. She is a sister of W. J. M. Webster, of Miami, and F. A. Webster Jr., also of Miami.

Mr. Logan is prominently identified with the business and social life of Charleston. He is a member of the Charleston Yacht Club and the St. Cecelia Society. His maternal and paternal ancestors were pioneers of South Carolina.

Among out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Webster Jr., of Miami; Mrs. W. J. M. Webster, of Miami, and W. Hampton Logan Jr., of Charleston.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Logan left for a wedding trip north. They will be at home after December 10 at 37 Church street, Charleston.

Georgia W. C. T. U. Treasurers Request Members To Pay Dues Before Thanksgiving

By M. FRANCES M. BURGHARD, Macon, State W. C. T. U. Editor.

These are days when treasurers and their helpers are busiest, telephoning, visiting, asking for dues and budget, working to have every member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Georgia pay her annual dues of one dollar and make a contribution to the budget by Thanksgiving Day. And where a member has died or moved securing a new member to take her place.

Since the national W. C. T. U. has adopted this plan of Georgia's this state organization is especially desirous of making a 100 per cent showing. That cannot be done unless every member pays dues within the next several days. Cash prizes on the budget will be paid by the state to those unions in the various-sized groups which are first to hold fast. Encouraging reports are being received about the roll call progress.

Dr. Mary Harris Armor addressed Vineville Methodist congregation in Macon last Sunday on "The World Challenges America." She described conditions as she had seen them as she toured the world recently, the war-minded world—Japanese troops marching toward Korea, the sight of the Spanish conflict viewed from the top of Gibraltar and sights of wretchedness and sin. Then she declared, "America with all her sin and shame is the white hope of the world today."

Dr. Armor said emphatically: "America must conquer the liquor traffic and forsake it before she can meet the world challenge. The eighteenth amendment was the greatest moral victory this age knew; its repeal the greatest backward step. The world feels that way about it," she said. The 170,000,000 total abstainers, the missionaries in distant lands feel that America let them down. We cannot stop the fight against the liquor traffic because God is in it."

She declared, "Victory will come. Some day we will repeal repeal. There cannot be a victory without a fight. The conquests of the church are spiritual and her victories are eternal; war, liquor, impurity, gambling must and will be cast out, for 'success is as sure as the promises of God.'"

Julius Gilbert White, of Madison, Tenn., is doing fine work in presenting his lecture-pictorial in churches and schools. He has shown his slides which visualize what alcohol is and what it does in Fort Valley, Byron, Vienna, Eastman, Chauncey, McRae, Milam, Baxley, Surrency and Alma, and Mrs. Fred Layton writes of his week in Augusta when the P.-T. A. co-operated with Mrs. C. C. McGinty, president of the tenth district W. C. T. U., in showing the pictures to over 1,000 children a day. On Sunday he lectured and exhibited his pictures at three churches. Mrs. Layton reported that her union, the Woodlawn, was progressing satisfactorily with their roll call.

Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, state W. C. T. U. president, spoke at the second district W. C. T. U. meeting in Bainbridge, and referred to the highway accidents, saying that they would "be cut practically into if drinking drivers were not permitted on highways," and quoted the National Safety Council statements: "There cannot be too much emphasis placed on the criminal negligence of driving after drinking." . . . An ounce of whisky or a bottle of beer appreciably lowers the ability of driver or pedestrian, to use the streets safely," and the mortor vehicle commissioner of New York as saying in July, "The drunken driver is a potential killer and the worst of all hazards on the road." Mrs. R. H. McDougall, of Atlanta, state vice president; Mrs. Robert Travelute, of Moultrie, the new state recording secretary; Mrs. D. R. Jarrell, of Thomasville, were among speakers.

Director of scientific temperance instruction in the Marietta W. C. T. U., Mrs. D. R. Little, who is superintendent of missions and Bible study in the North Georgia Missionary conference, and teacher of the Men's Bible Class in the First Methodist church school, planned a study of alcohol. She had a court trial of the church vs. alcohol; having lawyers and witnesses and the judge of the superior court to charge the jury and render the verdict. The jury was composed of the members of this Bible Class. But on this particular Sunday adult classes of the church school and the Men's Bible Class of the First Baptist church were invited.

The foreman of the jury asked those present to vote and a unanimous vote was given to not only convict and imprison alcohol, but to literally exterminate him. Young people heard Judge Hawkins, the superior court judge of the Blue Ridge circuit. He is superintendent of the First Baptist Sunday school, a Christian gentleman and a conscientious and fearless judge.

Blackfriars To Present 'Double Door' At Agnes Scott College on Nov. 25

The Blackfriars, Agnes Scott dramatic society, will present "Double Doors" on Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Bucher Scott gymnasium. The cast includes members of Blackfriars and the Emory Players and amateur actors from Atlanta.

Miss Ellen Douglas Leyburn, of the English department, spoke at the recent annual Mortar Board, senior honorary society, recognition service held in Gaines chapel, and Fannie B. Harris, of Rome, Ga., president of Mortar Board, presided.

Book week at Agnes Scott begins Tuesday and continues through Sunday. Exhibits grouped around the fireplace in the main reading room of the new library will be featured. Children's books, cheap editions, and current books will be emphasized and only new books will be on display. Books will be sold for reasonable prices. Miss Louise McKinney, of the English department, and Miss Edna Hanley, librarian, are in charge of the exhibits, assisted by Miss Laura Colvin, assistant librarian.

Martha Summers, of Atlanta, president of Chi Beta Phi Sigma, national honorary society, will leave Wednesday to attend the national biennial convention of Chi Beta Phi and Chi Beta Phi Sigma, to be held in Huntington, W. Va.

Cotillion Club entertains the college community at the annual Thanksgiving dance Thursday in the gymnasium. Alice Taylor, of Atlanta, president of Cotillion, appointed the following members to serve on committees: Helen Moses, Jane Dryfoos, Mary Lib Morrow, Mary Ellen Whetsell, Jane Moore Hamilton, Dot Cabaniss, Marjorie Scott, Eloise Estes and Doris Dunn.

Cary Wheeler, of Lafayette, Ala., a member of the sophomore class, was elected corresponding secretary of the Georgia Baptist Student Union at the convention held in Macon recently. Eleven Agnes Scott girls attended the conference.

The Thanksgiving vesper service, sponsored by the freshman Y. W. C. A. cabinet was given Sunday evening in Gaines chapel. Katherine Patton, of Abingdon, Va., was chairman of the committee. Ruth Crisp, of Lenoir, N. C., was elected to make the talk; music was furnished by the freshman choir. Members of the freshman cabinet serving on committees for the program were Penn Hammond, Sophie Montgomery, Grace Ward, Marjorie Boggs, Bryant Holsenbeck, Henrietta Thompson and Mary Matthews.

The first swimming meet of the season was given Thursday and events included a free-style, 30-yard dash, formation swimming by members of the Swimming Club, a shuttle relay race, diving contest and a king pigeon race for endurance. Only members of the swimming classes or of the Swimming Club were eligible to enter.

Agnes Scott College class of 1936 will hold its first reunion at Thanksgiving week-end, and a banquet will be given Friday evening in the Anna Young alumnae house. Elizabeth Forman, of Birmingham, Ala., doing postgraduate work in mathematics at the University of Alabama, is life president of the class, and Lulu Ames, of Decatur, is life secretary. Miss Ames and Carrie Phinney Latimer, assisting in the spoken English department at Agnes Scott, are in charge of the arrangements for the reunion. Every Thanksgiving the graduating class of the year before holds its first reunion at the college.

Harris-Crusselle Engagement Told

Of cordial interest to their many friends among Atlanta's church, social and business circles is the announcement by Mrs. H. F. Harris, prominent member of the John R. Wilkerson Chapter of the Eastern Star, of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ines Harris, to Arthur B. Crusselle Jr. The bride is a popular student of the Central Night school of this city.

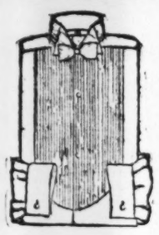

The groom is a graduate of Boys' High school and an alumnus of Emory University. For the past three years he has been connected with the Atlanta branch of the Jensen-Salsbery Laboratories as assistant manager.

The wedding will be solemnized at 10 o'clock, November 25, at the home of the groom's parents, 1846 McLendon avenue, N. E., and will be performed by the Rev. E. P. Carson, pastor of the Clifton Presbyterian church. Immediately following the ceremony the young couple will leave for a honeymoon in Tennessee.

Formal EVENING Clothes
Must Be Correct

Styles in men's dress clothes do not change rapidly or radically, hence you do not have to purchase often. When attending functions demanding formal wear, it behooves one to observe the rules of propriety.

Nor is the cost a barrier here, to those who have only occasional need for such things:

Tuxedo, Jacket and Trousers in the new midnight blue, which under artificial light is blacker than black, only $27.00

Tail Coats, full evening dress, coat and trousers $27.00

Dress vests, black and white, $4.95; Dress Shirts, pleated front, collar attached, $2.50; Plain bosom shirts, for one or two studs, $2.50.

Wing collars, 35c; midnight blue tuxedo ties with pointed end, $1.00; White pique dress ties, $1.00; Black silk clocked hose, 50c and $1.00; Link and stud sets, $1.50 to $5.00.

White silk scarfs, $1.00 to $3.50; White silk handkerchiefs, $1.00; Watch and key chains, $1.00; Midnight blue tuxedo hats, $6.00.

Miss Emily Worley And Allen Bryant Will Wed Dec. 22

Among interesting mid-winter weddings will be that of Miss Emily Worley and B. Allen Bryant, whose engagement was recently announced. The ceremony takes place on Tuesday, December 22, at the Peachtree Christian church at 5:30 o'clock. Dr. Robert Burns, pastor of the church, will officiate. A musical program will be presented by Mrs. Victor Clark, organist, and Miss Minna Hecker, soloist.

Sam Worley will give his sister in marriage and Robert MacGregor, of Tampa, Fla., will be the best man. Miss Christine DuBose, of Sumter, S. C., will be the bride's only attendant, and the ushers will be Don Robinson and Cecil Thompson.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Worley, brother and sister of the bride-elect, entertain at a buffet supper at their home on Peachtree circle for the young couple. Prior to their marriage, Miss Worley and Mr. Bryant will be honored at a series of parties. On December 5, Mrs. E. F. Cox and Miss Edna Turner will be co-hostesses at a lingerie shower for Miss Worley. Misses Miriam Woodall and Martha Patillo entertain at a linen shower at the home of the former on North Decatur road on December 12.

Miss Christine DuBose honors Miss Worley at a luncheon on December 19 and on December 21, Mr. and Mrs. Allen J. Henson give a buffet supper at their home on Olden road after the wedding rehearsal. Mrs. W. L. Inglis and Mrs. Charles King will be co-hostesses at tea at the Piedmont Driving Club for Miss Worley, the date to be announced later.

Linwood Garden Club.

Linwood Garden Club met recently at the home of Mrs. F. B. Davenport, 647 Linwood avenue. Mrs. Ralph McClelland, president, presided.

After a short business meeting and the reading of a paper by Mrs. Earl Stanford on "Bringing the Garden Indoors," E. H. Reese, of the Monroe Nurseries, gave a talk on "Foundation Planting."

Luncheon was served by the hostess.

For Mrs. Etheridge.

Mrs. Wallace Weathers entertained at luncheon Friday at the Capital City Club in compliment to Mrs. Philip Etheridge, a recent bride.

Covers were placed for Mrs. Etheridge, Mrs. Weathers, Miss Catherine Craighead, Mrs. Ray Mitchell, Mrs. Frank Davis and Mrs. Francis Dwyer.

Johnston—Shupe.

AUSTELL, Ga., Nov. 21.—Mr. H. V. Johnston, of Austell, announces the marriage of her daughter, Helen Van, to J. N. Shupe. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. P. Watkins at the manse of the Methodist church, on November 13.

Adams—Douthit.

Of widespread interest is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Adams of the engagement of their youngest daughter, Bernadine Opal, to George Ernest Douthit, of Dallas, Texas. The marriage will be solemnized on December 9 at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. James A. Goodwin, of Decatur, sister of the bride-elect.

Mr. Douthit is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Douthit, of Queen, Ark. He attended Southern Methodist University at Dallas and for the past two years has been associated with the Dallas Railway and Terminal Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones Honor Debutantes

Misses Nelle Freeman and Clare Haverty, two popular members of the Debutante Club, were honor guests yesterday at the aperitif party at which Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Jones Jr. entertained at their home on Northside drive. The affair followed the Tech-Florida game and assembled members of the Debutante Club and their escorts.

Yellow and white chrysanthemums, combined with bright-colored autumn leaves, were used as the decorations throughout the home. The table in the dining room was covered with a real lace cloth and was beautifully decorated with an unusual arrangement of fruits, carrying out the harvest motif.

Mrs. Thomas, Col. Patterson Wed in Griffin

GRIFFIN, Ga., Nov. 21. The announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Lewis Thomas, the former Miss Montes Brown, of Griffin, to Colonel Charles Patterson, U. S. A., is of important social interest throughout the south and east, where the families of the pair are prominently and widely known. The ceremony took place this afternoon in Griffin at 5:30 o'clock at the historic Kincaid home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunt before a small group of relatives and close friends, with Rev. M. M. Maxwell, pastor of Griffin's First Methodist church, officiating.

The rites were read in the drawing room, where an artistic arrangement of white roses and pink and white chrysanthemums added a decorative note to the occasion. Palms and foliage plants graced the corners of the rooms and stood on either side of the hallway entrance.

The bride was attired in a striking ensemble of black crepe worn with a silver lame jacket and smart black antelope hat. A trio of white orchids graced her left shoulder and she wore black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunt entertained at an informal reception immediately after the ceremony at

Miss Shivers and Miss Gresham Presented To Society at Breakfast at Driving Club

The formal presentation of Miss Dorothy Shivers, president of Atlanta's 1936-37 Debutante Club, and Miss Eloise Gresham, one of the club's most popular members, at a breakfast given yesterday morning by their parents, Mrs. Lester L. Shivers and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Gresham, at the Piedmont Driving Club was marked by a gay football atmosphere produced by the attractive decorations and the presence of prominent visitors here for the Tech-Florida game.

One-half of the spacious ballroom, where guests assembled, was transformed to represent a miniature football stadium, with the goal posts at each end flying the Tech-Florida colors. The 50-yard line was graced in the center by a huge football filled wtih yellow and white chrysanthemums.

On either side of the entrance to the ballroom was an immense leather football tied with the team's colors and filled with matching chrysanthemums.

The end of the ballroom in which the debutantes and their parents received presented a charming garden scene with a small pool in which floated water lilies with a fountain playing in the center. The pool was encircled by a bed of growing coleus, the red shade predominating, and around the outer edge of the grassy plot was a hedge of winter green shrubbery.

A white wooden trellis was arranged at the back of the garden against which was banked innumerable baskets and bouquets sent the debutantes by their friends and admirers. White iron benches in the garden completed the beautiful springtime effect provided by the lovely garden scene.

The buffet tables set in the loggia adjoining the ballroom were decorated by turquoise blue pottery bowls in which were pastel-shaded water lilies, these same lovely floral arrangements gracing the coffee tables.

Receiving with the debutantes and hosts were Mrs. Frank Mitchell, Miss Gresham's sister, and Mrs. Richard Hardwick and Mrs. Russell H. McKinney, of Gastonia, N. C., sisters of Miss Shivers.

Miss Gresham wore a striking black velvet suit trimmed with a silver fox fur collar. Her hat was a small black antelope model and she wore a cluster of deep purple orchids on her left shoulder.

Miss Shivers was attired in a copper-brown wool suit trimmed with a collar and deep pockets of mink fur. Her hat was of copper-colored velour trimmed in mink and she wore a shoulder cluster of green orchids.

Mrs. Gresham's costume was fashioned of black crepe made tunic style and trimmed with gold clips. Her hat was of black velour and her shoulder spray was formed of deep purple orchids.

Mrs. Shivers' tailored ensemble was fashioned of slate blue and gray wool trimmed with a blue fox fur collar. She wore a close-fitting hat to match and her shoulder bouquet was formed of orchids.

Mrs. Hardwick's ensemble was fashioned of wine-colored wool sheer with which she wore a felt hat to match and a silver fox scarf and a shoulder spray of orchids.

Mrs. McKinney's costume was fashioned of Bahama green wool trimmed in mink. Her accessories were of brown and she wore a cluster of orchids.

Mrs. Mitchell wore an ensemble of rust-colored wool with mink fur trimmings, with which she wore a felt hat to match and

Miss Newman Makes Bow To Society at Reception

Miss Kathrine Newman, beautiful debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Newman, made her formal bow to fashionable members of Atlanta society yesterday at an elaborate reception given by her mother at her Cherokee road home. Miss Newman is one of the most feted and admired of the season's buds, and her formal entrance into society has been marked by a veritable whirl of gay parties given in compliment to her.

The lower floor of the Newman home presented a scene of floral beauty in the artistic arrangement for the auspicious occasion. Quantities of chrysanthemums, roses, snapdragons, dahlias and delphinium, in the various autumn shades, were used as the beautiful decorations. The receiving line was formed in the living room before the massive mantel, which was banked with palms forming a screen. The mantel was centered by a low mound of orchids placed below the portrait of the late Judge William T. Newman, paternal grandfather of the debutante, who was one of the distinguished jurists in the state. Gracing either side which they were assisted in receiving by Colonel and Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Victor Brown, the bride's mother; Rushmore Patterson, of New York, the groom's son, and Dr. and Mrs. William McDougall, of Atlanta, the bride's brother and sister.

Colonel and Mrs. Patterson left in the early evening for a motor trip to the east. They will stop en route in Washington, D. C., for a few days' stay, and in Pennsylvania, where they will visit Colonel Patterson's family. They will attend the Army-Navy football game in Philadelphia, after which they will go to New York to sail for Bermuda. Upon their return to Griffin a few days before the Christmas holidays they will reside at 644 East College street and will be prominent additions to both Griffin and Atlanta's married society.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Rushmore Patterson, of New York; Dr. and Mrs. William McDougall, General George Van Horn Moseley, Colonel and Mrs. Benjamin M. Bailey, Colonel Campbell Hodges, Major and Mrs. John L. Dougherty, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Toler, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Seydel, Mrs. Mary Nelson Ream, Mrs. Calvin Prescott, all of Atlanta; Colonel Walter Baker, of Fort Benning, and Mrs. Howard Moore, of Nashville, Tennessee.

Mrs. Patterson is considered one of Georgia's most beautiful women and inherits much of the charm and gracious personality for which members of her family are renowned. She represent. distinguished and aristocratic southern families and as the former Miss Montes Brown she was listed as one of the state's most popular belles.

Colonel Patterson has been stationed in Atlanta since August, 1935, with the army's fourth corps area headquarters, going there from Washington, D. C., where he served four years as a member of the War Department general staff. He is one of the army's most distinguished officers, having been detailed as military aide to the King of Belgium and to the King of Siam upon their visits to this country in 1919 and 1931, respectively, and accompanied the royal parties on their tour of the United States. Colonel Patterson is a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point and was awarded the distinguished service medal for his services in the World War.

Miss Newman Makes Bow to Society of the mantel were crystal candelabra. Banked on either side of the receiving line were quantities of floral baskets and gift bouquets sent the lovely debutante by her many admiring friends, which further attested to her popularity.

Forming the receiving line with Mrs. Newman and her daughter were Mrs. Frank Ellis, grandmother of the debutante, and Miss Elizabeth Patterson, of Richmond, Va., niece of Mr. Newman.

The lovely debutante, who is a stunning brunette, was beautiful in her white moire model fashioned with a slight empire style and worn with a short jacket of the same material. She carried a large bouquet of varicolored garden flowers, and adorning her shoulder was a cluster of orchids.

Mrs. Newman was handsomely gowned in corn-colored crepe trimmed in satin of the same shade and fashioned along becoming straight lines. Her flowers were bronze orchids. Mrs. Ellis was lovely in a model of black velvet trimmed in ermine and her flowers were gardenias. Miss Patterson was beautifully gowned in an afternoon model of black velvet and her flowers were gardenias.

The beautifully appointed tea table in the dining room was covered with a cloth of point de venise lace and centered with a silver bowl filled with talisman roses, bronze chrysanthemums, blue delphinium and yellow snapdragons. On either side of the centerpiece were silver candelabra holding burning tapers. Handsome silver coffee and tea services were placed at either end of the table. Mrs. Hugh Richardson Jr., and Mrs. Jesse Draper presided. Punch was served in the music room from large silver bowls surrounded by mounds of varicolored autumnal flowers. Serving punch were Misses Mary Knowles and Mary Louise Sciple.

Assisting Mrs. Newman in entertaining the guests who were members of the married contingent of society were members of her Wednesday Morning Sewing Club, including Mesdames Maxwell Couper Jr., sister of the hostess; John Grant, Hugh Richardson, John Goddard, John M. Slaton, Albert Thornton, Robert F. Maddox, Robert Alston, Phinizy Calhoun, Henry Tompkins, H. M. Atkinson, Edward Inman, Sam Inman, Edwin Peeples, J. S. Slicer, James Goodrum, Mitchell King, Jesse Draper, Leroy Childs, Julian Riley and Murray Shoun.

In the evening Miss Newman was central figure at the dinner party given by her grandmother, Mrs. Ellis, at the dinner dance at the Piedmont Driving Club when a group of debutantes were invited.

Interesting Reports and Plans Mark P.-T. A. Meetings for the Week

"Responsibilities follow rights, and women should exercise the rights they have while striving to obtain others," said Louis Geffen, school board member, in his talk on "Woman and Citizenship" to Girls' High P.-T. A. on Tuesday. Woman's political status is not yet that of man's. But her influence as a citizen should be used in home, school and community life, Mr. Geffen said.

Mrs. Laurence Mansfield presided at the meeting. The program was in charge of the social science department. Thirty-three classes, composed of 1,023 girls, participated in this work at Girls' High, Miss Ethel Woolf head of the department, stated. Events from the time of the caveman down to the 1936 election are considered, and the girls are stimulated in their interest of current events, intelligent reading, knowledge and understanding. Three scenes from Civil War times depicting Lee's Decision, Visit of a Northern Officer to a Southern Home, and the Surrender of Lee, all in the dress of the period, were presented by Mrs. H. E. Whelchel's class. A white wedding dress, beautifully ivoried by time, and worn by Mrs. Whelchel's mother, was loaned, also a homespun frock and taffeta skirt which had belonged to Mrs. M. G. Whitlock, of Marietta, a great aunt of Marie Richardson. A silk-fringed shawl of her great-grandmother's was in use, too. Genuine Confederate uniforms were secured, and Georgia Tech, a telegraph company, and a policeman loaned the blue uniforms. Other costumes were secured from various homes and local shops. The faithful picturization with its studied detail, together with the dialog and dancing of the minuet, was most realistic and a credit to the girls and the history department.

Forrest Avenue P.-T. A.

Forrest Avenue P.-T. A. daddies were honored at the first night meeting of the year in the auditorium on Tuesday. Mr. Boorstin opened the meeting with a talk on "Co-operation." He stressed the necessity for co-operation between parents to produce the proper attitude in the child, asserting that the mood the child reaches school in is largely due to the environment he left at home.

Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin, member-elect of the legislature, spoke on co-operation as necessary to everything, every day. She complimented the daddies on their co-operation in attendance at the meeting, and cautioned them that there was a greater need for co-operation from the men in all affairs concerning the home, school and politics—that these three must combine to promote safety and good educational facilities for our children.

Miss Kate King, program chairman, spoke of co-operation between children and teacher, and read a composition on a boy. Several appropriate numbers were given by the Mothers' Chorus from the John B. Gordon school, under the direction of Mrs. A. B. Heidt. Mrs. C. H. Cartledge presided. Grade prizes were won by Miss Eloise Hogan's low fourth grade, and Mrs. Guy H. Coker's morning kindergarten. A social hour was held.

J. Allen Couch P.-T. A.

J. Allen Couch P.-T. A. met on Tuesday, Mrs. H. G. Coleman presiding. Mrs. S. J. Gordon conducted the devotional. The school Harmonica Club, Miss Essie Jackson at the piano, gave a program. Mrs. M. A. Groover, chairman of auditorium seats committee, announces a play, "Old Maids Club," at the school on December 3, the proceeds to be used for seats. She reported progress in the "How-Much-Can-You-Make-With-a-Dime?" campaign being conducted for the same purpose.

Miss Marie Anneberg, teacher, Low 5, talked on the educational value of the art exhibit being held in the school library throughout the week. She announced a play by the children in connection with the exhibit. Mrs. Thelma Neville, teacher, High 1, told of the cooking school to be held in the cafeteria on December 9, 10, 11. Mrs. Coleman announced that meeting on December 15 would be a deddies' meeting at which the daddies would conduct the entire program. It will be preceded by open house in the classrooms.

Mrs. D. R. Longino, P.-T. A. worker and member of the board of education, spoke on "Parent Education," along the lines of health and safety for children. She stressed the fact that diphtheria is most prevalent among children under school age and that inoculation against it should take place in very early babyhood. Low 2, Mrs. A. P. Smith, teacher, won the count on mother's attendance. A special hour followed.

Adair P.-T. A.

The Adair P.-T. A. held "Daddies' Night" meeting on Tuesday in the school auditorium. The invocation was given by W. G. Marks. "Glory to Adair School" and "America" under the leadership of Mrs. K. Bogman, were sung. Margaret Fulton gave a reading.

Selections were given by the Berean Class orchestra of the Capitol View Baptist church under the direction of J. R. Higgins. The prize cake was won by J. D. Wootan.

The parent education chairman, Mrs. G. O. Bane, announced the study group would meet with Mrs. A. F. Kiser, 765 Elbert street, on Monday at 2:30 o'clock. Dr. Stuart Oglesby spoke on "Father's Place in the Home and the Community." Mrs. John Yarbrough, president, welcomed the daddies, and thanked the members for co-operation in making annual "stunt night" a success. Grade count gave the room prizes to Mrs. L. McLaughlin, High 4, and Mrs. R. Middlebrooks, Low 4.

Boys' High P.-T. A.

The fathers' advisory committee to the Boys' High P.-T. A. met recently in the school cafeteria, Mrs. J. B. Gordon, president, presiding. A responsive reading on object of the P.-T. A. was followed by a talk by H. O. Smith, principal. A talk on enrollment was made by Mrs. Ralph McClelland, urging all parents to join.

Ralph Ramsey introduced Douglas McRae, who spoke on "Boys' High Still the Territory of the Belgiums." His satirical report of the last meeting of the P.-T. A. was one of the highlights. Judge Ralph McClelland introduced members of the advisory committee, John A. Boykin, Perry Blackshear, Ralph Ramsey and Lewis Aronstam.

Mrs. Homer Carmichael requested old clothes for the annual Thanksgiving benefit, and Mrs. R. W. Hanahan gave a report on the high school conference held in Macon last week. A social followed. Mrs. E. D. Crawford and Mrs. Wallace White serving refreshments.

Smillie P.-T. A.

Ella W. Smillie P.-T. A. held a daddies' meeting on Tuesday. Mrs. B. J. Brody, president, welcomed the members and introduced the Rev. C. D. Constantinides, one of the daddies, who led the invocation. "I want to enlighten the daddies who think the P.-T. A. is merely a pink tea social organization," said Mrs. Charles D. Center in a discussion of the movement. The WPA orchestra, composed of some of the most talented musicians in the city and directed by Walter Sheets, played several selections, and four small boys of the school gave a burlesque ballet.

Miss Mary Standard, principal, introduced D. C. McClatchey, who spoke on "Relationship of Fathers to Education." "The home furnishes the standard of conduct," said Mr. McClatchey; "for this reason the home should provide opportunity for participation in home responsibility, comradeship between parents and children and mothers and fathers who set the proper example." The attendance prizes were awarded the classes of Miss Galloway and Miss M'Broach.

S. M. Inman P.-T. A.

"The happy thing about education is that it is never completed," stated Aubrey Milam in his address on "Education," at S. M. Inman P.-T. A. "Until we can appreciate the men and women who look after our children, we will have fallen short of our duty."

Guy Edmondson presented a recommendation that a letter of commendation be written to Judge Garland Watkins in appreciation of his effort toward curtailing the sale of harmful beverages to school children. It was announced that $200 was realized from the Halloween carnival.

A chorus, composed of J. R. Bynum, J. F. Amend, J. C. Kennedy, Robert Mackey, D. A. Ratliff, J. Harmon, Crowell Dean, P. H. Stewart, John L. Peacock, director, and Mrs. John L. Peacock, accompanist, gave a program. Mrs. Blanche Boyer Thweatte directed the "community" singing. The meeting was arranged by the daddies. Frank Wilson was in charge of the program, assisted by L. A. Weekly, M. M. O'Sullivan, Dr. W. E. Coleman, Ted Levy, H. A. Cole and E. C. Isanhour. The invocation was offered by J. W. Crenshaw. An informal social hour was held.

Spring Street.

Complete control of Spring Street school P.-T. A. was given to the daddies Tuesday night. Charles Muse, president, was introduced by Mrs. Muse. He introduced other officers, all of whom protested they had been "brung" and would give the reports only because they had been ordered to do so by their "better-halves." Norman Cooledge read the minutes, after which Carl Dodd read the treasurer's report which showed a deficit of $70. John Outler, chairman of finance and the budget, offered a resolution that since the daddies were quite familiar with deficits in the home budgets, that they be made responsible for raising the amount of the deficit. This resolution was unanimously adopted.

Curtis Dixon introduced J. I. Allman, director of the National Youth Association, as speaker. "The Parent-Teacher Association is the only organization which has done anything to overcome the antagonism between the school and home, said Mr. Allman. "Buildings and equipment of the schools are fine but the teaching has remained much the same as in the old days. Our schools must build character which can stand amid a changing world. Are we facing the problems of education today honestly?"

To Make Debut at Thanksgiving Breakfast

Pictured above is Miss Sara Jenkins, lovely member of the 1936-37 Debutante Club, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Jenkins. Miss Jenkins will make her formal bow on Thanksgiving at a breakfast at which her parents will be hosts at the Piedmont Driving Club. She has recently returned from Dallas, Texas, where she made her debut with members of the Dallas Debutante Club at a brilliant ball given by the Idlewild Club, composed of socially prominent bachelors of the Texas city. Miss Jenkins is of the brunette type of beauty and possesses a magnetic personality and gracious manner which have won for her countless friends. She has enjoyed the advantage of extensive travel in this country as well as in Europe. She divides her time between her home here and the beach home of her parents at Sea Island. Miss Jenkins received her education at Washington Seminary here and at the Finch school in New York. The sketch of Miss Jenkins was made by Grace Scarboro from a photograph by Asasno, Japanese photographer.

Miss Gower Honored.

'Christmas for Christ' Is Theme For Atlanta Lottie Moon Missions

"Christmas for Christ" has been announced as the theme for the week of prayer with the Lottie Moon Christmas Offering for Foreign Missions, to be observed November 30-December 4, by the southern B. W. M. U.

The goal for the 1936 offering is $175,000, and from this amount 125 missionaries will continue to be maintained in their respective fields of service in foreign lands. Perhaps no phase of the work of the B. W. M. U. has a more heartfelt appeal or meets with a more generous response from the individual lay members than does this annual week of prayer, linked with the opportunity of making a love offering at the Christmas season to the foreign mission enterprise.

This annual occasion has shown marked development during the years that have transpired since it was conceived in the heart of Miss Lottie Moon, of Cartersville, Ga., a pioneer missionary to China. Miss Moon refused to return to the United States for a much-needed period of rest until funds could be raised to send relief to carry on in her absence. At her suggestion, the Baptist women of the south were asked to make a Christmas offering and the response was sufficiently large to send three new workers to China. Each year since then the foreign missions season of prayer has been observed, and in 1918, Miss Moon was fittingly honored by having the Christmas love gifts named "The Lottie Moon Christmas Offering."

Georgia B. W. M. U. has always felt a peculiar pride in paying tribute to this beloved Georgia woman by attaining its allotted goal, and it is earnestly hoped that the gifts this year will be freely and joyfully given for truly, as in the days of Miss Moon's appeal, "the fields are white unto harvest."

The call goes forth to each of the 3,016 organizations composing t he Georgia union to observe this season of prayer and offering, November 30-December 4.

Christian Missionary Convention Held in First Christian Church

The women's sessions of the Georgia Christian Missionary convention now meeting in the First Christian church, were held on Wednesday. A sacrificial luncheon took place in the dining room of the church. Mrs. F. A. Beach, of Savannah, state president, presided. There was a beautiful violin processional played by Waldo Sowell, accompanied by Mrs. Robert Cunningham.

Mrs. Beach offered the invocation, after which Miss Ida Mae Irwin, national secretary, from Indianapolis, Ind., introduced the theme of the program, "And If I Be Lifted Up." She then introduced Mr. Homer Gamboe, a missionary in India since 1921, who took the double subject: "Christ Lifted Up—in India," and "Christ Lifting Up in India." He pictured how the depression and cuts were met by native Christians who were at work in India, whose pay is, at best, very meager, and yet who accepted their "cuts" and continued faithfully to give the Gospel to their people. Especially is Christ's power working among the lower castes, or "untouchables," and many of these are becoming Christians and being used greatly in God's kingdom.

Miss Ida Mae Irwin spoke on, "To Lift Up the Christ—Our Privilege." She said that a sacrificial life is the source of a joyful life—which, she said, accounted for missionaries always being such happy people. She said Jesus' great obsession was to know and to do the will of God. His disciples caught this obsession, as have the missionaries. Every great leader throughout the world has this obsession, and so God can, and does, use him. And like Jesus, the power is obtained through prayer. It is our privilege and our duty to lift up the Christ in each of our communities, Miss Irwin said.

As the offering was made, Mrs. E. B. Quick made the earnest prayer of consecration.

Mrs. Beach presided at the afternoon session. Mrs. D. C. Spickard of the local society extended a warm and happy greeting to the women in convention, and Mrs. D. Y. Tillman responded also in a happy vein.

Miss Martha Gibson, of Indianapolis, Ind., who is in charge of the literature exhibit, presented the merits of many of their books and other literature. Mrs. Madge Smith, also of Indianapolis, presented the claims of World Call, of which she is circulation manager.

Mrs. Hoke Dickinson, of Valdosta, spoke of missionary and religious education and the wealth of material ready for those who would undertake the task. Brother Charles B. Holder, of Griffin, spoke on a similar theme, "Adult Education in the Church, and Its Importance." He said it is the responsibility of the church to develop to the utmost, not only the children of the congregation, but also the adults.

Mrs. Salter, of Savannah, told of the three-day retreat enjoyed by the women's state board at Griffin in August. Mrs. Anthony made a fine report of the finances of the organization.

Mrs. E. B. Quick, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the report of that committee, and the following officers were re-elected: Mrs. F. A. Beach, of Savannah, president; Mrs. Raymond O'Kelley, of Atlanta, vice president; Mrs. L. O. Turner, of Atlanta, secretary; Mrs. M. E. Anthony, of Atlanta, treasurer.

Mrs. C. R. Stauffer led in a beautiful devotional service, reading a lesson from Paul's letter to Timothy, and emphasizing "I Know Him." By special request, Rev. George O. Taylor, of Savannah, sang "His Eye Is on the Sparrow."

Dr. Stephen J. Corey, president of the United Christian Missionary Society, with headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind., gave a most inspiring message on "How We Work Together Abroad." He told of the fine co-operations with many other workers in many of the fields of the world. Mr. Gamboe, of India, gave another great message concerning the awakening people of his great field. The problem is to teach these people of the Christ, and prepare them for full Christian living.

Silver Tea Planned At Wesley House.

A silver tea will be a feature of the open house reception, Friday from 2 to 5 o'clock at Wesley house, 342 Richardson street, S. W.

Misses Mary Lou Bond and Cleo Barber, hostesses at Wesley, will be assisted in entertaining by members of the executive board and committee chairmen as follows: Mesdames J. A. Guinn, president; Clarence Bell, vice president; S. L. Meiere, secretary; John A. Manget, treasurer; Grady Poole, H. C. Montgomery, George H. Butler, H. W. Dent, Edgar N. Good, committee chairmen.

Wesley house is a North Georgia conference institution and all Methodists and their friends throughout the conference are invited. A special invitation is extended to the conference ministers, their wives and delegates. The proceeds will go toward the building fund for a large new recreation hall.

Thanksgiving Offering.

Thanksgiving Sunday among the Disciples of Christ (Christian) is known as Religious Education Day. An offering is taken to provide for the church means whereby it can train a leadership, secure materials, organize groups to meet issues and problems of life facing the church.

BOOKS and Their AUTHORS

Different.

ABSALOM, ABSALOM, by William Faulkner. Random House, New York. 384 pp. $2.50.

Out-Steining Gertrude, Faulkner instead of repetition, crochets his words and phrases in doubles and triplets; seldom does he condescend to a simple chain. Likewise the story is complicated in that he turns his dials back and forth, as a child at a radio. A bit of this and that, but with his usual theme of incest and miscegnation. Not a Christmas book for the young daughter. Perhaps he summarizes the whole thing in the following italicized quotation, occurring on Page 9:

"It seems that this demon—his name was Stephen—(Colonel Sutpen)—Colonel Sutpen. Who came out of nowhere and without warning upon the land with a band of strange niggers and built a plantation—(Tore violently a plantation, Miss Rosa Coldfield says)—tore violently. And married her sister Ellen and begot a son and daughter which—(Without gentleness begot, Miss Rosa Coldfield says)—without gentleness. Which should have been the jewels of his pride and the shield and comfort of his old age, only—(Only they destroyed him or something or he destroyed them or something. And died)—and died. Without regret, Miss Rosa Coldfield says—(Save by her) Yes, save by her. (And by Quentin Compson) Yes. And by Quentin Compson."

And yet, in spite of its shortcomings, and irritating intentional effort to be "different," there is a fascination about the book, once you quit swimming against the eddies, and fighting for a straightaway. There isn't any. But there is a deep insight into the character of a man whose conscience constantly whips him into line, and whom no one understands. There is pity for his errors, and yet sympathy for the hate he engenders. Some of the action took place in the forties, but most of it happens just before, and during the Civil War, in Mississippi and Louisiana. Hate runs through it as a purple thread; and revenge; and horror, and yet there is loyalty, and pride and courage; all very real. Read it only when you are in a thoughtful mood, and have plenty of time—and your temper under control. Not many southerners will agree with his conclusion. Perhaps that, too, is striving to be different."

MARY LAWTON.

For Lovers of Nature.

SEEDS, THEIR PLACE IN LIFE AND LEGEND, by Vernon Quinn. pp. 188. New York. Frederich A. Stokes Co., $2.

"Seeds," by Vernon Quinn, is a most unusual and interesting book. It will prove fascinating to all people who enjoy attractively published and illustrated books, those who study gardening and horticulture and those who like any subject thoroughly treated.

Here is a book that attempts (and seems to succeed) in publishing all we know regarding the history, the folklore and the facts about seed. The author says: "Innumerable books have been written on flowers, on plants and trees in general, but strangely, no one has ever considered seeds worthy of much notice. Yet seeds are amazingly interesting. The book is for those who find beauty and interest in flowers, whether they know much about them or not, that they may become conscious also of the beauty, the diversity and the extraordinary interest of fruits and seeds."

And the pulbishers are entirely justified in their comment: "To lovers of nature, and to those of us who find entertainment and delight in following the by-paths of lore and legend, here is a source of unending pleasure. We are led into realms where nature takes on the guise of fantasy. . . . Into the rich tapestry of folklore, of strange superstitions and beliefs, is woven a fund of authentic facts and curious information. The quaintly medieval atmosphere that permeates the text has admirably been caught by the artist in her interpretative drawings."

Accompanied by a good index and profusely illustrated with pen sketches by Marie Lawson, it is an excellent reference book and a fascinating study.

LOUISA GOSNELL.

Problems Considered.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF ECONOMIC LIFE, by David Kinley. Gregg Publishing Co., New York.

Today, probably the subject most frequently discussed is that of economics. The subject is approached from a multitude of angles and each protagonist claims that his method is the "only" one.

In a series of concise lectures David Kinley covers the various problems that are now confronting us in the realm of economy. He reviews the multitude of theories and reforms suggested, and very sanely discusses the validity of each proposal.

The list of subjects included in this series of lectures—for that is practically the author's method of presentation—is numerous and the treatment very sketchy; not so much so, however, that he fails to handle the material thoroughly and carefully evaluate all that is covered.

At a time when so much depends upon a proper understanding of the science of economics it is hardly forgivable for anyone not to acquaint himself—even, if, it be just superficially—with the subject. In the book reviewed, the reader will learn a great deal about basic economic problems and receive a good start in understanding so essential a subject.

Sanguinary Vendetta.

ARIZONA'S DARK AND BLOODY GROUND. By Earle R. Forrest. The Claxton Printers, Ltd., Caldwell, Idaho. $3. 370 pp.

For several decades Americans have heard, and read, of the bloody feud fought in the late 1880's between cattlemen and sheep raisers.

Now the author of "Missions and Pueblos of the Old Southwest" has given us the first authentic account of these sanguinary days when Central Arizona was too hot for Texas gunmen and was torn by tribal wars of the Grahams (cattle) and the Tewskburys (sheep) in a delightfully readable history, "Arizona's Dark and Bloody Ground," which he has dedicated to "old comrades of the Arizona cattle range."

Over the rim of Mogollons under protection of Tewskbury guns were driven sheep that would destroy the rich grounds of Pleasant valley for the grazing of cattle. Hot blooded Grahams were determined to keep the country free for beef raising. Then followed sanguinary days such as the west has never since, or before, witnessed. The author has patched together the story of the clan war and, with footnotes to explain every statement, has given a truly authentic and interesting account of one of the old west's bloodiest vendettas.

LEE ROGERS.

Saga of Johnson.

JOURNAL OF A TOUR TO THE HEBRIDES. By James Boswell. New York; The Viking Press. 435 pp. $5.

One hundred and sixty-three years ago the most famous of all biographers and the most famous of wits made a tour of Scotland's western islands. For 83 days Boswell and his idol Samuel Johnson roamed the jagged Scottish coast and sailed through stormy seas among the bleak Hebrides islands. They lodged themselves in castles and hovels, gleaning priceless peeps into the private lives of their hosts. Boswell recorded everything with the rare insight which gave him his reputation as a master biographer, and when he went to London in 1785, 12 years after the completion of the tour, his "Journal" was published to the acclaim of literary London. For over a century and a half it has stood as an important supplement to Boswell's more famous "Life of Johnson."

Six years ago a party of house guests discovered an old croquet box in Malahide Castle, the home of Boswell's great-great-grandson, Lord Talbot de Malahide. What a stir ensued when the box was opened and inside lay Boswell's original manuscript of the "Tour to the Hebrides!" Only a few years before Lord Talbot had sold to Colonel Ralph H. Isham what he believed to be the whole of his grandfather's letters and papers. Now here was an even more priceless addition to the saga of Boswell and Johnson, containing over a third of new material which had been deleted from the published version. Colonel Isham acquired the newly-discovered manuscript. With its publication this month there exists the strange paradox of a "first edition" of a classic which has been famous for over a hundred and fifty years.

Judged by popular standards, the book is not likely to receive wide and indiscriminate circulation. It is not intensely absorbing, having no sustained thread of plot. However, to the student of Boswell's and Johnson's period and to the average reader who finds joy in the wit and wisdom of conversation as it flows from a triumphant intelligence like Johnson's, this book will be a delight. Johnson's wit was conceded even by his rivals. As Goldsmith said: "There's no use arguing with Johnson, for if his pistol misses fire, he knocks you down with the butt end of it."

As recorded herein by the faithful Boswell, Johnson's ready repartee rarely missed its mark.

Tarzan the Mighty.

TARZAN'S QUEST, by Edgar Rice Burroughs. Illustrated by J. Allen St. John, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc., Tarzana, Cal. pp. 318, $2.00.

Put together a leeching prince, a moneyed princess, an English valet, a petite French maid, and a hard-boiled, good-looking American aviator—mix them well in an airplane smash-up, and you'd have a screaming comedy if tragedy didn't so quickly step into the picture. However, the gallant Lady Greystoke saves the day.

Not far away is a sinister tribe of bestial men, ruled over by a beautiful, god-like, corrupt king, who has found the secret of longevity. The Kavuru are also in possession of a form of black magic—the ability to lure young girls into their power by a droning, compelling chant that is felt, rather than heard, by the victim.

And, meanwhile, Tarzan swings through his jungle trees, with little, irresponsible Nkima—the unconscious hero of this fascinating tale of lust and love, hypnotism and adventure—chatting gleefully on his shoulder, and the faithful Waziri trot untiringly behind him.

You'll enjoy following the unwinding of this plot from its start in a fashionable English restaurant to its breath-taking climax in a burning African temple.

If you are already one of the million Tarzan fans, you'll find "Tarzan's Quest" as good as any and better than most of its predecessors. And if you've heretofore scorned books of the almost incredible exploits of the mighty jungle lord, try them sometimes. You'd be surprised how delightfully refreshing they are, after a series of novels that simply mirror the familiar life around us.

University History.

LOUISIANA STATE UNIVERSITY, 1860-1896. By Walter L. Fleming. Louisiana State University Press. 499 pp. $3.00.

Historians and students require no introduction to the writer of this book. Dr. Fleming's past works, and more especially his "Documentary History of Reconstruction," have been acclaimed by scholars universally.

The author, in furnishing a background of the history of L. S. U., has drawn on the early history of the south, rich in legend and colorful in tradition.

The first few chapters are devoted to the various schools that were established in the state prior to the founding of the university system.

After the inauguration of Louisiana State University in 1860 under the direction of William Tecumseh Sherman, the school had hardly opened its doors before the state seceded from the Union. The entire student body and faculty, with the exception of Sherman, enlisted in the cause of the Confederacy. Sherman, as history has shown, answered the call to the Stars and Stripes against the south.

Dr. Fleming provides the reader with social and political views that were rampant in the south before and during the Civil War. Such intimate glimpses as are given of Sherman, reveal him as a man capable of becoming one of the country's greatest educators.

Very interesting are the accounts given of Braxton Bragg and Beauregard, of William Preston Johnson, son of the illustrious Albert Sydney Johnson; of David Boyd, who served on the faculty under Sherman; of the noted Confederate engineer, who devised the fortifications of Vicksburg, Samuel H. Loskett.

OLIN SNEED.

Indian Life.

THE LAND OF LITTLE RAIN, written and illustrated by Muriel H. Fellows. John C. Winston Co., New York. 121 pp. $2.00.

In her charming book, "The Land of Little Rain," Muriel H. Fellows presents an interesting and instructive picture of a Hopi Indian family living in an Indian village in the southwestern part of the United States.

Written for children about eight years old, this little book depicts, in a pleasant and simple style which can be understood easily by a child of that age, some of the customs and activities of the Hopi Indians. In my opinion, any child would enjoy following the adventures of the little brother and sister, Sah-mee and Moho, learning, unconsciously, how these people lived.

The book is profusely illustrated, containing 47 illustrations, most of which are in bright colors.

H. B. CUMMINGS JR.

Historic Martyr.

JOAN OF ARC, a Self-Portrait. By Willard Trask. Stackpole Sons Press, New York. $2. 188 pp.

This book is most fascinating and dramatic from beginning to end. It is a translation from the French, which has been gathered from various documents and proceedings in court. Much of the book contains Joan of Arc's exact words, in answer to "point" questions.

It is very evident that this so-called martyr was very intelligent, but at the same time, was suffering from a religious insanity. She was obsessed with religious delusions and hallucinations. She heard voices from saints and identified herself with saintly characters, and hence believed that she was a "holy" personage. She believed in various signs and attributed coonsiderable value to them, whereas a normal individual would have paid them no recognition. She denied herself certain pleasures and even necessities. She remained a virgin, and for a time, wore men's clothing. She was very masochistic, fasted, and did not believe, that her denials and sacrifices, in the name of bishops, saints and religion, were to be considered sufferings. She had strong repressed homosexual tendencies.

Her fantasy life and even insanity, began at 13 years of age. She said, when she was 13, that she heard a voice uttered to help her in governing herself. . . . "I had not fasted the day before. I heard it on my right hand, towards the church There was a great light all about. I vowed to keep my virginity. . . .

To many questions she was very reticent and evasive. "Were you commanded to put on men's clothing?" Her answer: "My clothing is a small matter, one of the least, but I did not put on men's clothing by the counsel of any man on earth." "Did you ever offer prayer to the end that your sword should be more fortunate?" "It is a good thing to know that I would want my arms to be fortunate. If I should say that I was not sent: I should damn myself. It is true that I have been sent!" As she was burnt and dying she said: "I beg each priest here to say a mass for me," and screamed, "Jesus, Jesus."

SAMUEL KAHN, M. D.

Philosophical.

IT SHALL BE DONE UNTO YOU: A Technique of Thinking, by Lucius Humphrey. Richard R. Smith, New York. 262 pp. $2.50.

In the jacket blurb of Lucius Humphrey's "It Shall Be Done Unto You" the publishers have quoted the overworked statement that of the making of books there is no apparent end, thereby properly alkalinizing the reader's mind for receptivity to the philosophy to follow with expectations of great things on the part of the author. Each book, continue publishers, should answer a well-defined need and a purpose; and the purpose of Mr. Humphrey's work is enlightnment But by the time the reader has reached midway the book in all probability he has amended the quotation to read "reprinting" and has reached the conclusion that, far from being enlightening, "It Shall Be Done Unto You" is frightfully muddling.

Originally, no doubt, the purpose of the book was to present a new truth, or at least to redefine an old one. But the result, by which, unfortunately, the book is judged, is an ill-defined stereotype of a hundred other philosophies, combining some of the best and many of the worst features of each.

It is this writer's opinion that Philosopher Humphrey has only half completed a work which might have been among the better works of modern philosophy, had he not treated it so superficially. In outlining his "technique" of thinking confused arrangement of material has detracted greatly from its intrinsic value, nullifying altogether the positive effects of other clearer discussions.

Adventure.

GYPSY FIDDLER, by "Petulengro," Funk & Wagnalls Co., New York. 278 pp. $2.50.

"Petulengro" is a descendant of George Barrow's famous gypsy of the same name. He lives true to the style of the gypsy, being a fiddler, a horse doctor and a good fighter. According to the custom of his people he has the desire to be always on the move, and following him through most of the known world makes a good story of travel as well as a story of adventure.

His adventures take him from place to place and he is found playing for the king of England, visiting the gold fields of Africa, the jungles of the Amazon, the Australian bush country, in and out of jail, has narrow escapes in many lands, a fiddler at the fairs and show places of both America and England. Every where a good musician, and an able fighter.

This story fascinates the reader in its ability to show how this gypsy even though he was well into young manhood before he could read and write, works his way up the ladder of success and finds for himself a place in the famous orchestras of the world.

Today "Petulengro" conducts his own orchestra in London.

Good Western.

SMOKE TREE RANGE, by Arthur Henry Gooden, Kinsey & Co., New York. 280 pp. $2.

Lee Cary met Nan Page when he saved her from a desert sandstorm, and from that minute this tall rancher on the Palomino horse was her guardian. His next service was to prevent his own ranch foreman from burning her buildings and forcing her from the property that was rightfully hers. Behind it all was the age-old desert cry for water. Nan's place had it, as did Ma Kelly's little boarding house in the near-by town. To protect both of his friends Lee found himself matched against El Capitan, the mysterious Mexican or American who directed the rustling activities along the border.

How El Capitan's bandits capture Nan and her 12-year-old brother, their escape, and the flight with Lee coming in for a bit of shooting at the end make a delightful climax to a good western story.

GEORGE GOODWIN.

Action in the West.

TEXAS MEN, by Paul Evan Lehman. Lee Furman, Inc. New York. $2.00.

Humming with action, punctuated with the thud of hoofs and the roar of guns, this tale of the west shows why Mr. Lehman's writings have been in demand and have been featured in a score of magazines. The author literally was flung into writing when he was injured by being thrown from a horse he was breaking. The freshness and vividness of his western stories has an appeal and the fast action non the less is natural and does not strain our belief. The figures in this novel are human and credible and there is no smearing on of local color. Mr. Lehman has roped and thrown his steer in the literary rodeo.

Picture of a Jurist.

BRANDEIS, by Alfred Lief. Telegraph Press, Harrisburg, Pa. 508 pp. $3.

In a very complete and well-written work—"Brandeis, The Personal History of An American Ideal"—Alfred Lief, author of "The Dissenting Opinions of Mr. Justice Holmes," "Social and Economic Views of Mr. Justice Brandeis," and other brilliant books, have given American readers an insight into the life and ideals of the senior member of the supreme court of the United States, a man who has achieved fame with his liberal and human interpretations of the constitution among other things.

Lief portrays Brandeis as a man who decides important legal questions of the day with a conviction that the constitution is a living character to be used in meeting the needs of the modern nation.

Brandeis is pictured as a man set on fighting for the underdog and a man who would not take a case unless he was convinced he was supporting the side that would benefit the largest number of people. Thus convinced, he would often take the case free of charge. The author goes deeply into the liberal-minded judge's philosophy of life and explains the judge's reasons for his importnt moves.

President Wilson appointed Brandeis to the supreme court in the face of a multitude of protesting lawyers. Lief says this: "Wilson said he knew what he was doing when he named Brandeis; and knew by associating with him his extraordinary ability, clear-sighted counsel; grasp of economics moral stimulation: 'He is the best friend to all just men and a lover of the right; and he knows more than how to talk about the right—he knows how to set it forward in the face of its enemies'."

Vital Issues.

THE COMMERCE POWER VERSUS STATES' RIGHTS, bq Edward S. Corwin. Princeton University Press, Princeton, N. J. 276 pp. $2.50.

So much is being said today about the respective powers of congress and the states regarding interstate commerce, that an authoritative book is not only welcome, but necessary.

Everyone has his own interpretation for better or for worse, and often just because he is an unconscious mouthpiece for some political propagandist. But in this book a scholar traces every issue to its origin--every agreement to its inception, and every supreme court decision to its constitutionality.

Such a treatment of the subject cannot fail to uncover fundamental, and little known facts that are indispensable for a proper knowledge of both sides of the question. Every time that the supreme court decides on the interstate commerce power, the author quotes the decision handed down and in that manner marshals his arguments in an irrefutable manner. The opinions of contemporary jurists are also quoted and after the issues are stripped of their legal technicalities one gets an insight into the practical considerations that were responsible for the decisions.

These issues are vital. They concern everyone either directly or indirectly and the opportunity afforded of reading a fine analysis of the problems and considerations involved in the question of states' rights, should not be overlooked.

New Deal Book.

ROOSEVELT REVEALED, by James C. Young. Farrar & Rinehart, Inc., New York. 279 pp. $2.50.

Beginning with the arrival of President and Mrs. Roosevelt in Washington March 2, 1933, in an hour of national suspense, and the advent of the New Deal, the author of this book gives us a graphic description of what has taken place in national affairs under the present Democratic administration.

In chapter 16, entitled "Is It the Hand of God?" the author says that "the death or disablement of four living men would gravely affect mankind—Stalin, Hitler, Mussolini or Roosevelt. Anyone may decide for himself the degree of national and international danger involved in the destiny of each. The four men embody four systems of government resembling one another in their purposes though different in their application. Stalin, the Bolshevist; Hitler, the Nazi; Mussolini, the Fascist and Roosevelt of the New Deal, pursue the closely related objective of state-controlled national unity. Should any of them be incapcitated their institutions, largely personal, could not escape the fate of their masters." Then he asserts that "since the New Deal is the youngest of the four, less well developed and firmly fixed, the welfare of the President has profound significance."

Modern Cinderella.

GORGEOUS. By Laura Lou Brookman. John H. Hopkins & Son, Inc New York. $2. 256 pp.

Reading this story brings to mind the story of Cinderella, and the way she changed from rags to riches. Toby Ryan, working in a department store, discovers she has both the ability and the good looks necessary to become a professional photograph girl, or model. This discovery changes many things for Toby—she has a better place to work, pretty clothes and a nicer place to live, in fact the little shop girl changes rapidly to the girl known to her friends by the name Gorgeous.

The plot of the story is built around the love affairs of Gorgeous. This beautiful girl, 18 years old, finds life wonderful and thrilling as she rides the crest of good fortune.

Gorgeous is the right name for Toby, and the story is as beautiful as love and youth can make it.

JESSE R. PETTY.

Overrated.

THE LIFE AND STRUGGLES OF AN IRISH BOY IN AMERICA. By David S. Lawlor. Carroll Publishing Co., Newton, Mass. 274 pp. $2.00.

This is an interesting, but overrated, autobiography of an Irishman who came to America as a youth, and worked his way up, through struggles and hardships, from a cotton mill employe to a successful businessman and journalist, but in his preface the author explains that "most every man of 70 who has moved around much could tell a better story if he wished to do so, because it is life."

A devout Catholic, an untiring worker in the social, political, journalistic and religious fields, Mr. Lawlor has had many interesting experiences; made many distinguished friends and has given some informative and charming talks.

The account of his life will, no doubt, be of great interest to those who know him, but his autobiography lacks what it takes to give it a universal appeal.

Miss Ellen Rice Becomes Bride Of Mr. Kennedy in Dublin

DUBLIN, Nov. 21.—Unusual brilliance marked the wedding at which Miss Ellen McLemore Rice, of Scott, became the bride of Raymond J. Kennedy Jr., of Millen, at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the home on Bellvue avenue of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar T. Barnes. Dr. C. D. Graves, pastor of the First Baptist church, performed the ceremony.

During the assembling of the guests and for the candlelighting by Miss Irene Claxton and Robert Morris, of Statehboro, cousin of the groom, Miss Elizabeth Langston, pianist, rendered musical selections and Noble Marshall sang solos.

The bridesmaids were Misses Iris Claxton and Lillian Brannen, of Rome, who wore blue velvet and carried cascade bouquets of bronze talisman roses and yellow Joanna Hill roses. The little flower girl, Jane Rice, of Vidalia, niece of the bride, wore pink pointed d'esprit over pink silk and carried a colonial nosegay of pastel flowers, roses, tuberoses and miniature chrysanthemums.

The bride, radiantly lovely in her wedding gown of white lace, entered alone, and met the groom and his best man, James F. Coleman, of Atlanta, at the altar. The gown was posed over white satin cut on empire lines. Her tulle veil was fastened to her hair with a lace coronet, and she carried a bouquet of white gardenias fringed with valley lilies and tied with white satin ribbon. A star-shaped opal and pearl pin, a gift from the bride's father, the late Samuel Percy Rice, to the bride's mother, the late Claudia McLemore Rice, at their wedding, was worn by the bride, and she carried an exquisite linen and lace handkerchief, which her aunt, Mrs. Barnes, carried at her wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes entertained with a reception after the ceremony for the wedding party and guests. They were assisted in receiving by the bride and groom and Dr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Kennedy Sr., of Statesboro; Mrs. Warner Callan, sister of the bride, and Mr. Callan, of Scott; W. C. Rice, of Vidalia, and Percy Rice, of Scott, brothers of the bride. Miss Katherine Orr poured coffee from a silver service, and assisting in receiving were Mr. and Mrs. Thad Morris, of Statesboro, uncle and aunt of the groom; Mrs. Ira T. McLemore, of Graymont-Summitt; Mrs. P. H. McLemore, Mrs. C. W. Kicklighter, of Glennville; Mrs. G. H. Williams, of Dublin; Miss Earle Wood, of Millen; Mrs. R. Crittenden Bell, of Athens, relatives of the bride; Mrs. Jerome Tillman, of Atlanta, and Miss Martha Alsup, of Dublin. The bride's book was kept by Miss Mary Mathews, of Statesboro.

The bride changed her wedding gown for a traveling dress of gray crepe, the draped neckline edged with narrow bands of coronation blue and dubonnett, and the gray crepe sash had tassels of the blue and dubonnet. She donned a squirrel coat, and her hat was of gray felt, with blending shades of grosgrain ribbon forming three balls at the side, and she wore gardenias on her shoulder.

MRS. RAYMOND J. KENNEDY.

The bride is the youngest of the two lovely daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Rice and is a representative of the leading families in this section, which have for generations been identified with cultural, civic and social affairs. She was graduated from Shorter College in Rome. Mr. Kennedy is the only son of Dr. and Mrs. Kennedy, numbered among the state's most aristocratic families. He was educated at Georgia Tech and belongs to the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. After a wedding trip Mr. Kennedy and his bride will reside in Millen, where he is a civil engineer for the Works Progress Administration.

Lanham-Patten Wedding Plans

Announcement is made today by Miss Marion Lanham and Paul Payne Patten of their wedding plans. The marriage will be solemnized at 5:30 o'clock Thanksgiving afternoon at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marion Lanham, on Wesley avenue.

Rev. E. T. Wilson, pastor of the Peachtree Road Presbyterian church, will read the ceremony. Musical program will be furnished by Mrs. J. S. Hughes, pianist, and J. G. Bentley, vocalist.

The bride-elect ras chosen her sister, Miss Carolyn Lanham, as her maid of honor, and the little flower girl will be Ann Lou Patten, niece of the bridegroom-elect.

Charles Marion Lanham will give his daughter in marriage and the bridegroom-elect's best man will be his brother, Edwin Patten. Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Lanham will entertain at an informal reception.

Prior to her marriage Miss Lanham is being feted at a number of social affairs. Sunday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock Mrs. C. M. Lanham will honor her daughter at an open house. Tuesday evening immediately following the rehearsal Mr. and Mrs. Lanham will entertain the wedding party.

Mrs. Kulman Calls Meeting on Monday.

Mrs. Herman Kulman, chairman of the department of government and education of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, states that the study group sponsored by that department meets on Monday at 10 o'clock at league headquarters.

Mrs. A. E. Sanderson, who talked on co-education at the last meeting, will conduct a round-table discussion on that subject. Since members had a complete bibliography there will be some constructive suggestions made with a view to making definite recommendations to the annual meeting of the league in January. Members are urged to attend.

The meeting of the staff of the league has been postponed due to the imminence of the convention of the Georgia League of Women Voters. Information will be issued to let members know when the meeting will be held.

Needlework Guild Aids Many Charities.

The collection and distribution of Needlework Guild garments takes place this year at the Church Activities building of North Avenue Presbyterian church, beginning on November 30 and continuing through the week. The object is to collect and distribute new plain, suitable garments to meet the great need of hospitals, children in public schools, etc., to the 40 social agencies sponsored by the Community Chest.

The Needlework Guilt is nonsectarian in its membership and in its distribution. Creeds, classes and sects work together in the Needlework Guild, which aids no special charity, but ministers to many charities.

Among the sections of the Atlanta branch there is the Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. Memorial section, which was created and formed by Mrs. Edwin M. Helbig. The giving of two or more new garments from infants' size to two years old, or a contribution of money once per year, makes the giver a member of this memorial and does much toward keeping young children warm and comfortable.

Garments collected in Atlanta remain in Atlanta. Crib blankets, undershirts, slips, socks, bootees, caps, diapers, nightwear dresses are only suggestions, with donations of money very acceptable. The money will be spent by a committee for garments for infants. Men, women and children may become members.

Miss Ruth Kimbell Weds Mr. Knudson At Grace Church

A marriage of interest to a wide circle of friends and one marked with beauty and charm was that of Miss Ruth Kimbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Olin Kimbell, of McDonough, and Everett Knudson, which was solemnized on Saturday at high noon at Grace Methodist church. Dr. William A. Shelton performed the ceremony in the presence of only the immediate families and a small group of intimate friends.

The altar was effectively decorated with palms and ferns combined with yellow chrysanthemums and graceful candelabra holding white tapers An appropriate musical program was rendered by J. Gordon Moore, who played the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" for the processional.

The lovely bride was smartly attired in a beige woolen suit trimmed with fox fur. Her bloue was of brown satin, and she wore a becoming brown velour hat, brown accessories and a shoulder bouquet of bronze orchids.

After the ceremony the bride and groom left for a wedding trip and on their return will reside at 56 Peachtree place.

For Miss Dudley.

Miss Maxwell Dudley, secretary to Dr. Theodore Jack, president of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, Va., is spending this week in Atlanta as the guest of members of the local Randolph Macon Alumnae Club.

Informal entertainments are being planned in her honor. On Saturday, Miss Dudley spoke to the alumnae club on "Recent Developments at the College." Pictures of interesting events were also presented by Miss Dudley.

Greene—Thompson.

GRAY, Ga., Nov. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Greene, of Gray, announce the marriage of their daughter, Pearl, to Johnnie Thompson, also of Gray. They were married on November 14 and are residing in Gray.

Garden Division.

Grant Park Garden Division met recently at the home of Mrs. M. A. Brundige, 592 Park avenue, S. E., with H. P. Savin as co-hostess. A small flower show was held. Mrs. J. Y. Wilson won first prize on arrangement of fall foliage and berries.

Mrs. W. H. Lee was made chairman of arrangements of flowers at the garden center.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

Paramount Has 'Wedding Present' With Joan Bennett, Cary Grant

Joan Bennett and Cary Grant whirl their dizzy way through a fast and consistently amusing screen play at the Paramount theater this week, where the film version of Paul Gallico's Saturday Evening Post yarn, "Wedding Present," is now playing.

"Wedding Present" spins the tale of a pair of scatter-brained Chicago reporters who know all the answers except how badly they want to get married. Together they scoop the town and together they wisecrack through a series of exploits including a night of merriment with a visiting archduke, saving a gangster from drowning, and a thrilling airplane rescue of the victims of a Great Lakes ship disaster. Once they almost marry, but Grant halts the plans with a prank and Miss Bennett, really hurt, hides her unhappiness.

A sudden change of luck which makes Grant city editor puts a new angle to the romance. Grant, determined to make good—partly so he can marry—becomes a sober, hard-working and hard-boiled executive. He bawls out Miss Bennett when she plays a prank on him—and romance goes out the window. Miss Bennett, not understanding the change in Grant, leaves for New York.

In the big city, she convinces herself she's in love with a novelist, and her engagement is announced. Grant, hearing of it, suddenly decides there's not much fun in being an executive and to win her back. To his aid comes "Smiles" Benson, the gangster whose life he saved.

Benson's comic attempts to help the campaign are futile. On the eve of the Bennett marriage, Grant and the gangster settle down to a round of gloomy celebration at a bar opposite the novelist's home. After a few drinks, Grant gets an idea—he'll give his former sweetheart a history-making wedding present. He does—and the present is of such a nature that Miss Bennett realizes he's the same old Grant—the man she wants to marry. They ride away, in the final scene, atop an insane asylum ambulance.

"Wedding Present" is all fun and several yards wide. George Bancroft, Conrad Nagel and Gene Lockhart head the excellent supporting cast.

'Here Comes Carter,' To Be Shown At Georgia, Beginning on Tuesday

The tongue is mightier than the bullet in a battle between a radio scandalmonger and gunmen in the new First National picture, "Here Comes Carter!" which is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Georgia theater on Tuesday. The picture is a melodramatic thriller punctuated by rollicking comedy and snappy dialogue. The action is fast, with cumulating suspense that is maintained to its smashing climax.

Ross Alexander appears first as press agent of a movie company but is discharged because he refuses to resort to bribery to get an actor whom he despises out of one of his many disgraceful scrapes. Knowing the picture business and its characters thoroughly he gets a job as a radio commentator, dishing up scandal on the stars, especially anything concerning the screen player who caused his dismissal.

This leads him into trouble with gangster friends of the actor who threaten him with speedy extinction if he broadcasts certain items they think best left unsaid. His refusal to "lay off" lands him in a serious predicament. But the police appear and in a dramatic gun battle—which unknowingly is broadcast over the mike—the mobster's band is wiped out.

Alexander has two leading ladies in the film, Glenda Farrell, his wisecracking secretary, and Anne Nagel, a radio singer. Craig Reynolds plays the supercilious and crooked movie star. Rounding out a nicely balanced cast are Hobart Cavanaugh, Norman Willis, George E. Stone, John Sheehan and Charles Foy.

The picture was directed by William Clemens from the screen play by Roy Chanslor. "Through the Courtesy of Love" and "You On My Mind" which are sung by Anne Nagel in the picture, are by M. K. Jerome and Jack Scholl.

Nino Martini, Handsome Radio Star At Grand in 'The Gay Desperado'

Romance, melody and laughter are the order of the day at Loew's Grand theater this week where Nino Martini, the handsome singing star of radio and grand opera, is delighting audiences in "The Gay Desperado." The supporting cast includes Ida Lupino, Leo Carrillo, Stanley Fields, Harold Huber and Mischa Auer.

"The Gay Desperado" is different from the usual film featuring an operatic singer, in it's fast-moving thrill-packed, laugh-loaded story, laid below the Rio Grande.

Martini is seen as a silvery-throated singer in a little Mexican movie house where he proves he can act as well as sing. Martini is kidnaped by a Mexican bandit (Leo Carrillo), who worships the American gangsters and decides to adopt their methods, but is really a sentimental music-loving chap at heart.

He attempts an American-style kidnaping and his victims are the weakling son of a wealthy American family, played by James Blakeley, and his sweetheart, Ida Lupino. Carrillo invites his American idol of the underworld to handle the ransom negotiations and then the fun begins. Martini and Miss Lupino fall in love and after a series of highly original situations, Martini effects the release of the victims by a novel and highly amusing strateagem and the story ends on a joyous note.

Martini's song repertory includes "The World Is Mine Tonight," "Adios Mi Tierra" and three Mexican songs, "Cielita Lindo," "Lamento Gitano" and "Estrellita."

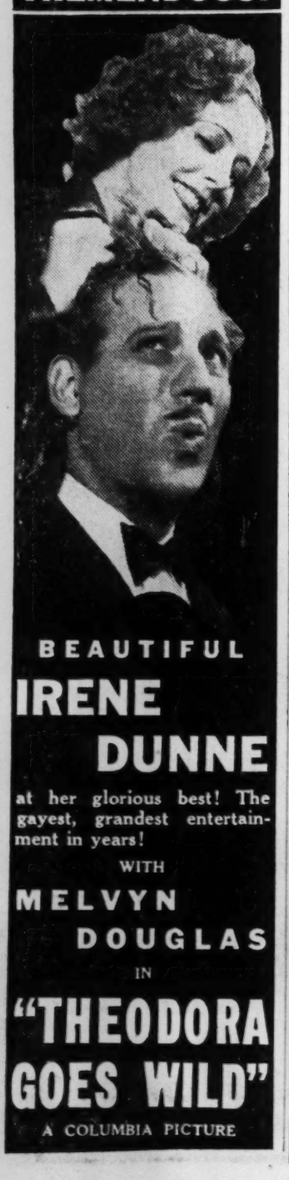

The film is released through United Artists, and will conclude its showing at Loew's Grand on Wednesday instead of the usual Thursday night.

ASTAIRE AND ROGERS APPEARING AT DEKALB

A sensational solo dance in blackface by Astaire, the presentation of the newest ballroom rage, the Swing waltz, some of the most gorgeous settings shown on the screen, a star-spangled supporting cast and a brand-new type of story for Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, plus six catchy melodies by Jerome Kern, are among the attraction elements of the musical romance, "Swing Time," which is booked for three days, tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday, at the DeKalb theater. Supporting cast includes Victor Moore, Helen Broderick, Eric Blore and Betty Furness.

A huge gambling syndicate that stops at nothing, a phantom killer who strikes with an unseen hand, poison foam and a devilish infra-red dart that slays with the sped of light menaces Charlie Chan as the famous sleuth faces the greatest odds of his career in "Charlie Chan at the Race Track," the attraction which will play Thursday, Thanksgiving Day. Warner Oland again plays Earl Deer Biggers' wily detective with Keye Luke, Helen Wood and Alan Dinehart also featured.

Cary Grant and Joan Bennett are starred together at the Paramount in a comedy romance, "Wedding Present."

At the Capitol, starting tomorrow, is the screen feature, "Sea Spoilers," with John Wayne and William Bakewell.

"Theodora Goes Wild" with Irene Dunne and Melvyn Douglas is now well along in its second week at the Rialto.

"Wives Never Know," at the Georgia, again co-stars that comedy team, Mary Boland and Charles Ruggles.

'FOLLIES CAPRICE' BILLED AT GEORGIA

Stage Review To Be Seen at Downtown Theater for Three Days.

With one of the finest arrays of talent ever gathered for a revue and embellished with novelties in scenic background, "Follies Caprice" will be presented for three days at the Georgia theater on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, December 1, 2 and 3.

The new "Follies Caprice" is hailed as the best of a long and successful series of "Follies" and has added interest because of the gigantic cast of meritorious performers.

In the cast are Emily Darrell, pert comedienne; Billy Farrell, the ace of comedians; Rita Del Gardi and Company, probably the world's greatest female illusionist; Foley and Mason, with a style of knock-about comedy that is tops; Margo, sensationally daring dancer; the Strand Sisters; Ruth Foster, who was the understudy of Eleanor Powell; Sandra Miller, sloe-eyed singer of songs; the Glorified Ladies of the Ensemble, performing new and intricate dance routines; Fritzi Lahr, modernistic ballet danseuse, and the orchestra, under the direction of Frankie Whelan.

No "Follies" would be complete without the beautiful Follies girls and this year the producers have outdone themselves in securing the loveliest members that have ever graced any musical revue.

SUNDAY MONDAY Buckhead
FRED ASTAIRE GINGER ROGERS IN "SWING TIME"

Rialto Holds 'Theodora Goes Wild' For Second Week as Crowds Grow

"Theodora Goes Wild," now playing at the Rialto theater, is well on its way to making new screen history for Atlanta. Now in its second week, the capacity crowds at every performance promise to lift the picture to a new high in box office totals for that theater.

With Irene Dunne in the title role and Melvyn Douglas as the hero, this special Columbia production brings all the delight and romantic comedy that distinguished predecessors from the same studio, such as "It Happened One Night," "If You Could Only Cook," etc.

Irene Dunne portrays a character totally different from those associated with her name in the past. Instead of the dramatic, highly emotional roles she has filled, she is, this time, a light, frolicsome girl, a comedy part that is as clever as anything written in months. And she proves far better as comedienne than she ever was as an emotional actress.

Elisabeth Risdon, Thomas Mitchell, Spring Byington and others contribute supporting characterizations that actually make the picture the perfect thing it is. And the direction, by Boleslawski, is like that of Frank Capra at his best.

The story of the girl who has lived always in a small, narrow-minded New England town and who realizes her repressed desires in a sensationally successful "hot" novel—published under a nom de plume—is really ravishingly funny. Add to this a delightful love story and the reactions of the little town when the inevitable exposure comes, and you have a story to tickle all your entertainment faculties and make you want to see it not only once, but several times.

A clever group of short subjects includes a clear explanation of the new social security law.

'SWING TIME FILM' NOW AT BUCKHEAD

Astaire and Rogers Score Again in Latest Filmusical Offering.

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, whose filmusicals have catapulted them to the top of screendom's fame, definitely score a new triumph in "Swing Time," showing at the Buckhead theater today and tomorrow. With six spectacular and solo specialty sequences keyed to as many tuneful hits by Jerome Kern and Dorothy Fields, "Swing Time" presents Astaire as a dance-mad lad who is lucky in love and lucky at cards until he meets Ginger, who leads him a breathless chase from the moment he stumbles upon her to the final brilliant scene. Victor Moore, Helen Broderick, Eric Blore, Betty Furness and Georges Metaxa are cast in supporting roles.

For Tuesday only, "Love Begins at Twenty," stars Patricia Ellis, Hugh Herbert and Warren Hull. An amusing comedy, based on the play by Martin Flavin, the cast also includes Hobart Cavanaugh, Dorothy Vaughan and Robert Gleckler.

"The Private Life of Henry VIII" will be shown at the Buckhead Wednesday only, starring Charles Laughton.

A special feature for Thanksgiving Day is "Earthworm Tractors," with Joe E. Brown, June Travis and Guy Kibbee. Never has Brown been funnier than in this latest of his comedies.

"Devil's Squadron," an exciting drama of the test pilots, will be seen Friday only, starring Richard Dix and Karen Morley.

Charlie Chan, the famous sleuth, faces the greatest odds of his career in "Charlie Chan at the Race Track," coming to the Buckhead Saturday. Another chapter of Flash Gordon and an animated cartoon complete the day's program.

PONCEY FEATURE IS 'CHINA CLIPPER'

Pat O'Brien and Beverly Roberts Co-Starred in Air Drama.

Today and tomorrow the Ponce de Leon theater presents "China Clipper," starring Pat O'Brien and Beverly Roberts. O'Brien is an enthusiast war ace who is obsessed with the inspiration to establish a transoceanic air service from the United States to South American countries, then to China.

On Tuesday "The Return of Peter Grimm" stars Lionel Barrymore and Helen Mack. Barrymore has the role of a tyrannical but lovable old man who returns from the spirit land to correct his mistakes in life.

Wednesday brings "Here Comes Trouble," starring Paul Kelly and Arline Judge. Kelly has the role of a third engineer on a Havana liner and Arline Judge is a manicurist.

For Thursday and Friday "Spendthrift" is offered, starring Henry Fonda and Mary Brien. The story concerns a millionaire without a dime in his pocket.

On Saturday "Yellow Dust" stars Richard Dix and Leila Hyams.

'Sea Spoilers' on Capitol Screen; 'Paradise Scandals' on the Stage

The heroic adventures of the United States coast guard is the theme of the new motion picture, "The Sea Spoilers," which arrives at the Capitol theater for a week's engagement starting today. Stars of the production are John Wayne, Nan Grey, Fuzzy Knight and William Bakewell.

In addition to this feature and several short subjects, the Capitol has included on the program a special presentation entitled, "We, The People, and Social Security." This one-reel subject was produced by the government and should throw much light on the social security law.

Capitol's new stage show, also starting today, is "Paradise Scandals," a vaudeville revue with a cast of 25 variety stars including many big-name acts. Enrico Leide will conduct the orchestra of 15 musicians.

Outstanding vaudeville acts with "Paradise Scandals" include The Four Anzacs, fun on wheels; Olegario, the yo-yo artist; Jeanette Trio, dance varieties; Betty Steen, comedienne; Grace Neal, the southern song bird; Enloe Sisters, tap interpretations; Amos and Greiner, pianologue duo; Danny Cook, master of rhythm; Paige and Jewett, comedy on the unicycles, and the Dancing Rockets, a line of eight beautiful girls.

Alaska, seal poaching, the coast guard. These are the principal elements that comprise the story surrounding "The Sea Spoilers". The breaking up of a relentless ring of seal poachers, on the world-famous seal rookeries of Pribiloff Islands, is the central theme of the story.

While John Wayne, as commander of a coast guard cutter, is chasing the poachers, his sweetheart, played by Nan Grey, is kidnaped and held hostage by the gang.

The coast guard commander faces tests of courage and wins promotion through his thrilling exploits. The final struggle to capture the stronghold of the poachers is set to the exciting tempo of a pitched battle.

Starting next Sunday, the Capitol will offer "36 Hours to Kill," starring a special cast headed by Brian Donlevy, Gloria Stuart, Stepin Fetchit, Isabel Jewell and Douglas Fowley.

'The Big Broadcast of 1937' at Fox Boasts Tremendous List of Stars

Lavishly produced, tuneful, sometimes madcap, always gay and boasting a cast which includes the top names of radio and screen, Paramount's annual tribute to the air waves, "The Big Broadcast of 1937," which opens today at the Fox theater for a week's engagement, is easily the outstanding production for this type of entertainment that has yet been filmed.

With Jack Benny in the stellar role, "The Big Broadcast of 1937" includes in its cast George Burns, Gracie Allen, Martha Raye, Benny Goodman and his orchestra, Shirley Ross, Ray Milland, Frank Forest, Benny Fields, Leopold Stokowski and his symphony orchestra, and a host of others, all of whom blend perfectly into a delightful melange of music, beauty and wit.

The story centers around Jack Benny, a radio station manager and his attempts to keep everybody happy. Forest, a popular orchestra leader, is unhappy because Shirley Ross, an unknown announcer in an obscure station, is ribbing him. He demands that Benny do something about it. Benny and Milland, Forest's press agent, lure her to New York on the promise of a big job. When she arrives Milland is assigned to keep her amused but off the air. They fall in love.

Shirley discovers the trick and is furious. Gracie Allen, sponsor of a program, puts her on her program to team with Forest. The team is an instant success. A big program is engineered in which Forest proposes to Miss Ross and is accepted. Then all America is steamed up for a radio wedding in which the two are to be united. When the big moment comes, however, Shirley refuses to go through with it and flees. A frantic search is begun for her. Gracie, left alone in the studio, puts on a program of her own ingenious contrivance which is one of the high spots in this hilarious comedy.

Miss Ross is found after a wild search, returned to the studio and hurried into a bridal costume. With all America listening in, she marches down the aisle and faces the groom who, it turns out, is Milland, who has also been forced into proper clothing for the big event. They are married.

"The Big Broadcast of 1937" is Miss Ross' first major screen assignment. She is the possessor of an unusually clear sweet voice, is an exquisite dancer and has great personal charm and beauty. It is easy to predict big things for her in the near future.

CHINESE WAR LORDS ON TENTH ST. SCREEN

"The General Died at Dawn," at the Tenth Street theater today and tomorrow, is a thrill-packed story of a lone American and a beautiful girl involved with a band of rebel Chinese warlords. The players are Gary Cooper and Madeleine Carroll.

Tuesday Nino Martini, Metropolitan opera star, sings his way through the feature role of "Here's to Romance," a colorful story of romance and song. Others in the cast are Anita Louise and Madame Schumann-Heink.

Wednesday Warren William is starred in "The Case of the Velvet Claws," a baffling murder mystery. The girl is Claire Dodd.

Thanksgiving brings "Walking on Air," the comedy romance of a young heiress. The players are Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern.

Friday, Clark Gable and Loretta Young are starred in "Call of the Wild," Jack London's story. Gene Autry also will be seen in "Comin' Round the Mountain," a musical story of the golden west.

New, Modern Style Chorus Girls Are Chosen for White's 'Scandals'

The pretty girl with fluffy hair, innocent looking blue eyes and a tiny rosebud mouth is out of luck today if she wants to be glorified in George White's "Scandals." "The candy box type of beauty isn't wanted," asserts the producer of "Scandals," which comes to the Erlanger theater next Friday and Saturday.

When George White issues a "call" for girls he wants to see how they look in street clothes. The smart looking youngster who can wear a tiny hat tilted over one eye and looks as if she just stepped out of an expensive Fifth Avenue shop when she is, in reality, wearing an outfit that cost $25, is the girl Mr. White wants for his show.

If a girl looks good in street clothes then she is asked to appear in a bathing suit, in order that the good points as well as the defects of her figure may be evacuated.

Illustrative of this point, Producer White selected six of his loveliest creatures as examples. They are Florette DuElk with very blonde hair and blue eyes; vivacious dark-haired Audrey Hayes; hazel-eyed, exquisite Olga Burke; chestnut topped Peggy Bady; Claire McQuillen, whose face is familiar all over the country as the model for a famous cigaret advertisement, and Alma Saunders, who received proposals of marriage from assorted English and French aristocrats when she worked in the international Sporting Club. These are the girls who best typify the new American beauty.

The girls were insistent that today the stage beauty seldom meets an old-fashioned stage door Johnny. As for millionaire play-boys who want to shower a girl with emeralds and star sapphires—"Just introduce one or two of them to us," laughed Olga Burke. "They just don't make them anymore!"

Dancing Star of George White's "Scandals"

Gloria Rich, dancing star of the new edition of George White's "Scandals" which will play three performances at the Erlanger theater next Friday and Saturday.

ROYAL HEAD HUNTERS TOP ODDITY CONGRESS

Prince Ili Ilikium and his spouse, Princess Zambesi, of Belgian Congo royalty, members of the Ituri tribe of head hunters and African pygmies, are the headliners of the European Congress of Freak-Oddities presenting 15 living wonders which continues its engagement this week at 134 Whitehall street, at the corner of Mitchell, sponsored by members of American Legion Post No. 1.

The pygmies stand four feet three inches in stature and are husband and wife. Zambesi is a most interesting exhibit because of the fact she has a caudal appendage four inches long at the base of her spine and is known as one of the African "tail people." They appeared in the "Darkest Africa" show at the Chicago World's Fair and are now seen for the first time on tour.

Other exhibits in the Congress of Oddities include Captain Francois Russell, French strong man; Juan and Martina de la Cruz, Filipino midgets; Rosa Lee, armless wonder; Madam Zola, bearded giantess; Bob Wallace, original "Pop-Eye" impersonator; John Williams, the man with the alligator skin; Senor Grendal, sword swallower; Madam Leona, mental marvel, and many others. The annex attraction is "Life Begins," an unusual exhibit of embryology that appeals strongly to parents and adults.

Continuous performances are staged daily from 11 until 11 o'clock.

New Screen Offering for Thanksgiving

Joan Crawford and Clark Gable, co-starred in "Love on the Run," which opens at Loew's Grand on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day.

RUGGLES, BOLAND AT CENTER TODAY

Comedy Team Appears in Rialto Farce, "Early to Bed."

Today's attraction at the Center theater features Charlie Ruggles as a sleep-walking husband, suspected of being a somnambulistic "tiger man," in his latest farce with Mary Boland, "Early to Bed." The story introduces the screen's funniest pair as an engaged couple who have deferred their marriage for 20 years while Mary dreams of Niagara Falls and Charlie, 26 years a clerk, dreams of future success.

Tomorrow and Tuesday, "Rhythm on the Range" casts Bing Crosby, Bob Burns and Frances Farmer in the leading roles. The story is packed with comedy and includes six hit tunes in its course.

For Wednesday, "Too Many Parents" is the tale of boys who have been shunted off to military school, where they will not bother unfeeling guardians. Francis Farmer and Lester Matthews play the adult leads.

Thursday a special Thanksgiving program. "The Gentleman From Louisiana" brings Eddie Quillian, surprise sensation of "Mutiny on the Bounty." The inside story of racing's greatest jockey, who could frame everything but love. The cast includes Chic Sales and Charlotte Henry.

On Friday and Saturday, the dramatic air thriller, "China Clipper," will be shown with an all-star cast, including Pat O'Brien, Beverly Roberts, Ross Alexander and Humphrey Bogart.

CROSBY, BOB BURNS AT HILAN THEATER

'Rhythm on the Range' Will Be Shown Today and Tomorrow.

Today and tomorrow the Hilan presents Bing Crosby and Frances Farmer in "Rhythm on the Range," a mad tale of a cowhand who puts all the money he wins at a New York rodeo into the purchase of a bull, then rides back to the west in a boxcar with the bull. Bob Burns, the bazooka-playing radio comedian, is also in the cast.

Tuesday, the Hilan offers "Every Saturday Night," a story which describes the trials and tribulations of a typical American family. The cast includes June Lang, Thomas Beck and Jed Prouty.

Wednesday brings "Too Many Parents" with Frances Farmer, Lester Matthews, Henry Travers and Porter Hall in the feature roles.

On Thursday and Friday, "To Mary With Love," costarring Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy, the screen sweethearts of Broadway Bill and Penthouse, will be shown. Ian Hunter, Claire Trevor and Jean Dixon are featured.

On Saturday, Atlanta's own Jane Withers is in "Gentle Julia." The cast also includes Marsha Hunt, Tom Brown and Jackie Searl.

ROGERS ASTAIRE STAR AT CASCADE

'Swing Time' Opens Three-Day Engagement in Popular House Today.

Beginning today those popular film stars, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, will be starred for three days at the Cascade theater, in their latest sensation, "Swing Time." In it a new star, Victor Moore, is introduced has been fired from the night club where she was singing. Other featured are Michael Whalen and the Ritz Brothers.

Neck-and-neck with death half-way round the world, Charlie Chan races a ruthless murderer in his most baffling case, "Charlie Chan at the Race Track," the feature for Friday. The cast includes Warner Oland, Keye Luke, Helen Wood and Alan Dinehart.

"Trapped By Television," with Mary Astor, Lyle Talbot and Nat Pendleton, will be the feature for Saturday.

EMPIRE FEATURE IS 'SWING TIME'

Astaire, Rogers Film To Play Georgia Avenue House Today, Tomorrow

"Swing Time," the new Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers musical will be the attraction at the Empire theater today and tomorrow. The plot concerns itself with the relationships between Astaire as a happy-go-lucky, sporting song and dance man, Betty Furness as his small-time fiancee, Miss Rogers as an instructress in Eric Blore's dancing school. Victor Moore and Helen Broderick furnish plenty comedy.

"The Mine With the Iron Door," with Richard Arlen, will be the feature for Tuesday. Cecilia Parker appears opposite Arlen. Henry B. Walthall and Stanley Fields are also featured.

"They Met in a Taxi," a comedy drama, will be the treat for Wednesday, with Chester Morris and Fay Wray in the supporting roles.

"Sing, Baby, Sing," with Alice Faye, Adolphe Menjou and Gregory Ratoff, will be the treat for Thursday only. Ratoff, a theatrical agent, is aided by his secretary, Patsy Kelly, and his stooge, Ted Healey, in trying to get a new job for Miss Faye, who has been fired from the night club where she was singing. Other featured are Michael Whalen and the Ritz Brothers.

Neck-and-neck with death half-way round the world, Charlie Chan races a ruthless murderer in his most baffling case, "Charlie Chan at the Race Track," the feature for Friday. The cast includes Warner Oland, Keye Luke, Helen Wood and Alan Dinehart.

"Trapped By Television," with Mary Astor, Lyle Talbot and Nat Pendleton, will be the feature for Saturday.

Thanksgiving and Friday "The Texas Ranger" will be presented. Fred MacMurray, Jack Oakie, Lloyd Nolan and Jean Parker form the nucleus of a great cast. It is the story of an organization of men whose work was largely responsible for making a unified, law-abiding state out of the sprawling region of early Texas.

"Hell - Ship Morgan," starring George Bancroft, Ann Sothern and Victor Jory, will be shown Saturday. The story revolves around the plight of three people brought together by a strange quirk of fate aboard the Southern Cross and the hopeless emotional triangle in which they are involved.

and between Moore and Helen Broderick you will see as funny a pair as appear on any screen. Eric Blore and Betty Furness are in the supporting cast. It will be shown today, tomorrow and Tuesday.

On Wednesday Warren William appears in another Clue Club mystery as the smart detective who solves murders the police can't. Claire Dodd, Winifred Shaw and Eddie Acuff also are in "The Case of the Velvet Claws."

The Constitution's Stamp Corner

By Albert C. Leitch

On or about January 1 the federal government will take one of the most far-reaching steps ever sought by stamp collectors when it will ignore a federal law against the reproduction of postage stamp designs and will print illustrations of every stamp design issued since 1847, it is reported by James Waldo Fawcett, stamp editor of the Washington Star.

The illustrations will be contained in the new issue of the government's official list of stamps and will depict every variety ever printed. The decision to do this was made by President Roosevelt, himself an ardent collector, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Postmaster General Farley.

Announcement of the forthcoming change was made by Alvin W. Hall, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. "We are now at work on the plates," Mr. Hall said.

The new booklet will be placed on sale, Mr. Hall said, in January at the Government Printing office. Presumably, it will sell at 10 cents a copy, as formerly, although the cost will be increased greatly by the introduction of the illustrations.

Collectors in Baltimore, where the announcement was made, and in Washington are reported as jubilant over the victory involved in the governmental concession.

Eugene Klein, president of the American Philatelic Society, said:

"This means that soon we shall be able freely to import the great classics of philatelic literature from abroad, hitherto barred because of the illustrations law. It also signifies a vast expansion of philatelic writing in the United States."

The law commonly has been regarded as aimed at counterfeiters of stamps, but its effect has not deterred their operations. The government recognized its futility when it permitted the publication of the George Washington bicentennial commission's report last year with many illustrations showing stamp designs. More recently, it granted permission for the reproduction of the stamps of foreign governments which have ceased to exist and demonetized stamps in general.

Twin observances are the aims behind the artistic designs on the latest set of stamps from Cuba. They commemorate the 100th anniversary of the birth of Major General Maximo Gomez as well as mark the first anniversary of the dedication of a monument in his honor.

General Gomez, who was general in chief of the army of liberation in the war with Spain in the 90's, is one of the historic heroes of the Cuban nation. He died in 1905. His birthday is now a national holiday.

Designs on the eight stamps are mainly allegorical. The exception is the 2-centavo red bearing a reproduction of the Gomez monument. The 2c, together with the following are for regular postage: 1c green, "peace and work," a farmer and his family and their cattle; 4c magenta, "torch," a hand bearing a flaming torch; 5c blue, "Independence," the flag of Cuba at the head of large group of soldiers; 8c olive, "messenger of peace," a dove bearing an olive branch.

Also there are two air mails, the 5c violet described as "lightning" and illustrating a rainbow which appears as an electrical storm is passing; and the 10c orange, "fying wing," a large wing in the sky as symbolic of aviation.

The last item in the series is a special delivery, "triumph of revolution," picturing an allegorical figure of liberty in the sky leading soldiers forward to victory.

General Gomez was born in the Dominican republic in 1836, but emigrated to Cuba in 1865. He first joined the Cuban army of liberation in 1868 and from then on was active in the revolution against Spain.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The market for most of the imperforate exhibition sheets of United States stamps finally has settled down so that prices on wholesale quantities are quoted by some dealers.

The 1934 3c Byrd imperforate sheets of six may be obtained for $35 per 100 sheets, which is almost double their face value. The price on this maniature sheets, however, has not risen as rapidly as quotations on miniature sheets issued later.

The 1934 1-cent Parks gummed sheet of six has shown a higher percentage of increase than any other. It is quoted today at $25 per 100 sheets—more than four times face value. Its compansion issue, the 3-cent Parks gummed sheet, sells at $42 per 100, which is 2 1-2 times face value.

The 1936 Tipex sheet of four sells for $32 per 100, slightly more than 2 1-2 times face value.

The 1933 1-cent and 3-cent Century of Progress imperforates, issued in sheets of 25 stamps, only recently were withdrawn from sale at the Washington Philatelic Agency, and their prices, not yet stabilized, are rising more slowly.

Wholesale lots of used singles of the same stamps in very fine condition—which means undamaged, lightly cancelled and with good margins—are bringing the following prices:

Century of Progress 1c-3c sets, $5 per 100 sets.

3c Byrd, $6 per 100.

Parks 1c-3c sets, $6 per 100 sets.

Tipex, four types, $20 per 100 sets (400 stamps).

Wholesale lots of all these stamps which include heavily cancelled and close-margined stamps may be purchased for somewhat less.

U. D. C. Editor Expresses Sympathy of Entire Division

By MRS. A. BELMONT DENNIS,
Of Covington, Editor Georgia Division U. D. C.

Your editor voices the sentiment of the Georgia division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, in expressing sincere and heartfelt sympathy to the family of Clark Howell Sr., and to the employes of The Atlanta Constitution. We have lost a dear friend, and the state and nation has sustained an irreparable loss, in the passing of Mr. Howell. Though he has passed from our vision he shall live on in the hearts of all who knew him. Every person with whom he came in contact, however slight that contact, felt his greatness, and resolved to do bigger and better things. He shall ever live in the hearts of men, women and children throughout the nation.

As your division editor begins her second year of service, she takes this opportunity of sending love and greetings to each chapter, and a message of appreciation for your splendid cooperation. If this column has, in any measure, been a success during the past year, the credit is due each division officer, chapter president, press chairman, and Mrs. Bessie Shaw Stafford, of The Constitution, for their loyal co-operation. The editor is deeply grateful to each of you, and trusts she will merit this same fine spirit of team work during the new year.

Mrs. Evelyn Tillman Malloy sends from Quitman: "The Quitman Chapter U. D. C. entertained officers and delegates assembled at Thomasville for the state convention at tea at the Country Club in Quitman, honoring Mrs. Charles T. Tillman, second vice president Georgia division. The receiving line was formed of division officers and other distinguished guests. Mesdames C. F. Cater and Sam Harrell received guests and Mrs. Fields Roberts presented them to the receiving line. Mrs. C. E. Glausier, president Quitman chapter, introduced guests to Mrs. Frank A. GAINESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 21.—The marriage of Miss Evelyn Lavonia Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pate Wallace, and Howard Dillard Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emery Hughes, was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the First Methodist church, of Gainesville, in the presence of the family, the Alpha Gamma Delta chapter, social sorority at Brenau College, and a few intimate friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. L. Russell, D. D. The altar was artistically arranged with ferns and baskets of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

Music was rendered by Miss Florence Cox at the organ and Mrs. Emmitt Lilly sang "Sweetest Story Ever Told." The bride wore a becoming model, a dark green wool suit, trimmed in Polar Wolf fur with green and London tan accessories. Her corsage was of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes left for a motor trip to Florida and afterwards they will reside on Cleveland road in Gainesville.

Miss Evans Weds Elmo Parham.

Of interest to their friends in Atlanta and Griffin was the wedding of Miss Ethlyn Evans and Elmo Parham, both of Griffin. The ceremony was performed on Saturday, November 14, at the home of the groom's brother on Glenwood avenue in Atlanta.

Rev. W. H. Moon performed the ceremony in the presence of the families and a few close friends. The house was decorated with growing plants and flowers. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Parham, parents of the groom, entertained at a reception.

The bride was lovely in a navy blue crepe dress with matching accessories. Her corsage was sweetheart roses and valley lilies. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Parham will reside at 550 South Sixth street in Griffin, Ga.

BRIDGE ACCORDING TO CULBERTSON

By ELY CULBERTSON.

PLANNING THE PLAY.

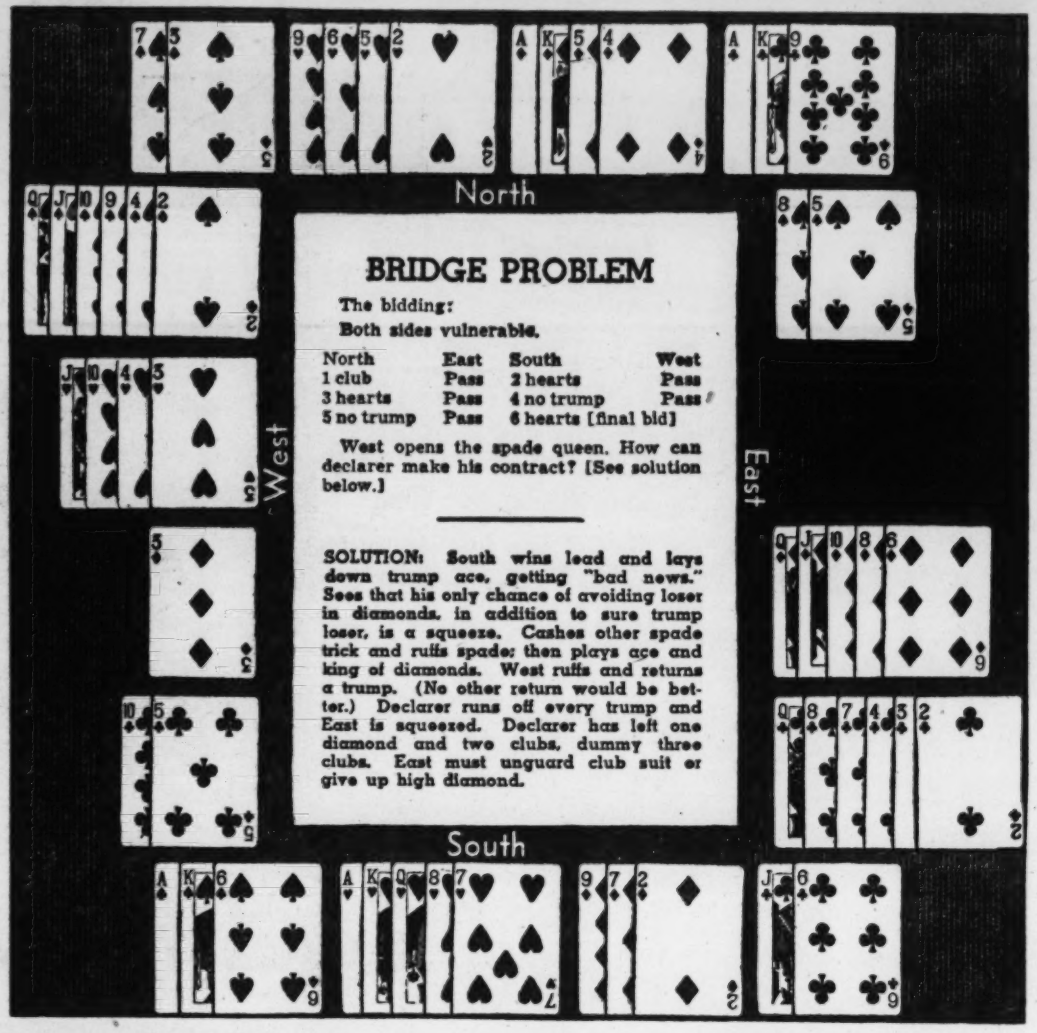

AFTER the opening lead has been made and the dummy is placed on the table—either triumphantly, as though to point out that the holder now can prove his bidding to have been sound, or sheepishly, with the unspoken admission, "Maybe I slipped my trolley a bit"—the first dramatic moment has arrived. The bidding may have been highly competitive and consequently exciting, now the declarer can make at least a preliminary estimate of how ably he and his partner welded together their respective holdings.

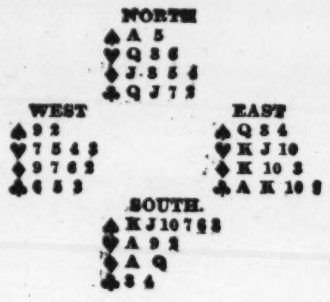

But, more important, right now (before declarer touches a card in dummy) is the time for putting aside self-congratulatory thoughts, or vain regrets, or homicidal yearnings in the direction of partner, as the case may be, and buckling down to the stern duty of formulating a plan of play. Many a "swing" hand is lost because the declarer wastes precious gray matter on the precise phrasing of a brilliant and blistering "crack" at his partner. The defenders have an enormous advantage in this one respect. As yet, neither one can tell how heinously he has been deceived by his helpmate, hence the recriminations are, of necessity, deferred till the business at hand has been concluded.

From the reams that have been written on the subject of opening leads it is reasonable to suppose that the lead on the current hand was selected with some care, to effect a certain purpose. And that being so it seems hardly more than sensible that the declarer should study the lead and draw from it as many and as cogent inferences as he can. The opening leader's partner is certainly striving to do that very thing; why should the declarer be less interested? By fitting in the precise card led with the cards in sight, it may be possible to determine whether it was a singleton, a fourth-highest, a short suit, top of an incomplete or interior sequence, and so on. If it is a king, for instance, which (because the queen is in sight) must have been from an ace-king holding, the declarer immediately can place another missing ace in the other defender's hand, because the holder of the ace-king passed originally and would not have done so with ace-king, ace. I do not exaggerate when I say that, at times, a declarer can base a complete and shrewd plan of play solely on the deductions drawn from the opening lead.

Once the implication of the lead has been at least tentatively interpreted, the next step for declarer is to count his tricks. (In this connection experts almost invariably employ a process that becomes subconscious with habit—they count their winners when playing no trump contracts, and losers at trump contracts. In the vast majority of hands this system will be found the best.) If the contract is, let us say, four spades and there is an apparent danger of losing four tricks, the next step is to run over all the known maneuvers to find one that may save that vital trick. The one selected may be as simple as a finesse; the point is that there should be selection, not a casual saunter along the primrose path. Before one should be satisfied to rely on a finesse, for instance, a careful survey of elimination-and-throw-in possibilities should be made in the attempt to reduce a 50-50 chance to a sure thing. Perhaps it will be found that no finessing or elimination situation is present—"Well, how about a squeeze?" should be declarer's next self-inquiry. Apropos of this, 98 per cent of all the squeeze plays executed by the masters come about through the process of elimination; the master can find no other way to gain his end. (Today's problem hand, shown at the top of this page, is a striking example of this thesis—once the bad trump break was discovered there was only one chance for success.)

Let us turn to an actual hand, witness the downfall of an average declarer, and then follow the exact thought processes of an expert-playing the same cards.

The bidding:
North-South vulnerable.

East	South	West	North
1 no trump	Double	Pass	Pass
2 clubs	*2 spades	Pass	2 no trump
Pass	4 spades	Pass	Pass
Pass

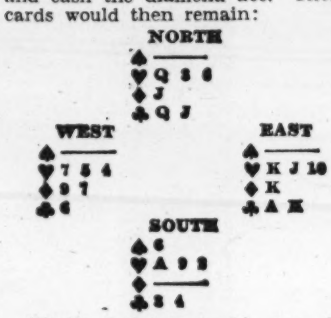

*South did not pass the two club bid for his partner's action because, even if North should double, South would still feel that he must disclose his strong major suit. Had East West been vulnerable it would have been a different story.

West, for some reason known only to himself, decided to open the deuce of diamonds. Dummy played low and East's ten went to the queen. Now declarer counted his probable losers and saw that even if the spade queen could be captured on a finesse there would still be danger of losing two club and two heart tricks. He saw a chance to avoid the loss of one heart trick by setting up a club honor in dummy and, satisfied that this was a splendid idea, promptly led a club up to the queen-jack. East smothered the jack with the ace and, resigned to the palpable fact that his spade queen would be picked up anyway, returned a spade of his own accord. Declarer's ten held this trick and now, persisting with his quite fallacious plan, South led his other club. West, however, cruelly disappointed the declarer by failing to pop up with the missing king; dummy's queen was defiantly, desperately, played anyway, and was gathered in by East's king. Another trump return went to dummy's ace and from that time on declarer found himself with a lost cause. Fret and fume as he might (and did) he still had to lose two heart tricks, and thereby his contract.

Now let us yank the beaten declarer out of his seat (not too gently, either) and see how an expert would handle the same problem.

On winning the opening lead with the diamond his first effort would be to "place" all of the outstanding high honors. And, on this hand, that would be a cinch. East had to hold every single one of them to justify a no trump bid; even more surely he was marked with both the ace and king of clubs, and therefore it would be impossible to establish one of dummy's clubs for discarding purposes.

With that plan neatly chucked into the incinerator the expert would contemplate with satisfaction the great number of cards and suits that East would have to protect, and rightly conclude that he would not be able to stand the gaff of finding discards for the long trumps. He would run off five trumps (finessing against the queen, of course) and cash the diamond ace. These cards would then remain:

(East's holding could now be slightly different, but not enough so to affect the result.)

Relentlessly declarer would lead the last trump, discarding a heart from dummy, and then leer fiendishly at poor East, who now would be "on the ropes." If he let go a heart a club throw-in would confine him to three tricks, a club or diamond discard would establish a corresponding card in dummy and give declarer all but two tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTIONS.

Question: With no trump distribution (4-3-3-3), but with 5-plus honor tricks, which is not quite strong enough for a two no trump bid, should a no trump or suit be bid?

Answer: A suit.

Question: Dealer bid one diamond. My partner doubled. Next hand redoubled. What response should I make with

The Planets—Your Daily Guide

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON

Bernice Denton Pierson, eminent astrologer, has prepared this forecast in brief for a handy reference convenient to Constitution readers. This guide will aid you, for it indicates the most auspicious time to begin any new endeavor, whether it be business, social or domestic.

NOVEMBER 22—SUNDAY: You will be inclined to have some radical or strange notions today that you will want to put into practice at once, but it will be safer for you to be content with affairs as they are, and not to strain at the leash. This is not a favorable day for inspirational ideas, for extreme jollity, or for anything connected with water and liquids. You may feel limited or cramped, and if you allow such feeling to predominate in your nature, it can produce a dissatisfaction in your relationships with others.

NOVEMBER 23—MONDAY: Your energies and ambitions will be strong today and until 8:36 p. m. and you will desire swift progress, or will want to be in a hurry. Therefore, you are likely to rush things too swiftly to their ultimate conclusions. It will be better to move slowly and with infinite caution. See that you follow your budget, for in a financial way, you will "bite off more than you can chew" if you give in to your feelings. This is not an auspicious day for dealing with educators, bankers, for financial transactions, for radical departures from your accustomed path, and for electrical equipment and mental supplies. After 8:36 p. m. the vibrations improve, making this a favorable time for attention to ordinary matters.

NOVEMBER 24—TUESDAY: After 3:56 p. m. is the better part of the day, when you will feel that you are surrounded by affairs that are of a sound nature. Before 3:56 p. m. matters of a private nature, or when you will have to contact the opposite sex, or business deals relating to the opposite sex, will encounter stubbornness. Social affairs and professional contacts will not measure up to your expectations.

NOVEMBER 25—WEDNESDAY: Give your attention to routine matters today, for the day brings forth influences that are unfavorable for changes. New ideas started now may be confused and uncertain. Control feelings to hurry or to answer quickly, for it will be very easy to say the wrong thing at the wrong time. Action, you will want, but you will gain by waiting.

NOVEMBER 26 — THURSDAY: This will be a most favorable day for recreation, company of the opposite sex, entertaining, and anything you enjoy very much. However, before noon, avoid going to extremes in any respect.

NOVEMBER 27—FRIDAY: This will be a most propitious day for having dealings with publishers, managers, judges and intellectual people in general, and also for appealing to the law for justice. Your judgment will generally be excellent, and you will feel and encounter a tolerance of mind which will enable you to be in harmony with those around you. For this reason, you will just naturally take the line of least resistance.

NOVEMBER 28 — SATURDAY Previous to 10:13 a. m. you are apt to meet stubborn resistance in your efforts, making this an inauspicious time for new beginnings. Between 10:13 a. m. and 6:23 p. m. anything of a reasonable character stands a good chance of success, especially mechanical and industrial interests. After 6:23 p. m. you will easily feel sluggish or anxious, and you will find it necessary to exert yourself to maintain poise.

HOW TO USE THESE INDICATIONS TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

Should you receive an important telephone call, giving you the first news you have of a certain thing, look and see if the influences at that particular time are friendly or unfriendly. The outcome of that call will be colored by the influence prevailing then.

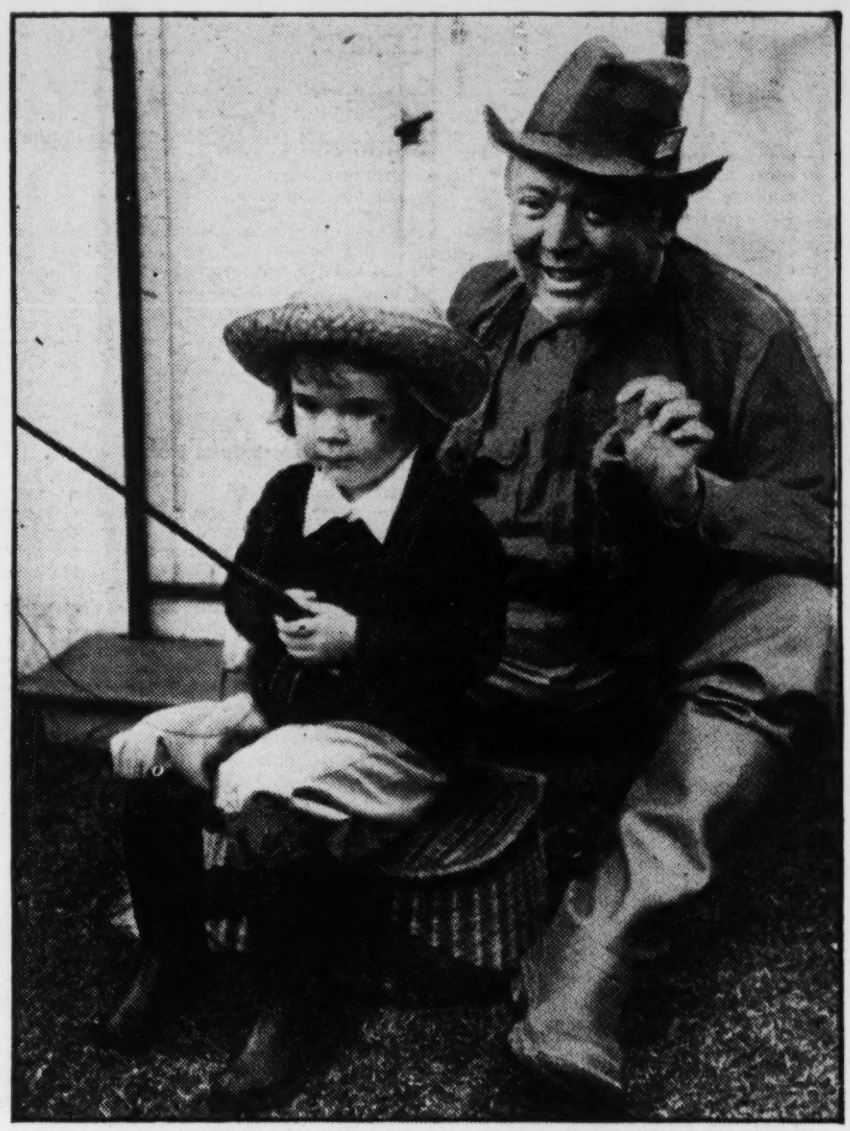

If you wish an astrological chart covering your sign of the Zodiac, Bernice Denton Pierson will be glad to send it to you. State your birth month and date (year unnecessary). Write your name and address plainly. Accompany this with 10 cents in stamps or currency to cover clerical expenses, together with self-addressed, stamped envelope. I'm Going to Start Playing

By Guy Kibbee

It's About Time to Enjoy Life, Decides This Veteran Comedian as He Declines a Contract and Prepares for Long Vacations Ahead

Guy gives a few pointers to his daughter, Shirley Anne, and is undoubtedly telling her about those big ones that got away. Now, with Kibbee deciding to do fewer pictures each year, the whole family will be packing up and leaving in their car—to find the big ones where they're best. Their address will be "Care of Cooney Briggs, somewhere on the Rogue River, Oregon."

I'VE suddenly come to the conclusion that I don't want to get rich. I've found out that I don't want a mansion in the Hollywood hills and a Rolls Royce and a man to button my suspenders and another to keep the flies off my bald spot. I'm tired of working all the time and I'm going to start playing.

As soon as "Mountain Justice" is completed—and it will be by the time this reaches the printer—I'll be a free lance, working when I please, taking only parts that I like and loafing when the spirit moves me. My contract at Warner Bros. will have run out and I won't sign another.

Don't think that I came to this decision without a mental struggle. A contract is a nice thing to have around the house. It gives one a sense of security to know that the salary check is coming in 40 weeks out of the year, rain or shine. And there was a time, not so very long ago, when I would even have traded my best fly rod for a piece of paper with Jack Warner's name on it. That was in 1927 or 1928 when my wife and I found ourselves stranded in Hollywood with a $20 bill, a second-hand car with re-treaded tires, and no work—not even extra work.

IF A producer had offered me a contract then, I would have broken my arm reaching for it. But no one did so we got in the car and headed East, pawning my golf clubs and my overcoat on the way. Even after I was a hit in Arthur Hopkins' "Torch Song," and motion picture jobs became plentiful, contracts still looked attractive.

I've been happy at the Warner Bros. studio. I've had many good parts and a few bad ones. I like the other players and the directors. My dressing room is comfortable and the Green Room food is good. Every once in a while some other studio has borrowed me and I've had a change of scenery. And because of all this, it was a temptation to sign a new contract. But I didn't.

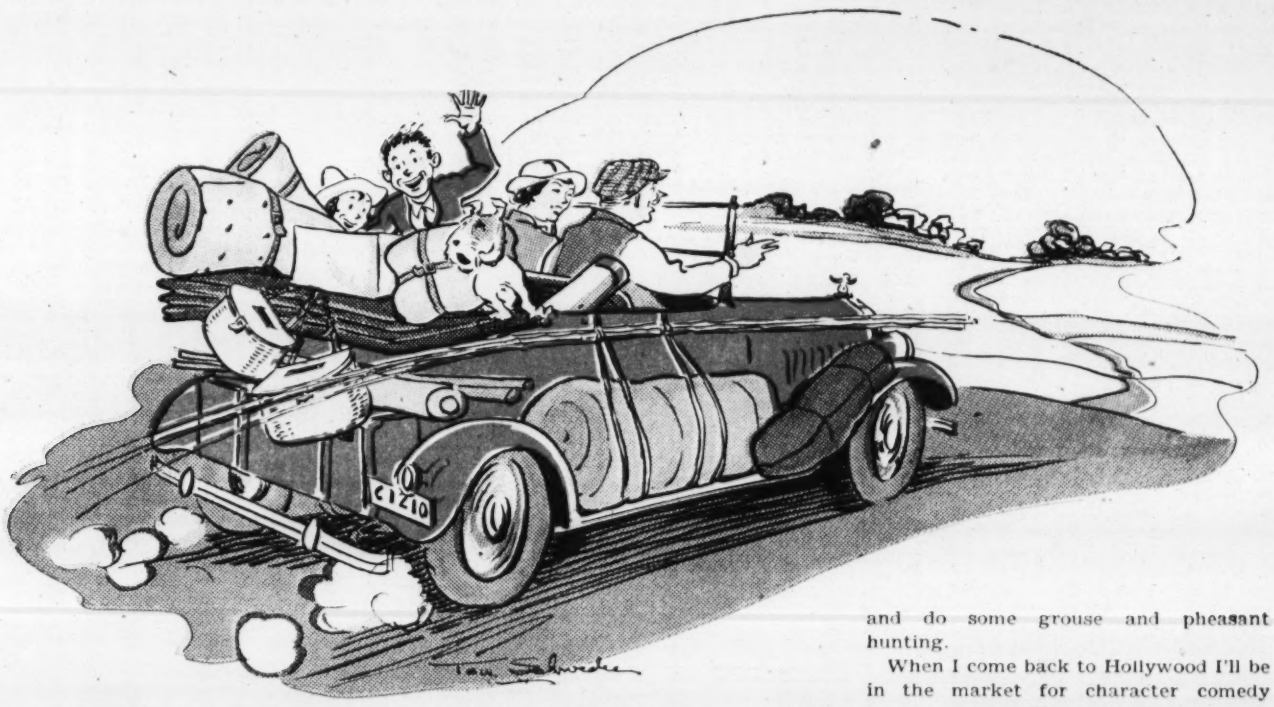

One morning I looked at myself in the mirror. "Kibbee," I told the portly gentleman in the mirror, "you're not as young as you used to be. You have a house with a good roof and no mortgage on it, an annuity or two that will give you a few dollars a month if things don't go right, a fine wife, two swell kids, 10 fly books filled with gray hackles and brown hackles and royal coachmen and black gnats, some beautiful spinners, a score of reels, two creels, a pair of rubber boots, an automobile and a bed roll. You also have a yen for leisure. Now's your chance, Kibbee. Don't sell yourself down the river again. When you see your boss next time be sure your fountain pen has no ink in it and don't borrow his. You need a rest."

THE rotund, though distinguished, gentleman in the mirror looked thoughtful. "A contract gives one such a comfortable feeling," he said. "This free lance business now—maybe you won't do so well. Maybe you won't make so much money."

"That will be fine, Kibbee," I told the handsome gentleman in the mirror. "I don't need so much money. What I need is some time to go fishing when I want to."

That's how it came about. That's why, in a few weeks, my address will be "Care of Cooney Briggs, somewhere on the Rogue River, Ore." Mr. Briggs has some cabins on the river and he has reserved one for me. They aren't much to look at and the plumbing is outdoors, but the river runs right in front of the door and out in the river there are salmon and steelhead and big cutthroats.

This Mr. Briggs is an interesting fellow. He can handle a boat like no one in the world and one has to know how to handle a boat on the Rogue. It's rough and every once in a while there are stretches of rapids that bring inexperienced men to grief in no time at all. He knows where the fish bite best and what flies they are taking. And he has a fine scorn for men who sit on the river bank fishing with worms. "A fool on one end and a worm on the other" is the way he sums up this sort of fishing.

MRS. KIBBEE and the children are going with me. I won't stay in the cabin with them all the time. Maybe for a few days I'll put my bed roll, a coffee pot, some bacon and some coffee on a horse and pack over the hill and do some grouse and pheasant hunting.

When I come back to Hollywood I'll be in the market for character comedy parts — roles like the one I have in "Mountain Justice" and the one I had in "Three Men on a Horse," and the one I had in "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The roles must be part of the story, must be vital to the story. If a comedy part has been dragged in by the heels for relief, I'll not touch it. I plan to arrange my work so that I'll have at least four months free in the summer and a couple of months free in the early spring or late fall.

One good thing—the Kibbee family is used to getting along on very little. If this plan doesn't work out and I have to fall back on my small income, we'll manage as we've always managed. I got used to living simply when I was young, for none of the Kibbees was wealthy. Father didn't make enough off his paper in Texas to keep us in style. And later when my life was one repertory show after another, the pickings were pretty slim.

IN THOSE days I used to find myself stranded in a town without a dime. I'd ship my trunk to Chicago collect and get there the best way I could, for I could always find an engagement of some kind in the Windy City. Once when I was stranded in Breckenridge, Colo., I worked in the coal mines for three months. Another time, at Poplar Bluffs, Miss., I got a job in a short-order lunch wagon working from 9 at night until 6:30 in the morning. (Would I have turned down a film contract then?)

If my life had been different, wouldn't be in a position now to turn down contracts to go fishing. When, after "Torch Song," there was work for me in pictures, Mrs. Kibbee and I didn't lose our heads. We saved money and lived simply. We figured from the first that we would put enough away so that we would always be comfortable. We had known what it was to go without and we didn't want that to happen again.

It won't happen again. We won't have a mansion or servants or big cars, but we're going to play part of the time. We're going to start enjoying life.

WHEN JUSTICE TRIUMPHED

By PETER LEVINS.

ON a starlit night last May, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Molzahn, of Chana, Ill., were driving along a lonely gravel road six miles east of Oregon, in Ogle county, Illinois, when a flashlight stopped them and an elderly, bald-headed man jumped on the running board.

"We've been held up!" he shouted. "And they've shot my wife!"

The Molzahns got out of their car. The bald-headed man directed his flashlight to a near-by ditch, where the body lay. He said that the hold-up man shot his wife in the head when she resisted him. He wrung his hands, then went to the body and felt the pulse.

"She's dead," he said. "Will you help me take her into town? My name is Tallmadge—Guy Tallmadge. I'm from Rockford."

But Mrs. Molzahn demurred, pointing out that it was against the law to move a body, in a case of this kind, before the coroner came.

So the authorities were informed. Dr. J. C. A. Atkins, the coroner, saw that the woman must have died instantly. The bullet had entered the back of the head and emerged over the right eye.

Tallmadge, 57-year-old embalmer, well known throughout Ogle county, said that he and his wife, Bessie, had been to Chana, which is not far from Oregon, and were driving along Highway 77 when they were halted and a gunman jumped on the running board. The man forced him and Mrs. Tallmadge out of the car, took Tallmadge's watch, several hundred dollars, and stripped his wife's fingers of several rings.

Suddenly she had resisted, he continued, and the robber shot her, jumped into a car parked near-by, and fled.

"The man who did that ought to be burn," he said. He said this repeatedly to relatives and police officers.

Officers Hear Story Of Ring—and Investigate.

Although Tallmadge seemed stricken with grief, the authorities were not inclined to accept his story, but after several hours of questioning he was allowed to return to his home in Rockford.

* * *

The day after the murder two women of Rockford, neighbors of the Tallmadges, discussed the tragedy, which they had read about in the newspaper. One of them was the wife of a newspaper photographer, the other worked in a drug store. The woman who worked in the drug store had an interesting tidbit of gossip—Guy Tallmadge had recently given a ring to a girl who worked in the store with her.

The photographer's wife told the photographer about this, and he told State's Attorney S. Donald Crowell.

An officer visited Whelan's Drug store in Rockford and learned that Tallmadge's friend was Mrs. Frances Birch, who was on a week's vacation. It was quickly established that she had gone to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo W. Olson, in Rock Island. State's Attorney Crowell immediately set out for Rock Island, arriving at 6:30 a. m., May 21.

Mrs. Birch, a tall, soft-voiced women of 31, soon became hysterical as Crowell questioned her about her acquaintance with the embalmer. She admitted that he had given her a diamond ring, which she turned over to the authorities, along with a letter her elderly admirer had written on May 18, the night before the crime.

The letter follows:

"My dear Frances:

"Two long days have passed already. Things do seem strange here today. Have been to the store and it does not look the same for some reason. I guess there is some one missing—some smile that used to be there."

(Mrs. Birch worked at a cosmetics counter in Whelan's drug store, which was a block from the undertaking parlor.)

"How did you get home, what time, and how did you find the folks? . . . Now be a good girl and get lots of rest.

"I am at the store tonight, taking care of a case, so you will please excuse the stationery, etc. What did the folks say about things? I am curious to know. Write me when you find time, dear, for it is rather lonesome here.

"I am going to Oregon tomorrow night to try and get some rent money for the girls (his wife and her sister). I told her it would be my last trip there, for I was all caught up the way things had went the past four or five years and I was going to pull out. I told her she could start things (meaning a suit for divorce) and if she did it right away I would pay the bill, for I was not going to live there after this week. She said she would see her cousin in Oregon, who is a lawyer, tomorrow night. (Francis Burchell, Oregon lawyer.)

"Now, I don't want you or your folks to think that you are the cause of it, as this has been hanging fire long before I knew you. I told her two years ago that as soon as her mother was gone things were to be different if I stayed. (Her mother, who lived with the Tallmadges, died in February, 1936.)

"Will you be looking for me Sunday? I forgot to tell about the chicks. We have lost eight out of the 600—not bad—and I think some will be laying next week. They are starting to feather out anyway. Was out Sunday a. m. and made room in the barn for the old ones I got.

"Oh, yes, what did Grace have to say? Does she carry a gun? I may get shot Sunday.

"It will be six more days, dear, Good night, lover. Best regards to the folks, a kiss to the daughter and a lot of love to you. Yours always,

"GUY."

Mrs. Birch explained that Grace was a chum of hers. Guy had been afraid she wouldn't approve of him, and so made the "joke" about the gun.

Mrs. Birch was 31 at this time, having a birthday the next month. Her hair was dark red, and her brown eyes were large and set wide apart in her heart-shaped face. Her mouth was rather wide, with a cupid's bow upper lip, and whether it was studied or natural, there was an air of child-like wistfulness about her.

She was the mother of an 11-year-old daughter, whose father died when the Birches lived in Chicago. Birch died in 1920, and in 1926 she had married Frank Slack in Rock Island. The following year he divorced her in Davenport, Iowa.

Meanwhile, things were happening in Oregon. Fred E. Imbau and M. E. O'Neill, of the Northwestern University Crime Detection Laboratory in Chicago had arrived early that morning with a lie detector machine which registers a person's reactions to questions.

Tallmadge was asked if he knew a Mrs. Birch. He replied, "No" but the indicator of the machine showed a violent emotional disturbance. Other questions relative to the murder also indicated that he was not answering truthfully. Finally he was confronted with the admissions of the willowy widow and he broke down completely. He wept for two hours before the examiners could get a coherent statement out of him.

"My life was a hell," he sobbed. "You would understand if you'd been through what I have."

Had "Fought Back" Urge to Kill Wife.

In his confession he said that he had planned to kill his wife before, but had "fought it back." Eventually, though, it "got the better of him." He had bought a .38 calibre revolver on April 22 in a Rockford pawnshop, but it proved defective and he exchanged it on May 11 for a .38 automatic. On both occasions he had used an assumed name.

"I left Chana with my wife at 8:15 or 8:30 Tuesday night," he said, "and drove north across Highway 77 to the top of the hill, turned around and came back. The reason I went up the hill is because I saw a car coming from Paynes Point. I drove around for a while, then stopped the car, got out and asked Bessie to bring the flashlight. When she came I shot her.

"Then I ran to the highway but came back and felt her pulse. She was dead. I then ran to the high-

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle

● Often when children are upset, the cause is constipation. At bedtime, let your child chew FEEN-A-MINT—the delicious, mint-flavored, chewing gum laxative that everybody likes. No nausea. No griping. And next morning, normal vim and pep restored.

Just chew FEEN-A-MINT for 3 minutes—or longer if you care to. Science has proved that this chewing helps make FEEN-A-MINT more thorough and reliable. Only 15c and 25c. Try FEEN-A-MINT and you'll never go back to old-fashioned cathartics.

The Colorful Story of Cecil B. De Mille: Chapter 2

By Clarke Wales

De Mille-created stars: Richard Dix and Leatrice Joy (left) in "The Ten Commandments," Geraldine Farrar (center) in "Joan the Woman" and Agnes Ayres (right) in "Forbidden Fruit." "Perhaps some of the pictures were tawdry, but their stars were beings who held the adulation of the world," Clarke Wales says.

ONE of Hollywood's most obvious axioms is that screen stars are made by the public, not by the producers, who give them jobs.

Yet in Hollywood a producer basks in the reflected glory of his players and often he rises or falls by the big names he has under contract. For he must be able to tell whom the public will like before the public or another producer knows anything about it.

It is to great extent by this token that Cecil B. De Mille is one of the most successful producers Hollywood has ever known. He is, to be sure, known as a creator of great spectacles. But back in the days when he was building fame and a fortune of 15 millions or so, his manna came not from Heaven but from the projection room where he looked at screen tests.

In a way, DeMille started the star system. Before this time players did not even get screen credit. (It wouldn't have done them much good if they had, for photography was so fuzzy that it was hard to recognize faces on the screen; obviously an actress couldn't be a star if nobody knew what she looked like.)

De Mille started the modern practice of introducing players on the screen, of capitalizing on names. Then he set out to get names to capitalize on. He did not, of course, invent the star system, which was inherent in the nature of motion pictures; but he was one of the first to grasp the idea.

IN THE beginning De Mille went to the stage for his players. Just what persuasion he used to get them I do not know, for playing in pictures was not quite respectable then. But he started with Dustin Farnum, in "The Squaw Man" and "The Virginian." Charles Richmond came out from New York to do Booth Tarkington's "The Man from Home" and House Peters did "The Girl of the Golden West."

Thomas Meighan had played on the stage in "The Return of Peter Grimm," which De Mille had written with Belasco. When he came to Hollywood, De Mille put him in a picture called "Kindling." The title was perhaps symbolic, for not long afterward Meighan blazed forth as one of the greatest names of pictures.

Ina Claire appeared in an early picture, "The Wild Goose Chase."

But the great stars of De Mille's career came later, and most of them did not come to him from the stage. He learned to pick picture stars from pictures. He says:

"Screen personality is something totally different from personality in life. I might like Jennie Jones personally, tremendously, and I might say: 'There is a woman who has tremendous personality,' but put that same woman on the screen and you would say that the effect was as flat as a window pane."

SO when he is casting a picture he spends weeks looking at screen tests and feature pictures. By this method he got Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson, Bebe Daniels, Richard Dix, Conrad Nagel, Estelle Taylor, Leatrice Joy, Raymond Hatton, William Boyd, Dorothy Dalton, Agnes Ayres, Jetta Goudal, Florence Vidor, Monte Blue, Jacqueline Logan, Rod La Rocque, Lila Lee, Nita Naldi, Wanda Hawley, Anna Q. Nilsson, Lina Basquette, Pauline Garon, Phyllis Haver and many others.

Wallace Reid and Sessue Hayakawa were two of De Mille's great stars in early days, and he picked both of them from seeing them in brief flashes on the screen. Hayakawa appeared for about 25 feet in a film which De Mille cannot now remember. He says:

"I sent for him and paid him $25 a week for the part of a butler in one of the Geraldine Farrar pictures, 'Temptation.' It was not a large part but it showed up so vividly that Jesse Lasky, who sat beside me in our little production room, asked, 'Who is that man? He is remarkable'."

In "The Cheat," a couple of pictures later, Hayakawa became one of the biggest stars in the business.

Wallace Reid had a bit, about 75 feet, in "The Birth of a Nation," and De Mille gave him a job at $75 a week. In the Griffith picture Reid played the role of a blacksmith and his principal action was to double up when he was shot. De Mille hired him after one look at his face.

"His magnificent physical strength and appearance were striking," De Mille says. "However, Wally wasn't very much of an actor in those days. He was stiff and rather wooden, and it was difficult to make him unbend. I sent for him and we had a chat. He was very much of a kid, but I put him under contract."

APPARENTLY much of the screen material of that time was "stiff and wooden." Picking a star meant more than sensing a vivid personality; it often meant heart-breaking work. Of Agnes Ayres, whom De Mille first cast in "Forbidden Fruit," he says: "She had personality, great beauty, but a lot of terrible mannerisms. I nearly killed her in that first picture."

And he told me the story of Leatrice Joy—

"Leatrice was recommended to me by a friend, who asked me to give her an interview. I sent for a picture she had done instead. After seeing her on the screen I sent for her and engaged her for a part in 'Saturday Night.'

"She was so scared with the realization that her chance had come and that she was on the border of either stardom or oblivion that it was difficult to get any response at all from her. She was shut right up inside of a shell and she could not let herself go. We had a terrible time, and I finally decided that the only way to handle Leatrice was with a club.

"So I started out on my campaign with her. It almost killed both of us. I scolded and stormed and did my best to break down the shell of reserve, but she seemed to shrivel up all the more. We went through two weeks of the most terrible agony, for her and for myself.

"I realized that something drastic had to be done, so one night, after we had worked very late, I brought Leatrice and her brother into my office. Leatrice was all upset, thinking I was going to discharge her. I realized that she thought this, so I decided to tell her I was going to fire her. I told her that she had not made good, and that although we were two weeks on the picture, I could not go on with her.

"She went all to pieces, and wept all over the chair, all over her brother and all over me. I let her go on. She thought she was through and she wept her heart out, saying that I had ruined her life and that her heart was broken. Right at the height of this I stopped her and asked her to look at herself, at her position, to note how her hands were clutching and the position in which her head had fallen, and the condition she had got into through letting herself go. I told her not to move but to think, and soon she realized that the fear was gone and she suddenly said: 'I know what you mean.' From then on Leatrice went rapidly along the road to stardom."

PRODUCERS and directors are often pretty good actors, even though they do not appear on the screen. Apparently in those days they had to be.

When De Mille first saw Bebe Daniels she was "a stoop-shouldered girl with a funny walk. But," he says, "she was beautiful and I felt sure she could act. I found that the hard job was not to make her act but to make her stand up straight."

Gloria Swanson, one of the greatest of all De Mille's stars, came out of Mack Sennett comedies. De Mille saw her in a scene in which she had nothing to do but stand in a doorway. On the basis of that he gave her a part in "Don't Change Your Husband."

Alice Terry worked in the film laboratory until De Mille gave her a test. Jack Holt was playing cowboy parts; De Mille made him a drawing room hero. William Boyd worked as an extra for De Mille for seven years. Florence Vidor was a small player working for his brother, William.

These are some of the stars of the fabulous days of motion pictures. Perhaps the passing of time has given them added enchantment, but they seem to have a glamour and a flavor which has gone from the Hollywood scene.

In the story of Cecil B. De Mille they are the bright skeins which were woven into the tapestries of spectacular pictures. In them lies the story of his success as much as in such cinematic milestones as "The Ten Commandments," "Feet of Clay," "The Squaw Man" (Nos. 1, 2 and 3) and "The King of Kings."

You are entitled to your opinion of the pictures. Perhaps some of them were pretty tawdry theatrical display. But their stars were beings who held the adulation of the world. They had something, the thing which De Mille saw in those first brief flashes on the screen.

Play Beats Exercise

by Ginger Rogers

WOMEN would be better off if they thought about their bodies less. They worry much too much about their figures. If they would just hold their chins up and their stomachs in and devote the time spent in worrying to finding new places to go and new things to do, their figures would take care of themselves. I honestly believe a lot of girls keep themselves fat or thin, as the case may be, by worrying about it. You see, I think mental discipline is even more important than physical discipline.

Perhaps it is unfortunate that scales are so much in evidence everywhere. They offer temptation in practically all public places and no bathroom seems to be complete without them. It would be all right if women didn't let the pesky things intimidate them. What does it really matter exactly which number the little pointer indicates, if you feel well? And you're fairly certain to look well if you feel well.

Of course if you're going to be lazy, that's different. Nobody can sit still and do nothing or lie around all day every day and keep from going to pieces. Work is the first rule of a happy life, it seems to me. It is no less essential to the possession of a good figure. But it doesn't have to be dreary drudgery.

I WORK very hard. If someone could figure out the number of miles I dance every year it would probably scare me to death. People around the studio often say they get tired out just watching me. But it doesn't hurt me. I keep on developing more energy to meet the demands and I am in better condition today than ever before.

The point is I love my work. I adore dancing. While I'm rehearsing the necessary hours I'm thoroughly enjoying myself. It seems to me very important that I should. What good can anything do you if you hate it while you're doing it? That's why I don't believe in setting-up exercises. Show me the person who can do them without resenting every bend. Nobody does formal exercises for pleasure. They do them because they think they have to.

Well, why can't exercise be combined with pleasure? There are plenty of games to be played. Radio makes it possible to have music to dance to any time. There's always a grand world waiting outside to be walked over.

NO, I never do "exercises." I don't think it's necessary. Naturally, that's only a personal opinion and I have no idea how middle age may complicate matters. But I've a sneaking notion I'll still believe a woman can get all the exercise she needs to preserve her figure by doing things that are more fun than bending over to touch the floor and straightening up again. Gardening, for instance. Did you ever see a gardener who was fat about the middle? And it's fun to grow flowers. It's fun to join a tap dancing class.

Many times I've been asked this question: "What games do you play to keep fit?" The answer is none. I don't play games for that reason any more than a football player runs his legs off and slides miles on his face for the sake of his figure. He takes the punishment because he loves the game.

I play tennis because I love it. That's why I ride horseback, dance and swim, bowl and play ping pong. There are more laughs and exercise in ping pong than anyone can believe who hasn't tried it. But I never make myself do any of these things. I don't work out a schedule of how much exercise I am to take. I exercise when I feel like it, just as I eat when I feel like eating.

YOU don't catch me dieting. I don't believe in it. Nobody can be healthy who does not eat enough or who eats crazy combinations of things that are supposed to be non-fattening. Food should be enjoyed, not feared. Eat what you like in reasonable quantities and don't worry about it. Then you'll be all right. And don't talk about it either. Nothing makes a more boresome topic of conversation.

Your feet are more important to your figure than you may realize. If they hurt you'll dread any kind of exertion and you won't be able to walk properly. Shoes must be big enough to permit comfortable freedom of motion. You can't even stand correctly unless your shoes fit and give adequate support. Your body will be out of balance and when that happens it can't look attractive. Every girl should change her shoes two or three times a day whenever possible. It rests the feet. Whenever you have a few moments to relax, prop your feet up on something. It will take the tired kinks out of your whole body.

Any figure shows to better advantage if its owner stands up straight. Good carriage flattens the tummy and minimizes the curve behind. Girls who are sway backed simply do not know how to stand. This is an excellent way to learn. Back up against a wall so you touch it at your shoulders, heels and where you sit down. Then, without bending the knees, try to push the small of the back against the wall too. You can't make it touch, of course, without pulling your shoulders in, which you must not do. But you will straighten your spine and pull in your stomach muscles without pushing yourself out behind, which is what so many women do when they think they are standing up straight and true. Keep the position and turn yourself sideways before a mirror and you will get a thrill.

SITTING up straight is important also. Women used to make their own backs hold them up. They sat in chairs without permitting themselves to touch the chair backs. Now we slouch down in a position that makes a continuous curve from neck to tail bone. The stomach muscles go slack and develop an inclination to stay that way. I remember being impressed with the way Lynn Fontanne, the famous stage actress, sits in a chair, when I first started to make a real effort to be graceful at all times. She invariably seats herself so that the back of her hips touches the back of the chair. Observe the improvement in your appearance if you sit that way and hold yourself erect. It is so important to cultivate the habit of being erect, physically and mentally.

Try not to be self-conscious about your weak points and they won't be noticed much. A pimple on the nose isn't particularly conspicuous until you call attention to it by trying to hide it. Think about your good points and you'll be able to lift your chin up and face the world with a pleased expression. It will then take you at your own valuation.

This article is the third in a series of six to be written by beautiful women of the screen. In succeeding issues Irene Dunne will write on poise and charm, Jeanette MacDonald on care of the hair, and Kay Francis on general grooming.

Forget about exercises; play is the thing, Ginger says.

Blond Dynamo

Vital Is the Word for Sonja Henie; She Skates, Dances, Acts; and Likes Jewelry, Orchids and Gayety

By Frances Morrin

A BLOND dynamo, this Sonja Henie, queen of the ice. After interviewing her you feel like shedding a few tears of regret for the wasted years of your youth. For at the ripe old age of 23, Sonja is 10 times world figure skating champion and three times Olympic champion. In 1934 she placed second in the national tennis matches in Norway. Not only is this Norwegian champion an expert swimmer, an accomplished ballet dancer and an equestrienne of no mean ability, but she has mastered four languages in her spare moments.

As if that were not enough to have done in a lifetime, Sonja decided to turn professional and conquer some new fields. She came to Hollywood and gave several skating exhibitions which were well attended by the bigwigs of the motion picture industry. The result was that she was offered several contracts but finally signed with Darryl Zanuck. She will make her first appearance for Twentieth Century-Fox in a picture which will feature several skating sequences.

Strangely enough, my first glimpse of this queen of the ice was through a large block of ice. Sonja (the last name is pronounced Heenie) was posing for some fur fashion stills in the portrait gallery. It was a very hot day and Gene Kornman, the photographer, had rigged up one of those Goldberg inventions to keep Sonja cool. He had a hundred-pound block of ice sitting in a shallow pan with a rubber tube syphoning the water off into a five-gallon jug. And behind the ice was an electric fan blowing cool breezes on Sonja.

In spite of this substitute for the breezes off the icy fjords of Norway, Sonja, beneath a battery of hot lights, and in a full length ermine cape, was valiantly trying to keep her dimpled smile turned on and at the same time keep the rivulets of perspiration from ruining her make-up. I sat in the darkened background and watched her sympathetically as she cheerfully donned one fur coat after another and posed.

VITAL is the best one-word description of her. She is five feet two inches tall and, while her figure is well rounded, she hasn't an ounce of superfluous flesh. Although her flaxen hair, rounded face and pink and white skin indicate the Nordic race, those twinkling brown eyes and upturned nose belie the picture of a "cool, reserved Scandinavian." Garbo, for instance.

But while Sonja is all life and smiles, like Garbo she has a mind of her own. After another 15 minutes of posing she announced that "she tank she go to lunch now." And though Kornman reproached her for lack of proper appreciation for his cooling device, she was adamant. She was quitting and "Please," with a big smile, "after lunch we take the rest of the pictures at my house so I can be cool, yes?" They did.

Later, over luncheon in the Commissary, I decided that this mind-of-her-own is what has put the fair Sonja where she is at the age of 23. When she makes up her mind to do something, it is practically accomplished. And now she wants to be an actress.

"It's a competitive game, this picture game," Sonja said with a big, dimpled smile, "but it isn't any more highly competitive than the athletic field. It will take hard work, yes; I have always worked hard but perhaps never so hard as now. This morning I am up at 6. What with voice and drama lessons, posing for pictures and giving interviews I am busy until late at night."

THE preparation for her dramatic career began in her fourth year when she began to study ballet dancing at Oslo, Norway. Then at 8 she took her first interest in skating. With other children she went skating at the Municipal Stadium. She had her ups and downs on the ice like the rest of them, but she never became discouraged. After all, her father, Wilhelm Henie, now a prosperous fur merchant in Oslo, was at one time the second fastest skater in all Europe.

At first she just wanted to be able to skate well. But at 9 she won the junior competition in figure skating at the Oslo Skating Club and at 11 she was champion of Norway.

Lest you might think that figure skating is just cutting a lot of curlicues on ice, let Sonja enlighten you.

"It is one of the most difficult, dangerous and beautiful of sports," she says. "Generations of skaters have established certain classical figures with which to test their artistry. There are 80 championship figures which any championship competitor must be able to perform. The judges give each one six figures and the skater does not know until the last minute which of the 80 those six will be."

At 14 this flaxen-haired youngster's determination and hard work had carried her to the world figure skating championship, which she has retained every year since. In 1928 she captured the coveted Olympic championship for figure skating and kept it against all comers in 1932 and again this year.

MOST of her studying and training has been done in London. There she became a pupil of Madame Karasavina and learned to translate Pavlowa's famous "Dying Swan" dance into a dance on skates. I saw Sonja do this number at the Coliseum where thousands had gathered to see her. You are hardly conscious that she is on skates. She is as graceful off the ice as a tendril of smoke, and her tango, done to the music of "La Cumpersita," is something to remember.

Even though her interest is now centered in her motion picture career, she doesn't intend to give up skating. She hires a rink here to practice in and she told me she expected to go on another personal appearance tour as soon as her picture is completed.

In the meantime, she is enjoying her life here. She and her mother, Selma Nilsen Henie, have taken a house in Beverly Hills. Sonja is enthusiastic about our weather, our beaches, our Clark Gable. In fact, she almost turned the tables on me and was interviewing me about her favorites.

Unlike Garbo, Sonja is not in the least retiring. She is young, vital and a magnet around which gayety revolves. Since coming to Hollywood her life has been full of parties.

JEWELRY she adores and wears it regardless of the occasion. At luncheon she was blazing with sapphires and diamonds, a bracelet with huge matching clip and ring. There was a corsage, too, lovely big purple orchids.

And I, having heard tales of several of filmdom's most eligible bachelors being in pursuit of the fair Sonja, asked her about romance.

No," she said. And very firmly, too. "I have no time for romance; I have fun, yes. I go round with lots of young men to parties, openings and all that. But serious romance, no, I have work to do. I'm going to be an actress now."

If she doesn't find her way to the top it will be no fault of hers. Behind her dimpled smile is an iron will. A blond dynamo from Norway has just come to town.

Hollywood was a little surprised to find a champion skater such a beautiful woman. Some further surprises are promised by her employers, Twentieth Century-Fox, when she is glimpsed in her first film effort, "One in a Million," in which she appears with Don Ameche.

The Loneliest Men in the

They're the Band Leaders You Hear on Radio

PUT it in a story and it would be laughed at, called a cliche, derided because it has been outmoded by years of use as a fictional device.

Just the same, a man standing alone among several hundred happy persons whom he can never possibly know presents a moving and dramatic picture.

Maybe you have been the man yourself. Maybe you've dropped in on a party and found it full of absolute strangers. And maybe you have stood, first on one foot, then an another, a wide and meaningless smile on your face, wishing there were at least a friendly little dog around that you could pet and talk to.

The gentlemen who lead the orchestras you dance to and talk about and sing with are those men, always, eternally. And especially those who travel from city to city, playing a night here, a few weeks there. They are thirsty men paddling a canoe over the seven seas. They stand right in the midst of gayety and laughter every night—yet they are the loneliest lot of people on earth.

THE first intimation I had of this fact was while I was talking to Mrs. "Red" Nichols several months ago. She spoke quite extensively of her marriage to the red-headed band leader—of the swell times she has had as his wife, then she suddenly sobered and said:

"But I dread to return to the monotony of hotel and night club dates. There is nothing more lonesome than working among a lot of people who are having a good time—unless it is sitting and watching your husband do it."

"Red," in 20 years of band-leading and junketing around the country, has learned what that lonesomeness is. Mrs. Nichols says that his devotion to their little girl and his liking for home has been so much intensified by it that he rarely wants to go any place more than once every two weeks and seldom takes the initiative in inviting visitors when the Nichols are at home on Long Island. He is too jealous of the time he has with his family.

Any orchestra leader can tell you quickly enough that the fleeting friendships, the topsy-turvy hours and the intermittent tearing up of newly sunken social roots are what makes their jobs hard. Even depressing. Some of them say that that is one reason that much of our modern music is interpreted in blues. And that orchestra leaders often prefer songs that tell of a sad longing.

THE fact is that they must find, in some way, a barricade against loneliness—usually not too successful. Some do it by packing up their wives at each move and renting little houses or apartments every place they go, no matter for how short a time. Others do it in other ways. But every orchestra leader has one method which is a weapon against his lonesomeness.

George Hall, whom you hear from the Hotel Taft in New York over CBS, has virtually become a hermit because of the odd and paradoxical existence he leads in entertaining two thousand diners each evening.

"After playing six hours of music a day," he says, "watching two hundred faces and hats and smiles on the floor—and knowing none of them—my wife and I seek places where there are no faces. Where we can talk and laugh together, two people who know each other.

"I have to narrow my mind to a smaller scope to find relaxation after the larger life—and that is for lack of a better definition. So, if I'm not reading at home or eating dinner in a very modest restaurant, I am taking long and solitary walks."

The loneliness has actually become an obsession with Hall. It is only through actual determination on his part that he meets new people and makes new friends. He has trained himself so that his books and his wife fill up the social side of him.

GUY LOMBARDO, playing his weekly programs over CBS on Sunday afternoon and his regular dance engagement at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York, has turned in the opposite direction in his search for companions.

Lombardo has, of course, his three brothers, Carmen, Victor and Liebert, all of whom play with the Royal Canadians. And the brothers—except Liebert—have their wives. So Lombardo has installed a sort of informal club in that part of the grill back of the bandstand, where all of his friends can meet during the course of the evening. During the dance sessions the friends wait, but in between, when the four Lombardos have put down their rhythm for a spell, they all gather around tables and talk and laugh and discuss stuff. Rather like an intermittently interrupted party.

Guy will tell you, if you ask him, that this informal Lombardo club hasn't really been enough. The Lombardo wives, like Mrs. Nichols, grow weary of the long hours their husbands spend in the softly-lighted room and demand the sun.

For that reason, the brothers make concerted and impassioned battles for a normal life whenever they find it possible—retreating at those times to their house in Connecticut, where they have installed their parents and their little sister.

PEOPLE don't often understand the rigid discipline that holds a band leader to his bandstand when the gayety is at its height. Jacques Fray, whose orchestra has been featured for some time at the fashionable St. Regis, has found that out.

Fray, an extraordinarily talented pianist who made friends among the socially select during those years when he was seen only on the concert stage, has had many of these friends drop in at the St. Regis during the course of an evening. They will be pausing for only a moment in their rounds of the fashionable clubs—and always Jacques would be asked to join them.

"Give that stick to the trombone player and come along," someone would say.

Fray always knew where they were going. He always knew the sort of good time they would have once they had gotten there. But he always explained carefully that he couldn't possibly leave—then watch reluctantly as his friends moved on a little later.

While her husband works, the orchestra leader's wife sits at home, very lonesome too. It doesn't seem right.

As you can imagine, the lads and lasses woke up after a while. They stopped asking him, and just contented themselves with dropping in for a moment to say hello. But Jacques Fray isn't sure which he feels most keenly: the inability to accept their invitations, or the lack of them.

THE search conducted by bandleaders for a substitute for the lightness and brightness in their lives have taken some odd turns.

Shep Fields is one of the newest of the gentlemen whose rhythmic style pleases you. A long engagement at the Waldorf-Astoria, together with a Friday program over NBC, keeps him extremely busy.

Fields learned early in his career that band-leading was a lonesome business and immediately found several things to keep his affections occupied.

The first was a lovely wife. The next two were dogs. Shep had had a pup when he was a kid. He remembered the full sense of friendship and trust one could impart with just one wag of a tail and the nudge of a damp, wet muzzle. So, when he began the arduous task of perfecting a new dance style and keeping it before a kaleidoscopic crowd of people who were always the same, yet always a little different, he purchased a pedigreed mutt.

Although he seldom finished work before 3 in the morning, Fields always took his wife and his dog for a long walk. And in the mornings, his first duty was to exercise the pooch. His missus says that Fields would make quick trips to his apartment to play with his pal when he might have tried to find solace in the evening newspaper.

As a result, Mrs. Fields has just presented her spouse with another pedigreed fox terrier. And Shep is seeing to it that the Waldorf-Astoria kitchens prepare a special diet five times a day for his newest friend.

VINCENT LOPEZ knows the strangeness of constantly new places. He also knows the loneliness that comes of breaking off new friendships, just when they are getting underway. Any bandleader we have named knows it, of course, but Lopez better than most. He's been doing it longer.

Like Hall, his reaction has been to withdraw into himself, to read, to walk. He writes, too—impetuous, moody prose that reflects his Latin attitude towards his lack of roots and his constantly shifting background.

And then, his brilliant, inquisitive mind has taken another turn that would appear to be a direct result of this half-knowing people. He has studied and mastered the art of numerology.

Lopez, because he cannot know people through long and close friendship, has learned to know them another way. And, incidentally, he has promised Screen & Radio Weekly an article on numerology, including readings of six of the most lovely of our younger stars, for next month.

THERE are others, too. Phil Harris, for instance: sauve, sophisticated Phil, whose music has guided feet in every city in America whose warm personality has filled many a supper club.

The loneliness has got him, too. In spite of the fact that a half-million people look upon him as a man who knows everyone, he still feels the need of some sort of companionship that smacks of home and the small town and a quiet and lazy day.

He is playing at the Cocoanut Grove in Hollywood now, and appearing each Sunday evening with Jack Benny, who is everyone's friend, but he still continues his moments of relaxation and escape.

How? Well, Harris likes kids. He likes to take them places and buy them ice cream cones and give them talkings-to about getting themselves dirty. There are a lot of youngsters around the country who have had some good times with Harris—and who never will know that the big, curly-haired man has a romantic voice and a way with a song.

In a Midwestern town just recently, he paid for a whole boys club that had needed a day at a lake resort—to get its collective self clean, if nothing else. The lads didn't know Harris was sponsor of the party. He tagged along on the fringe of things, just in case the money ran out. His name was never connected with the affair.

HE'S a new bandleader heard over Columbia from the Hotel Lexington and he's been playing in orchestras for a number of years now.

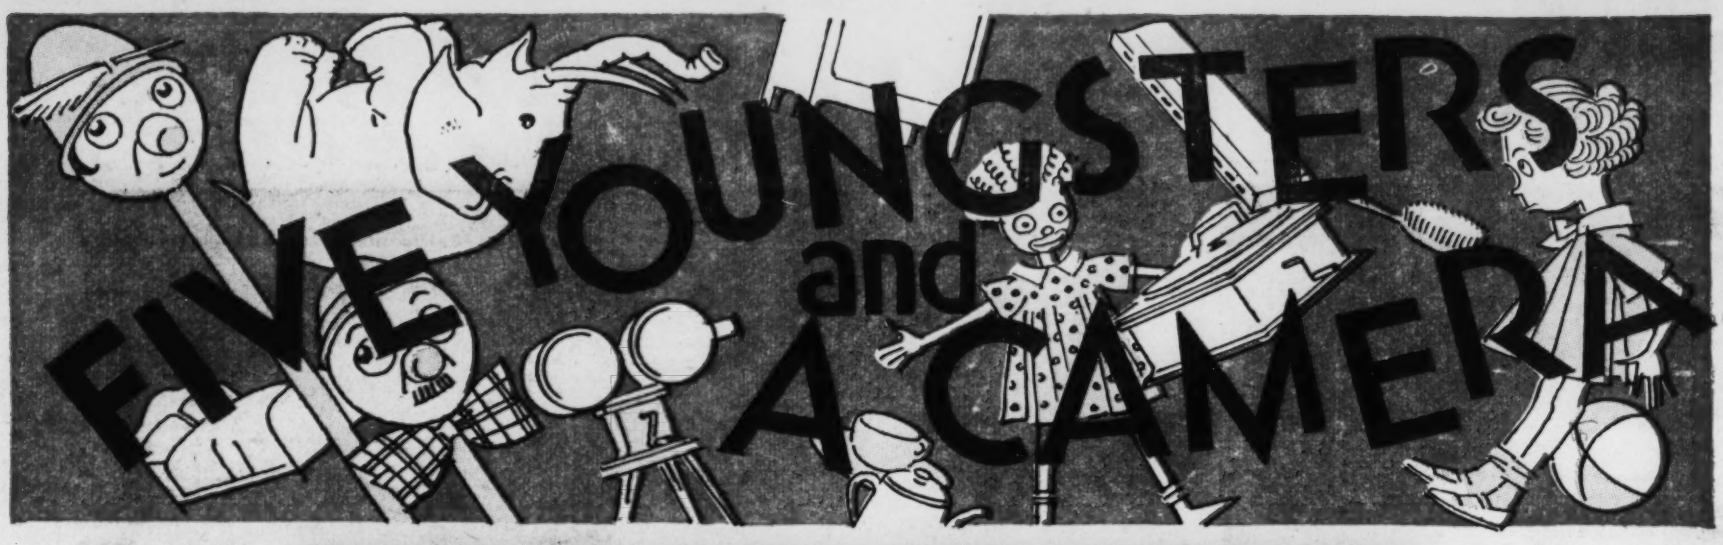

Artie Shaw is a nice guy. Or maybe I had better say an exceedingly nice one. He's both. He has an ingratiating way about him that has made his brief acquaintances friends, although he doesn't know it. And more than that, the strange solitude found on a bandstand in front of a mob of people has made him think.

He is thinking in terms of mobs. Artie is—and in terms of one person's relationships with the mass of people. I talked with him for a long time about his ideas—the ones he has formed because he was lonely and had to do something—and they are sound.

Shaw retired from music a year ago. He went up into Connecticut to write a book of social thought. Just after he had finished outlining the first chapters, which took almost an entire summer because of the import of the work, he was called back to New York.

He came because of the money involved—money which, if saved, will give him lots of leisure, and a new kind of solitude in which he can go ahead with the work he wants to do.

Not the old kind of solitude.

THERE'S a pleasant air of excitement in the Dionne nursery, the famous log-sided bungalow which stands in a rock-studden clearing in the Canadian north country near Callendar.

Head Nurse Jacqueline Noel, pretty, little, bird-like and French, from Montreal; and Nurse Yvonne Leroux, also pretty and likewise French-Canadian, perform their routine duties with more than ordinary speed. There is a third nurse today, pink-cheeked and blue-eyed Mollie O'Shaughnessy, who is going to help out for a few weeks.

It's 6:30 in the morning and the quints are just waking up. In less than two hours they'll start earning $250 a minute as motion picture stars.

$250 a minute! They've never even seen a nickel, and if they did have one they wouldn't know what to do with it.

Motion picture stars! They've never seen a movie. They've never been more than 200 yards from the room where they were born.

THIS is Wednesday. Last Monday morning 32 persons arrived from the Twentieth Century-Fox studio in Hollywood to play their several roles in the making of "Reunion"—director, cast, camera and sound crews, writers, script clerks, wardrobe workers and the rest of a complete unit.

Marie awakens first. She's the light sleeper of the fivesome. Then Yvonne, Emilie, Annette and Cecile reach baby hands up the sides of their respective cribs and in another minute they're scrambling over the sides and the day has started. Squeals, chatter, small words in baby French. Face and hand washing. Teeth scrubbing. Hair combing and brushing.

Scampering about the nursery, into the toy shelves, playing tag, helping with the clothes and the beds, or just working off energy, then breakfast. Prunes, cereal, toast, eggs, bacon and milk. Last on the menu is cod liver oil, which the youngsters don't mind a bit.

At about 7 o'clock the strangers from Hollywood begin to arrive from their hotel in North Bay, a dozen miles distant. Five little round faces, with big brown eyes, are at the windows of the play room. They see big trucks lumber through the seldom opened gates. They see strange objects being unloaded and moved across the lawn to the playground-cameras, reflectors and the rest of the movie making paraphernalia.

THERE'S a man who looks a great deal like "Le Docteur." That's Jean Hersholt. And there's a big, broad person. That's Norman Taurog, the director, uncle of Jackie Cooper and expert with child screen players. Others are Rochelle Hudson, Dorothy Peterson, Robert Kent, Cameraman Dan Clark, who was here last November, and the rest.

Jean Hersholt, Dorothy Peterson and Slim Summerville as they appear in the second Dionne quintuplets film, "Reunion," for Twentieth Century-Fox.

By Frank Perrett

"We'd like to shoot the wading pool scene first," says Taurog to Dr. Dafoe. "Something tells me this warm Canadian weather won't hold long and the babies won't be able to go out in sun suits."

Dr. Dafoe agrees and the cameras are placed to center on the wading pool. The doctor and Dan Clark, who became good friends last winter, inspect the lighting arrangements. Clark shows the closely woven blue netting which fits over each of the reflectors to soften the light rays.

The quints pay no attention to the camera crew or to Taurog. The rest of the company is excluded from the playground. Even the doctor views the proceedings from the window of the room of the building where the sound recorders sit. The quints are so fond of the doctor that they would not be bothered with movies if they knew he was near.

Cecile and her sisters survey with great interest the array of toys around the pool. Yvonne grabs the inflated rubber horse and with instinctive judgment heads straight for the water. Marie picks up a brightly painted beach pail that has a screen bottom and is plainly puzzled by her inability to keep it filled with water.

Dorothy Peterson moves about among the children without receiving special attention. Her nurse's uniform, no doubt, is the reason. Jean Hersholt is seated on the lawn near the water. Emilie spies him across the yard and sprints toward him.

Hersholt smiles and Emilie counters by reaching for his watch chain. The watch comes with it and Emilie holds it to her ear. She's seen watches before. She sits on Hersholt's lap. "Docteur!" she declares. Hersholt chuckles and stands up, lifting Marie in his arms.

As he does, Annette, who hasn't been at all interested in the wading pool, runs out of the scene to Nurse Leroux and Yvonne turns and goes with her. Taurog calls "Cut," because the script calls for all the quints being together for the opening dialog between Miss Peterson and Hersholt.

THE scene is tried again, and again the stars disperse themselves before the action is completed.

"We'll change it to take place beside the pool," says Taurog, and his guess is good — the quints are interested in toy boats and the other toys and continue playing busily around the grown-ups until the scene has been finished.

Another shot is attempted, this one including an entrance by Rochelle Hudson. Rochelle is a big success with the stars right from the beginning. Yvonne and Marie like her red dress and they like the glass beads around her neck. Less time is taken on this shot than on the previous one.

The camera crew works swiftly in changing film magazines, making a new setup.

At this moment Dr. Dafoe quietly appears.

"Time's up," he comments as he reaches for Marie and swings her to his shoulder. Amazed, Taurog looks at his own watch. It doesn't seem possible that sixty minutes have passed.

Nothing to do till tomorrow.

NEXT morning there's another 6:30 call in the hotel lobby. That means that everyone must have been up, breakfasted and ready at that hour to leave for Callendar. It means for Hersholt that he must have arisen at 5 o'clock to allow for the time necessary to make his brown hair gray-white.

The next move depends upon the weather, upon how the quints slept during the night, whether they show the least sign of colds or other upsets. By 7 o'clock at the latest, Dr. Dafoe will have phoned his report and the Hollywood company will be guided accordingly.

YVONNE stole the show on the day they shot the scene showing the quints opening Jean Hersholt's camera and exposing the film. Taurog was prepared to spend two or three precious hours on this shot, but Yvonne did it in three minutes, and not only pulled all the film out but also stuffed it back into the camera and refastened the cover.

When Property Men Joe Behm and Frank Sullivan set up the Hollywood-made slide in the playground, the babies swarmed around. As soon as they were shown how it worked, they kept crowding up the ladder and skidding gleefully down the metal chute.

The tea party was quite a success. Thanks to non-breakable dishes, no serious damage was done, and since it was the first affair of its kind the quints had ever attended, and inasmuch as they had never read Emily Post, no criticism was in order.

The little white table and little white chairs and the little white dishes were arranged on the lawn, and the babies were dressed in pink frocks, with pink ribbons in their hair, and shoes of white kid. The tea was milk and the cakes were crackers. Marie drank milk until it seemed she must burst.

The guests soon tired of sitting and all sought to be hostesses and do the pouring. Cecile carefully upturned each chair and Annette, following in her footsteps, as carefully righted each one.

THE dancing scenes weren't so hot. The music the quints liked, and the only kind to which they would dance, was that obtained from a little French record, played on a portable phonograph. The babies, having become interested in mechanics, became interested more in the music box than in the music. Then the record broke in half and didn't sound so well after Bill Russell, the generator man, had put it together.

Finally, the quints decided they'd dance if Mlle. Leroux would dance with them, but not otherwise. Taurog took a headache back to the hotel with him that day.

There must have been loneliness in Quintville for a day or two after the folks from Hollywood left for home. Cecile, Marie, Yvonne, Annette and Emilie had too much fun with their friends not to have missed them.

Hollywood Goes High Hat

By Sara Day

Some Head Line Facts

Olivia de Havilland (left top) in an Orry-Kelly hat with a five-tiered crown. It is made of fine felt in wine color and the pompons match the collar of the suit.

Marie Wilson (left lower) wears one of the new visor brimmed hats in a bright fur felt with stitching in darker gray. The hat is trimmed with a fur fancy. She wears this with a metallic cocktail dress or formal afternoon frock.

Anita Louise (right top) is wearing a new hat which illustrates the tendency towards extreme height in crowns. The use of a shirred velvet cockade and the variegated colored feelers is interesting.

Mary Carlisle (right lower) displays another of the high hats over which Hollywood has gone quite mad. It is of brown colored felt cloth, laced with narrow strips of self-fabric and has a turned-up brim which is cut to point downward.

All of which brings to mind Irene Castle's advice: "Don't ever wear a hat that looks your age. There is nothing like a new hat, which will cause other women to turn around and look, to give a woman a new lease on life."

HOLLYWOOD has gone high hat definitely. That doesn't mean that Joan Crawford and Claudette Colbert have become snooty or gone into a Garbo mood. It simply means that all our Hollywood film fashion plates seem to be trying to imitate the Empire State building with their winter millinery.

Since Betty Furness always has the last word in hats I should have been prepared when I saw her wearing that foottall opera hat which made her look like Broadway's best beau in his top hat. That was early in the season. Since then I've glimpsed turbans wrapped higher than the Maharajah of Indore's, towering foolscaps, bows that make the wearer look for all the world as though she were going to take flight, not to mention the variety of quills and feathers that shoot out from chapeaux at all angles. Perhaps the film director who told me recently that all millinery designers should be placed in asylums was not far wrong. It is distinctly a mad hatter's world this season. But to my feminine eye some of them are at least delightfully mad.

That is what I thought the other day when I saw Patricia Ellis, one of Warner Bros. younger fashion arbiters, having luncheon at the Brown Derby. She was wearing a peaked soup bowl effect of black felt which sported a huge bow of wide belting ribbon half Kelly green and half that new bright blue which is called Royal. It was an inspired chapeau no less and Pat was netting admiring glances from the feminine contingent present.

"Quick, your milliner's name or your life," I hissed and drew on her my new cigaret lighter which is a replica of a small automatic.

"Listen, palsy-walsy," said Pat, "put down your weepon and I'll tell all. It was no less than our friend Orry-Kelly who dashed off this little model."

AND that's how I discovered that Orry-Kelly, Warner Bros. noted designer, had turned milliner. Pat explained that Orry had designed this hat for her to wear in a recent picture and she liked it so well she had it copied.

So in my next spare moment I dashed out to Orry-Kelly's sanctum and found him and Caspar Riese, the head of the company making these hats, in conference.

"Here's something brand new," said Orry, holding up something which looked like a black felt envelope with a couple of bows on it and at the same time waving me to a seat across the table.

"This shows the Spanish militaristic trend," he said, and with that put the hat on my head. Well, it made me look like Napoleon at bay but then I'm no Carole Lombard. At any rate in this new chapeau the crown runs from side to side instead of from back to front, if you get what I mean, and is adapted from an admiral's hat. The advantage of this particular piece of headgear, Orry pointed out, is that it is grand for travel because it lies perfectly flat or may be rolled up and carried in your purse.

While Orry favors the high crown as against the pancake variety we've worn the last couple of seasons, he believes in modifying them because his idea in designing these hats is to make them smart and yet becoming for street wear. So in the one he designed for Anita Louise to wear in "The Green Light" he has toned down the Eiffel Tower effect to a mere story and a half. This chapeau gives the feeling of height by the use of colored feather feelers, very new, and then the visor effect, as Orry points out, is much easier on wrinkles than these off-the-face hats.

Another hat he showed me was one he made for Marie Wilson to wear in "Melody for Two." This one shows two style trends, that of the youthful visor which curves engagingly over one eye, and fur trimming. This hat is made of silver gray felt stitched in darker gray and it has a fur fancy on one side. Many of you will appreciate the head-hugging fit of the long back of this hat. It does away with that elastic nuisance. It's the kind of hat altogether that is grand for more dressy suits or your dressy afternoon clothes.

WHILE we were discussing these hats in came Olivia de Havilland wearing another of Orry's hats.

"How do you like me in my Chinese Pagoda?" asked Olivia, winking at Orry.

I allowed that I thought it right smart and it was, too. Several tiers of wine colored felt make the high crown and the brim dips provocatively over one eye. The color matched Olivia's suit and the Persian lamb pompons that bobbed from the top of the hat matched the collar of her suit.

From the studio I went to keep a luncheon date with the Lily Dache of Hollywood, Jacqueline Duval. She is Georgie Breakstone's mother, and before coming to Hollywood to get Georgie started on his career as a screen juvenile, she designed and made hats for both Dache and Joseph in New York. Now that Georgie is nicely established she has taken up millinery again and has made hats for many of our biggest stars for both personal and production wear. The petite Jacqueline delights in high crowns, the higher the better in fact, for she believes that they give short women like herself an opportunity to look more regal in appearance because they add several inches to the height.

THAT is why she made a very tall crowned hat for Mary Carlisle, who is one of our smaller stars. Mary, who left for a vacation abroad right after signing her new contract with Paramount, took this hat with her to out-Paris Paris. The hat is made of wine colored felt and the square crown is laced down the seams with narrow strips of the fabric. The edge of the brim is laced, too, giving the hat a more sporty appearance. With it Mary wears a wine and beige checked sport frock of the shirtmaker type.

While she was telling me about the new topper she had designed for Marguerite Churchill in walked Marguerite in the very hat. It is a pillbox affair made of navy blue georgette and stitched all over to give it body. And then falling off the front (it looks just like bangs) are two big silk pompons of the same shade. Mad indeed, but very cute on Marguerite.

You'll see Irene Dunne in another Duval chapeau when you see her in Columbia's "Theodora Goes Wild." In one scene Irene wears a white broadcloth cape and her hat with a 12-inch high crown has a cockade of ribbon on one side for trimming. Irene is dressing very smartly these days. I saw her just before she left for New York in a Sally Victor turban made of red antelope deftly molded and rising to a decided peak.

On the boulevards, at smart cocktail bars and at parties one sees a constant procession of these delightfully mad hats. There's the one for instance I saw Mrs. Sam Goldwyn (Frances Howard), one of Hollywood's smartest dressers, wearing when she appeared with Sam at luncheon recently. She looked just like a picture from one of your medieval history books. Her velvet hat rose to a peak and from the very top fell a chiffon veil. At Kay Francis' tea Lois Long, authoress and herself a fashion authority, caused a mild panic when she appeared in a black felt hat on which perched a rooster, complete to the beady eye and comb. Jean Harlow has also acquired one of these medieval type hats, a tall crowned one which sits on the back of her head.

Sing, Stranger!

An Inquiry into That Latest Radio Craze, the Popular Community Sing

By Ruth Arell

DOES your local movie theater flash song slides on the screen at intermission time and invite the audience to join in the singing while the piano or organ player thumps out an accompaniment? And have your ears been assaulted by an untrained vocal combination of basso profundos, altos, tenors, contraltos and lyric sopranos?

Then you will perhaps wonder how the Sunday night Community Sing over CBS happens to get more or less pleasing harmonizing from the 1,500 persons who attend each broadcast and lend their vocal chords for the good of the cause.

First off, the sponsor has borrowed a leaf from the movie houses and projects the words of the songs on slides so that the studio audience may know whereof they sing.

Secondly, at other broadcasts the studio audience must be seated 10 minutes before the program goes on the air. But on this program they must be in the studio at least a half hour before broadcast time. This gives them time to warm up. Wendell Hall has been hired to be the song leader. He does it by assuming the role of singing teacher. And like a singing teacher, he has the audience sound "do." He asks them to raise it an octave. Then they sing the scales.

Hall then has the operator flash a song lyric on the screen. The audience throws itself with abandon into the spirit of the thing. Everybody seems to bear out Col. Stoopnagle's oft-repeated statement that people have more fun than anybody.

HAVING gotten the crowd warmed up to the proceedings, Hall then tells them about the signals he uses. It is this system of signals, practiced and rehearsed before the program goes on the air, that insures against enthusiastic singers holding on to the last note for so long that they might be arrested for loitering. When Hall makes a sharp downward motion with his right hand, he wants them to stop. He tries it out.

Here you have the important participants in the Sunday night CBS Community Sing. At extreme left, Wendell Hall; center, Billy Jones and Ernie Hare interviewing the audience; at right, Milton Berle, thief of bad-gags. Together they contrive to make you sing—and like it. Here is their story.

At every rehearsal some singer forgets to stop and thus sings solo, to his embarrassment. Hall picks out the culprit and chides him. They try it again. This time it is perfect.

A fluttering motion of both hands at shoulder height means to sustain. Hands thrown violently in the air means louder and pushed down toward the floor means to sing softer. The audience is put through these paces. And they love it.

Unlike most community sings, in which the vocalizing by the audience is the whole show, this one employs some expert funsters who do their stuff in between songs in order to give the audience a breathing spell. Billy Jones and Ernie Hare, the Happiness Boys of a decade ago, do at least one novelty song per broadcast. And then they wander through the audience carrying portable microphones and giving goofy interviews with the audience. Like as not, they will give the unsuspecting victim an answer and then ask him to make up a question to fit that reply. All in the spirit of good, clean fun, you know.

TO FILL the cup of cheer to the jeering point, Milton Berle has been put on the program. How does sophisticated Broadway humor fit into a community sing program? The answer is—I dunno know. But fit into this one it does, and without the aid of a shoe horn.

Scarcely 30 years old, Berle has spent 22 years in the theater and has reaped a harvest of scores of legends about himself. In an earlier decade Elsie Janis' devotion to her mother made stage history. Among the stage stars of today, Milton's attachment to his mother makes for one of the finer heart-warming stories in a profession overcrowded with double-crossing. He doesn't mind if you call him mama's boy. But smile when you do it, for there isn't the faintest suspicion of a lisp about him and you're apt to be torn limb from limb if Berle's temper reaches the "Berleing" point. His mother is always in the audience at every performance and she is in every sense his severest critic. A keen judge of what is good theater, she constantly advises him on his choice of material. And the proof that her advice is good is that having followed it consistently, he now ranks high among the younger comedians.

Known to Broadway as the "thief of bag gags," he told me the amusing story of how his reputation for stealing gags originated. Strolling into a Broadway restaurant one evening, he found the late Richie Craig, another comedian, at one table. Craig was wearing a suit that was practically the twin of the one he, Berle, was wearing. Craig jokingly remarked that since Berle was beginning to wear his suits, the next thing that would happen would be that Berle would be taking his material.

BOTH of these young men were then desperately striving for recognition by, and mention in, the Broadway columns. But that casual remark of Craig's gave Berle an idea and together they decided to launch a unique publicity campaign to break into the columns.

Each began using some of the other's material. In frantic letters and telegrams to the columnists they called attention to the "thefts." Whether or not the columnists believed that the feud between Craig and Berle was on the level, no one knows, of course. But both boys did get plenty of space in the columns and loads of additional publicity. So much so that now, although Craig has since died, Berle still bears the stigma of crook of wise-cracks.

Two of the stunts they pulled are particularly worthy of mention. Craig was appearing at the Palace Theater in New York, then tops so far as vaudeville was concerned. The Monday afternoon audience at the Palace was known as the toughest one because at this showing bookers, managers, talent scouts and performers came to view the acts and to look at them with coldly professional eyes. When Craig's act was over he got a grand round of applause. He came out and took a bow. But the audience wouldn't let him go and wanted an encore.

Out walked someone—you guessed it—it was Berle, who did the encore number.

And when Milton was playing a certain theater, his pictures appeared in the lobby with his name under the photographs. One day Craig walked in, saw the name "Milton Berle" under the pictures and wrote under it "The Richie Craig Road Show No. 2."

TO insure the success of the program, the sponsor took a leaf from the theater and used the out-of-town theatrical tryout procedure for probably the first time in radio.

Usually a program is rehearsed for several weeks and then immediately is broadcast over a national network. But this sponsor wanted to find out what weaknesses there might be in the program before it went on the network. So for 10 weeks, in as many different cities, they tried out the program locally; that is, the program was heard only in the town from which it was broadcast. They then carefully studied the criticisms and when they felt they had a smooth-running program it was presented to the nation.

The fact that each week there is a long waiting list of those who seek to attend a sing is the best testimony that the program is making friends. The audience represents one of the most oddly assorted gatherings ever assembled under one roof. Unreservedly, social registerites sing loud and lustily along side of the ordinary rank-and-file that makes up the population of a city.

ONE of the human interest stories that have come to light on the Community Sing is the unearthing of a basso profundo to make a quartet out of what was previously a trio. It seems that the leader of the trio, a first tenor, was seated next to the gentleman who sang in a deep, sepulchral voice. He introduced himself to the basso, and they missed the chorus of two songs while they exchanged names and addresses and made an appointment for a rehearsal of the entire group. Not for nothing is the theme song of the broadcast, "Let's All Sing Like the Birdies Sing."

Perhaps one of the most unusual fan letters was the one sent to Wendell Hall, in which the correspondent stated:

"I owe you an eternal debt of gratitude. I had my first night of real fun in 20 years of public appearances last Sunday night at your Community Sing. I am that public pest, that pariah of first nights, that hobgoblin of radio studios—in short, I am a chronic cougher.

"My coughs, I must tell you, have been heard on some of the finest broadcasts. During one comedian's program I coughed so loud that one of his gags never got over the air—possibly the only real service I ever performed in my career of long suffering. My cough has punctuated the rhythm of Guy Lombardo's music and submerged the studio laughter at one of Ed Wynn's sallies.

"I live a life of continual embarrassment. I am afraid to accept tickets to any radio broadcast knowing that I will indulge at the wrong moment in a diaphragmatic caper. But Sunday night I was completely at ease. I coughed without a blush because even my nearest neighbor was too busy singing to hear me. When may I come again?"

Helen Morgan Outstanding Personality In George White Scandals

By LILLIE MAY ROBINSON.

SINGING both new and familiar songs, dynamic Helen Morgan will contribute largely to whatever degree of delight Atlanta audiences derive from George White's "Scandals" this week.

James Montgomery Flagg, from whose pen the world's most beautiful girls emerge almost magically, describes Miss Morgan as "the composite of all the ruined women in the world." Robert Garland would rather hear her sing "Bill" sitting on a piano than to hear Jeritza sing "Tosca" standing on her head.

Percy Hammond, New York theater critic, describes her as a raffish nightingale, and Novelist Edna Ferber sees Helen as an orchid, slightly blighted.

Born in Danville, Ill., she early learned to enjoy sitting on the knee of Uncle Joe Cannon, while listening to him tell stories. Her first public singing was in the choir of her local church where her mother taught a Sunday school class.

Today this great star tells how, at the death of her father, she and her mother had to fight that ever-threatening monster HUNGER. It was hunger that put her to work in a cracker factory; that forced her to wait on tables in a cafe; to keep sparkling the nails of beautiful women upon whom she looked with possibly a little envy; to sell ribbons in a large department store where she was daily wishing that she might have furs and jewels such as her customers wore.

Then came a job singing in a cabaret, followed by dancing in a back line chorus of "Sally." Miss Morgan had no definite ambitions about the stage. She was pushed into stardom by that same ogre, Hunger, which had pursued her through so much of her young life. The stage offered bread and butter, and promised some of the froth of life, so long denied her.

This back-line job in "Sally" followed a vaudeville tour, the result of her having won a beauty contest in 1923. Then came a short engagement in Ziegfeld's "Louis the Fourteenth," followed by more lean days.

It was at Billie Rose's Backstage Club, an upholstered garage on 56th street, that the late Ring Lardner first lifted the young singer to the top of a piano—since in the crowded club that was the only place from which she could be seen—to sing. The girl-on-the-piano became a sensation, packing the club each night, with celebrities and producers. George White, attracted, signed her for the "Scandals of 1925."

Then came other engagements which led to "Show Boat." In signing her for this part, Ziegfeld did not remember her as the "ugly duckling" who had danced in the rear line of "Sally."

Theatrical history was made for Helen Morgan when she sang "Old Man River," "Bill," "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man o' Mine" in her role of Julie, character in Edna Ferber's "Show Boat." Stardom was immediate. Her place in the ether of the playworld was clinched by her part in the motion pictures which followed.

Now, during her performances this week, Atlantans will thrill to Helen's opening song, "Life Begins at Sixteen." The adulation which has long been hers will be revived in her "Lost Love" recapitulation of familiar songs.

Miss Morgan's singing, like her life, is characterized by sincerity. When singing tear-provoking songs, she actually cries, so deep does she feel the emotion she is uttering.

The lean years which the actress experienced possibly explain her present over-generosity. While spending unheard-of sums on personal adornment, she gives extremely large amounts to charity each year. though these donations are never made public.

Getting away from her tousled black silky ringlets, Miss Morgan is now letting her hair grow long. It would be hard to state definitely the color of her eyes, for they are chameleon-like in their changeability. Long, tapering fingers are rouged at the nail, and through sandals—she dislikes stockings—peep toe nails, rouged to match.

This Helen Morgan, whose delicacy in rendition of the rare art which is hers, is destined to bring peals of applause from her Atlanta audiences this week.

Helen Morgan, who had no ambition to become a star, now delights "Scandals" audiences.

"Sing Me a Love Song"

James Melton sings in a picture which, aside from its music, depends for its virtues on the antics of Hugh Herbert, Zasu Pitts, Allen Jenkins and Walter Catlett. Acceptable. Warner Bros.

In James Melton's first picture, made a year or so ago, it became apparent that here was a good looking young man with a nice smile and the nice voice which had made him a favorite of radio fans. The result was pleasant music but not much picture.

In his second picture, he has been surrounded with as many comedians as the story could carry. The result is pleasant music, plus entertainment, plus decoration in the form of Patricia Ellis.

Melton sings, engagingly, half a dozen songs. There are originals by Warren and Dubin and "Carry Me Back to the Lone Prairie." The cowboy song he sings with Zasu Pitts; that is amusing.

The picture is set in a department store, a popular place recently for picture settings. Melton is the playboy owner, Miss Ellis and Miss Pitts are clerks, Walter Catlett is a floorwalker, Allen Jenkins is an elevator operator and Hugh Herbert is a wealthy kleptomaniac who steals nearly as much as the store's customers buy. His name in the picture is Siegfried Hammershlag; that should give a fair idea of the kind of picture it is.

In addition there are Nat Pendleton as Melton's chauffeur; Ann Sheridan as the girl in his life until he meets Miss Ellis; Hobart Cavanaugh as one of Melton's attorneys.

The plot revolves around a scheme of the store managers to force the owner to sell out to them. Melton finally thwarts them after working in the store incognito, becoming friendly with his employes, discovering the plot and saving the day through Miss Ellis' genius by putting the store into a railway train.

In order to give Melton a chance to sing, many of the scenes are in the store's music department.

The story is fully adequate for its purpose—to let Melton sing and to present the entertaining antics of Herbert and Catlett. These two divide most of the honors of the picture.

Randolph Scott—tall an' handsome—appears fascinatin' to Mae West in this scene from "Go West, Young Man."

"Go West, Young Man."

Mae West in a screen adaptation of the stage comedy "Personal Appearance." Acceptable. Major Productions.

A theater-goer always knows where he stands on a Mae West picture. Barring certain details of costume and setting, he knows what he is going to see before the picture begins. And he knows that if he liked her last picture, he will like the next one.

"Go West, Young Man" is no exception. In its original form it was the stage play "Personal Appearance," but it would not have mattered if it had started as "Little Lord Fauntleroy"—it would come out the same. Its main elements are the Westian swivel-gaited walk, the Westian husky voice and the Westian wise-cracks. It differs from other West pictures in that it is modern; during production Miss West told me that it was a relief not to wear corsets.

The story is of a movie actress on a personal appearance tour. Because she is a lady of susceptible emotions, her employer has sent along a press agent to keep her out of matrimony. He successfully disposes of a young politician (Lyle Talbot) and a handsome young inventor (Randolph Scott), but fails to take into account the fact that he is falling in love with the actress himself.

The picture is full of laughs (mostly the result of dialog, which is credited to Miss West) and the action is carried by an able cast. Warren William is the press agent, and there are Alice Brady, with little to do, Elizabeth Patterson, Isabel Jewell as a movie-struck country girl, Etienne Girardot and others.

Miss West sings two songs.

The picture, first of the new company organized by Emanuel Cohen, was directed by Henry Hathaway.

"Smartest Girl in Town."

A Gene Raymond-Ann Sothern picture bolstered by most of the RKO comedians. Acceptable. Radio.

"The Smartest Girl in Town" is the usual boy and girl story in which Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern appear. They make this picture every few weeks. Sometimes Miss Sothern is a rich girl and Raymond is a poor boy; the other times it's vice versa. But the results are always the same: love wins out after an hour of reasonably pleasing entertainment.

In this picture Raymond is a rich young man and Miss Sothern is an advertising model who wants to marry a rich young man. However, she does not know that he is rich and she tries—in vain, naturally—not to fall in love with him.

The picture is bolstered by three dependable comedians, Helen Broderick, Eric Blore and Erik Rhodes. Their antics combined with smart dialog by Viola Brothers Shore make the picture an amusing bit of entertainment.

"Under Your Spell."

Lawrence Tibbett. Acceptable. Twentieth Century-Fox.

"Under Your Spell" follows the formula which Hollywood has evolved for pictures containing great singers. The star sings considerably and acts a little, and the story

Show Doctor

The only known show doctor in radio—a person who can be brought in to inject new life into a drooping vehicle—is Al Goodman, currently on Show Boat. Goodman, who was the most famous of the musical comedy directors, came into radio to speed up a musical program and has been speeding them ever since. He's modest about it. Won't agree that that is what he is hired to do for fear he would hurt the feelings of directors he has supplanted. Just the same, the Goodman treatment has worked on four separate occasions.

CONTENTIONS: Some of our learned colleagues have been guilty of what we term bad judgment. Recently—and possibly because of the insistence of the Hit Parade upon simply scored melodies — there has been some criticism of the elaborate arrangements such dance directors as Rubinoff and Johnny Green prepare for their orchestras. We, however, remain old-fashioned and all for them. We love to sit in our easy chair and wonder indulgently how in the world the brass will get back to the theme without busting something. And we're always agreeably surprised when it does, pleasantly and with a flourish.

Mob Spirit

A visitor to any of the dramatic programs that originate from the New York radio studios is liable to see an unusual sight. The actors themselves are used to it and pay no attention at all.

You won't be able to see it unless the script you are watching happens to call for a mob scene—but if it should, about 10 youngsters ranging from 17 to 21 will file into the studio and stand against a wall. Each will be given a script and, when the time comes, they will play they're a crowd of people. Unlike the regular actors, they need no constant guidance by the director. That's their job—and they can do everything from a pack of bloodhounds to a group of people standing around in a theater lobby between the acts of an opening night.

A man by the name of Clifton Self—who used to be an actor but now devotes all his time to his mobs—is responsible for this. The youngsters are boys and girls in or just out of dramatic school and all are keeping their eyes open for an actual job as an actor or actress.

Self is pretty proud of them. Says the fact that they can walk into a studio and do a job, then walk out again without having spoken to hardly anyone, is a testimonial to their ability. And ability, he adds sturdily, is required.

The best number, he has found, is 10 or 12 people. More than that—unless you're doing a political rally or a football game—are cumbersome. Fewer don't have the body and feel.

Directors think the youngsters are best at imitating a street throng (they do that this way: The 10 or 12 stay back and talk about the weather and two detach themselves at intervals and walk by the microphone, talking about the weather, also) or imitating a crowd gathering around an injured person (they do that by moving one at a time up to the microphone and saying over and over in an undertone, "Stop pushing" and "Give him air").

Self thinks they're good at everything. He's particularly pleased with the groups that have mastered the dialects so that they can do foreign mobs.

Self's secretary, a pretty girl named Jerry Orman, goes out on all the jobs and leads the groups. She's very good, he says. Keeps an eye on the director in the control room and seems to know by intuition whether the mob is being angry or surprised or enthusiastic enough. Enthusiasm is about the toughest emotion to handle. It's always better when backed by a sound effects record of people cheering.

Self has turned out a couple of fine people in the past. Chester Stratton, who is now on the O'Neill's over NBC is one; Frank Woodruff, who is in the movies, is another.

Musical Camera

You can believe us when we tell you that the idea attracting most comment among musical circles—and the only one wherein music has been able to slip into the new-found interest in the lives of people—is the Musical Camera directed by Josef Cherniavski over NBC on Sunday afternoons. Lots of music in that sentence, but then there is a lot on the program, too.

Cherniavski is a conductor who has been extremely popular in Chicago for the past few years. When he got his big notion—which is to pick out the outstanding stories each week and present them in music with dialog spotted where needed—he dropped his theater work and came to New York. Apparently he was a little cagey about taking it to established advertisers or agencies. He sold a company that had never even considered the idea of radio merchandising, instead.

We watched him rehearse his first program and found him an interesting worker. Lots of jumping around and smiles and shouts and one often-repeated phrase which he uses to introduce a suggestion. "Let's understand each other," he says.

The conductor almost produces his show himself. He tries to pick episodes each week that will fall into the four general classifications of pathos, mystery, humor and romance; and, as is typical of musicians who suddenly become production men, he showed one amusing reaction during his first rehearsal. A violinist was supposed to give imitations of Heifetz, the great violin virtuoso, as a child, then as a man and master. Cherniavski was much more pleased with the gruesome squawking the fiddle produced in imitation of the boy than he was in the tender and rounded tones it produced in imitating Heifetz the man.

CONFIRMATION: A couple of months ago, we predicted that Harry Baldwin, the man who acts as Jack Benny's secretary, would sort of fill in the void caused by Sam Hearn's departure for Show Boat. Harry has been on every week since the program started and it makes him the only comedy stooge who doesn't pep up his voice with a funny accent or a strange way of saying things. Baldwin talks like folks. The fellow who does the dialect parts is Patsy Flick, a writer who has turned comedian at Benny's request. Pardon us while we gloat.

Slice of Life

Trouble House is the serial story in drama you should wait for at the end of the Magazine of the Air, which you can hear for an hour each Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning over CBS.

It's all about adventures on a farm run by Martha Booth, a kindly old lady who has a host of pleasant and unpleasant relatives. Ann Elstner plays the part of Martha Booth. Over the air, she sounds about 55. You'd think she was fat and would feel undressed without an apron around her ample middle. Actually, she's a slim brunet who prefers sport clothes.

Elsie Mae Gordon plays the role of Phoebe, Martha Booth's maid, and

Elsie Mae Gordon

Gretchen Davidson, Dorothy Lowell and Carleton Young play Sally, Nancy and Bill. Nancy, you'll find out, is 15 years old and has an awful crush on Bill. Bill doesn't look twice at her because he's in love with her older sister, Sally. Sally is mad about herself. That's life and the young folks for you.

The cast has its own separate studio for rehearsal. Doesn't mix with the regular Magazine of the Air cast at all. It works in Studio 2 under the direction of Henry Heyward. The musicians—Leith Stevens, Reed Kennedy, Delmar Edmondson and the guest stars—get together in Studio 1.

WISDOM: Milton Cross, the NBC announcer who is famous for his children programs, says gravely that if anything is ever done to help this world of ours, our kids are going to do it.

Cross conducts a program every Saturday morning that falls into the audience participation idea by having kids come into the studio and talk about their problems. It's called Raising Your Parents. He decided they were extra-smart after attending one of the meetings they hold with a director of the Child Study Association.

The things they talked about were little puzzles they hadn't been able to solve, and it was obvious to Cross that they were most interested in fairness. Half of the children present were professional children. One—a little girl—had a button pinned to her dress which read "Make Jobs — Return Actors to the Theater."

And there was a sharp definition between the thinking of the two groups. When one child said she wanted a dress and couldn't have it, the professional kids said earn money and get it—the non-professionals thought she could make it.

The kids—different ones each week—spend an hour talking over things. The script for the next week is written from notes taken as they talk.

Theme Song

Every afternoon at 4:30, Howard Barlow goes to the restaurant in the CBS building, props a score against a sugar bowl, and tells the waiter, "My regular lunch, please."

He formed the habit a long time ago—back when he began supplying the music for the March of Time—and it was once a peaceful way of working and eating at the same time.

Not long ago, though, the restaurant hired Dick Wade, a pianist, to entertain the customers; and every afternoon at a quarter to five, Dick swings out with a hot tune or plays a little Bach for the radio people. He also identifies everyone he sees with a little theme song.

Ted Husing gets a football song. Virginia Verrill rates a blues number. Barlow wasn't discovered for several days, but when he was, Wade decided that, because the maestro was so very good, he must have a special song. It's a famous tune known only to musicians. It's conceded to be the musical way of giving someone the raspberries.

Barlow caught on that first time and he laughed. So now he hears it, with variations, during every one of his "regular lunches." He doesn't mind the song, but he can't study his score. Every time he tries to read a page, he hears Wade working out a new treatment of the raspberries. He says it acts like a guilty conscience.

VOCATIONAL ADVICE: Eddie East and Ralph Dumke are two fat gentlemen who make fun for the housewives over the CBS network. They started doing it 11 years ago as Sisters of the Skillet, and have been at it ever since. However, they are now called the Quality Twins. And instead of kidding people with fake recipes they do it by letting men who are afraid to say things to their wives get them off their chests on their program.

They had a tough time getting into radio. After they did—which was in Chicago—they had a tough time staying on the station because every time a new manager was hired, they were fired.

They licked that in a very unusual way though, come to think of it. It was probably because they are both crazy. The last time they got fired, they looked at each other and shook their heads sadly and walked immediately to one of the busiest corners in the Chicago Loop. There they stood chanting "East and Dumke are fired again."

It sounds screwy, but the manager of another station actually walked by and heard them. The next day, he called to ask what the gag was and was told righteously that neither the Easts nor the Dumkes ever gag. He hired them and has, fortunately, kept his job ever since.

Relative

At a recent rehearsal, Nelson Eddy noticed a slim and dark-haired young lady who sang in his chorus listening intently as Josef Pasternack's orchestra played a Rudolf Friml composition.

"Like that?" he asked.

She nodded, still listening. "My father wrote it," she said.

Eddy was rather surprised at that. He even called people up and told them that Lucile Friml was singing on his program under her married name, Mrs. William Days.

The composer's daughter used to be a blues singer, she says. Liked it, too. That was when she was doing a collegiate act with Rudolf, Jr., her brother, and Days, her husband. Her father won her around to creative music by telling her that it was better suited to her voice.

Incidentally, her favorite song is "Lover, Come Back to Me." That was written by Sigmund Romberg.

way and flagged two cars, neither of which stopped. As I ran to the highway I threw the gun on the east side of the road and my watch on the west side. I had my wallet in my pocket until the second car went to Oregon. Then I threw it down after taking the money out of it—two dollars and some change."

He went on to describe the scene with the Molzahns, the arrival of the officers, etc.

"I don't know why I killed my wife," he continued. "I have been driven to it for the last six years—a living hell. I had no real home—just a home for my wife's sister. My wife and I hadn't lived together as man and wife for six years (they had been married 11 years next December) because she thonght my rheumatism was caused by syphilis (actually he had syphilis) which she read about in an old doctor's book.

"I asked my wife to come with me to the doctor who examined me for the rheumatism and be convinced I did not have syphilis, as it was put in her head by her sister. She never let me clear up this and prove it.

"I have tried to get her to live with me alone but she said she couldn't stay alone, that she wanted to be with her sister. So after her mother died I told her something would have to be done, that she would have to go with me, or I would go alone.

"We spoke of divorce several times. We'd had an understanding ever since our marriage that if either one of us became dissatisfied we would separate. She agreed to this, not more than three weeks ago.

"This Tuesday night I shot her I told her if she would get a divorce soon I would foot the expenses. We agreed to see Francis Burchell and have him straighten this out. We didn't get that far. I don't know why I did it—shot her—before getting there."

Then the confession was signed, and deputies had found the gun at the murder scene, Sheriff DeLos Blanchard allowed Frances Birch to visit the prisoner. They were alone for a few minutes, the last time she saw him until she took the stand in his trial.

* * *

The trial—first murder case to reach a jury in Ogle county since 1843—got under way October 12 before Judge Harry Edwards in the circuit court at Oregon.

Tallmadge appeared almost as waxen in pallor as the former subjects at the undertaking establishment. He suffered attacks of nausea and needed injections between sessions. He was placed on a milk diet. On the day of the opening statements he was examined by Dr. W. S. Bowen, appointed by the court, and spent the rest of the day on a stretcher, borrowed from the local hearse.

Accused's Condition Causes Trial Recesses.

Outside of court Defense Attorney Knight explained that physicians had made a spinal puncture the previous week to determine whether Tallmadge was a victim of paresis, the final stage of syphilis, in which insanity is present. The test proved negative, with the accompanying symptoms of extreme nausea. The fluid showed an increased number of cells, however, which indicated cerebral arteriosclerosis, probably due to syphilis.

Judge Edwards declared frequent recesses throughout the trial. The lunch intervals were lengthened so that Tallmadge might rest in his cell and regain some strength. Meanwhile his attorney went fishing in the Rock river a block from the courthouse.

In his opening, State's Attorney Crowell sketched the progress of the defendant's swift courtship of Mrs. Birch, whom he met when he bought an electric razor in the drug store. He declared that the crime was planned, and was committed without provocation after 18 years of married life. He asserted Tallmadge and his wife lived together and slept in the same bed up to and including the night of May 18.

Defense Attorney Knight said that because of the ravages of disease on his mind, and because of his age, Tallmadge "could no longer resist the wiles of women," and that Mrs. Birch "little by little won her way into his good graces" until she obtained an engagement ring from him.

Tallmadge, said his lawyer, had been forgetful and irritable for two years. "This man's work took him among dead bodies and he was an expert in his line," he said. "He had occasion to handle hundreds of bodies in his work in one of the largest undertaking establishments in Rockford, where he'd been employed for 14 years. The establishment caters to people of the highest character. His work was satisfactory but it slipped, so that they removed him from his real profession and let him drive a hearse."

His client's belief that his wife and in-laws were persecuting him was unfounded, Knight continued. This belief had been brought on, said the lawyer, by mental illness and a general breakdown.

The defendant heard the first witnesses while still on the stretcher. Later he was able to sit up. The Molzahns told their story, Coroner Atkins testified, and then a pawnshop proprietor told of the purchase of the guns.

Star Witness Stays Locked in Hotel Room.

Fred Imbau identified the written confession, and told how he obtained it. Under cross-examination he admitted that he used a lie detector. The confession was admitted into evidence over strenuous objections.

Meanwhile Mrs. Birch, a star witness for the prosecution, had been installed in the Sinnissippi hotel in Oregon. She remained secreted from the eyes of the commercial travelers in the lobby. She locked herself in Room 3, which was without bath.

Room service in the Sinnissippi was a luxury, but the sole day-and-night clerk performed yoeman service for the mahogany-haired widow. Periodically he made his way up the one flight of stairs carrying trays of food, and treated her with marked solicitousness. But business at the hotel increased so much he finally had to post a notice on his desk after retiring. "Am full up. No rooms. I am going to bed. Bert."

Mrs. Birch grew restive and, one day early in the trial, she leaned out of her window and espied Special Assistant Prosecutor Fred Gardner, of Rochelle. It was a lovely Indian summer afternoon, and the world outside looked most alluring. She called to Gardner and he came up.

Gardner, who is widely known as a football referee in Western conference games, sympathized with the bored witness. He obtained State's Attorney Crowell's consent, and told her that the state of Illinois would not only let her go to Rock Island for the night, but would supply her with a car and a driver.

More than that, they dug up a nice escort for her—25-year-old Millard Cole, an attendant at a filling station.

Mrs. Birch Removes Glases—by Request.

Cole took her home that night and called for her the next morning. When she returned to the hotel at noon, dashing past photographers, she wore a tailored black suit, black felt hat, black gloves and, to complete the ensemble, a black handkerchief. She also wore dark glasses.

Her escort returned to his filling station and did a thriving business for the rest of the day.

Mrs. Birch finally took the stand when the trial entered its second week. She wore a brown ensemble, and her eyes were still concaled behind dark glasses. As soon as it came Knight's turn to cross-examine, he demanded that she remove the glasses. She protested but the court directed her to comply.

She looked appealingly at Judge Edwards, after she took off the glasses, and he arose and stood peering at her over the bench. He maintained this standing position during most of her appearance on the stand.

Knight brought out that after her second marriage and before she met Tallmadge the dark-eyed widow "kept company with five or six single men," and that she had had single dates with others. She "dropped them" if they were married, she said.

The defense attorney continued:

Q. You know that you are a woman of more than passing fair appearance? A. (demurely) I wouldn't be a judge of that.

Q. And you know that Tallmadge was of an age when his resistance to the wiles of women was lowered? A. I don't know anything about that.

Q. Was that an engagement ring he gave you? A. No, merely a token of his sincerity.

Q. Did you ever tell any one, "No, I am not in love with him. All I care about is a home and maybe I can get that out of him?" A. I don't rememper.

Admits Loving Him "As Well as I Could."

Q. When you went with him to visit his chicken farm a few weeks before May 19 it was as his prospective bride, who would live there? A. His bride, when he got his divorce, yes.

Then, in thundering tones, Attorney Knight asked: "Mrs. Birch, were you in love with Guy Tallmadge?"

"Why," she faltered, casting her liquid brown eyes down, "I always respected him highly. He was always a gentleman."

Q. Did you love him? A. That is difficult—

Attorney Knight requested that she answer "Yes" or "No" and the court instructed that she should. Her voice caught as she replied:

"Yes, as well as I could."

* * *

Tallmadge did not testify. Defense testimony was limited largely to physicians and his superior in the undertaking parlor, who stated in a lugubrious voice that Tallmadge had been a cheerful, bright person until two years ago, when he became forgetful and slovenly in his work.

Tallmadge "Didn't Know Right From Wrong."

Dr. William Van De Steeg, of Rockford, said that in 1932 he treated the defendant for syphilis, that he showed by blood tests that he was in the third stage of the disease, and that he ceased treatments after receiving 10. A few months prior to the tragedy Dr. Van De Steeg had again examined the patient and found him to be suffering actively from the malady.

He described "the inevitable course of syphilis in the human body," including the third stage, with its accompanying mental and nervous disturbances. A tremendous ego, a Napoleonic complex and delusions of grandeur are common effects. In the opinion of the witness, Guy Tallmadge did not know right from wrong when he shot his wife.

Dr. Egbert Fell, widely known psychiatrist, of Rockford, who had been retained by the defense to make the spinal puncture, testified as to the results of that test. Asked a long hypothetical question, he said that in his opinion such a man as described—one intended to approximate the defendant—could distinquish between right and wrong but "was not fully responsible mentally and emotionally," due to the effects of cerebral arteriosclerosis.

There was a dramatic incident during Prosecutor Gardner's summation. He had just declared that "the hand of public opinion will push the button which starts the electric chair," when Mrs. Amy Dailey, sister of the murdered woman, cried out, "And I should be the first to press the button!"

The jurors—all of them married—took five ballots swinging from four votes for death, five for life and three for a less severe prison sentence, to a final agreement on a life verdict.

Thus Justice triumphed, but—what was it he said? . . .

"The man who did that ought to burn."

is carried by a decorative young woman and a cast of capable comedians.

In this case the great singer is Lawrence Tibbett, the decorative young woman is Wendy Barrie and the capable comedians are Gregory Ratoff and Arthur Treacher. The combination gives very acceptable entertainment.

Tibbett is cast as a young singer whose life is run by a manager and a stop-watch. He can't smoke, he can't drink, he can't sleep with a window open and when he isn't singing he is posing for advertising photographs. Finally he rebels and flees to a ranch in New Mexico, but he can't escape. There comes a girl, a spoiled, wealthy girl, who has bet that she can get him to sing at a party. If she loses the bet she must marry an ardent nobleman. There follow several amusing scenes, ending in court, in which the singer refuses to help her. But she does not marry the nobleman.

This is by no means the most pretentious of the Tibbett pictures, but it is one of the most entertaining. Given excellent direction by Otto Ludwig Preminger, Tibbett handles his acting job capably. Ratoff, playing much the same part he had in "Sing, Baby Sing," and Treacher are consistently amusing.

"Wanted: Jane Turner."

Lee Tracy in a cops and robbers story based on the activities of United States postoffice inspectors. RKO-Radio.

"Wanted: Jane Turner" is noteworthy only for a performance by Lee Tracy in the role of a government agent. Tracy is still one of the screen's most capable actors, and in his specialty he is tops.

The picture combines the "Grand Hotel" formula, as applied to a postal general delivery window, with the routine cops and robbers routine. The result is divided interest which breaks the picture's back; most of the window sequences have nothing to do with the story.

Tracy, however, is interesting as a fast-talking but soft-hearted G-man, and Gloria Stuart is lovely to look at and competent as his secretary; or maybe she should be called a G-woman. Others in the cast are Paul Guilfoyle as a gangster, Judith Blake (formerly Shaindel Kalish, then Ann Preston) and John McGuire as a young couple innocently involved in the gangster hunt, Barbara Pepper as a "moll," Frank Thomas, Irene Franklin, Patrician Wilder and Willard Robertson.

Recent pictures which have been reviewed and recommended in Screen & Radio Weekly are as follows: "Romeo and Juliet" (M-G-M); "Anthony Adverse" (Warner Bros.); "The Road to Glory" (Twentieth Century-Fox); "My Man Godfrey" (Universal); "Give Me Your Heart" (Warner Bros.); "Nine Days a Queen" (Gaumont-British); "Mary of Scotland" (RKO-Radio); "Girls' Dormitory" (Twentieth Century-Fox); "Sing, Baby Sing" (Twentieth Century-Fox); "Stage Struck" (Warner Bros.); "The Texas Rangers" (Paramount); "Swing Time" (RKO-Radio); "The Gorgeous Hussy" (M-G-M); "Old Hutch" (M-G-M); "The General Died at Dawn" (Paramount); "Wives Never Know" (Paramount); "The Devil Is a Sissy" (M-G-M); "Dodsworth" (Goldwyn-United Artists); "Ramona" (Twentieth Century-Fox); "Craig's Wife" (Columbia); "The Longest Night" (M-G-M); "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie" (Paramount); "The Gay Desperado" (Pickford-Lasky).

BONERS

Are we supposed to become so interested in the plots of various pictures that we are blind to all else? That poor cake of Merle Oberon's in "These Three," where they went to the carnival, had more colors than a chameleon, first chocolate, then white, then—

And did you know that Claude Rains and Anita Louise can vanish like the Hindu in the rope trick? In "Anthony Adverse" Don Luis is taking Maria to his chateau, and after the coach turns in the gate—Lo! There is no one in it, and yet, when the coach pulls up at the door, they step out!

● When you feel a cold coming on, the wise thing to do is get to bed and rub "BEN-GAY" plentifully on chest and back and cover with an old gown or pajama top.

My, how "BEN-GAY" will break up that congestion and open the air passages—let you breathe more comfortably.

Stay in bed if you can, and repeat daily. Nobody knows the cure for a cold, but this will greatly shorten the duration and keep you comfortable in the meantime.

This 40-year-old formula of Dr. Jules Bengué, of Paris, has worked wonders for millions. New thousands turn to it daily. Be sure to ask for and get BAUME "BEN-GAY."

AMERICAN STEAMER BREAKS IN TWO. The S. S. Bessemer City, of New York, shown after she broke in two on a rock off the English coast. The crew of 33 persons were rescued.

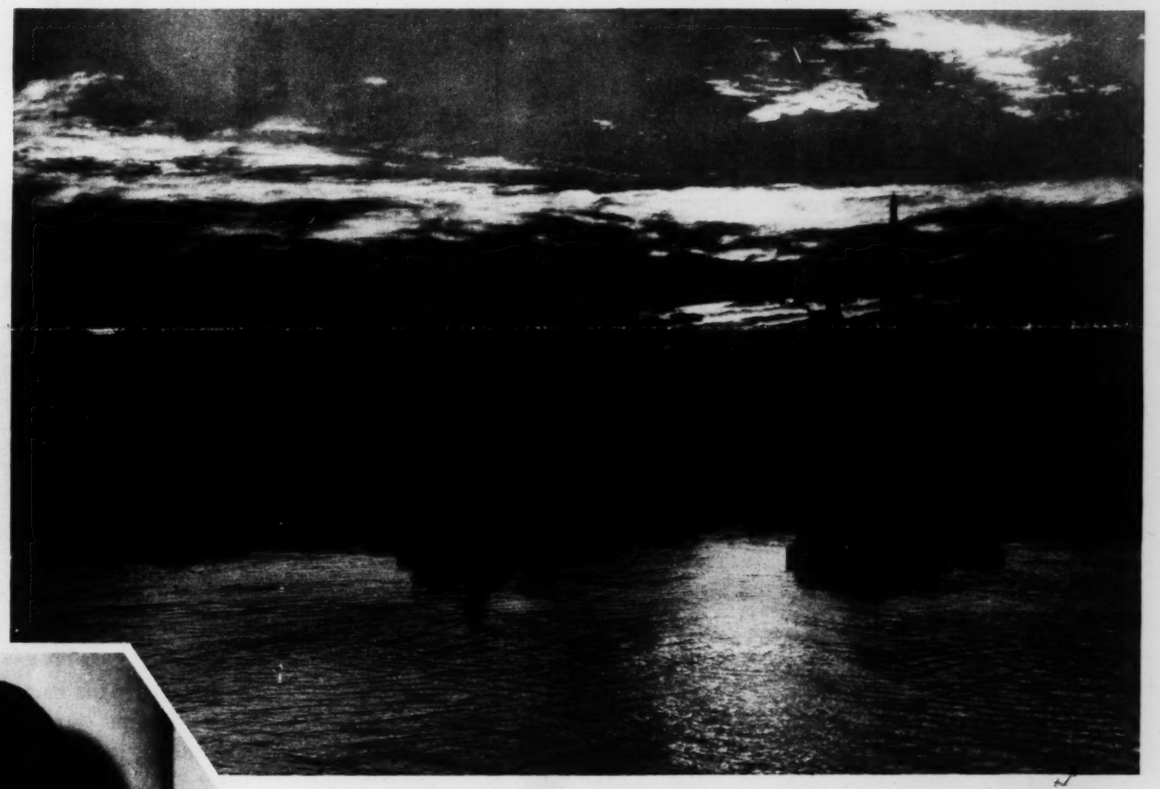

TURKEY QUEEN. Northwestern Turkey Growers' Association has chosen Jeanette Clawson, of Salt Lake City, to present a turkey to President Roosevelt for his Thanksgiving dinner.

"HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN." With President Roosevelt reelected and prosperity returning, Joan Crawford, star of "Love on the Run," like millions of other Americans, is turning her attention to the Thanksgiving feast.

CUTEST ANIMALS IN THE WORLD, are the koala, or Australian bears. They become very tame but will not live if removed from their native haunts. In the photo a mother koala rides her baby on her back.

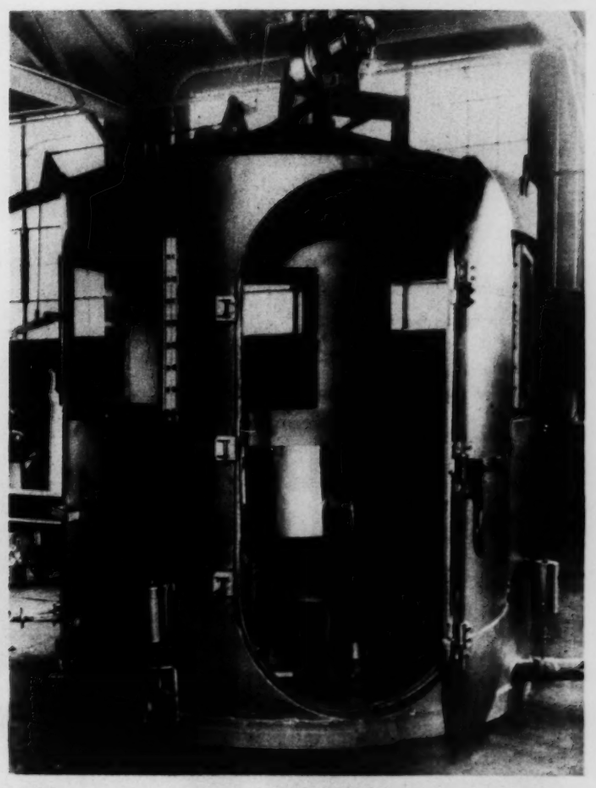

DAWN OVER MANHATTAN. This picture of sunrise over New York city was taken from the liner Queen Mary, as she steamed up the Hudson river to her dock.

MRS. W. W. STANLEY, of Knoxville, has been granted a permit by the government to stage a hunt for the ferocious Russian boars that are roaming in the Cherokee National park in east Tennessee.

WYOMING'S NEW DEATH CHAMBER. Quick death will come to Wyoming's condemned prisoners in this new-type gas chamber.

HERE'S A NICE MODEL FOR ONLY $30,000. This simple little wrap of silver fox lined with ermine was featured at the recent fur show in New York.

THE FIRST LADY OF THE LAND, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wears a formal evening gown of silver and white moire, square decolletage in front, with a jeweled V rising to the shoulder straps. The short train is correct.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES F. S. SMITH, pictured following their recent marriage in Washington, D. C. He is the son of Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina.

TO SUCCEED ZIONCHECK. Warren Magnuson, Democrat, of Seattle, who will take the seat in congress left vacant by the suicide of Marion Zioncheck, America's most sensational legislative representative.

Thru the years...
pure refreshment-
pure as sunlight

We'd call it quaint today, this early Coca-Cola bottling plant—a forerunner of more than a thousand modern plants that serve America's millions today.

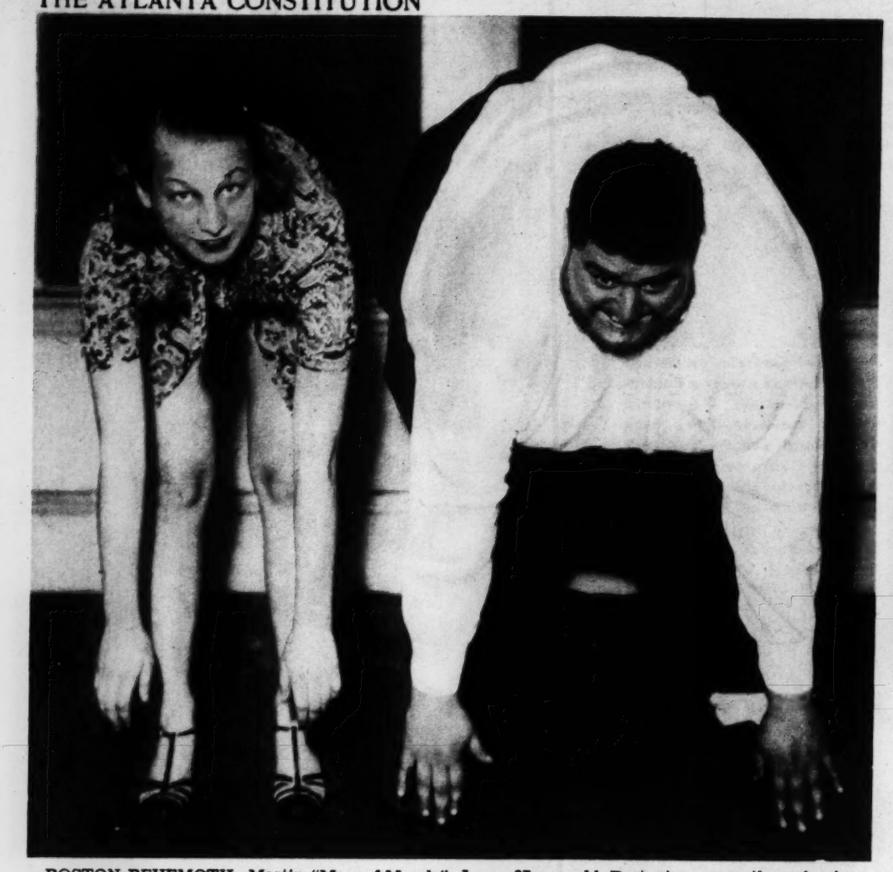

Every bottle is sterilized. Modern methods and machines protect the purity of Coca-Cola. Nothing you eat or drink is more carefully safeguarded.

The familiar red cooler is a favorite place to pause . . . a place where the pause that refreshes with ice-cold Coca-Cola makes the whole world kin.

BOSTON BEHEMOTH. Martin "Mass-of-Muscle" Levy, 27-year-old Bostonian, goes through rigorous training to keep his weight down to a mere 625 pounds as he prepares for an assault upon the world heavyweight wrestling crown. His manager and trainer, Miss Frances Sothern, is shown at left.

MISS JUDY KING, nationally known Atlanta equestrienne, and Miss Frances Dodge, also prominent in horse circles, pictured at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden, New York city, where they were the outstanding contenders.

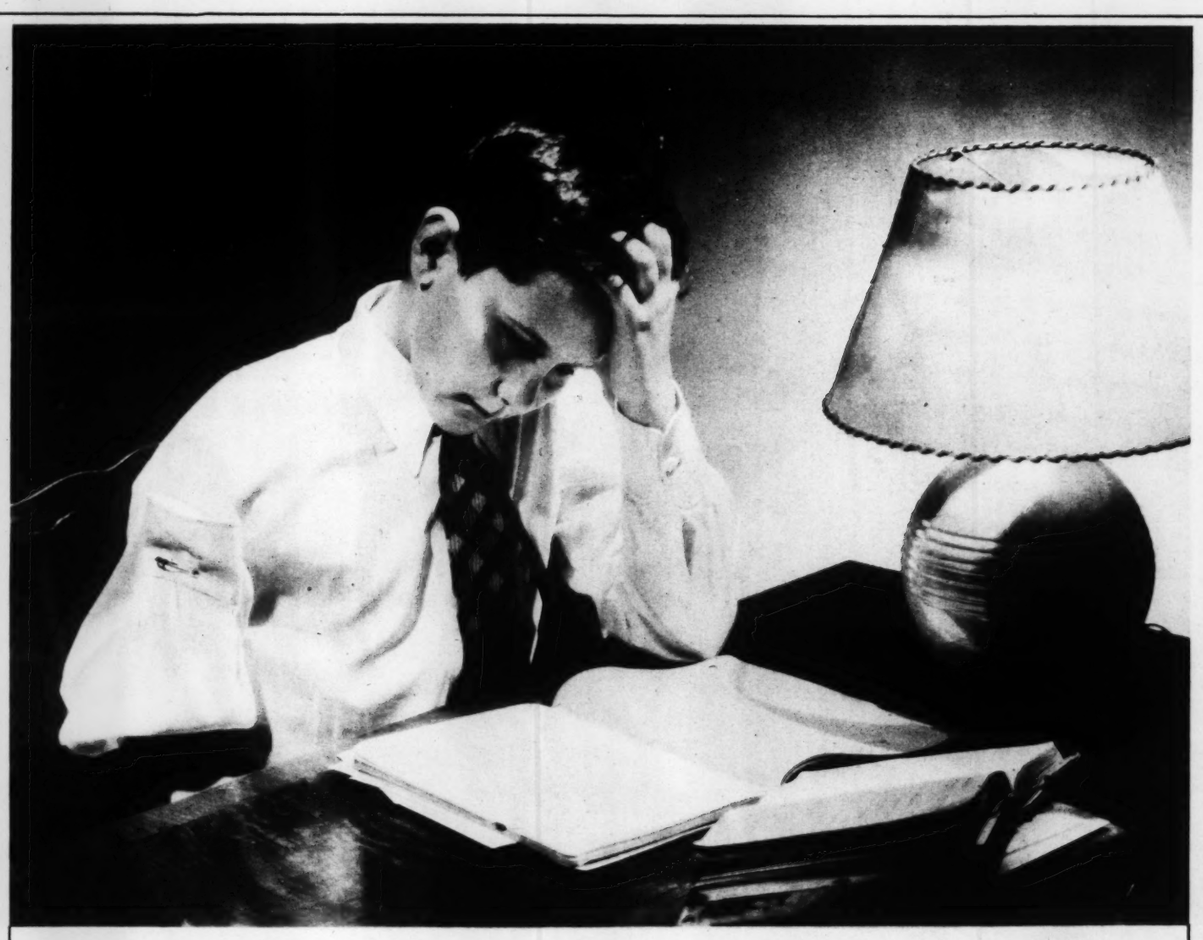

CLOTHES TO MATCH YOUR FURNITURE. Upholstery brocade in two shades of dull blue makes this smart evening coat. The simplicity of the fitted bodice and full sweep of the skirt enhance the beauty of the fabric.

GULLS. One of the most beautiful camera studies of the year is this picture of seagulls at sunset, taken at Provincetown, Mass.

YARDLEY OF LONDON

Proclaiming the opening of one of the year's most important events—the Yardley Christmas shopping season! Private view (to which you are cordially invited!) here and now—upon this page of new, 1936 Bond Street-flavored gift sets! Opening tomorrow—in finer stores everywhere! Well in advance of the season of old-fashioned frenzy, make your selections in peace and joy from among literally hundreds of these inspired, aristocratic Christmas messengers—enough to fill your entire list without a single doubt or hesitation! Prices from a mere $1.25 to $30—yet the smallest platinum-finished lipstick is as redolent of distinguished taste as the whole Christmas-lavender-perfumed contents of a duchess' dressing-table. Each of them calculated to make this Christmas live in the memory of your friends, as gay and heart-warming as Mr. Pickwick's own. Yardley & Co., Ltd., 620 Fifth Ave. (Rockefeller Center), New York; 33, Old Bond St., London; Paris; Toronto; Sydney.

Gentleman's Luxury Kit, complete with the coveted Yardley Shaving Bowl, After-shaving Lotion, Invisible Talc, Hair Dressing and Lavender Soap—all redolent of the purlieus of artistocratic St. James. In perfect taste, at a perfect price $5

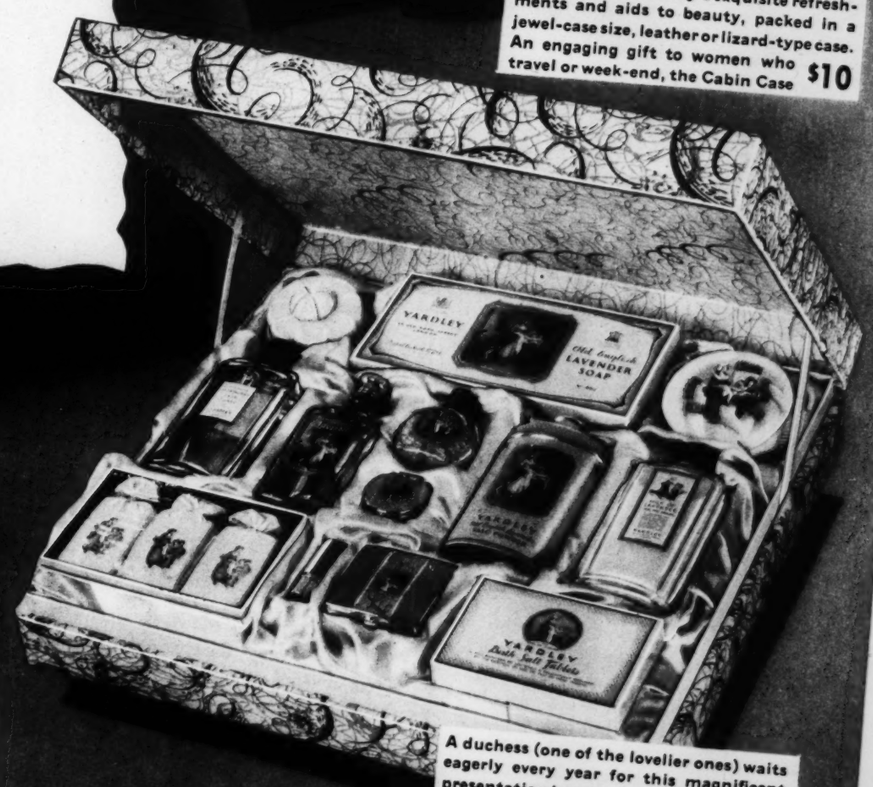

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY QUEEN MARY

A little Bond Street traveling companion that is seen in the best company all over the world. All Yardley's exquisite refreshments and aids to beauty, packed in a jewel-case size, leather or lizard-type case. An engaging gift to women who travel or week-end, the Cabin Case $10

Golden Beauty Charms for gift tokens—an inspiration for the many small, casually impressive feminine gifts one likes to scatter. From among many suggestions, Yardley's Single Compact (also with loose powder) at $1.10. Yardley's handsome Single Vanity at $1.50. And Yardley's Double gold-finished Compact (with loose powder also) at $1.85

The Royal Gift for men, welcomed from Maine to Medicine Hat. Famous Yardley Shaving Bowl, flanked by the masculine-approved luxuries, Yardley After-shaving Lotion and Yardley Invisible Talc, in their most kingly Bond Street wrappings. And the price? Very proletarian $2.85

A duchess (one of the lovelier ones) waits eagerly every year for this magnificent presentation box of all the Lavender items for bath, beauty and complexion. Over here, also, it's a breath-taking gift and costs only $14.85

Salute to
A Cherished Neighbor

This Company feels a peculiar love and admiration for Tallulah Falls Industrial School, a sort of affectionate kinship that comes with long association. For twenty-three of the school's twenty-seven years, we have been privileged to grow alongside and in close friendship with "The Light in the Mountains." Just four years after the first small school building was opened at Tallulah Falls—our Tallulah Falls electric power plant first began providing light and power to north Georgia. Since that time, both of us have grown. Enthusiastically we applaud Tallulah Falls Industrial School for its part in making our state a better state to live in—and hope that our own efforts may in some measure permit us to share in that ideal of service.

IN THE ARCTIC'S ICY CLUTCH!

BY SIR HUBERT WILKINS—FAMOUS ARCTIC EXPLORER

FOR HIS FEARLESS EXPLOITS IN ADVANCING SCIENCE, WILKINS WAS KNIGHTED BY HIS KING

WE WERE FLYING IN THE MOST DANGEROUS SECTOR IN THE ARCTIC, IN A WILDERNESS OF JAGGED ICE! FOR TWO HOURS, WE'D BEEN CLAWING STRAIGHT INTO THE TEETH OF A HOWLING BLIZZARD

SUDDENLY THE MOTOR CUT OUT—

THE GAS TANKS ARE BONE-DRY

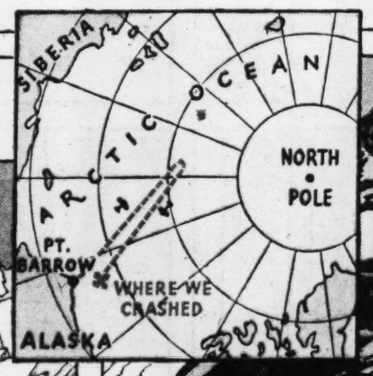

GLIDE AS FAR AS YOU CAN—THEN BRACE FOR THE CRASH!

THE PLANE DROPPED THROUGH THE INKY INFERNO OF THE STORM—TOWARD THE PINNACLES OF PACK ICE. WE STRUCK! MIRACULOUSLY A FINGER OF ICE CAUGHT THE WING FABRIC. WE WERE SAFE, BUT THE PLANE WAS A TOTAL WRECK

I FIX OUR POSITION AT 72°30' N. LAT. AND 155° E. LONG.

THE RADIO'S NOT GETTING THROUGH

SUNRISE THE NEXT DAY WE FOUND OURSELVES STRANDED ON AN ICE FLOE——97 MILES AWAY FROM THE NEAREST LAND

TUCK IN YOUR BELT. FROM NOW ON WE LIVE ON 12 OUNCES OF FOOD A DAY!

BUT WE SMOKE. I MADE SURE OUR CAMELS ARE IN THAT WATER-TIGHT SEALSKIN PACK ALONG WITH THE FOOD

WE DRIFTED HELPLESSLY FOR 5 DAYS, WAITING FOR THE OPEN WATER LEADS TO FREEZE FOR OUR LONG TREK OVER THE ICE. WE COULD CARRY ONLY BARELY ENOUGH FOOD TO SUPPORT LIFE. AT LAST THE TEMPERATURE FELL TO 30° BELOW ZERO

ANOTHER LEAD—JUST FROZEN TOO! WAIT HERE WHILE I SEE IF IT'S SOLID ENOUGH TO HOLD US

WE HAD HOPED TO WALK—ACTUALLY WE HAD TO CRAWL PAINFULLY OVER THE UP-ENDED ICE BLOCKS—WADE WAIST DEEP THROUGH DRIFT SNOW

FOOT BY FOOT I EASED OVER THE SPONGY ICE. WITHIN 3 YARDS OF SAFETY, I TURNED TO WAVE TO MY COMPANION—THEN THE ICE GAVE WAY!

I SANK UNDER THE ICE SHELF, BUT SOMEHOW MANAGED TO HOOK THE EDGE WITH MY ICE PICK. I PULLED MYSELF OUT——AND ROLLED TO SAFETY

ONLY PEMMICAN AND DRY BISCUIT—BUT A FEW CAMELS MAKE IT TASTE GOOD AND FEEL GOOD INSIDE!

YOU BET! THE TOUGHER THE GOING, THE MORE I APPRECIATE THEIR CHEERY 'LIFT'

LOOK—— THERE'S SMOKE!

YES! AND SOLID EARTH—WARMTH—REST—AND GOOD FOOD ONCE MORE!

SIR HUBERT WILKINS

AN EXPLORER NEEDS GOOD DIGESTION. I FIND THAT CAMELS ADD GUSTO TO MY MEALS AND BRING ME A GREAT FEELING OF WELL-BEING. AND CAMELS NEVER GET ON MY NERVES

THEY ALL SAY: "CAMELS SET YOU RIGHT!" LIKE SIR HUBERT WILKINS, FRANK BUCK, GENE SARAZEN, COL. ROSCOE TURNER, BILL TILDEN, AND MILLIONS OF OTHERS—YOU, TOO, WILL FIND THAT CAMELS SET YOU RIGHT! ENJOY THEM OFTEN...AT MEALTIMES FOR THEIR AID TO DIGESTION—INCREASE IN ALKALINITY...AT ALL TIMES FOR THEIR CHEERY "LIFT," THEIR MATCHLESS FLAVOR AND MILDNESS.

CAMELS ARE MADE FROM FINER, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—TURKISH AND DOMESTIC—THAN ANY OTHER POPULAR BRAND.

HEY- GINGER- LOOK WHO'S ACROSS TH' STREET-

YES- I SEE THEM-

THAT'S "SNORTY" SMITH, THE RACKET BOSS, AND "SLUGGER" JAKE AND "TURTLE" PEOTONE AND "BOMBER" MIKE-

YES- AND THEY'RE WATCHING US- I HOPE I DON'T KNOW WHY-

GUESS WE'LL HAVE THE ANSWER TO THAT ONE SOON ENOUGH- HERE COMES "SLUGGER" JAKE NOW-

HM-M-- SO NOTHING IS TOO LOW FOR THEM NOW, EH?

BUY A FLOWER, MISTER?

HA! HA! THAT'S A GOOD ONE, GINGER- WHY NOT? SURE- HERE'S A BUCK- KEEP TH' CHANGE-

GIVIN' ME TH' INNOCENT DODGE, EH? WELL, I HAPPEN TO BE CHECKIN' UP ON PEDDLERS- WHERE'S YER LICENSE?

RIGHT HERE, "SLUGGER", IF IT'S ANYTHING TO YOU-

YEAH- PRETTY PIECE O' PAPER, AIN'T IT? BUT IT DON'T PROTECT YUH IF SOME MOB DECIDES TO MUSCLE IN HERE AND SPOIL YER GAME-

'GAME? I'M SELLING FLOWERS- AND NOBODY SO FAR HAS INTERFERED WITH ME OR TRIED TO SPOIL MY BUSINESS-

WELL, GINGER- YOU BEEN LUCKY- BUT IT AIN'T GOIN' TO LAST-

THERE'S A MOB OUT TO GRAB YER BUSINESS- SEE? AND I, FOR ONE, WON'T STAND FOR IT- THAT'S WHY I'M SEEIN' YUH- WE'RE ORGANIZIN' A PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION FOR PEDDLERS LIKE YOU-

I GET IT-

SURE YOU DO, GINGER- YOU'RE SMART- I LIKE YUH, SEE? THAT'S WHY I'M MAKIN' YUH A RATE- FIVE BUCKS A WEEK STARTIN' TO DAY, AND NOBODY'LL BOTHER YUH-

I'LL THINK IT OVER-

YEAH? THINK FAST, THEN- YUH GOT ABOUT FIVE SECONDS TO MAKE UP YER MIND-

THAT'S WHAT YOU THINK, PUNK-

HELLO, CHUCK-

OH- HELLO, DUMB COPPER- GUESS YUH DON'T KNOW WHO I AM-

YEAH- I KNOW WHO YOU ARE, "SLUGGER" AND I KNOW YOUR PALS ACROSS TH' STREET- SCRAM, BEFORE I LIQUIDATE TH' LOT O' YE-

HAROLD GRAY 11-22-36

GEE- CHUCK SURE TOLD HIM- "SLUGGER" LIT OUT LIKE HE'D BEEN SHOT AT AND MISSED-

YES- "SLUGGER'S" KIND ARE ALL YELLOW- THAT'S WHY THEY RUN IN PACKS- BUT THEY'RE DANGEROUS- WELL, IF TROUBLE COMES, IT COMES----- BUY A FLOWER, MISTER?

HE'S NIVER AMOUNTED TO A ROW O' PINS- HE'S A WASH-OUT-

HUH- YOU SEEM TO HAVE IT IN FOR EVERYBODY WHO HASN'T BEEN SUCCESSFUL-

11-22-36

THAT'S WHERE YER WRONG- MOST O' ME BEST FRIENDS ARE POOR AS JOB'S TURKEY- NIVER HAD MUCH- BUT THEY KEEP TRYIN'-

WHAT I CAN'T STAND IS ANY BIRD WHO FOLDS UP LIKE A A-KOR-DEEN WHINEVER TH' GOIN' GITS A LITTLE ROUGH-

NOBODY KNOWS BETTER THAN MESELF WHAT IT IS TO HAVE SUCCESS HAND YE A BELT IN TH' KISSER- BUT SUCCESS CAN BE LICKED AND KEPT LICKED-

I'M FOR TH' LADS WHO STAY IN THERE, NO MATTER HOW ROCKY THE ROAD, AND KEEP SWINGIN'- YE'LL NEVER TAG SUCCESS BY SCREAMIN' FOUL-
